GLEN ROSS WINS TO LEAD LEAGUE

West Huntingdon Downs Bethel While Foxboro Also Lose

Stirling, Jan. 13 (Special) — West Huntingdon shook their jinx on Tuesday night and rolled the largest crowd of the season when they scored their first win of the year by defeating the league leading Bethel team by a score of two to one, in the second game of a double fixture of the Central Hastings Intermediate O.H.A. last night. The league leaders missed the services of their scoring centre man Parks, while on the other hand West Huntingdon were at full strength for the first time this year and really went to town. In the first game Glen Ross scored a victory over Foxboro by 6 to 3 to place them on top of the league, a spot that was packed with thrills. One of the surprises of Tuesday night's evening was the exceptionally large number of fans present which eclipsed any thus far this season.

In the first game, which included Foxboro and Glen Ross, the teams tied for second position in the league standing. Each team gave all they had to more up to the top and though the game was close Glen Ross earned their one point victory which put them into first position. Both teams started in real fast with the hope of gaining ni early lead and the first three of the night broke when "Friday" Fraser scored the first goal on a neat pass from Robinson. Slade Delnard got the second counter for Glen Ross unassisted, and Robinson nicked the third goal to complete in front of the Foxboro net. A. Fraser was responsible for the other goal scored by the Riverside boys. Glen Ross chalked up the first counter for Foxboro early in the first period, and Bleshman netted one in the second and one in the third.

Robinson, Fraser brothers, Delnard and R. Hagerman turned in the best performances for Glen Ross, Lee, Sharp, Hanna and Sutherland went well for Foxboro with Bleshman and Hagerman supplying in an excellent performance. His two goals were both records of brilliant play.

Lineups:

Glen Ross: Goal, Hagerman; defence, Armstrong and Brown; centre, Fraser; rover and R. Hagerman; centre, Robinson; subs: R. Delnard, Slade, Scott, Fraser, Reynolds, Scott and O. Fraser.

Foxboro: Goal, Sinfield; defence, Lee and Sharp; centre, Lee; wings, Hanna and Chapelle; subs: Simms, Bleshman, Sharpe, Hanna and Sutherland.

SECOND GAME

In the second fixture West Huntingdon hit their stride for the first time this season and their combination play clicked very smartly. They scored early and often enough to the liking of their speedy forwards to defeat Bethel by seven goals and they chalked up their first win of the season in the league leaders. The boy in black have nursed that lead on to the end of a winning lead, enough it seems and if they continue in the stride of last night, they will climb steadily. It is readily admitted by the other teams that the "Westerners" possess the fastest front line in the league and it will be worth watching although they score late starters. Behind played a sound game up front right through the last half but just couldn't match the fast West Huntingdon line and Mott, Don Rodgers netted the first goal for West Huntingdon, and Mott the second, and Ray Dickey got the lone counter for Bethel.

West Huntingdon went into the lead in the first period which ended with no scoring and Ray Dickey tied it up in the second when he scored on a nice pass from Tapps. Going into the third period with the honors equally divided both teams went after the winning goal with the start of the last frame and provided plenty of real thrills. Savige and Dickey the goalies of both teams made some excellent saves with Dickey having a few more to stop than Savige. With only a few minutes left to play Mott and Wright went through on a passing play with Mott scoring as Wright gave him the pass about ten feet out to get the game in the bag. Mott, Rodgers, Wright and Reid were the stars for West Huntingdon in the order named, Tapps, Dickey brothers and Lapinette were the stars for Bethel, with Dickey and Tapps turning in their usual fine effort.

Lineups:

West Huntingdon: Goal, Sarles; defence, J. McCrone, Reid; centre, H. Mott; wings, Wright and Rodgers; subs: Bailey, Thompson, Reid and Thompson.

Bethel: Goal, Everett; Dickey; defence, Cavarier and Fazio; centre, Earl Dickey; wings, Lapinette and Culhane; subs: Ray Dickey, Tapps, Guay, Brogh and Ketcheson.

"Pigskin Parade"

Half-backs, laugh-backs, tune tacklers, co-ed cuties, Boola-Boola boys and gridiron heroes cluster on the campus, swing on the football field, dance on the sidelines and sing in the stands in "Pigskin Parade", the uproarious Twentieth Century Fox musical football hit that comes to the Belle, tomorrow (Thursday) and Friday, matinee daily.

Featuring a cast hand-picked for entertainment, including Stuart Erwin, Johnny Downs, Patsy Kelly, Jack Haley, Arthur Jarles, Dixie Dunbar, Betty Grable, the Yacht Club Boys, Anthony Martin and Judy Garland, the film is a flip, fast football frolic, punctuated with torch tunes and highlighted with campus romance.

Merrier than "Thanks a Million", and swingier than "Sing, Baby Sing", "Pigskin Parade" scores a touchdown for many years was made an honorary member of the Napanee Rotary Club by President Lorne Roblin at the weekly luncheon. The honor was accorded in recognition of Rotarian Graham's untiring efforts while Chairman of the Orphans' Picnic Committee. The 1937 Town Councillors were guests and addresses were given by Mayor A. S. Hughson, Reeve Jos. Daly and Deputy Reeve Victor Cowling.

Merrier than "Thanks a Million", and swingier than "Sing, Baby Sing", "Pigskin Parade" scores a smashing entertainment touchdown as it tells the hilarious story of a small town hick who is lured by mistake, to play Boola-Boola in a big intercollegiate game.

Through an error, Yipee University receives an invitation meant for another school in the state. The Pep-eyed with amazement, the coach, Jack Haley, and his wife, Patsy Kelly, hastily accept before the big old car is recalled.

Aghast at their error, Boola-Boola immediately begins a mammoth campaign extolling the publicity campaign extolling the prowess of the Yipee boys and their amazing attendance as the forward pass.

This gives Patsy an idea and she persuades Haley to use the school basketball team, ingenuously, champions in the backfield.

Flipping the pigskin around in amazing manner, Yipee first demonstrates and then demolishes all of its opponents. Their wild climb to national fame is checked however, when the Jack breaks his leg.

Disconsolate, the school's spirit is revived with the discovery of Stuart Erwin, a hill-billy who flips musklmolons fabulous distances. Erwin is pressed into service in the backfield, and proves a sensation although he refuses to wear shoes and insists on playing barefoot.

After a riotous series of mirthful incidents, Yipee arrives at Boola-Boola for the big game, and ends in a tornado of mirth in one of the most boisterously funny and exciting football games ever played.

The entire cast is great in their respective roles "Ske" Erwin, Jack Haley and Patsy Kelly are terrifically funny, while Johnny Downs, Arthur Jarles, Betty Grable, Dixie Dunbar and Judy Garland provide fast-moving fun-creating delightful romance. The Yacht Club Boys, remembered for their sensational success in "Thanks a Million", stop the show with their hilarious numbers as they turn the tiger loose.

Yes! for Youth! Laughing, singing, dancing, swinging, in this rollicking comedy of laughs, tingling laughs, Lew Pollack and Sidney Mitchell wrote the song hits.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Sing Me a Love Song"

"Sing Me a Love Song," latest musical comedy, which opens at the Capitol Theatre today, has James Melton, Patricia Ellis, Hugh Herbert, Zadie Pitts, Allen Jenkins and Nat Pendleton in the stellar roles.

It is a highly entertaining song and dance fest with three new catchy tunes by the famous Broadway and Hollywood songsmiths, Harry Revel and Al Dubin.

But it is not all music by a long shot. There is one of the most enthralling murders in many a day produced. There are laughs by the car load, some thrills and a romance that will gladden every heart.

The story concerns a wealthy young man who falls heir to a department store. Knowing nothing about the management of it, he leaves it in the hands of two other individuals. When he and his girl friend arrive for the opening, he enters the store as a clerk to find out what it is all about.

He falls in love with a pretty clerk, getting into one scrape after another through his devil-may-care attitude. When he and his girl finally land in jail, he makes his identity known. When his girl leaves him flat because of his flightiness, he wakes up to himself, and takes charge of the business in earnest, landing the crooks who are trying to take it away from him.

Besides the song and dance numbers, the picture is full of mystery, mostly in sole, but one with a mute chorus, and one with Miss Pitts, who bursts into melody for the first time in her career. Two numbers are staged and directed by Bobby Connolly, one on the roof of the department store and the other in the downtown Cyclaps within the store.

Added Attraction

A murder is committed in a crowded room! A dozen witnesses stand in horror as their host suddenly falls forward with a bullet, that seemed to come from nowhere, through his heart. A search by the police fails to reveal the murderer. There is no smoke, no fumes. Apparently there is no motive. Everybody is suspected and yet there is not a single suspect any one. It is the perfect crime—perfectly planned and perfectly executed. Who did the deed? Detective Lee Wong of this is the mystery of "Murder With Pictures" the gripping drama starring Lew Ayres and Gail Patrick which starts today at 11.30 No. 2. It defies solution through any of the ordinary methods but will challenge your best efforts to get at the solution. It will tax your ingenuity and acumen as few murder mysteries ever have. Come and see if you can solve this perfect crime. Others early say that you can see it right from the beginning. See how a thousandth-of-a-second exposure of a camera registered what nobody in the room saw and thus betrayed the killer. And one more thing; after Brighton Tigers 10 10 1 21
don't tell your friends how it ends! Let them enjoy this gripping mystery as you will. See if they are any better at solving mysteries than you are. "Murder With Pictures" is a new kind of movie mystery which will hold you to the edge of your seat from the moment it begins until the break-lating finish. Don't fail to see "Murder With Pictures."

On the Stage

In addition to this swell double-bill show, we are presenting on our stage today only, at 3.45 and 8.40, "Mimica Flamingo — Greylounds of Speed" featuring Cadie Annie, a little girl with a load of personality in songs of the West, and Montana Frank and Fresno Rose in champion trick and comic shooting. Don't fail to see this act and two pictures today only. If you want real good entertainment at no increase in prices.

Senior Baseball's Demise Witnessed When Officers Resign Positions in a Body

President C. R. Clapp And Other Officials Give up Task

ONLY SEVEN PRESENT

Belleville Has Splendid Showing in League For 18 Years

DIED

R. I. P.

With seven interested citizens, three of the executive, one umpire, one player and Manager Alex Weir present, President C. R. Clapp tendered a resignation for the entire executive of the Belleville Senior Baseball Club, which was thanked for its services to the C.O.B.I. in 1936, at the annual meeting of the club held in the Y.M.C.A. last evening. The meeting took but a few minutes to complete the entire agenda, the minutes were read by Secretary Lorne McDougall, who also presented the financial statement of the club for 1936 as Treasurer, both of which were duly accepted and that officer was thanked for the very efficient manner in which he had conducted his duties throughout the season. The same encouraging statement of the evening came from Mr. McDougall, when he announced the club, operating in 1936, left no debts and showed a cash balance of about $60 dollars, a truly remarkable accomplishment under present conditions and that prevailed last summer, it was admitted.

Standing Abruptly Closed

With the resignation of President Clapp and the entire executive accepted by the club present, the annual meeting abruptly came to a close, no suggestions or discussions regarding the future of the game being submitted by any present.

The explanation will be made later for safe keeping and turned over to any responsible party or party in desirous of sponsoring baseball in this city in future years.

In tendering his resignation, President Clapp on behalf of Club executive, said he was sorry to see baseball in its present unsatisfactory condition, but could see no possible future for the game in Belleville, especially due to the lack of interest and indifference that is being shown. "It is to be hoped that some public spirited citizen will arise in the very near future to step into the breach and keep the ball from rolling out of existence in Belleville," concluded Mr. Clapp as he officially resigned.

When the 1936 Belleville baseball cancelits incurred by the heads of the league proper to do what they seem advisable with. If there would be interested in taking up the cause of baseball in Belleville from this day forward, they would not necessarily have to apply to the O.B.I. for membership, as any new non-existing transfer as Belleville baseball interests are concerned.

Hard to Realize

To realize that Belleville, once a lower of strength in C.O.B.I. and provincial baseball circles, is today without a baseball club and with little prospects of seeing its return is hard to believe but alass 'tis all too true. From the sublime to the ridiculous—

Belleville, seven times winner of the C.O.B.I. and twice champions of the senior O.B.A.A. in this province, today was shorn of its past glory by the absence of the once summer pastime. For the past 18 years Belleville has been the distinction of being a powerful threat in senior baseban circles, having won the C.O.B.I. in its initial year of 1919, to at that time continue forward and bring to the back the first province-wide senior baseball championship. For a trio of years in succession, 1922, '23 and '24, the famous old Belleville Nationals again predominated in the C.O.B.I. to win the league pennants and once more proceed on to the provincial finals in 1922. Again in 1925 the Belleville Nationals moved to the fore with prominence and in that year not only won the league honors, but again rose to dizzy heights and annexed its second senior O.B.A.A. championship in a thrilling series versus the Walkerville Clubs.

In Collar Once

Again in 1926 and 1930 Belleville rallied league pennants to the mast-head. As a matter of fact the honor of baseball has been held high in Belleville during the 18 years, of existence of the C.O.B.I., the club representing Belleville in all of those years finishing in the collar position only once, that being the season just past. As a matter of fact Belleville was only out of the league playoffs on three occasions during all of the years of operation of the league, a tremendous record indeed.

Such players as Waller Cerow, W. J. "Penny" Mills, "Wicky" Rose, Harry Mills, Speckle Oyer, Jack Williams, Jack Costello, Ira Harry Mikatiz, Vernon Weir, Al Mosher, the Casey brothers, Stan Hagerman, Sammie Symons, Harry Madden, Cec Holden, Al Gordon and will naturally bow their heads in momentarian upon hearing the above announcement that baseball in Belleville, the game they so admirably has held sway in this city for so many years, is was a great shame while it lasted, but today it's Amen.

A. JACKSON CONTINUES AS LEADING SCORER

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 13 (AP)—Puck-shooters of the International-American hockey league have been getting nowhere fast in their efforts to displace Art Jackson of Syracuse as the leading scorer in the loop.

Official statistics released today gave the star of the Salt City team 23 points, 15 goals and 18 assists, to lead the field. Jackson still has 7 points ahead of his team-mate, Con Colleran, who has scored.

Scorers in the League's eastern division dropped to Keeling of the Providence Reds in fifth place, but had 26 points.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Jan. 13.—Ah—Here's news: Art Cohn, Scorts Ed of the Oakland (Calif.) Tribune, writes: "I saw Maxie Rosenbloom make a monkey out of fat, clumsy Klingstlah Levinsky and I doubt if Joe Louis could lay a hand on Maxie in 20 rounds" . . . Bill Werber is happy. . . . Connie Mack has promised to turn him loose and let him run this year. . . Bill says those who take the tall toller is too tight on salary questions are all wet. . . . Add Superstitions: You can't bite Maurice (The Clipper) Smith of Villanova to walk forward into a stadium. . . He always backs in. . . This will give you an idea how New York baseball writers (a hard boiled lot) think of Eddie Brannick, Giant Secretary: Jerry Mitchell, New York Evening Post: "He has more friends than Santa Claus".

The Joe Louis knockout waiting astounded Buffalo fans. . . Incidentally, Joe reveals in the Mickey Mealey column today he plans to retire after winning the heavyweight title and defending it twice. . . All of which, he thinks, may comes to pass in less than a year. . . . The Joe Louis-Max Baer fight was the wisecrackers primed to give Larry Gaetz the "razz" as he "muffed the works" at tonight's dinner to the Toronto Maple Leafs. Gaetz failed to be called on for double duty at Syracuse. . . . They haven't got an athletic director in them and so Jesse Owns held down that job at both Ohio State and Iowa, he may be asked to take it over as well as coaching the track team. . . . The old Maestro, James J. Johnston, is personally supervising Bob Pastor's training for the Max Baer, World's championship.

Golf pros now in California are burned up at the new Southern California ruling which prohibits them from receiving advice from caddies. . . . Perhaps Toronto Maple Leafs are not going to find it so easy to make those playoffs after all. Anyway everyone counted them in when New York Americans hit the skids. Seven straight defeats made Red Dutton's team seem sure subjects for elimination.

But the keen punching boys have bounded right back into the picture and threaten to make it too interesting for comfort. Conn Smythe's hired men, The sweeping change in the outlook came last night when the wisecrackers primed to give Larry Gaetz the "razz" as he "muffed the works" at tonight's dinner to the Toronto Maple Leafs. Boston Bruins Downed Another collar team showed ripping last night when Chicago Black Hawks downed Bruins 4-2 in Boston. The win, their first in five games, swept some of the gloom out from the Hawk camp. They now are seven points behind Bruins and eight easily ahead of Detroit for the next few weeks if they hit the stride they should.

Canadiens registered their sixpoint lead over Maroons atop the Canadian section standings when they defeated Detroit Red Wings 4-1 in Montreal, Overtaking the early Detroit lead, they won easily after a short usual relentless backchecking.

The American win broke a string of defeats at 13 games. Lorne Anderson gave them a lead in the first period and Lorne Carr and Happy Emmas rapped in others in the second. Emmas got a penalty shot. When Maroons opened up their defence in the third, Amerks broke through for another goal by Art Chapman.

Hawks, without injured Paul Thompson, played cagey hockey before 1500 fans to register victory in a long while, at Boston. Bruin's Dit Clapper headed the game, less than two minutes of the first, but had taken a lead through Glenn Brydson's goal in the first period but Mush March got them back the advantage in the second and they weren't in danger again.

March Scores Twice

March scored again in the third and when Ray Getliffe got Johnston's second Brydson came back with another goal to make it safe. Hawks pushed in Bill Thoms for saying it had struck the post. The Chicago goals scored by Mush March Mitchell and Ion overruled him.

Eddie Goodfellow, ailing defenceman, got Detroit's only goal at Montreal as it was the first of the game George Mantha evened it up in the first period, George Brown and Johnny Gagnon added in the second and Dinty Desilets put another in the third.

Marty Barry's assist on Goodfellow's goal brought to four the total with Larry Aurie for point-scoring honors. Each has 21 points, one behind Syd Howe of Detroit Americs, who also got an assist last night.

Babe Siebert, Canadien's star defenceman, increased his lead over high point-making defencemen, when he assisted in the Brown and Gagnon goals. He now has five goals and 10 assists. Young Brown, Winnipeg product, who he has been trained in Montreal hockey, has been playing some fine defensive and offensive games.

The expected duel of high scoring forward lines was not staged. Howie Morenz, Aurel Joliat and Gagnon were on the Canadien side and Herb Lewis is ill with flu and Johnny Sorrell worked with Larry Aurie and Marty Barry.

TRENTON LEAGUE OPENED MONDAY

Hinde And Dauch And Brighton Winners in Doubleheader

Trenton, Jan. 13 (Special)—The Trenton and District Hockey League opened on Monday night. The Hawk's Corners squad and Hinde and Dauch last year's champions were matched in the first fixture. After sixty minutes of play the Dauchmen emerged victorious by the one-sided count of 9 to 1. The Hinde and Dauch boys showed a hit and miss type of hockey and completely disorganized the Hawk's men combination throuh. Hinde and Dauch dented the twine behind Cecil Keighley four times in the opening canto, three in the second and two in the third. Ken Johnstone, while Hart's Corners only register came late in the initial session. Hinde and Dauch's Bert Deach stood out and netted three goals and assisted on two others. C. A. Hutcan also performed well for the winners. Corners displayed a little high by all in the second period and only a fine crowd sent four to the cooler for two minutes penalties.

Teams: Hinde and Dauch—Goal, C. Keighley; defence, W. O'Malley and G. Bowen; centre, B. Lott; wings, D. Hoode and R. Finnigan; alternates, Ken Johnstone, C. A. Hutcan, J. Waldron, N. Welks and G. Hutcan. Hart's Corners—Goal, H. Keighton; defence, K. Hunter, H. Hyatt; centre, J. Hunter; wings, H. Mannion and H. Campbell; alternates, R. Baker, H. Price, A. Mc-Minn, J. Miller and Graham.

Referee—Harry Gowan.

Continental Oans vs. Brighton was the second game of the night and the thrills and spats of a big time match and was won by Brighton 4-1. Kerr, defenseman of the Continentals, exchanged blows with Rundell of Brighton, in the first frame. Referee Bowen penalized Kerr three minutes for the bout. Hinde two Tempers flared again in the second and Rundell received a penalty but the goal-tenders carried a high stick. McKinnon of Brighton met with one of the hardest knocks received a gash over the eye that required four stitches to close. The Continental veterans claimed that the Brighton goalie was hitting the Continen youngsters hard and in protecting their property took the law into their own hands. Little Bobbie Johnson broke away after Brighton's second goal and outgunned Bolderstone in the nets for the Continentals. Lamb and Lambert scored on Urwonk's pass and the second period ended tied. Brighton's attack showed real class when he tallied after serving a penalty. Urwonk and Lamb and Urzoki concluded Brighton's scoring for the game. Referee Bowen was shown from the Continental net. Mann was officiating and Johnson, Bolderstone in the Brighton goal, was outstanding on the number of shots and was awarded considerable credit. Bush and Bolderstone performed well in the O.H.A. last season and with Brighton this year, literally turned the ice up in the final minutes of the game.

Brighton—Goal, Bolderstone; defence, Urwoski and Lambert; centre, Thompson; wings, Uber and Chapman; alternates, McKinnon, Corbett, Lindsay, Rundell, Bush. Continental Cans—Goal, Mann; defence, Kerr and Ellis; centre, Lamb; wings, Johnson and Inglis; alternates, Cain, Hubbell, Lambert.

Referee—W. Bowen.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Play-making Marty Barry of Detroit Red Wings moved into a tie with his teammate, Larry Aurie, for the National League point scoring leadership last night, assisting in a goal to boost his point total to 23. Meanwhile, Johnny Gagnon of Canadiens and Annie Sears' Dave Kennedy each clicked up a point to continue a second-place tie, one point behind the Red Wings. The leaders:

GREAT REVIVAL IN GOLF WORLD

Record Fields Enter Each of the Four Championships.

(By John G. Jackson)
(President, United States Golf Association)

New York, Jan. 13.—(AP)— The year just closed has been full of interest in the golf world, both of the playing and the administrative side.

In the former, perhaps the most significant fact is that a record field entered each of the championships conducted by the United States Golf Association.

The four Championships attracted 1,277 competitors. There were 1,118 entries for the four open championship. The amateur public links championship had a field of 231 players and the amateur championship division there were 49 teams of four players each from 32 states and districts. The Women's Amateur Championship had a field of 161, the largest since the maximum handicap allowance was reduced to 24 strokes.

These facts evidence a great revival during 1936 of interest in golf. It is reasonable to assume that this has been greatly augmented by the achievements of golfers, for in the championships there have been many examples of skill and ability that they surely must have been developed in the years of depression.

Another indication in events of less importance than U.S.G.A. championships. The International aspect of the year's competitions was especially significant as Walter Hagen and Curtis Cup matches, brought together teams of men and women amateurs, respectively, representing United States and British players were unusually prominent in two of our championships, as Frankie Barton, being the winner of the Women's Championship and another Jack McLean, very nearly winning the senior championship, registered by Johnny Fischer.

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

This morning we visited Dr. Kirma, renowned psychic now appearing at the Belle, as his hotel. Our reason was primarily to get the low down on the result of tonight's hockey game, but whether it was Dr. Kirma's hypnotic power of wishing never say, but we still do not know which team is going to win, the "Fliers" or the Redmen, tonight.

It wasn't because Dr. Kirma could not or did not answer our questions, but simply because he answered unsuccessfully tried to convince the mysterious gentleman that he didn't know thereof of what he spoke. After being greeted cordially we put the question right up to him point-blank "Can you tell us which team is going to win the hockey game at the gellsville Arena tonight?" we popped right out of the bag. "Hockey game?" he frowned, "are you sure you don't mean polo game?" the Doc interrupted.

"Naw, polo is what you horse-play, we mean ice hockey," we corrected.

"I'm sorry, but polo is not always played on horseback, my friend," again protested the Doc.

"Aw yer nuts, do you think we never saw polo games in the movies? Why they're always played with the players riding special polo ponies," again we contradicted our distinguished guest, at which point he assumed the initiative and we listened attentively.

"Now lookit here, Ice hockey is played on the ice with the players using skates with steel runners on them themselves along and if you want to see something really exciting come out to the Arena tonight," we suggested to Kirma, but he only smiled and said he merely gazed at us in disgust.

"My friend where I come from they used to play a game called golf. It was played on the ice or on a roller rink. The players knocked a little ball around with sticks and tried to get it into a cage or net. Sometimes they played on the snow in the city here last summer. It seems too bad that baseball once the most popular game in this city and district, Mrs. Rumble-tine is considered the greatest, competitive duplicate bridge player in the district, United States, or Canada on her records for tournaments play during the past year. "Congratulations."

play the postponed game on Monday. And there was a justice to the scheduling in Belleville. Now the Lirlock City sports scribe says the Belleville would also have scored the play that postponed game. After adjusting prices back and forth in an attempt to book an exhibition game on Monday night, the Peterboro scribe says the O.H.A. should have forced the Redmen to play for the conventions of the Peterboro Brigade. Now isn't that just too dreary. What would they have done if we, management for the exhibition game had been completed and then the O.H.A. had ordered the postponed game played the same night, would they have played a double-header?

Victor "Turby" Gritchin, Queen's university football player, may never play rugby again. Gritchie may lose the use of his right hand. He injured his hand on a piece of glass, which severed tendons and arteries in his wrist. Gritchie was a promising young player and was being touted on for the 1937 tricolor squad by Coach Ted Reeve.

Harry "Red" McDonald, former Belleville Cities Service hockey player now performing for the Kingston Frontenacs in the United States Amateur League, scored the only two goals counting for the Gyles when they played the New York amateurs a two-all tie recently. Both McDonald and Bingham, another former gellsville product, are going great guns with the Maryland squad.

The death knell was sounded over senior baseball in Belleville last night, when the senior O.B.A.A. executive of the club tendered its resignation. Head President C. R. Clapp. Exactly seven citizens, aside from the club executive of three and two players, Alex Weir, were present — and after the reading of the minutes, the presentation of the financial statement by Sec. Treas. Lorne McDougall, the resignation of last year's executive was accepted and insofar as the annual meeting was concerned, no suggestions were named or even so much as suggested. It was even rumored at the meeting that the possibilities of junior baseball in Belleville for 1937 would be given some consideration, the suggestion of even that calling forth a few cheers in this city next summer. It seems too bad that baseball, once the most popular sport in this city and district, Mrs. Rumble-tine is considered the greatest, competitive duplicate bridge player in the district, United States, or Canada on her records for tournaments play during the past year. "Congratulations."

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Jan. 12 (CP)—New highs were scattered through the industrial list as a generally firm-building stocks looked vigorous with both Building Products and Gypsum at new highs for recent years and Dominion Tar also broke into fresh ground for the up side. Interested leaders were generally stronger in the senior section but early afternoon prices were just about even with Thursday's close.

Abitibi Common again advanced in active trading. Smelters gained and there were steady rather than losses of about the minimum fraction each recorded for Falconbridge, Noranda, Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting, Seaboard Oil and Hudson Oil.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 12.—(CP)—Senior Golds were in demand in final trading on the Toronto Exchange, with gains of a fraction to a point showing for Lake Shore, McIntyre and Dome issues. Hollinger improved to 24, O'Brien to 10 3-8 Hinley Corporation to 3.75 and Moneta to 1.86. It was a new high for Sicoe and a gain of 70 cents for the day.

Ofla and Base Metals also registered an upward movement with gains showing this afternoon for Foothills, Calgary-Edmonton and Dalhousie, Consolidated Vendors, Waite-Amulet and Sherritt. Noranda reached a record high price of 76 3-8. Silvers were stronger also.

Board Room Gossip

Although the local market is not nearly as active this week as last the general tone is firmer and more than being maintained. Losses are more than offset by gains. The number of New Highs for the year 1936-37 on Monday and Tuesday made a new low for the same period. Curiously enough, the Toronto Stock Exchange Paper, in Canada the "paper" terms is the strongest feature, its strength in recent weeks with many stocks reaching the highest levels in several years.

Canada Cement Company

When the preferred shareholders of this company receive their dividend cheques at the rate of $1.50 per share on March 31 it will be for the first time in nearly five years. This payment will restore arrears from $30.37 1-2 to $32.87 1-2 a share.

The annual report for the year ended November 30th 1936 is somewhat overdue and the appearance may be expected almost any day now. It will, however, be the best results in four years and net will probably be in the vicinity of $2.20 a share on Preferred as compared with $1.06 cents in 1935, $7 cents in 1934 and $1.52 cents in 1933.

On November 1st last the company redeemed all of the outstanding 5 1-2 percent First Mortgage Gold Bonds due 1942. This was financed through the prior sale early in September of $15,000,000 of new First Mortgage Bonds payable in Canadian funds only and carrying interest at the rate of 3 1-2 percent for $6,000,000 of Serial Bonds and 4 1-4 percent for $9,000,000 of 15-Year Bonds. It is estimated that the saving in interest charges alone will approximate $260,000 per annum. The retirement of $1.50 per share on preferred. With a continuation of the current trend the dividend may be visualized as making additional payments in respect of dividend arrears during 1937.

Abitibi

Three separate groups have prepared a plan of re-organization for the Abitibi Power and Paper Company and the one presented by the Ripley group of New York is now before the courts. There are many hurdles to jump before any reorganization of this company is possible—one is the fact that a clause in the Trust Deed for the present 5 percent Bonds does not permit an issue being placed ahead of it. The condition naturally brings up the question of how can the desired new capital be raised or how can the necessary authority be received which would waive the above mentioned clause.

Mr. Ripley is the Chairman of the Bondholders' Committee and naturally any views originating in that quarter would naturally favor the bondholders. It may just be possible that the shareholders themselves might finally reorganize Abitibi in a manner similar to the one that has been brought out on Price Brothers. Interesting days are ahead for this large producer of newsprint.

Livestock

Toronto, Jan. 13 (CP)—Cattle and calf prices shaded lower on the Toronto Union Stockyards today in dull action. The sheep and lamb division displayed a firm tone. Hog prices were steady to 10 cents easier soon. Cattle holdover from Tuesday's sale totalled 1,000.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture were: Cattle 760; calves 260; hogs 1,310; sheep and lambs 600.

Monday's good weighty steers brought $6.35 to $6.50. Good butcher heifers sold at $6.00 to $6.50 and $5.75. A few top steers sold as high as $7.00 Monday. Prices ranged down to $4.25. Butcher cows were steady from $2 to $3.50 with canners and cutters selling between $1.75 and $2.

Good bulls were from $4 to $4.50. Bologna bulls were steady at $4 to $7.50.

Indications pointed to a near steady close on the hog market. Prices ranged from $9.40 to $9.50 with a few at $9.55 to $9.60.

Receipts of Western lambs brought $10 over. Some Ontario lambs sold at $9.50 with Toronto quality sold between $7.65 and $9.50. Sheep traded at $4.50 to $6.25 for the best light ewes.

Montreal, Jan. 13 (CP)—Cattle and calf receipts totalled 1,000 and prices slipped 25 cents in early dealings on the Montreal Stockyards today to provide the only change in inactive trading. Offerings were light and included 200 calves. No transactions was established.

Choice steers and heifers sold at $7.25 while choice bulls up to $5 and common at $3.50. Fair to good cows ranged from $2.50 to $4.50 and canners at $1.50 and graders around $2.75.

Choice hogs sold at $9.75 to fed and watered, with selects at the usual $10 differential. Heavies and lights made $8.25 while extra heavies went at $7.75 and sows from $5 to $7.

One-Legged Gulf Pet

Fort Erie, Ont., Jan. 12—(CP)—Workers on the International Railway Bridge here have found a new pet — a one-legged sea-gull.

The bird which can hop along as well as its normally equipped brothers and sisters now visits the bridge employees every day for his meals since the men started feeding it a few weeks ago.

CHANGES MADE

the Assessment Act pertinent to this matter including sections relating to property assessable and modes of assessment and valuation, and to all court decisions to which we were referred.

And having considered carefully the sales in the municipality and paralleling for the previous three years and the assessment relating thereto and having given due attention to consideration the personal valuations made of the assessors respecting the different municipalities by different valuators,

We find it unnecessary to make some changes in the equalized assessment of the majority of the municipalities and have reached the following conclusion as to what the equalized assessment of each municipality should be, as follows—

Dungannon $81,600; Mayo $83,100; Carlow $83,000; Huntingdon $158,800; Bangor $113,000; Deseronto $373,000; Stirling $778,600; Rawdon $1,000,000; Marmora $339,200; Tweed, $500,000; Hungerford $1,000,000; Madoc $1,200,000; Elzevir $170,100; Total $18,303,200.

It will be observed that the increases or decreases, with the exception of the municipalities, have been very slight, and as to these few we did not feel that we could do better than we have done from all the evidence submitted.

To Illustrate: Made deductions from the following municipalities:

Sidney 2 1-2 per cent.; Thurlow 4-5 per cent.; Tyendinaga 1 per cent.; Rawdon 1 per cent.; Huntingdon 12 per cent.; Madoc Township 5 per cent.; Deseronto 6 1-4 per cent; Stirling 2 1-2 per cent.; Tweed 1 per cent.; Bancroft 50 per cent.

All of these percentages are in the rough, with the exception of the remaining municipalities no changes have been made.

On the question of costs. The appellants at the hearing before Judge Frankford, both being reduced, are entitled to their full costs of appeal. And while it is not absolutely necessary to change the assessment of no small municipality we feel that whose costs of the appeal might well be borne by the municipality and that each municipality pays its proportionate share.

The costs as to the appellants at least should cover costs of personal attendance and we have fixed and decreed we think the costs might well extend to all appellants in such cases. There will be included, of course the amount to be paid the Registrar of Deeds for the abstracts prepared lists of sales, and will also include counsel fee fixed by the various counsel attending.

We feel that while question of the amount to be allowed to the Registrar, the number of abstracts issued and to the counsel might well be left with Mr. Payne, solicitor for the county, to be agreed upon between the parties may be spoken to by the Judge if the parties cannot agree on a majority thereof.

Comic Christmas Cards Now Worth $80 Each

Toronto, Jan. 13 — (CP) — The 1933 Christmas cards sent to friends by a young floor trader on the Toronto Stock Exchange are worth $80 each today. The friends are trying to find them. Inquiries are being through all storerooms and cupboards.

The story came out today without names. At an eighth of a cent a share the 1933 cards would be worth shares. Each comic Christmas card was 100 shares. He didn't keep any for himself.

Now the stock is worth 80 cents a share, but the trader's card collection is worth more than $4,000 - - - and only a few hundreds have been able to find their cards.

INQUEST ADJOURNED UNTIL MAN IS FOUND

Kitchener, Ont., Jan. 13 (CP)—Recalling that the death of Mrs. Florence Wright, 70, is a mystery until William Wrigley is found, Provincial Police today renewed their search for the missing witness today. Police said Wrigley has the figure of a man, identified from his right forearm, and that he had been living with Mrs. Wright. When he vanished on Dec. 27, immediately after the death of Mrs. Flynn, both limbs were bandaged.

In the meantime, an inquest into the woman's death stands adjourned. It was yesterday until such time as Wrigley is apprehended on a coroner's warrant.

FLOUR SALESMAN TAKES OWN LIFE

Body Found in Rented Car After W. E. Rann Missing 3 Days

London, Ont., Jan. 13 (CP)—An inquest into the death of William Edward Rann, 41-year-old London flour salesman, died from carbon monoxide poisoning, was found in his car in a rented garage Tuesday after he had been missing for three days.

Despite it was a case of suicide, Dr. A. R. Routledge, chief coroner, said no further investigation would be held. A preliminary inquest was held before the autopsy report had been received and a coroner's jury of eight men viewed the body and other evidence.

Officials were puzzled when they found the body in the car with a garden hose running from the exhaust pipe through a window to the interior of the car. They ruled suicide was the fact there were no keys in the ignition lock.

An expert examined the car and reported that the ceiling had been adjusted so motor could be started without the keys.

CLOSED FRONTIER BRITAIN ASKS

Expect Hitler Will Take Favorable View of Proposal

Berlin, Jan. 13 (AP)—Great Britain will seek closing of the Franco-Spanish frontier to volunteer fighters as he next step in wooing Germany, on other information in Spanish circles here today.

Germans have charged persistently that France is assembling ground for volunteers fighting on the Spanish government side.

MOUNTAIN CRASH

Los Angeles, Jan. 13 (AP) —The search for the crash of transport plane, killing one of 13 occupants, was described in graphic detail by rescuers, survivors and survivors—a pistol shot of a pilot to signal aid; a starvation menu; and a search party of 12 survivors carried to the ear of a sanitarium.

The game-hunting, adventurous Martin Johnsons, home from Jungle Africa, were among the dead. Their daughter, Osa, 30, suffered a fractured skull, internal injuries and shock.

Johnson was "delirious and was screaming" when he was found, when found, a witness said.

Another survivor, Kingsley county surveyor, quoted Pilot William Lowe as saying "the Richest thing I've ever seen in the air other calls" and he couldn't get through; also that Lowe had a bad wing, he lost his course and one motor sputtered "Daddy's" dead.

James Braden, president of Braden-Sutphin Ink Company, Cleveland, Ohio, was fatally hurt when victim of transport plane crashes in mountains 28th, survivors reported states over a month's period.

Taking off in a heavy fog and wind, rescuers toiled all night to bring out the injured during a snow storm. Lowe, 31, pilot, crashed southit in murky weather ten miles from Mount Wilson, Sunday, and was found Monday.

The picture was detailed by Richard Gardner, deputy county surveyor, who was among the first to arrive for observation, to the effect that the pilot was conscious when found.

"His leg broken, he was looking out of his compartment, a gun in his hand, trying to signal for help," Gardner said. "He had just fired a shot to direct rescuers to the scene.

"I pulled open the cabin door. My eyes fell on Colonel Johnson and James Braden. His body had fallen on over Mrs. Cole Johnson who was pinned under the wreckage. Johnson was dead and everyone seemed to be piled up on someone else.

"I recognized Martin Johnson from pictures I had seen of him. He was delirious and was screaming from pain and shock.

"Other stewardess was the heroine. Although suffering from a broken ankle, she limped about trying to help out all the others and chased them through the ordeal."

RAPPROCHEMENT FRANCE, GERMANY DULY CONFIRMED

Berlin Communique Tells of Trade Negotiations Under Way

FIRST CONFIRMATION

Department Experts Will Conduct These Negotiations

Berlin, Jan. 13.—(AP)—A Government communique officially announced today negotiations were under way for a trade treaty between Germany and France.

The announcement, first official confirmation of a rapprochement move between the two countries whose relations have been strained over the Spanish Civil War, also stated Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Reichsbank president and Minister of Economic Affairs, had cancelled his scheduled trip to Paris January 16.

Dr. Schacht, who was to open the German building at the Paris Exposition, has also been expected to act as Chancellor Hitler's personal economic ambassador in the Trade Treaty discussions.

Text of Communique

The Communique said he had decided that Count Von Ruminboomer for the Exposition his duties in Berlin were too great to allow him to be absent.

The Communique added:

"German-French negotiations for a trade treaty for the present will be conducted by the respective experts."

The statement said Dr. Schacht had decided eight days ago not to make the trip to Paris.

Reports in Berlin newspapers, however, had failed to deny discussions of the proposed treaty and impending visit and, on the contrary, had declared that the conversation the proposed visit had made.

GOV. MURPHY TO ACT AS MEDIATOR

Meanwhile National Guardsmen Converge on Flint, Michigan

Flint, Mich., Jan. 13 (AP) — Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan determined to effect "an immediate and peaceful termination" of the General Motors sitdown strike called today for a meeting of the company and union representatives in Lansing, state capitol.

Quality Fall - Made Cheese Must Be Improved to Hold Market in United Kingdom

J. F. Singleton, Commissioner, States Views at Conference

MEET AT LONDON

T. J. Hicks, Produce Grader, Tells of Visit in Connection With Industry

London, Ont., Jan. 13.—(CP)—If the market for Canadian cheese in the United Kingdom is to be retained great must be taken to improve the quality of the fall-made cheese at present the shipment of inferior cheese, the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario was told today by two officials of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

J. F. Singleton, dairy and cold storage commissioner, declared there should be some legal control of the treatment accorded cheese, factories and the length of time it is allowed to stay in factories before shipment.

T. J. Hicks, senior dairy produce grader, outlined the grader's position in a three months' visit to the chief exporting countries of Canada cheese in England, Scotland and Northern Ireland.

"Quality, quality," Mr. Singleton said, "that is prices of Canadian cheese will be up to the standard attained as they should be, it will be necessary to see that the cheese is held in cool storage temperature for a sufficient length of time before it is shipped overseas, and this only be assured by doing so in the factories.

"The price at which a buyer can sell cheese determines the price he will pay for cheese. This is the whole attitude of United Kingdom importers—it is unfavorable to Canadian fall-made cheese, and Canadian producers suffer."

Suitable Temperature

There was reason to believe, he explained, that a considerable part of loss of flavor was occasioned by immature cheese could be avoided by improvements in buildings and that could be done only by improving the milk supply and cooling. Heat was responsible for defective flavor and by maintaining suitable temperature in both curing-room and curing room.

Those engaged in the industry and trade in Western Ontario might realize that since Canada cheese from that area was exported value of most cheese was the basis of the price paid to the producer.

It would appear that there should be both improvement in the quality of the treatment cheese received in the factories and the length of time cheese should stay there before being placed in boxes for shipment he said.

Grader Might Refuse

The quality and shipment of cheese while still too immature, continued Mr. Singleton, was due to the fact that farmers refuse to grade such cheese, but this control had not been effective. "Last year it was the only action which had been taken by the Dairy Produce Act.

Cheese, in some cases, was shipped from Ontario factories to Montreal from Montreal from the hospitality of Canada's greatest competitor in the United States and the United Kingdom was New Zealand, and while Canadian cheese was shipped from Canada London in 12 to 14 days, New Zealand cheese was from 30 to 40 days and many weeks to reach the same market. Yet, he explained, cheese from New Zealand was controlled by stringent legislation.

In New Zealand every owner or manager of a registered dairy factory, where cheese was manufactured was compelled by law to keep cheese in cool storage from August and September on the shelf for not less than 60 days before selling it or coating it with wax or allowing it to be packed or shipped for export. During this period, the cheese had to be graded by a licensed grader.

Interviewed Importers

While cheese of inferior manufactured during any other month than August and September, the importance of retaining the choice on the shelf was not less than 14 days he explained. Importers and manager of the dairy was compelled to obtain a permit every month before obtaining cheese intended for removal from cool storage. The duty of manufacture to be maintained at a temperature of not less than 60 degrees.

Mr. Hicks said the object of his British tour was to interview importers, wholesalers and distributors in certain cities and to investigate complaints as to quality, and to secure information of benefit to the dairy industry of Canada.

With regard to complaints, Mr. Hicks found that immature fall-made cheese, Mr. Hicks said it was found that the cheese was not suitable during the fall of 1935 to have a period of storage before consumption. Cheese more maturity when shipped had good results, but that cheese made in October and November Canadian cheese were better than Canadian cheese.

There were still in the United Kingdom importers and others who would not take a chance on October made cheese, he declared. The cheese did not break down properly or keep sound, however, after other objectionable flavor, also the importers maintained their complaints did not want it.

Effect Being Made

Mr. Hicks said he had explained to the importers the effort being made to improve the quality of Canadian fall-made cheese and also that the Canadian exporters were co-operating with the Dominion Dairy and Cold Storage Branch to improve the texture of the fall-made cheese by holding it in the warehouse for higher temperature.

He had examined several hundred cheese in 1936 early October cheese in London Liverpool and Manchester and most of it appeared to be of fair quality. The importers stated that the latter cheese was satisfactory.

It was too green to pass an opinion as to how they would develop, but some was mouldy and appeared to have either been placed in wet boxes or exposed to heavy rain during transit. Other cheese had too much moisture and showed a weak pasty texture and was breaking down too fast.

DAILY SHORT STORY
Out of the Fog

By John McNamara

As a dim figure appeared sudden-ly in the heavy fog a man stepped lightly to the sidewalk from the doorway in which he had been standing. He stepped back when the dim figure became a girl in a tight-fitting skirt and sweater. He noted her long curls, bright tam-o-shanter, her lazy, swaying gait and the alertness of her head.

She hesitated for a brief moment as she passed him. Her bright eyes took in his shabby suit; the turned-up collar, his lean, square shoulders, the battered shoes. She walked on a few steps, stopped, turned and came back to where he was standing.

He removed the bit of cigarette from his lips and said, coldly: "Wrong guy, sister."

She shrugged carelessly and he noticed how small she was under her heavy wool sweater.

"I'm sould stand a drink," she said flatly.

He stepped to her side pulling down his shapeless felt-hat and drawing the collar of his coat tight-er as he did so. The wind blew the cold Wet fog into his face, chill-ing him. She slipped one small arm through his and led him down the block. At the corner she turned. They came to a dark, nar-row alley and again she turned. He followed her up a flight of creaky back steps.

Inside her small room she tossed the bright tam-o-shanter on the bed and shook out her damp curls. He turned down the wick of and un-buttoned his coat.

"That is off coat dry it," she in-structed. "At least it's warmer in here than out there."

He did so as she suggested and looked about the poorly furnished room. It was neat and the curtains at the window were clean and cheerful. She poured out drink and he swallowed it with a single gulp. He shook his head and set the glass on the table.

She looked at his hands. "I'll make some coffee," she nodded toward a chair by the window. "Park yourself over there, big boy."

She moved lightly about the tiny room. A pot of coffee was soon steaming on the electric plate. From behind curtained shelves she brought out sugar, cream, butter, a loaf of bread and a large can of sardines. She placed the small table and set two places. She turned on the light that hung in the centre of the room and re-turned him to pull down the window shade.

He pulled his chair up to the table and tried not to appear too hungry. She drank her coffee slow-ly and nibbled at her sandwich. The sardines and bread disappeared rapidly.

"I need to hate your kind." He laughed bitterly. "Now I'm eating your grub. What does that make me?"

She shot a quick look at him, and he thought she was going to speak but she relaxed back in her chair. Her eyes were very blue and she was not bad looking. He wondered if it was from bitterness. His eyes fell on a picture that stood on the cheap, varnished dresser in the corner of the room.

"Boy friend?" he asked, inclining his head toward the picture. She hesitated so long he thought she was not going to answer.

"Just a souvenir," she finally replied, "I was young, he was rich and had a family."

"Wanted to marry you?" he asked.

She nodded her head slowly, "I wanted to be sure. I sent him away to see if he would forget me." She rose and picked up the empty dishes. "Well, he did."

"That's life." He stood up. "Well, guess I'll be going."

"Do you want a job?" she asked suddenly.

"What's a job?" he smiled for the first time that evening.

She wrote a name on a slip of paper and handed it to him. "It's a job," she told him. "This guy is looking for a man."

"Are you sure?"

"Of course. I'm sure. I was talk-ing to him last night."

He drew a small automatic revol-ver out of his pocket and dropped it on the table in front of her. "This is all I've got to pay for the meal—and the job." He smiled again, "It ought to be good, it has not been used."

"I'll take it," she replied slowly, "you'll get that job."

At the door she placed her hand on his back. "Come back to-day now," she observed.

"Good luck," she said simply.

It had been a long time since he had done anything impulsively but at that moment he raised the tiny hand and brushed his lips lightly across her fingers.

"You've been my good luck to-day," he told her earnestly, and drawing up the collar of his coat he stepped out into the fog.

RIVER FLOODS PORT HOPE, R. R. LINE DAMAGED

Stinson's Mill Bridge Near Wooler Swept Out by Flooded Creek Waters

Torrential Rain In City Swells Moira River With Lowlying Land Inundated

FLATS UNDER WATER

Ice in Canniffon Mill Pond Released Before Noon

With the torrential rain which fell at an early hour this morning and continued throughout the night, many low-lying sections of the city were in dgnger of being inundated.

A muddy swirling flood of water surged down Front street shortly after the first downpour, filling gutters and all the sewers of Campbell and Front streets ran over the sidewalk in an eddying stream.

Early this morning the water surged greatly a foot or so from the sidewalks near the Coleman Flats. The flats themselves are under water with many acres of the flat land submerged and in to city sewers.

Main sewers on Dundas and Oakridge streets were running at capacity this morning with considerable backflows also resulting in cellars being under water in the vicinity of the stoppage of the sewer, stated City Engineer Charles Mott, this morning. The sewers are used to their fullest capacity with the maximum flow of water now being handled. Our men were but working until long after midnight in an effort to relieve the situation."

1236 Flood Reported.

Street Superintendent Hamilton Hinkley on the downtown flood of a year ago, stated the present flood is heavy rain of last night was of the same nature as that which prevailed the 26th of March. It was a good thing there is no ice or snow in the back areas," he stated, "else we might have got a taste of what happened last year."

The ice went out of the mill pond above Canniffon, which also released tons of water down the Moira River. There is no danger of a serious flood such as was experienced last March.

Stinson's Bridge Washed Out.

Trenton, Jan. 14 (Special)—The Trent River swollen by heavy rains which fell in its vicinity last night rose in miniature flood today, filling its tributary creeks to overflowing.

Flood waters roaring through the night washed out Stinson's mill bridge on the Trenton-Wooler road early last evening paralyzing traffic for a time and making bridge passage to Wooler from Trenton impossible except by a long detour ford. Mowers Creek, another tributary of the Trent River is also overflowing its banks and surrounding low-lying lands are inundated. Cellars in the vicinity of the East and Trenton are under water and there is from two to three feet of flood water flowing under the Canadian National Railway subway on the Wooler road.

Vehicular traffic from Trenton to Wooler is being detoured via Frankford.

One and one-eighth inches of water fell over this district during the past twenty-eight hours as the result of last night's and today's rainfall alone. The downfall was registered at the city pumping station as the heaviest of the season.

Restricted Lessons.

Roar of swollen waters today rounded Carleton's dreary countryside and rain-darkened skies echoed the rumblings which broke in on mild and indifferent winter conditions.

Month-long quiet was transformed overnight into a condition of mounting destruction in eastern and central parts of the province. Rain fell for almost twelve hours in eastern and central Ontario. At Port Hope, Toronto, St. Catharines, Petersboro and Kitchener the threat of floods was real.

The Canaraska River raged at Port Hope after having to flood certain residences and business establishments preventing hundreds of men and women from getting to work and keeping at least 300 children from attending school.

Railway Line Washed Out.

The Canaraska waters washed out more than 100 feet of Canadian National Railways line on the Port Hope-Peterborough branch near the Lake Ontario city.

In Toronto district, the Don River and Etobicoke Creek were pushed up and over their banks by heavy rainfall last night.

The river flooded railway tracks in part of Toronto East and the water also spread across a low-lying district by

FOUR CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH

Fireman Seriously Injured in Blaze at Watertown, N. Y.

Ogdensburg, N.Y., Jan. 14 (AP)—Four children were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home, and when flames destroyed a small frame house here early today.

The victims were Violet, 15; Rita, 11; Jean, 9, and Marion, 7, children of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Perfilla.

A son, Bobby, aged 10, was rescued with night, clothes and hair aflame by a second neighbor, the front door trying to escape from the flaming house.

Man Believed As Witness Dead Appears in Will Case

Claims He is Undivorced Husband of Deceased Woman

AWAY 25 YEARS

Halifax, Jan. 14 (CP)—Outcome of hearing to set aside a $20,000 will was uncertain today following the sensational appearance of a witness believed to have died many years a quarter of a century ago.

A will drawn up in 1923 by Mrs. Sarah Giberson of Halifax, whose body was found in Halifax harbor last June, left $25,000 to the Salvation Army. Blanchard Fitzerson of Andover, N.B., her second husband and Mrs. Lorna Abbott of Forest Point, N.S., sought to have the will set aside.

Harry Crocker, a 60-year-old retired sailor with tattooed arms and chest, appeared at the hearing yesterday and told an astounded court he was the undivorced first husband of the deceased.

Tears rolled down the veteran mariner's cheeks as he recounted the story of his marriage to 20-year-old Sarah Davenport in 1899. The first was, in the time and he said "it was love at first sight."

He produced documents to prove his identity and marriage. Leaving the navy, the couple took up residence in Brixton, London, he said, but four years later his wife and child returned to Canada. "I never saw or heard of either of them again," he declared.

Crocker said he had come to Halifax "to see justice done" and had no thought of a possibility he might fall heir to part of the estate.

Martin Johnson, explorer, died of injuries.

Scene of the crash in the mountains way down mountainside and directed rescuers to the twelve persons remaining in wrecked plane.

AGE AVIATORS ARE SUBPOENAED

Bert Acosta And Gordon Berry Must Appear Before Jury Here

New York, Jan. 14 (AP) — Bert Acosta and Gordon Berry, aviation aviators who fought for the Spanish government, were subpoenaed by a grand jury today, were served with subpoenas to appear before the federal grand jury when they returned aboard the French liner Paris.

Federal agents boarded the ship at quarantine and served the subpoenas, which required immediate appearance. They went directly to the federal building from the pier.

Assistant Federal Attorney John Dailey announced several days ago he was investigating the recruiting of United States citizens for service in Spain and would attempt to learn from Acosta and Berry who had signed them on.

Influenza Epidemic Not Yet in Ontario

Toronto, Jan. 14 (CP)—The influenza epidemic now spreading on the Canadian Prairies has not yet reached Ontario, said Dr. T. B. McCombe, Ontario's Deputy Health Minister today.

Dr. McCombe said it was natural to expect, however, the epidemic would follow along the lines of communication and he has been warned of the disease will soon be received from north-western Ontario.

Influenza, now epidemic in United States, Europe and on the Prairies is of a mild type. In virulence it does not touch the epidemic influenza of some years ago.

SCOTLAND DRIFTS WEST EIGHT FEET EVERY YEAR

Glasgow, Jan. 14 (AP)—Scotland was reported today by an official of the Glasgow observatory to be drifting toward Ireland—and America—at the rate of more than eight feet a year.

Thomas Tachill, a member of the staff, said their calculations showed the mainland had shifted westward 600 feet in the last 70 years.

England, he explained, has not joined in the movement and, consequently, Great Britain is apparently "bending in two."

Describing the observations which led to the discovery, Tachill said: "In 1865 Glasgow's longitude west of Greenwich was 17 minutes 10.55 seconds.

Film Friends Sore at Bing

Hollywood, Jan. 14 (CP)—Crooner Bing Crosby was $800 richer today because he failed to take his own advice and placed a $10 bet "on the nose" of his racehorse, "Fight On".

"Right On came through at Santa Anita yesterday to win the Little Boy Blue race for two-year-olds and pay the season's record price of $160 for a $2 winning ticket.

"I didn't know he could run," Bing explained afterward. The other horses looked a lot better. Honestly, I didn't know he was that good."

Own Mistake They Received 29 Day Term

London, Ont., Jan. 14.—(CP)—Gorman de Crost and David Palmer of Tillsonburg may have been in jail for 29 days for the wrong thing, but any error has been corrected now.

Magistrate Hawkshaw, in County Police Court today, sent them back to jail for 30 days, as he said he did not have the right sentence. If the jail served four weeks for something they didn't do, it was their own fault, said Acting Crown Attorney A. S. Fergusson. He said they pleaded guilty to charges of trapping some pelts so they would escape a more serious charge of stealing them.

DR. COLLINS DIES, NOTED SCIENTIST

Director of Canadian Geological Survey Well-Known

OTTAWA, Jan. 14.—(CP)—Dr. William Henry Collins, director of the Canadian Geological Survey and Mining Bureau of the National Museum, died today. He was an acknowledged world authority in ceramics and Canada's leading miners and scientists. He continued his field work in geology throughout his career even after he assumed arduous administrative duties as head of two government branches.

He was immediate past president of the Fellows of the Geological Society of America and 1932 was honored by election to the Limited Circle of Membership in the American Philosophical Society. He was also a fellow of the Royal Society of Canada and a member of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy. In 1933 he was elected president of the Geological Society of America.

Dr. Collins and Precambrian Geology Dr. Collins was especially known for his work on the rock formations of Northern Canada. His entire career was spent in the service of the Dominion Government. He was born at Chatsworth, Ont.

POPE HEARS MASS IN WHEEL CHAIR

Vatican Attendants State Pontiff Had Bad Night

Vatican City, Jan. 4 (AP)—Pope Pius felt sufficiently recovered today to be transferred again from his sick bed to a specially built wheelchair.

He was moved into a salon adjoining the papal bedroom and received Cardinal Segior, Donna Camilla Hatti, and Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, papal Secretary of State, in audience.

The Holy Father also was wheeled into his chapel where he heard mass. Attendants reported the Pontiff suffered considerable pain during the night.

STORE IS LOOTED AT SPRINGBROOK

Merchandise to Value of $75.00 Taken But No Cash

Gaining entrance by means of removing two large panes of glass, robbers stole merchandise to the value of over $75.00 from the general store operated by Mrs. R. Mundy at Springbrook last night. The large steel safe in the Springbrook Post Office, that adjourns the store, failed to reckon in their attempt to steal cash, however. A small amount of silver and copper coins was removed from the cash register.

The robbery was discovered by Mrs. Mundy as she opened her place of business today. Provincial Constable Dymond of Madoc was called to the scene of the robbery and it was reported at noon, had found nothing of clue to assure the police of a possible arrest before nightfall. Although nothing was taken from the Post Office, that part of the building had been rifled and attempts made to force open the safe.

The goods stolen were overalls, shirts and tobacco, valued at $75.00. No disturbances were heard by the occupants of Springbrook to warrant suspicions of a robbery taking place. The two large window panes were removed, making a space sufficiently large enough to allow a man to crawl inside. The day's receipts from the general store and all moneys, the property of the Post Office, were securely locked in the steel safe, fortunately. Although Mrs. Mundy resides next door to the store she assured the police no suspicions had been aroused until she opened her place of business and found the store had been robbed early today. Mrs. Mundy operates the store in conjunction with her brother Mr. Lorne Bateman.

TRAGIC MESSAGE READ BY FLIER

Rescue Group Redoubles Effort to Reach Marooned Party

Las Vegas, Nev., Jan. 14 (AP)—This tragic message written in the dust: "Dear Grace: Three sick—medical aid—Prettyman Party" caused a rescue group redouble efforts today in an effort to reach a snow-covered camp.

The message, written on top the cabin, was seen from the air by Jim Prettyman but he was left with the agonizing speculation as to who the "three sick" might be: his wife, Mr. and Mrs. James Coe, Fred Miller or Doris Dunn, negro cook.

They were marooned by deep drifts in the gold range mining district 120 miles north. Their automobile overturned while they were hauling the ailment, after visiting Prettyman's mine.

A ground rescue expedition which left here two days ago has penetrated more than 90 miles of the distance, most of it through heavy mountain drifts.

PARLIAMENT HILL A BUSY PLACE AS HOUSE OPENS

Weather Not Propitious For a Brilliant Opening

RENEW FRIENDSHIPS

C. C. F. Group First Party to Hold Caucus in Session

Ottawa, Jan. 14 (CP)—Parliament Hill bustled today with great activity. The lobbies, rooms, committees and commoners were hurrying and scurrying around in the last minute preparations for the opening of parliament went forward. The Senate and the House of Houses would contain a representation larger than usual for the first opening day.

The weather in Ottawa was unpropitious. The atmosphere was thick, with rain falling early. Overcoated guests and "members" marked the roads leading to Parliament Hill. The unseasonableness of the day surprised welcomers as they met with their fellow members, who had left their homes in more temperatures.

Their first duty "today was to swear allegiance to King George VI; and as they arrived they repaired to the Rogers of commons where the oath was administered by the assistant clerk of the House. The ceremonies were brief.

Members renewed friendships and discussed general conditions in their own particular parts of the country. One topic was on the Prairies, in Manitoba, the drought area extending northwards, that in the Maritimes the fishermen were also receiving small returns for their products. In some sections of the country individual and economic conditions were good; in others, they were decidedly bad.

Few Changes Made

Few changes have been made later in office space for the members or in their seating arrangements in the House. Hon. C. H. Cahan, former Secretary of State, has moved to the room once occupied by Mr. Justice R. A. Cherrier. The party whips were today conferring on the matter of accommodations for Dr. S. F. Tomlinson, returned to the Commons after an absence of some years, Dr. Tolmie ranks among the senior Prairie Liberals.

In spite of the bustling, at least one group found time today to "caucus". This was the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation party, whose members met in the office of J. S. Woodsworth, their leader, for a preliminary discussion on general policy.

It was expected that the Liberal party would probably hold their caucus early Wednesday. When the Conservatives assemble depends upon the arrival in Ottawa of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett.

Youths Disclaim 'Breaking' in Cottage

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 14 (CP)—Ignorance of the law, which the accident dictum holds to be no excuse, may have been responsible for a charge by two Aftersburg youths, charged with "breaking and entering."

"We entered all right but we didn't break anything," said 17-year-old Thomas Renaud. "We just turned the door knob and walked in."

The other lad, 16-year-old Joseph Drouin, nodded assent.

They also denied stealing anything from the Amherstburg home of Percy Cook, which they entered.

"I never stole nothing," Renaud said.

Magistrate W. A. Smith entered a plea of "not guilty" for the youths and their cases were remanded for trial until next Thursday.

Hindoo Wife Cremates Herself on Husband's Pyre

Lucknow, India, Jan. 14 (AP)—A huge crowd watched a Brahmin widow willingly burn to death today on the funeral pyre of her husband to prove her wifely excellence.

Her act, the rite of suttee, was once the custom of bereaved Brahmin wives but has become almost extinct under British rule.

The wail of conches into which the widow blew announced the beginning of cymbals drowned out the woman's agonized cries as she cremated herself before a temple near Agra.

COST OF AIRPORTS BUILT BY CITIES SHARED BY GOVT

Order-in-Council Permits Gov't. to Pay One Third of Cost

TRANS-CANADA LINE

Assistance Will be Applicable to All Centres on Air Line

Ottawa, Jan. 14 (CP)—A general order-in-council has been passed by the federal government whereby the government is permitted to contribute one-third of the construction cost of airports built by cities on the proposed trans-Canada airway, Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Transport, announced today.

He said the order-in-council did not mention any city specifically but that it was available to all centres on the air route.

Civilized Peoples Need More Holidays

Toronto, Jan. 14 (CP)—The fast-increasing custom of two vacations per year will do much to make the human race healthier and longer-lived, Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Association Journal said here today.

"Doctors and health bureaus are becoming more prevalent only because the people, in the interest of economy, life span twenty years since the turn of the century," he said. "Our average life span is 60. We may get it up to 70 but it will never go any higher," he said.

Six Escape Flames As Home Burns

Toronto, Jan. 14 (CP)—Six were saved today when fire caused by an overheated furnace burned the Dread two-storey home of Thomas Roe.

Firemen Roe, 3, ill upstairs with chicken-pox was carried down the smoke-filled stairs to safety by Harry Roe, 7, brother. First to be rescued from his sleep by the fire. He crawled back into a downstairs room to rescue her six-months-old brother.

Florence's chum, Irene Tomlinson, 8, was able to make her own way to safety.

Aroused by Edwards' shouts, Mr. and Mrs. Roe dashed out of bed to douse smoke for the baby's crib but were unable to reach Edwards' room and rescued the baby.

"Skippy", a Boston Bull Terrier owned by Mrs. Roe, from Graham of Yorkville Fire Hall.

Search Given Up For Elderly Man

Owen Sound, Ont., Jan. 14 (CP)—With the exception of one or two residents in the Keppel Township bush and keeping a sharp look out for Alexander Robertson, 75-year-old bushman, missing nearly two weeks from his shack, the search was called off this morning. The 500-acre tract has been gone over without trace of him.

There are some deep bogs and creeks in the tract, and it is believed he may have fallen into one of these. If so it may be some time before he is found, as there has been so much rain recently that everything is flooded.

City and District News

C. OF C. ENTERTAINS CITY COUNCIL

C. of C. Entertains a al- e

Following annual custom, members of the newly elected city council were guests of the local Chamber at the regularly weekly luncheon held at noon today. As it is for years past, the luncheon presented the opportunity for a free exchange of ideas and opinions between members of the two civic bodies, a full report of which will be given in Friday's issue of this paper. Mr. R. P. Bernstein, president of the local chamber, occupied the chair.

NO CHANGE HERE IN COAL PRICES

No indication of any increase in the price of coal in this city was given by local dealers this morning in spite of reports from Hamilton and other western points that, effective January 15th, American anthracite in the stove and nut sizes would advance from $12.50 to $14 per ton. The price change in Canada last is due to unsettled labor conditions within the industry and higher production costs.

HEAVY RAIN REMOVES LAST OF THE SNOW

The last vestiges of winter were being removed from the streets and country roads today as a pelting rain which commenced early last evening continued throughout the night and the greater part of today in a steady drizzle. In the Bay of Quinte further disintegration of ice was noted, further broken up during the night by high winds. "If we had had as much snow as we have had rain this winter, residents would probably have set a record for shovelling", computed a local statistician.

NO TANKS HERE FOR SOME TIME

Though the local Argyll Light Infantry has been officially designated as a Tank Battalion some time ago, it may be a year or more yet before tanks are actually received in this city, in the opinion of Lt.-Col. A. B. Cribbin, D.S.O., local C.O.

This statement was in answer to queries that other unit battalions in Military District No. 3 had expected this was received at an earlier date. It was pointed out that no machines have been requested by any of the newly converted units of the district.

CELLARS FLOODED BY HEAVY RAINS

Flooded cellars of local homes due to excess surface moisture became the latest operation of employees of the local public works department during the worst of overtime into the night last evening in an effort to relieve conditions. During the day many calls were being received from householders complaining of all sections of the city who have been forced to don rubber boots and waders to rescue his family preserves on cellar racks.

COLD WEATHER NEEDED FOR GOOD SAP YIELD

Whether or not the present unseasonable mild weather will have any effect upon maple syrup and maple sugar production in this district next spring remains to be seen, it was stated by Mr. R. L. Jones, president of the local board of trade, Thurlow township this morning. Although sap has been running from some of the trees since the advent of warmer weather some weeks ago, this is an unusual sign when such weather conditions are experienced, it was reported.

"To have lots of sap and a good quality of syrup, however, we need snow and lots of it besides coldish cold weather at this season," it was added.

OLD CHRISTMAS TREES THROWN IN RIVER

The garbage man's load was lightened in the city this year; not all dessicated Christmas trees that have been disposed of by local citizens were left beside the family garbage can for cartage to the city dump as river channels have been picked. During the past week or so many of the small trees were carried down by the Moira, and are at the mouth of the stream where they litter the shoreline in places.

2200 LICENCES ISSUED SO FAR

Out of an average of 73 usually issued each year, up to the present date only four new licence plates for motorcycles have been given out by the local office of the issuer of motor licences, it was reported today. The Belleville office, it was pointed out by Mr. S. E. Vermilyea, local issuer, is the only one between this city and Toronto on the west where this type of licence as well as "D" licences for medical men and "X" or special licences for pick up coupes, can be procured. A total of 2,200 new passenger car licences given out so far this year represents approximately 40 per cent of the total for this district, it was stated.

GARAGE WORK BENCH BURNED IN BLAZE

Prompt arrival of fire squads prevented what might have developed into a serious blaze shortly after nine o'clock last night when an overheated furnace ignited a workbench in the garage of Mr. Bellaville Fruit Co., on Albion Street. Dense clouds of smoke rolled through the building as the fire squads arrived but application of chemicals prevented the fire reaching serious proportions. The work bench was destroyed. Other trucks belonging to the company, a boat and an automobile were housed in the building. A truckload of fruit ready for shipment was slightly damaged by the smoke.

Obituary

RONALD COOKE

The death occurred this Thursday morning of Ronald Cooke, the four-days-old twin son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Cooke, Trent Road, Belleville. Sincere sympathy will be entertained by many friends for Mr. and Mrs. Cooke in their bereavement.

The funeral, which will be private, will take place from the Bellaville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, Friday Afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

LATE JOHN W. EGGLETON (Foxboro)

Many friends were present at the funeral of John Wesley Eggleton which took place from his late residence at Foxboro Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 13. After a brief service was held at the house conducted by the Rev. Fred Horton, the funeral procession proceeded to the Foxboro United Church where an impressive service was conducted by Rev. Fred Horton, the pastor, assisted by the Rev. Joseph A. Kofford, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Stirling.

During the service a vocal duet "The Old Gospel Ship" was rendered by Mr. Harry DaFoe and Mr. Oliver DaFoe.

Interment was made in Foxboro cemetery; the same ministers conducted the service at the graveside.

The bearers were Messrs. R. B. Hamilton, W. Prendice, G. Sills, W. Hudgins, W. Coulter and D. Ketchenson.

LATE PHILIP WRIGHT (Marmora)

MARMORA, (Special)—The funeral of the late Philip Wright was held on Thursday, a large congregation was present at the service at St. Paul's, conducted by the rector, Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell. The pallbearers were D. O. Fairchild, D. Cunningham, D. Shannon, D. Bowen, T. Warren, and T. E. Pollitt. Interment took place in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

MRS. MARY A. TURNER (Corbyville)

After being in failing health for some time Mrs. Mary Avis Turner, widow of Joshua Turner, passed away this Thursday morning, Jan. 14th., at Corbyville.

The late Mrs. Turner, who was in her 85th year, was born at Bellaville, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. James Dickens. All her life was passed in this district. In religion she was a member of the Carmel United Church.

Surviving her are two half sisters, Mrs. Arthur Juby and Mrs. Herbert Rapley, both of Sidney; one half brother, Mr. Joseph Dickens, Norwood, Ont.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

DONALD J. HAMILTON (Thurlow)

Donald John Hamilton, the 11-days-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Hamilton of the 3rd Concession of Thurlow Township, died this Thursday morning at the family residence.

Tabernacle U. C. Completes Year Marked Progress
Spiritual Work of Church Most Encouraging, Reports Show DETAILED STATEMENTS
Officers Elected For Year 1937 at Annual Banquet

Tabernacle United Church congregation members to the number of two hundred and fifty banqueted in the Sunday school rooms on Wednesday evening and held their annual meeting, reports showing that the year just closed has been one of the most successful of recent years from a standpoint of interest in the work of the church. The church is entirely free from debt, the only obligation resting being that resting on the parsonage, namely $2,000. The church year was closed with all debts paid and the societies in a good condition.

Rev. I. B. Naylor, pastor of the Tabernacle, was chairman at the banquet which was furnished by the ladies of the congregation. At the tables all adults and young who enjoyed the spread.

The minister presided over the business meeting.

Reports showed the total receipts from all departments during the year stood at $7,511.99 less balance on Dec. 31, 1935, and duplicated receipts of $1,101.99, making a net total of $6,410 receipts for the year 1936, raised for all purposes.

During the year $719 was spent on repairs to the church.

Co-operation of Year.

Rev. I. B. Naylor, in a short address thanked the congregation and officers for the splendid co-operation which had been given during the last year. This spirit of helpfulness had made the year just closed one of the best during the present pastorate. The financial work of the church had been well sustained and reports would show the church to be in an excellent financial condition.

A short memorial service was held for those members of the congregation who had passed away during the year—Mrs. Verily Brown, Mrs. Theresa McKim, Mrs. Lillian Miller, Thomas Alexander, Mrs. Joseph Hall, Agnes Sharpe.

Fees of the Comrade Club receipts including money carried forward from 1935 to be $521.13, or $443.50 raised during 1936.

Mr. Paul expressed thanks to the stewards and officers and to the ardent repairs on the auditorium of the church. Also to the efficient management of a carpet ball league and thanked the ladies of the congregation for their work in the kitchen.

Mr. Goodfellow presented a report on the envelope system and Miss Maidens present a report on pew rents.

For the Missionary and Maintenance Fund Mr. Cecil Lent reported.

Women's Association

The Women's Association report presented by Mrs. M. C. Hudgins showed $674.12 raised which with $333.77 carried forward made a total of $1,107.89.

Mrs. Fisher presenting the W.M.S. report, showed a total revenue of $305.17. The Mission Circle report was presented by Mrs. J. Irvine, showing $85.66 raised. Miss Alexander reviewed that the Mission Band total revenue was $30.40. The Baby Band report was presented by Mrs. C. Lent.

Registration of the Sunday School stands at 240, said Mr. Paul reporting for the secretary. Collections amounted to $187.05.

Mr. Wright reporting for the Y.P.U. told of the work attempted and achieved during the year.

Miss Marjorie Naylor reporting for the C.G.I.T., group, King's Navy, Young Canadians and Sunbeam Group, under direction of Miss Tompkins, Miss Sanders and Miss Naylor, said $15.00 raised a total of $63.22. Forty-two girls were sent to camp by the three groups, and donations were sent to the provincial and city boards. A tea was sent to the west and a Christmas tree held by Miss Naylor's group.

Don Alexander showed that Trinity-two Trail Rangers had raised $21.00.

Rev. Mr. Naylor reporting for the Young Peoples' League, showed an enrolment of 73, one of the best in the denomination, the total receipts being $73.31.

Mrs. Bradley reported briefly for the choir, and thanked the members of that body and the congregation.

Officers

On report of the nominations for the members of the session, presented by Mr. T. G. Bell, the congregation voted for the adoption of the report, the following becoming members of the session:

Rev. I. B. Naylor, J. E. Walmsley, O. C. Sharpe, G. F. Lent, D. A. Weaver, G. Sprackett, T. G. Bell, George Barlow, Charles F. Frost, J. H. Denham, W. Edmundson, E. A. Gawsden, T. O. Bell, George Wright and J. A. Brendan.

Mrs. Fisher presented a comprehensive resolution of thanks to all organizations on the work of the year and to the women for the banquet.

The minister at the close of the meeting thanked all for their support during the past year. "I think this year has been a very fine year in every respect and I am delighted to have come to the end of a year and find our budget balanced. I think we are going into 1937 in the finest spirit. We have a fine Sunday morning congregation and a fine church property. We have every reason to be grateful and encouraged. Let us go out into this new year determined to make real progress. Our relations with other congregations have always been of the happiest and we look forward to a year of great influence and good."

Good Demand for Horses Now
Farmers Find Them Less Expensive For General Work Purposes

A keener demand for work horses than has been noted for years past is now being experienced by Ontario and other parts of the Dominion, according to Mr. Thos. McNeely, one of the country's most prominent horsemen and with Gilbert Arnold, Grenville, Quebec, largest dealer in blooded horses in Canada.

Mr. McNeely who specialises in the pure-bred stallion trade was a visitor to the local Dominion Agricultural office stroods, to the West yesterday afternoon where he will make a survey of conditions. Later this month he will make his regular trip to Belgium and France where further purchases of blooded French and Belgian draft horses will be made, to supply Canadian trade.

"The demand for horses at the present time is due to several conditions," explained Mr. McNeely. "One is that farmers lately haven't been so obscerned with breeding blood stock, because it has become apparently are coming back in favor and are found to be actually less expensive than power machines for work around the farm. Better than, also, have something to do

"KIND HEARTS ARE MORE THAN CORONETS", and there are many kind hearts in Belleville, judging from the response to the appeal for an endowment for the New Year Baby. This baby was born in the wee sma' hours of New Year's morning—came into the world naked but unafraid—needing clothing and every other thing that a new baby naturally wants. Gifts of clothing are coming in very nicely and the ten and twenty-five cent pieces, and more, that accompany the questions to Kirma, the Mystic, are gradually adding up to respectable figures.

Those sending in questions for Kirma to answer are not restricted to ten cents—remember the money goes into a fund for the New Year Baby, an endowment to help over the hard places of the first few miles in life's journey.

The New Year Baby needs many things, and is not so fortunately placed as many new babies which have everything that fond mothers and pleased relatives can shower upon them.

This New Year Baby is a Boy and is waiting for a name—perhaps someone would like to suggest a name and act as Godfather or Godmother—no telling what good luck that might bring to the Baby and the Sponsor.

This endowment fund for the New Year Baby was made possible through the kindness of Kirma the Mystic, and the co-operation of Mr. George Forhan, Manager of the Belle Theatres.

Besides money receipts, which will be acknowledged later, the following articles of clothing have been received up to Thursday morning for Belleville's New Year Baby:

1 Child's brown and fawn Jersey suit.
1 pair child's woollen gloves.
1 child's woollen shirt
1 child's woollen bonnet.
1 pink woollen crib blanket.
1 kleenex.
1 white woollen suit.
3 knitted jackets.
2 silk bonnets.
2 pairs booteens.
1 pair pink crepe-de-chine bootees.
1 woollen bonnet.
1 crepe-de-chine dress.
1 woollen nightingale
1 pair woollen hose
1 knitted coat.

Questions Answered in Paper

KIRMA, called the Man of Mystery, who answers all sorts of questions, and has mystified and intrigued many citizens of Belleville already with his uncanny divination, has consented to answer questions FREE in the newspaper, the only condition being that a small or large donation be made for the 1937 New Year Baby. This can be made in clothing or goods of any kind suitable for a young baby, or cash donations from ten cents up—all to go to the Baby.

Questions will be answered by INITIALS only or any CODE letters furnished by the questioner to identify the answer which will be published in this newspaper.

Secretly Confidential

Names of questioners will be kept strictly confidential and their letters will be seen by the eyes of KIRMA only.

The answers will not have the names of the questioner only the initials or any code letters or word supplied by the questioner.

All letters and donations to be sent to KIRMA care of the Ontario Intelligencer office.

In sending questions use the following Coupon remembering that the name will be kept strictly confidential and seen by no one but KIRMA.

Kirma Answers

(If Your Answer Is Not Here Watch Tomorrow's Paper)

K. E. B.—I will answer your personal question by answering simply, yes, however, under present circumstances it is not advisable. Certain obstacles must first be eliminated before any step may prove dangerous.

M. M. S.—You will receive the estate in question in due time, but you will be disappointed in the amount.

O. J.—Your brother's condition will be improved. There is no danger of serious complications.

E. B.—The crystal shows very good news, for you. I see a position of a nature which you have desired, coming to you the latter part of January. This position will necessitate your leaving Belleville.

L. R.—Your present position will not prove permanent. There will be a discontinuation in the immediate future.

W. J. J.—You are very foolish to even consider marriage to this man. He is far too old for you. Forget him and give yourself the opportunity of coming in contact with young men of your own age. You will soon see your mistake.

O. H.—I do not receive a clear impression of your brother. Therefore, I would like to comment upon your question, other than I will say sometime before you again see him, in my opinion.

S. H.—It would be advisable to undergo the operation at this time. Your recovery would be much more rapid under present conditions.

F. J. O.—Pay no attention to the stories which have been told regarding you. They were told by the party you suspect but she is considered as a "poison tongue" by all of her so-called friends. For that reason little confidence has been placed in them.

A. W.—I do not see a trip taking you to England in the near future. However, I do see relatives coming to Canada within two years.

Worried—Under present conditions your chances are not at all good. There are possibilities provided certain procedure is entered into. See me at the Belle for further details.

H. P. R.—There will be no change for you to Mexico within this year. In fact I do not see employment for you there at all in the future.

Z. X.—You will retain your present position. Eventually you will enter into further training which will prove of great benefit.

C.B.—This money will never come into your possession. If you are to profit discontinue litigation.

M. E. S.—I cannot give you his initial because you will soon be married. In fact you will be an old maid.

F. K. P.—One makes one's own happiness only by taking care of the happiness of others. Think it over and act accordingly. Understand?

R. B.—You will succeed in your chosen field providing you exercise self confidence.

M. A.—You will not have long to wait. It will prove especially beneficial for the children.

B. P. A.—Following your husband every night will not get you anything or make him stay home. He is not interested in any other woman and the night out activities mentioned in your letter seem to be confined strictly to gentlemen friends and card playing. Let him alone and he will get tired of it.

M. O.—With treatment only will your condition improve. See como physician immediately.

Belle—It will be necessary for you to take this issue to court in order that you obtain that which is rightfully yours.

O. B. L.—The crystal shows a child for you within two years. Have no fear regarding the matter mentioned in your letter. There will be little or no trouble.

F. J. S.—Your watch was taken from the dresser by your little boy and used as a plaything. It was later dropped through a hole in the flooring of your front porch. Remove the flooring and you will recover same.

W. F.—Yes, I do see marriage to K. within three months. It will prove successful.

FRANCE SUDDENLY REVERSES POLICY

Decides to Open Economic Negotiations With Germany

PARIS, Jan. 14.—(AP)—In a sudden change of policy, France has decided to open economic negotiations with Germany, without demanding preliminary political guarantees, well informed sources said today.

Earlier French insistence that Chancellor Hitler of Germany promise peace before getting much needed economic aid was said to have presented a principal stumbling block to the accord which France expected will bring to many back to collaboration with Western European powers. Germany has initiated economic negotiations about nine first and political considerations later.

Sources frequently reflecting Foreign office views said Premier Blum has determined to meet Germany half-way and will announce a modified plan January 26 before a joint session of the Senate and Chamber.

Sections of the French press considered the whole outlook so altered as to make the announcement emphasize the importance of this event in world politics.

Other portions of the press scrupulously pointed out that, when a conditional advantage was granted, Germany, the condition usually was lost in the end.

A Franco-German economic treaty providing a new and simplified clearing system was reported to be the first objective of the negotiations to stimulate commercial exchange.

(A London communique yesterday stated officially experts already were negotiating for an economic accord.)

THREE CHILDREN BATTLE FOR LIFE

Victims of Ailments Attributed to Virtual Starvation

—Rimsey, Alta., Jan. 14 (CP)—Three children are battling for life in a homesteader in brush country, 20 miles west of here, battled for their lives with every type of disease and ailments attributed to virtual starvation.

Dr. John Byers brought the sisters to hospital here after answering the call of a desperate father, Gustaf Zinn, whose anxiety for his failing children overcame his reluctance to call a doctor—a reluctance caused by his lack of money to pay for medical attention.

At the Zinn homestead, 90 miles southwest of Edmonton, Dr. Byers and Constable George Purchase of the provincial police found seven children existing on starvation diet and semi-naked.

Lillian, three, had contracted pneumonia and was bleeding from the mouth, the doctor said. Gertie, seven, is anaemic. They were suffering from intestinal influenza, prevalent in the district.

Feather "ticks" provided the only coverings for the beds in the house and no blankets were available to wrap about the children for the 20-mile trip here. The father gave his coat, the mother her sweater, and with the automobile rug and Dr. Byers' own coat, the seriously ill children were covered for the cold journey.

POLICE FOLLOW A WARMING TRAIL

Believe Car Used to Transport Kidnapped Child Found

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 14 (AP)—Red stains on an abandoned automobile, possibly the one into which unerring kidnaper threw the body of stabbed and bludgeoned Charles Mattson, 10, spurred officers along an apparently warming trail today in seeking the killer.

Uncommunicative United States Justice Department agents utilized the most modern science to determine whether the stains were blood which flowed from the victim before his slayer tossed him, battered, bruised—and stabbed in the back—into snow-covered brushlands near Everett.

The automobile, stolen last Friday night, was found in Everett. Authorities impounded it, and stationed armed guards about it in a police garage.

While officers also sought a knife and studied clues reported almost buried from widespread areas, Federal officials took quick steps to prosecute the killer.

Jailed Warrant Issued

A "John Doe" warrant, issued by a United States commissioner here yesterday officially made an outlaw of the abductor who seized Charles Mattson passed up offers of the demanded $28,000 ransom and left his battered body where it was found by a hunter last Monday.

In California, police sought the first man definitely named as wanted for questioning in the case. He was Fred Ortis Haynes, former convict. The man's possible connection with the case was not revealed.

British Columbia police turned two men convicted of carrying arms across the border into Canada, over to United States immigration authorities. Police said they were convinced the men, Leonard Dahl, 31, and William Bailey, 44, had nothing to do with the kidnapping.

HARLEM NEGRO ADMITS GUILT

Signs Full Confession That He Murdered Mrs. Mary Case

New York, Jan. 14 (AP)—Breaking down after refusing for 24 hours to admit any guilt in the bathtub slaying of Mrs. Mary Robinson Case, Major Greene, stocky negro porter, signed a full confession of the crime early today, District Attorney Charles P. Sullivan announced.

The District Attorney said Greene was charged with the slaying three minutes after he signed the confession.

He and the porter, employed in the Jackson Heights apartment building where the attractive 36-year-old housewife was strangled and beaten with a hammer before her lifeless body was dumped into a bathtub Monday, would be arraigned today.

"Theft was the motive," Sullivan said in a statement. "She was let into the apartment by her (Mrs. Case) on the pretext he was going to wash the windows."

Blood-smeared fingerprints on the apartment woodwork and a bloodstained pair of trousers found in an incinerator chute were the clues that led to the arrest of Greene at his Harlem home 36 hours after the killing.

A blood-stained hammer, also taken from the incinerator, was established by police as the instrument with which Mrs. Case's skull was crushed.

THE RAIN IT RAINETH

Rain towards the end of winter will for years have significance for Belleville residents who recall the disastrous flood of last March, following in the wake of one of the heaviest rainfalls on record. Many citizens doubtless thought of this last night as the splash of sheets of rain against the window glass of home roused these sleepers from time to time, but they knew that it could not launch a flood at this season because there is no ice in the river and there is no snow on the land. Its only damage could be local flooding and possible cellar flooding from surface water.

Such a rain as last night's might have told a different story had the river been frozen over and there been plenty of snow on the land, even at this early season.

All this merely shows how impossible it is to forecast long in advance in the winter whether there will be a flood or not. The elements decide that and man cannot guess the order in which heat and cold, rain and snow, sunshine and cloud will come to mould the conditions under which he lives.

Man may be blamed for many things even for some of the conditions surrounding a flood but for the elemental disturbances and changes, these are beyond his control. All he can do is attempt to prevent some disastrous consequences.

Spring poetry is for the spring and summer weather. About the only line which seems to fit this winter rain spell is that of the greatest of poets and playwrights, who said:

"For the rain it raineth every day."

OUT OF THE PAST

Eighteen hundred and fifty-eight years after Pompeii and other places were blotted out in the 79 A.D. and as it is in the 20th century of the Christian era, tell-tale evidences of scenes which were enacted on that awful day when Vesuvius poured lava and scattered ashes and cinders over the countryside, burying cities, Stabiae and Pompeii, have been brought to light. Skeletons were found on Tuesday of this week in Pompeii where the victims had evidently fallen as they were fleeing the wrath of the volcano. Two of the skeletons were those of children.

The report from Pompeii reveals humanity astir on the 24th A.D. and as it is in 1937. The victims' skeletons were surrounded by their personal possessions which they were carrying away with them in their terror, two bags of gold, silver and bronze pins, metal bracelets, and pins in a jewel casket. This is what might have been expected. In such times of flight people carry away as in times of floods the most insignificant things, in fires people will lose their lives in an effort to rescue some thing like money. But these are insignificant as compared with what many will do—there are those attempts at rescue in fire and flood and other disasters which have cost people their lives. If these skeletons could reveal there would be told many a story now hidden of sacrifice for the sake of some one in the company, probably for the children and aged. For through all the ages men and women are the same to a large degree. The better part shines out in disaster such as that which came down off the volcano side and flood that ebb to his post at which he had been left. And there he met death though all was crashing about him.

Pompeii was covered for more than 1600 years by the lava and ashes to a depth of twenty feet or more, with its site unknown and its name almost forgotten. It was an unfortunate city as an earthquake had destroyed a great part of the place sixteen years before the great eruption of Vesuvius.

In 1748 a peasant sinking a well discovered a painted chamber with statues and a number of other articles of antiquity, the find arousing the neighborhood. Since then exploration has been going on. Latterly a systematic plan has been adopted in excavation and preservation of the ancient city. About half has now been unearthed.

Wet ashes and cinders from Vesuvius had settled upon the lava and hermetically sealed up the old city. Buildings brought to light were in a remarkable state of preservation. The excavations give a complete picture of the political and social life in a provincial city in Italy at the beginning of the Christian era. The circumference of the walls of the city was about two miles these walls being pierced by eight gates. The streets were straight and narrow and are now paved with large blocks of lava. Beside public buildings, several large private homes have been unearthed but most of the inhabitants escaped and carried off their belongings. However, the Museum at Naples contains many articles of interest, ornaments, statues and moveable works of art found in public and private edifices.

ALDERMAN JENNINGS SAYS there should be an organization of citizens pledged to assist the City Council and promote efficiency in municipal business administration. He suggests that the service clubs get together on this question, each club appointing delegates to a central body which will watch civil legislation and help the City Fathers with constructive criticism and active co-operation where needed.

HYDRO COMMISSIONER GEORGE REID SAYS that the Hydro Commissioners are not seeking more work for themselves. The Commission does not levy taxes, but it does return some hefty cheques to the City Council to help lower the general tax rate.

ALDERMAN GLENN THOMPSON will be the Man of Light and Leading this year, upon him having fallen the mantle of Chairman of the Light Committee. Glenn believes in plenty of light—light and more light is his motto—look out for better illumination. While it is a bright committee Glenn says that although it may be a Light Committee the chairman job is far from a light one. Figure that out.

ALDERMAN LAURIE LEWIS SAYS that as head of the Welfare Committee he will follow in his own footsteps of last year, even at the risk of facing such verbal barrages as met him during the recent campaign. He took the vote of the electors as a mandate to continue in controlling the department on a businesslike basis.

ALDERMAN CLARENCE CLAPP just kinda looked around last year and became acquainted with the job, giving a helping hand here and a boost there with all committees. This year he has accepted the portfolio of Public Works, one of the hardest committees in the civic arena, and is evidently in the graveyard of ambition." Alderman Clapp, being of the building Breed of Britishers, tackles the Public Works job with a vim and promises if the results are not 100 per cent it won't be his fault. Good Book, and Ald. Clarence says by his works he will show 'Em.

Parliamentary Session Opening at Ottawa Tomorrow
Faces Agenda Packed With Important Legislation

Government Policy on National Defence Likely to Promote Hectic Debate—Railway And Agriculture Problems Also Slated For Lively Discussion

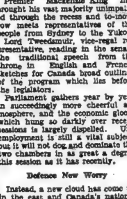
The Canadian House of Commons in session, ranking as a major item for debate. The session opening promises to be packed with legislative highlights with national defence —Central Press Canadian Photo.

By WILFRED EGGLESTON
Central Press Canadian Writer

Ottawa, Jan. 14.—Booming of guns above Old Quebec, ancient ceremonial in the jewel-like red chamber, inaugurates a session of parliament likely to be brief, brisk, packed with lively debate and fateful decisions.

Premier Mackenzie King has brought his vast majority unimpaired through the recess and to-morrow meets representatives of the people from Sydney to the Yukon.

Lord Tweedsmuir, vice-regal representative, reading in the senate the traditional speech from the throne, in English and French, sketches for Canada broad outlines of the program which his fellow legislators will fill in.



Parliament gathers year by year in exceedingly more cheerful atmosphere, and the economic gloom which hung so darkly over recent sessions is largely dispelled. Unemployment is still a vital subject, but it will not dog and dominate the two chambers in as great a degree this session as it has before.

Defence Now Worry

Instead, a new cloud has come up in the east and Canada's national defences will, for the first time since the war, be thrust into prominent attention.

Larger appropriations for defence of east and west coasts, a new serial defence force, money for the mechanization of Canada's militia forces, will almost assuredly be sought.

Last session, parliament dealt with new trade agreement with the United States. This session a renewal of the famous agreement of 1932 with the United Kingdom will provide an equally important trade discussion. These two countries are not only No. 1 and No. 2 among Canada's customers, but between them they provide 65 per cent. of Canada's entire international trade.

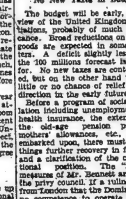
Wheat Board Under Fire

Canada's place in war-maddened world, Canada's relationships with the United Kingdom, the commonwealth, the United States— in short, Canada's international policy, will come up for exhaustive and controversial discussion, it is anticipated.

Wheat, as always, will come into the debates. The failure of the government, to maintain an active hand on board, its free sale of stocks below 87 1-2 cents, the demand of prairie members for government participation in the trade, can be confidently forecast. Until the Turgeon royal commission brings down its report, however, no announcement of any government policy can be expected.

A re-organization of the agricultural department, as stress marketing, a transportation commission, to enlarge the present duties of the board of trade commissioners, a reassuring of the capital structure of the Canadian National, are all probabilities.

A comprehensive housing scheme on three fronts, (a) to assist prospective home-owners, (b) to finance the rentirn of low-cost houses for industrial workers, and (c) to legislate for the home improvement plan already under way, is on the cards.



A program for the betterment of youth, in forestry, aviation, mining and agriculture, as recommended by the youth employment committee will be presented to the House by the Minister of Labor, it is said.

No New Taxes in Budget

The budget will be early, and in view of the United Kingdom negotiations, probably of much significance. Broad reductions on British goods are expected in some quarters. A deficit slightly less than the six million forecast is looked for. No new taxes are contemplated, but on the other hand there is little or no chance of relief in this field either in the early future.

Before a program of social legislation including unemployment and health insurance and pension schemes, an amendment to the British North America Act will be sought.

The Opposition has no intention of trying to operate pension and insurance schemes in fields of doubtful validity.

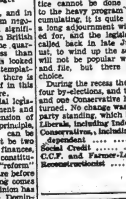
The changing of the British North America Act looms up as a formidable measure. An alternative suggestion came to grief in the senate. Further efforts this session may do no better.



May Face Split Session

The first impression of the government is that it would like to get everything finished by May 1st, so that the leaders can proceed to the coronation, and the Imperial Conference at London which follows it.

If it becomes apparent that justice cannot be done in 14 weeks to the many matters which is accumulating, it is quite possible that a long adjournment will be arranged for, and the legislation will be called back in late July or August, to wind up the session. This will not be popular with the rank and file, but there may be no choice.

During the recess there have been four by-elections, and three Liberals and one Conservative have been returned. No change was made in the party standing, which is as follows: Liberals, including Independents 178 Conservatives, including 1 In-....

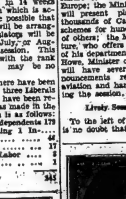
Dunning Budget Awaited



The House lost # seasoned and spirited political warrior in Hon. Peter J. Veniot, former postmaster-general, who was called by death. He is succeeded by his son. The House obtains, however, in Hon. Simon F. Tolmie of Victoria, another experienced campaigner and parliamentarian. He also served in previous cabinets with distinction.

Aside from the prime minister, the leading figures in the coming parliament are likely to be Hon. Charles Dunning, who will plot the new measures through the House and present the all-important statement of the country; the Minister of National Defence, Hon. Ian Mackenzie, whose portfolio takes on new significance as the result of the failure of collective security policy; the Minister of Labor, who will present plans to re-employ thousands of Canadians and relief schemes for hundreds of thousands of others; the Minister of Agriculture, who offers a re-organization of his department; and Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Transport, who will have several important announcements regarding railways, aviation and harbors to make during the session.

Lively Session Promised

RT. HON. W. L. KING,
Prime Minister

Bennett will again be a whole Opposition in himself, ably assisted by small but able group of colleagues, J. S. Woodsworth, Miss Macphail and their little group in the southeast corner will always ready to contribute to debates, especially those dealing with unemployment and social legislation. The Social Crediters come back for their second session, and will enter into the deliberations of the House with more assurance. Aside from the wordy flurries and exchanges, the government has an important program to deal with, and its members can be counted upon to develop thick and fast in the coming week.

"Now It Can Be Told"

Serio-Humorous Incidents of the Recent East Hastings By-Election

Described by leading newspapers of the country as well as by high officials of the governing factions as one of the "bitterest political fights ever waged in the Province of Ontario" the by-election for the riding of East Hastings which considered Dec. 9th with a victory for Dr. Harold E. Welsh, Conservative candidate, was not without its humor.

With both sides throwing their heavy artillery into the fray with hefty party stalwarts hurling eloquence by the hour at riding electors, many humorous incidents likewise not brought to light during the campaign.

For instance there was the speaker who deplored the fact that his political opponent had been subjected to "litrade of epitaphs" by a member of the opposing party.

Then, the humorous humor of the chairman who made the remark following the offerings of a noted Toronto radio artist to the effect that "if we didn't enjoy the remarks of the previous speaker, I am sure we all enjoyed the vocal solos."

Newspaper reporters assigned to cover a meeting at Marlbank became hopelessly lost in the twisting tortuous roads between that place and Marysville. Arriving an hour late at their destination they were surprised to find that the speakers had not arrived. Fifteen minutes later the political party arrived, and explained that they too had missed their way along the same roads. The chief speaker at this particular meeting was the Provincial Minister of Highways.

Many and varied were the experiences of the news hounds as they paraded their way from one district to roads to the next. Consequence. Slipping and sliding over narrow roads through the piles of snow, and cold winter nights, straying at times from the beaten tracks, stopping at isolated farmhouses to inquire the way; scribbling copy"... plans for the next day were not available; pilfires in the backwoods; writing notes, beginned and corrected by the draught of small halls beneath the dim lights of smoky oil lamps; while the audience in front of the speakers themselves; were put a few of the hectic happenings which characterized the life of the reporter; during the exciting weeks of the by-election.

On one particular occasion, when calling at a farmhouse to get directions, a scribe was forced to wait in the privacy of a cow shed while the farmer finished milking his cows. Shivering with cold the reporter sat on a milkstool, while milk flowed into the pail. Then escorting the scribe to the darkness of the night, the farmer pointed to a glow in the distant sky. "It's over that way somewhere" was his terse statement.

Headlights of an automobile flashed on and shadowy figures bedecked with the insignia of the car slithered to a stop and the scribes asked their way of the local pedestrians. "Don't know, buddy", came the reply, "We're only been in two weeks. Think I'll drive it in the north country somewhere."

On through the darkness the car went. A stop at another farmhouse elicited the information that the required destination was at the end of the first turn to the right. "Turn to the right" the fellow standing was sighted but as there happened to be two turns with little to the same characteristics, the scribes took the right turn which happened to be the wrong one, and were again lost.

Another pedestrian came in sight who proffered the information that the town in question was situated at the end of the "Hog's Back". This was finally located after an hour of driving and the now tired scribes finally halted before the welcoming lights of the building in which the meeting was to be held.

Then there was the reaction of a crowded hall to a speaker's remarks in which he criticised the story written by a reporter in his paper. Striding to the front of the hall the speaker shook his fist at the press in general, demanding if any representative of a certain paper was there. The crowd seemed its opportunity. "Throw him out" yelled an excited voice. The crowd took up the cry and for a moment there were some anxious newspaper men.

Later the speaker discovered that the reporter he had dined that evening with was the wrong one and to whom he had pacified his plans, was the scribe who had written the story referred to.

Another humorous situation arose when in the excitement of being elected president of the local political organization, the successful one announced that he would be elected head of this "Orange Association."

But although nearly every person in the riding was more or less "put on the spot" during the contest no one man who treated the situation with more humor than the Liberal Conservative nomination at Madoc, when the village streets were packed with people who had crowded with a mass of milling people, a voice arose from the door of a house not fifty yards away from the hall in which the nominations were being held and the cheers of the grim young mak who answered his rag, "What's going on there today, and why all the excitement".

And, while-faced and scarcely daring to breathe, the six attractive young lady of Conservative leaning who in answer to the call had congregated in the jam in the Liberal committee rooms in Madoc on the night of the nominations, forced to stay in the enemy's camp and listen to "our side" being rendered the victors.

The haunting notes of Last Post rang out in the main village shortly after the conceding of victory to the Conservative party. "I'll die when the last Post outside your house on election night" boasted a young Liberal to his friends, but on the fateful night, his chum pointed the finger of fate to the hall-mark on his friend's verandah and how the mournful call while the erstwhile boastful one sat in the privacy of his bedroom, red of face and sad of mien.

Indicative of the seriousness with which party followers "took" their politics, was the incident which occurred in an East Hastings village when a Liberal and Conservative three members of the opposing party tearing down advertising bills. Without a moment's hesitation, he leaped to the attack, and succeeded in dispersing the opponents at the cost of a bashful black eye. "It was worth it," he grinned through purfled lips.

And now, capping the series of humorous and serious incidents which marked the campaign, is the typographical error in a prominent government organ, which announces that Dr. Harold E. Welch has been returned for the electoral district of "Hallings East".

Living in Constant Fear
Says Viscountess

New York, Jan. 14—(AP)—Great Britain is living in constant fear of war, said Viscountess Rhondda, a leading British feminist, today in an interview.

The British go to bed every night with fear, she said, and awake the same. "After all, that affected only one Englishman directly. Anxiety is not a thing to be kept in constant and so inescapable that all England feels it."

Lady Rhondda, chairman of the Liberal British Weekly, "Time and Tide," who is on a visit here on her home and iron interests one of British women's intellect women.

San Francisco, Jan. 14 (CP) — Officers Keith Griswold and John Albrecht found a dead man and an automobile accident directing traffic at an intersection and arrested the driver of the car for "drunk", he booked as "Griswold said.

At the police station, officers wanted to know what the dead man was drinking. Griswold said a whitebeer bills forward, while a whiskey bottles falls backward.

The duck—placed on its own—charged with drunkenness. Thomas Murphy booked the fowl for drunkenness—came unknown.

Brilliantly-Gowned Women Attend Parliament's Opening

(Written for The Canadian Press By Mollie McGee)

Ottawa, Jan. 14 (CP)—This afternoon, Parliament was opened with pomp, pageantry and ceremony which will differ in no great way from the openings that have preceded it. Yet, veteran officials say, on no each occasion since Confederation has there been "more wholehearted enthusiasm to put the best foot forward, such interest for spectacular success, such an undercurrent of excitement and good will."

Last year, clothed in black, women of Canada's official and diplomatic circles attended the ceremony on Parliament Hill while a biting wind drove snowflurries over the icy roads and tore from the front of the building black and purple streamers, symbols of mourning for King George V. The Senate Chamber seemed filled with sadness.

This year, brilliantly clad women bedecked with jewels, will come to attend the ceremonial opening of a short session that is expected to be in line for many of them to travel to the Coronation. And, as last year their dress reflected the sorrow of the country for the death of the King, so this year the women's gowns, more gorgeous than any in the last decade, have borrowed the color and the fabric from those planned for the Empire festivities taking place in London this summer at the crowning of a new monarch.

Gold and silver thread, rich brocades and heavy, lustrous satins are the favorite materials in luscious qualities meant almost to "stand alone." With these are the shiny draping materials ideal for the simple lines reminiscent of graceful medieval costumes. The favored shades are those best offset by military scarlet, or crimson velvet cloaks. While is popular, blue the predominant color, with soft pastel tints much to the fore.

Lady Tweedsmuir has chosen a white and gold embroidered chiffon gown for the opening ceremony and will wear a long gold lame train lined with cream velvet, falling from her shoulders. She will emphasize the revived and popular English fashion by carrying a white feather fan and feather boa and wearing a jewelled tiara.

Miss Beatrice Spencer-Smith, lady-in-waiting, is wearing a heavy satin patterned with gold, the voluminous skirt lengthening into a train, a dress with the stately dignity of days gone by.

Watching the proceedings from the seats in the balcony set aside for the Government House party, will be Miss Carola Peyton-Jones, His Excellency's niece, in a white picture frock; Mrs. A. S. Redfern, wife of His Excellency's secretary, in bitte green with a train lined with silver. Other ladies of the household included in this group will be Mrs. M. J. Perley, in powder blue lace with a lace train and matching accessories and Mrs. R. R. Bevan in white chiffon patterned with black.

Mrs. Herbert Bruce, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, seated not far from the throne, will wear a gown typical of the luxurious mode of the new season cloth of silver made in lavish lines with a flan-shaped train. As ornament she will have a long pearl necklace and she will also wear a mink wrap.

Mrs. T. A. Crerar, wife of the Minister of Mines and Natural Resources, will be in white chiffon again with silver thread forming a brocaded design. The low decolletage is edged with a swan of paper's green velvet which ends in flowing twin tralns.

Mrs. Ernest Lapointe, wife of the Minister of Justice, has chosen heavy black crepe, simply made with the smart accent of large white velvet pomdes.

Mrs. C. A. Dunning, wife of the Minister of Finance, will wear turquoise crepe embroidered in silver. Mrs. C. G. Power, wife of the Senator, Sir Charles Wilson will be in an afternoon dress of heavy black crepe Monsoon with deif and vestee and trimming. Senator Ivo Fahis will wear an afternoon dress of blackberry lace over black. Conservative Member for Kings, Hants, will be in an afternoon ensemble of bottle green with neckline and sleeves trimmed with real old lace. It is not yet certain whether Miss Agnes Macdonall will be able to be present at the opening ceremony.

WEST HUNTINGDON

West Huntingdon.—Born at General Hospital, Belleville, on Monday, January 11, to Rev. and Mrs. R. A. Turner, a son.

The January meeting of West Huntingdon United Church W.M.S. and W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. E. Pitman, on Thursday, Jan. 7th, Mrs. Ambrose Wright, vice-president, conducting the ceremony. The worship period consisted of singing that old inspirational hymn, "Will You Go, Tempted?" Mrs. A. Wright offered prayer. Scripture lesson was given by Mrs. J. B. Wilson, Mrs. M. Reid, Mrs. F. Bird and Mrs. P. McIlroy. The roll call was answered by twelve members giving a verse of Scripture containing the keyword "Year." Mrs. P. McIlroy gave a short reading on Christian Stewardship and Mrs. Melville Reid on Africa. The members then listened to the radio over which the beautiful hymns were sung by Edgar McHugh, the Radio Gospel Singer. This was followed by a devotional leader read by Mrs. Jean Furger. This very helpful meeting was closed by use of a hymn and prayer by Mrs. S. Furger. Mrs. Pitman served a lunch at close.

Messrs. Edward Pitman, Wm. Pitman, Wilbur Jeffrey and Brooks arrived home from a two months' visit to Long Beach, California. They all were delighted with the wonderful country-down there.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Preston and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wood of Harwood were Monday visitors of Mrs. Effie Wilson.

Miss Matilda Fargey of Belleville is spending a few days with Mrs. Sarah Fargey.

Mr. Douglas Keilar, of Fuller, met with a painful accident while playing hockey on the ice Monday. He fell and cut his finger so badly that it was necessary to call him to the doctor at Stirling where the wound was dressed by Dr. Findlay.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Haggarty of Belleville called on a number of their friends here on Monday.

Mr. Charles Fargey and Barbara spent a few days with the former's parents at Cameron.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Bray of Belleville visited for days recently with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bray.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Pilchitt were Friday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Strickland, of Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fox and Leo visited here Thursday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fox.

Mrs. Jas. McGowan is visiting her friend, Mrs. Holden, of Belleville.

Mr. Harold Thompson spent a few days visiting relatives at Campbellford.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hammond and family were Friday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sandy McCurdy.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thompson spent Tuesday visiting friends at Campbellford.

The annual Congregational and Sunday School meeting of Union Church was held on Monday evening in the church, when reports were received from all the various departments. Mr. Peter McIntyre was elected Leader of Session and the Board of Stewards of 1936 were re-elected for 1937. The Sunday School remain practically the same as last year's officers.

The lovely warm weather is being appreciated by a number of children, but the unseasonable weather farmers it is bringing some anxiety. The fall rains have caused roads are suffering from the thawing and freezing. Some are in terrible condition and believe no real damage will result. Others think brown appearance of the soil indicates that it has already died.

The many friends of Alex McCurdy will be sorry to hear of his accident. While playing at the noon hour on Tuesday at school on the strip of ice north of the school yard, he slipped and broke his leg. He was taken to Belleville General Hospital where he received medical treatment. He returned home on Wednesday but will be confined to his home for a number of days.

The L.O.L. District No. 3 of Central Hastings met at Lodge room here on Tuesday afternoon for their annual meeting. Mr. Orval Casement, District Master, presided over the meeting. Representatives of the Order were present from Stirling, Bellevue, Ivanhoe and West Huntingdon Lodges. The several reports from the delegates showed an increased interest being taken in the Order. District Master Casement Donnan conducted the election and installation of officers as follows:

District Master—Bro. B. Morgan.
District Deputy Master—Bro. Wm. Wallace.
District Chaplain—Bro. Arthur Brough.

Members Believe Manager Could Show Profit Each Year

FAIR SUCCESS

FAIR SUCCESS

More Accommodation Need- ed For Livestock is Opinion

James Barber, Amelisburg township, President of the Belleville Agricultural Society during the year 1936, will again head that body during the coming term, elected by unanimous vote of members at the annual meeting of the Society held in the City Hall on Wednesday afternoon.

Also unanimously elected for a second term were David Thrasher, Sidney, First Vice President, and W. D. Reid, Thurlow, Second Vice President.

The directorate for 1937 were named as follows: Chas. Babcock, John Wess, John Walker, Geo. Sprackett, Chas. J. Symons, A. R. Symons, James Hutchings, Mayor R. D. Arnott, Dr. J. C. Reed, Wesley Gray, James Garbutt, Fred Denyes, Walter Aselstine and T. E. Walmsley, Fred Chamberlain and Sidney Dawkins will again hold office as auditors while a secretary and treasurer will be named at a future meeting.

Though the Society suffered a financial reverse this year during the Fair due to unfavorable weather, the official statement only $156.62, it was revealed by the treasurer's report submitted by auditors Fred Chamberlain. Receipts were listed at $11,478.67 and expenditures at $11,636.83.

Possibility of a Fair Manager, who would assume complete control of future fairs in this city loomed largely at the meeting following considerable discussion on the matter. It was held by the majority of members that through the appointment of a manager more efficiency and greater profits would result.

From Fair Manager

Chief supporter of the appointment of a manager was Mr. H. E. Fairfield who, though he asked to be relieved from active work on any committee this year assured members, that his interest and efforts would at all times be devoted to the furtherance of this local institution.

"Belleville has reached the point now, where she annually holds a real fair, one of the best in the Province. But we have been overlooking things; we need a manager, and yearly the need grows worse for this key man, who could guide the affairs," declared Mr. Fairfield. "You'll never get along financially until you do appoint some one, who is big enough for the job."

Comparing Kingston and Belleville fairs this year Mr. Fairfield pointed to the fact, that while wet weather in Kingston had mitigated against attendance, as it had here, nevertheless that city's Fair Board had been able to pay off a note of $1,500 and have a surplus in the bank.

Belleville should be able annually to make from $1,000 to $1,500 with her fair if it is properly managed. But there will have to be some cutting down on expenditures. We are paying too much here for front grand stand attractions and entertainments. It is one place where considerable paring could be done," suggested the speaker.

Also in support of the appointment of a Fair Manager Mr. Alex Hutchings declared, that full authority should be given that appointee and that no action of any committee should be taken until after consultation with and agreement had been given by the manager. "Get a man, who is big enough to shoulder the load, give him the full responsibility, and he will be careful of any expenditure he makes," it was added.

In assuming his second term of office, which was accepted only upon the repeated urging of fellow members, President Barber took the occasion to thank all members and committees for their help and cooperation that had been given him during the past term.

Success in Some Respects

"The fair last year in some respects was a huge success, even though we did suffer some loss financially. But every member made an honest effort to put it across. In this we were complimented by Mr. Carroll, Secretary of Ontario Fairs, who was our visitor," declared the president.

In a communication from Mr. Carroll—and later read, several suggestions for future improvement were noted. In paying his compliments to the efforts of the local Fair Board, the Secretary pointed to the excellency of the agricultural exhibits, which were such that would suggest that even more attention be paid this important department," the letter read.

Continuing: "Belleville is the centre of one of the best dairying districts of the Province and it should assume the leadership in this section. I would suggest, that the cattle section particularly be given more prominence, possibly shown and judged in rings placed in the centre of the grounds so that it could be seen," added the Secretary.

In the reports of the chairmen of the various committees which were accepted by the president, W. D. Reid, chairman of the Horse Committee declared that many new problems were faced himself and committee this year.

"We need more accommodation. During the past nine days I have been on this Board, the Fair has become steadily larger year by year. Now the time has come when we must really make an effort to keep up with its growth. Last year some of the best horses we have ever had visit us were unable to be shown owing to lack of accommodation. Better lighting facilities are also a great need," added Mr. Reid.

Need Better Accommodation

Dr. O. J. Reed in charge of the cattle committee revealed that the best exhibit thanked them shown in Belleville in years was on the grounds last year. He also cited the need for more and better accommodation.

"If Belleville is going to have a fair, let us not try to do it on Model Maxims or Shannonville accommodation. Last year we had many in argument with the breeders of the accommodation we had to get them. It would be better to have half dozen stalls left over than not have enough and have dissatisfied exhibitors," impressed Dr. Reed. "The committee worked well together, and this also applies to the whole Board."

W. M. Mitchell, past president, in charge of the sheep and swine committee, supported previous statements that lack of accommodation was one of the main faults of the present fair. "Last year we had a wonderful show of sheep and swine but we had no place for them," he added.

"If we had more pens, and if the grounds were laid out a little better, then much of our troubles would be over."

"On the whole, however, we did make progress, and we might hope this year of balancing on the right side of the ledger. Conditions, though, were against us, and we look for a better year next time," added the chairman.

R. H. Ketchenson, secretary, in a review of the poultry committee's activities in the absence of Mr. Jack Holley, chairman, declared last year's exhibit to have been good with the best that had ever been shown. "It was also marred off with the least trouble, but it meant a lot of hard work by Mr. Holley, perhaps one of the hardest worked chairmen on the grounds. But the exhibit was a credit to himself and the whole Board."

Exhibits of High Quality

H. E. Fairfield, chairman of Dairy Products, referred also to the lack of suitable accommodation for this important division, but declared the exhibits to be of the highest quality possible. "The cheese was of the highest standard and the prize money which was given out was also worth while competing for. Everyone in our division was well satisfied", he added.

C. F. Bell, chairman of the Grains Committee, declared his exhibit to have been especially good one, with the exhibits of the junior farmers being especially attractive, noting that the display exhibited.

H. W. Bamford, chairman of Roots recalled the excellent showing that had been made by exhibitors in this department. One pressing need was more room, it was stated.

Chas. Babcock of the Fruit division declared efforts would be made next year to even better last year's showing, while the need for more room in the Horticulture section was also stressed by Mr. A. R. Symons of this committee. The excellent class of the Ladies' Work shown was its own advertising, pointed out Mr. W. H. brooks, while this same attribute was paid to the School Work exhibit by Mr. Geo. Sprackett in charge of this department.

Chas. J. Symons as chairman of the Advertising Committee expressing his appreciation for the help and assistance in advertising that had been given by the Daily Ontario Intelligencer cited the as one of the greatest needs of any fair "It is the one big thing that must not be forgotten and whoever is chairman of this committee next year should be given every assistance possible through suggestions in the fer way, of advertising," declared Mr. Symons, voicing his thanks for the co-operation that had been so fully given.

Recalls Old Days

Wm. Fairbairn, in charge of the Midway in suggesting closer control of concessions on the grounds in the future declared that, "everything had gone off well."

Colonel W. N. Ponton, introduced by past president R. M. Mitchell, in offering several helpful suggestions for the future declared that every effort should be made to get more ladies attend the regular meetings and to work in closer co-operation with them. Annual meetings of Board earlier fair days were recalled by Col. Ponton.

Pointing to the fact, that the British Industries Fair had not always been distinguished by its attendance, yet had gained immeasurably by encouraging visits from well known speaker suggested that even in Belleville and district encouragement of trade through the exchange and barter system with the Old Country was highly desirable in order, that surplus products might be turned into profit.

The local militia unit should be given a more prominent place in the Exhibition. In order that people might see the latest means of defence now being used here. Service clubs should be invited School Boards and school children—every local organization should be invited to join and help the Fair along. We will have to aspire, then perspire in order to succeed," declared Ponton.

"And whatever band may be secured next year it is not out of the way to suggest, that the Highlanders with their stirring airs be employed," he added.

During the meeting the suggestion, that the local Fair Board affiliate with the Central Ontario Fairs Association received unanimous support.

It was announced that the annual Central Ontario Fall Fair meeting will be held in gallevile on January 28.

The Walking Weather Bureau

By E. P. O'BRYAN

There used to be a bookmaker on San Diego who liked to give the boys a little diversion in the betting racket. On any track you will find fair-weather bettors and "mudders". The latter run pretty best bets on a heavy track—that is, on a track that's just muddy enough not to be too slippery. On a smooth track they're not so fast. Most race followers know these horses and when it looks like rain they put their money on them.

Well, old Johnny Shylock would let his customers lay their bets three or four days ahead of time if they felt like gambling on the weather.

In those days Bobby Hawks was one of the "mudder" boys. He liked to bet on the weather. One day he hunted me up at the hotel, all bubbling over with excitement. It seemed that down in the slums he had run across a fellow whose feet began hurting him just before a rain.

"He's infallible. He told me Monday night when I seen him first that it was going to rain in twenty-four hours," Bobby said "and sure enough, Tuesday afternoon it did. On Tuesday I seen him again and he says it would rain. He said it was going to rain again the next day. Well, you know what happened. Showered about one o'clock. Yesterday noon his feet didn't hurt him, and today it didn't rain. So next time his feet start hurting, I'm betting it for Johnny's place and bet my roll on the best 'mudder' in the next day's races."

"Why, how can he be sure of the time?" I said. "How can he tell that close?"

"Easy," Bobby said. "His dogs start paining him about twenty-four hours before each rain. If his feet start hurting him before noon, it's a cinch. It'll rain by race time the following day."

"You've got to show me," I said.

"You'll see," Bobby says. "Just wait."

"Okay," says, "we'll see how it works".

One day Bobby grew anxious and sent a messenger down to the Rest House, where the bums hang out asking him "Has the weather bureau" to come up and see him.

When Doc Shlow arrived at the hotel, he was limping badly.

"Have they been hurting long?" I inquired curiously.

"That's the funny part of it," the fellow said. "They just now started in to hurt. It's goin' to be one of them quick rains, too. When my feet hurt me all of a sudden like that it means it's goin' to rain cats and dogs."

"Watch me cash in on this," Bobby said, flipping his informant a silver dollar. "I'll take old Shylock for plenty this trip. Now let's see if the 'mudder' is running tomorrow." He picked Fadeway in the third race. The third race, you figured, wouldn't be run before two o'clock or later, and that would allow ample time for the rain to set in. Fadeway was the best "mudder" of the lot.

Johnny Shylock was willing to bargain. He looked at the sky then at the weather bureau report, and took Bobby's hundred bucks. "A thousand dollars if you win," he certified, handing Bobby the slip.

The next day we drove down to Tijuana early. All the way down we kept looking at the sky. There were some thunder clouds over Mexico, but they were so far away the prospects of rain weren't very encouraging. At noon the sky was perfectly agree. Even the clouds over Mexico had faded away.

"It ain't time yet," he said. "We still got two hours to go."

At one o'clock some clouds appeared in the west, but they didn't look like rain clouds. We figured the race would be run about 2:30, at the earliest.

"You've got an hour and ten minutes to go," I said. "If it rains before race time, scotbody'll have to fly over the track in an airplane and pour it out of buckets."

We went in to lunch and suddenly it grew quite dark. Just as we were paying the bill there was a clap of thunder. It was one of those phenomenal showers that come on without warning. It was over in fifteen minutes, and later the sky was clear again. But it left a heavy track in its wake and Fadeway walked away with the race. There was nothing to it.

I was telling Doc Daniels about it. Doc is one of the city physicians, or was.

"That's the fellow over there," I says, pointing out the human miracle. He predicts more rain tomorrow, says his feet are still hurting."

Doc laughed fit to kill. "I shouldn't wonder," he says. "It's seven blocks to the Rest House. If he walks a block, his feet hurt him. That's our schilph number one of the worst case of flat feet reported to us. The poor fellow needs arch supports."

The next day Bobby lost two hundred on the same horse.

FOXBORO

Foxboro—Mrs. Kenneth Grills of Campbellford visited last week at the home of her sister, Mrs. Chas. Stewart.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parks and Jason, of Hay Bay, spent the week-end at Mr. J. G. Sills'.

Mr. Clarence Elhoff and daughter Ena, of Tweed, had Sunday dinner at Mr. R. Morden's.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hodgen and Betty were Sunday guests at Mr. R. P. Yorke's of Gilead.

An aged and respected citizen in the person of Mr. John Eggleton passed away early on Monday morning. He will be missed by his genial and social manner to all. Sympathy is extended to the widow and family.

League was opened on Monday evening by the use of hymn 173 and prayer. A reading was given by Lois Spencer and the Scripture lesson was read by Miss Shirley Wannamaker. The topic was well given by Mrs. Marion Daniels and a duet by the Misses Freda Horton and Vera Whit. A reading was then given by Mrs. Doris Horton and a hymn sung and after a reading by Mrs. (Rev.) Horton, the meeting was closed by the Mizpah benediction.

ACTION OF GOV'T IS ULTRA VIRES BY JUSTICE ROSE

CONTRACT LEGAL

Premier Hepburn Refuses Comment After Court Decision

Toronto, Jan. 14—(CP)—The action of the Power Commission, declaring invalid a 1929 power contract between the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission and the Beauharnois Light, Heat and Power Company is ultra vires of the Ontario Legislature. In delivering this judgment in high court yesterday, Chief Justice Sir W. E. Rose awarded the power company $573,750 in damages.

Chief Justice Rose ordered the Power Commission to pay costs of the action as he found the contract was legal and unaffected by the 1935 legislation passed by the Legislature, which, in cancellation of the contract, the Commission held with Quebec power firms. The Commission was ordered to pay interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum on $83,750 from Nov. 30, 1935; on $345,000 from October 30, 1935, and on $345,000 from January 30, 1936, until the day the high court ruling was delivered.

Attorney General Aleibie W. Hoobank and Hydro Chairman Thompson were named in the Beauharnois action but Chief Justice Rose dismissed the case against them. The trust firm as trustee for holders of first mortgage bonds of Beauharnois Light, Heat and Power Company and holders of collateral, trust bonds of Beauharnois Power Corporation.

Premier Makes No Comment

Although Premier Mitchell Hepburn did not make any comment following the court ruling, a statement made previously by him indicated he expected the legislature, starting its session Jan. 19, would pass legislation, validating the previous power firms collecting from the government. This statement was made in connection with Power Commission appeal before privy council against judgment in Ottawa Valley Power Company action.

Chief Justice Rose previously ruled the Ottawa Valley firm was entitled to bring action against the Power Commission under the Attorney General's consent as outlined in a provided for in the Power Commission Act. The Ottawa Valley Company, however, was successful in appealing this decision to the Ontario Appeal Court and the Power Commission has taken the case to privy council.

The Beauharnois contract called for the purchase by the supply or hold available for the Power Commission 250,000 horsepower of electrical energy at $15 per horse power. Under this contract, Chief Justice Rose decided, the Power Commission obtained rights over the company's property in Quebec.

Ruling of Justice

Therefore, he found, the majority judgment of the Appeal Court in the Ottawa Valley power case applied in the Beauharnois case, and His Lordship ruled:

"The Court of Appeal decided that section three of the Power Commission Act, 1935, was not effective to prevent the continuation of the Ottawa Valley Company's action; that, of course, was for the reasons, for the decision being, as I understand it, judgments of the legislature, having no power to destroy the contractual extra-provincial rights arising out of the contracts, was powerless to take away the adjudicated rights of vested by the Court of Ontario for the enforcement of those substantive rights.

"That being so, and the rights, or some of the rights, arising out of the contract upon which the present action is founded being civil rights that are not in the provinces, the judgment appeals, and it must be that that section three, insofar as it relates to an action founded upon the contract in question, or arising out of the performance or non-performance of any of the terms of such contract, was beyond the power of the legislature to enact."

He found if the Beauharnois contract with the Power Commission, like the Ottawa Valley contract, creates rights not wholly in Ontario, "then so much of section two of the Act of 1935 as purports to contract invalid, must be held to have been beyond the provincial legislative power."

Under the Beauharnois contract, he continued, the Power Commission obtained rights in respect of the company's property in Quebec and the rights obtained in Quebec would be lost if the contract was made null and void.

"It would be difficult to see how the Commission's rights under the contract would remain unaffected by the termination of the Commission's obligations." His Lordship concluded. "It seems that the section of the Act of 1935, if effective, would operate to confer such rights outside the province."

HYDRO CONTRACTS FIRST ON AGENDA

Procedure After Opening Will be Changed to Deal With Matter

Toronto, Jan. 14.—(CP)—Debate on the state of affairs in Ontario, usually first thing on the legislature agenda, after the throne speech this year will be sidetracked until government bills respecting Hydro contracts, now the subject of litigation, have been dealt with.

Premier Mitchell Hepburn, returned to his office after a week's absence because of bronchitis, made this announcement yesterday. The bills may be introduced opening day, Tuesday, January 19, but the Government's mind is not made up on this point. This would be a departure from precedent but the Premier is anxious to get the power debate underway Wednesday.

The Premier said power companies whose contracts were declared null by an act of the Legislature in 1936 would never collect a cent from the Province on the strength of them. Legislation to be introduced will anticipate a possible adverse decision by the Privy Council on an appeal by the province from a court decision in favor of the Ottawa Valley Power Co.

May Change Act

Another suggestion of legislation came yesterday from Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, after he received a deputation from the Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association. He said he was studying an amendment to the Cheese Act to give the Association some of the rights it had under the Inoperative Natural Products Marketing Act. Under this the Association collected five cents on every 100 pounds of Cheese manufactured, to help defray its financing and its activities.

"But we don't contemplate anything as drastic as the Marketing Act", said Mr. Marshall who has department experts busy drafting a statute.

Monday there will be a liberal caucus. The members will hear a forecast of the Government's legislative program. There will likely be a Conservative caucus Monday.

Opposition offices are busy preparing questions to be placed on the order paper. George S. Henry, formally chosen House Leader, is directing this work.

Fliers Defeat Redmen 12-6 On Heavy, Watery Ice Making Real Hockey Nearly Impossible

Air Force Team Wins Game in Second With 8 Straight Goals

CONDITION NEEDED

Redmen, However, Had Better of Play in The Last Stanza

Starting in O.H.A. competition, where they left off after completing in the Kingston City League, the R.C.A.F. hockey team defeated the Belleville "Redmen" 12-6 at the Hastings Arena last night before nearly 1200 fans on a sheet of ice that was covered with water, making skating fast and dangerous. The "Fliers" came to town accompanied by nearly 500 of the personnel of the Airport — their first sporting visit and made their presence known by continued vocal acclaim. On the night's play the Fliers were much the better but the "Redmen" gave noble of more strength to spare for after being well beaten in the second frame, when the "Airmen" had in eight goals without answ reply, the locals came back in the closing canto to completely outplay the opposition and outscore them three to one.

Belleville team was under a serious handicap in their game last night in that they lacked the condition of the "Fliers". The Air Force team has been playing regularly in the Kingston loop and is prepared to be in first class condition. The ice melted the surface of play and being heavier than the locals, about the going better. The team spread kept pace with the winners until their stamina gave out but they remarked very well to the end of the pastime, were travelling much the faster of the two teams and held the "Airmen" well bottled in their own territory for practically all of the last period.

No Pick Em Affair

The game was no pink tea affair as the twelve penalties handed out by Joe Smith of Kingston will testify. Seven of the penalties were given the local team. The hightickling, shoving and pushing was passed are only a forerunner of things to come and when the fracas next again the referee will have a large chunks. Both teams can take care of themselves and the majority of the players on each squad have picked out their opponent. Lacoste, the big defenceman of the Fliers, did not run away from trouble, in fact he was looking for it all night and Jimmy Ehler accommodating on several occasions. "Speedy" Walt. Lacoste was the limelight and did not back away from any of them.

It was a rocky road, that forwards were asked to navigate in going in and coming out, and for most part the hitting was clean but hard. No player was injured to be laid by either squad. Even with the bad ice; the teams did not forsake their systems entirely but at times each of some pretty combination was witnessed. The Fliers showed to be the smoother in this respect and every man on the winning team knows how to take and give a pass. Both teams were unselfish in their play and goals were scored that otherwise might only have been close had not the puck carrier given his teammate an opportunity to net the toothiest. Ken Watt, in the local nets, turned in a most winning performance between the local goal posts, despite the fact an even dozen pucks were handed him by the men in blue. It was only due to the good work of Watt in the first and third frames, that the score was kept to its number. Jimmie Ehler stood out as the best defenceman play for Skipper Thomas while "Speedy" St. Louis led the forwards on the opponents. Burley and McGuire teamed well with the former, but the going was a little too heavy for the light "kid line" of the Jackson brothers and Ray Bauman. They showed willingness to cope with the mammoth opposition, but the slow ice mitigated their efforts considerably.

Lalonde Given Ride

"Lalonde, although he drew the wrath of the fans upon his shoulders for continued high-sticking proved a stumbling block to the "Fliers" defence and teamed perfectly with Partridge. The starting line of Gowley, Cowley and Ernie McNeely showed the results of hard practice and their ability to play proved this trio "knew what it was all about". LaCompte and Eric McNeely took LeCompte's pass to heart, and after the latter had made numerous sensational saves. The local defence men were in on Haddon on several occasions, but never in position to score, as the puck was rolling and bouncing like the proverbial rubber ball. Cowley made it 2 to 0 for the Fliers, when suddenly the local squad unleashed a powerful attack, that resulted in Ingram and St. Louis beating Haddon in doubles quick time to tie the score, but Cowley put the Airmen in the lead once again as the period ended. The second period was but the repetition of game when Ingram scored to spin the count. On the play St. Louis took the rubber at the Fliers' blue line, passed ahead to McGuire who in turn passed directly ahead to Ingram, who scored from close in. The Fliers had their chance with this point and ran amok, scoring eight successive goals to make the count read 10 to 2 as the bell sounded. Goals by Jackson, Burley and Morgan and one by Lowery for the visitors. Watt stopped 4 shots left the final count 12 to 6.

Eric McNeely, star right winger of the Fliers had all scoring with five goals to his credit. Cowley, LaCompte, Watt two and Lalonde, Lowery and Ernie McNeely were the other marksmen. Burley starred with a brace of counters, St. Louis, Bill Jackson, Burley and Ingram were credited one each accounted for the Belleville goals scoring. The soft, slushy condition of the ice surface made good hockey and combination impossible, as the game was the victim of artificial ice.

The line-ups:

Belleville—Watt; defence, Ehler and Ingram; centre St. Louis; wings Burley and McGuire; reserves, Bauman, Partridge, W. Jackson, Morgan and Bentley.

R.C.A.F. Fliers—Goal, Haddon; defence, Lalonde and Partridge; centre, Lowery; wing, Cowley and Ernie McNeely; subs, LaCompte, Eric McNeely, Laing, Wingate and Carling-Kelly.

ONLY TWO GAMES ON TAP TONIGHT

Hawks Tangle With Maroons While Red Wings Meet Rangers

By The Canadian Press

Chicago Black Hawks were in Montreal today all excited at the prospect of running their winning streak up to three or four games and moving out of the sub-cellar to which they were mostly confined last night of it with Boston Bruins.

The Hawks' consecutive-win record has reached three games—a score thing that hasn't happened before this season. The soft, slushy condition of the Tweed management has gone to considerable side to keep the ice fresh with hopes of yet getting the league leaders.

But Montreal Maroons are their match, Coach Tommy Gorman's team tonight and think they can get around the Montreal Forum's slippery ice. They should be easy for them Saturday.

Only other National Hockey League game tonight is a battle between the American second leading Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers who trail them by only two points. The Rangers will need to be at their best to overhaul the world champions of Madison Square Garden.

The side effects from the flu have received more bad news. Harry Oliver, Boston Bruins' star who has been in a Montreal hospital for some time, has undergone an operation and may be out the game for the rest of the season.

His illness started with influenza and then it was found necessary to perform a mastoid operation. Meanwhile Roy Worters, their goalie is still in New York being built up for an exhausting operation made necessary by a hockey injury.

Toronto Leaf, have recalled Art Jackson, brother of Hockeyer Harvey, from Syracuse Stars again. Jackson happened to be in Toronto to attend a wedding when Conny Smythe looked over statistics showing Jackson was leading International-American League in scoring. He promptly told Roy he never would play against Chicago Hawks Saturday night.

N.H.L. PLAYOFFS TO START MAR. 23

Initial Skirmish For The Stanley Cup Has Fans Talking

New York, Jan. 14.—(CP)— Some say, mostly hence, about the time the playoffs are beginning to show signs of spring, National Hockey League fervor will reach its 1937 crescendo and the top notch teams will start tussling for the Stanley Cup and the N.H.L. championship.

Pairs will see the start of the N. H. L. playoff round and the initial skirmish for the Stanley Cup, the annual battle between United States and Canadian sectional leaders, on March 23.

This was the decision of league governors who met here yesterday. They set subsequent bouts tentatively for March 25, 27 and 28, the N.H.L. series being a best-three-of five lineup and the cup preliminaries a best-of-three game campaign.

Then the governors elected Bill Dwyer, Sr., former owner of New York Americans, to the governing board and tossed out the protest of Montreal Canadiens over Maroons having played the ex-Canadian Paul Runge, last Dec. 31.

Canadiens claimed that under their agreement with Maroons Runge was to play with New Haven of the International-American League until Dec. 30.

To help in ruling on goals scored in the dying seconds of periods, the governors voted for installation of green lights behind goals in all league rinks. This, would flash on at the exact time the periods end.

Due to a Toronto protest, the rules were clarified to prevent the Trades in William Andrus, Ro-Air from Little Rock. . . . He can pitch, catch and play the infield and outfield. . . . So Manager Jimmy Wilson will just park him on the bench and wait for something to happen.

Since giving old King Levinsky a good going over on the coast the Canadian Pacific Railroad-boxer wants to be known as "Jewish heavyweight champion of the world". . . . Any objections?.

JUNIOR REDMEN READY FOR TWEED

Understand, However, North Squad Will be Considerably Strengthened

As the result of two defeats in the current O. H. A. season, the Tweed juniors have gone into the importation of hockey players on a large scale. It was revealed today through the sports grape-vine route. Fifty new faces have been added to the roster of the floundering Tweed club for their game here on Friday night versus the group-leading Belleville Ponies.

Although the names of the players to be imported are not available it is understood that many centralities, surrounding the town have been thoroughly scoured for possible hockey material. On Monday night last, while the junior Redmen engaged in the fracas with the Peterboro Colts into camp, the Tweed juniors were hard at practice One new face, Harry Marston, the ex-Hawkiod, and two from Madoc were seen working out with the Tweed kids. The large force of Tweed juniors with promise, it was stated later in the Pointed corner, is working under two one-sided reverses, the Tweed management has gone to considerable side to keep the ice fresh with hopes of yet getting the league leaders.

Manager Thomas, on the other hand, says he is willing to gamble on his present team providing it is to who and what players the Tweed managers import. Our juniors need practice together as a team. Monday night's game did much to whip them into line. I hope the Tweed club does import a few good junior players to help them in their future competition all the keener, which after all is what the fans desire," added Manager Thomas as he glared he would start identically the same team against Tweed here on Friday night as he did against the Colts.

Piles Go Quick

With Dr. Leonhardt's Prescription

Many sufferers from itching, blooding or protruding piles have found out that quick relief can be had with an internal medicine.

Bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel is the cause of piles. The veins become swollen, then flabby, the bowel walls weak. That is why an internal medicine alone should be used. Promptly told Dr. Leonhardt the circulation, relieves the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and then the walls begin to shrink and tender parts.

Hemorrhoids is the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, who spent several years of his professional life in finding the cause of piles and the medicine that would remove them. His medicine succeeds because it tends to correct the cause.

No matter what kind or piles you have or how long you have had them, if you want to try HEM-ROID, you have our promise to give you back your money if you do not find quick and satisfactory relief, after using just one bottle.

J. S. McKeown or any druggist can supply you.

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

Guess maybe this psychic gent, Ed Kimm appearing at the Belle, knew more about last night's hockey game than we gave him credit for. Kimm tried to tell us he was a polo game and we walked out on him. If he sat in the arena last night wasn't more fitted for water polo than hockey, well then he must still be under the hypnotic spell of Kimm. It was really too bad to have such a fine game played under such adverse playing conditions. The players on both clubs were handicapped throughout the entire game. It was impossible to carry the puck and when body contact to surface, while good combination was quite out of the question. However the game was thrilling and sent the fans wava perfectly satisfied they had seen a good hockey regardless. It was unfortunate the weather turned so mild at the last moment, which is only one more reason why an artificial ice plant is necessary for the attraction of good playing facilities for hockey these days.

Nearly 1,200 fans got their first peak at the Airport last night and darning question is—how did they stack up against the fast Peterboro Colts? Kimm was minus the services of their regular goalie, Jimmie Gilmore, who is confined to hospital through illness. At the last moment Haddon was rushed up from Ottawa to fill the breach. The "Fliers" have a husky, hard-checking squad and the locals did remarkably well to keep the score as they did. For instance the Colts have the Ross Brothers, Bills and "Cy" Barriage looked like brigades going and they were clocked peckers, as Lalonde, Carling-Kelly, Partridge, LeCompte and the Lowery line checked McNeely well. Perhaps the hardest working man on the ice was Kathro for Smith. When the ice is sticky and carrying the puck is practically impossible, but the Colts were not to be denied. players naturally lose patience and tempers, but with a few exceptions everything went off smoothly. There were too many high sticks, but perhaps that is to be expected when body contact must be given to the Thomasites, they were clocked even with the fastest grab downs. They fought back gamely and gained the support of the fans.

Ken Watt, in the Belleville nets, must have thought it was raining rubber, he was rushed with shots in spite the fact an even dozen pucks slipped past him. Watt turning in a splendid effort, which was roundly applauded by the patrons at times. Lalonde and Partridge were clocked specialty on protection at the opposite end of the Arena. This boy Lalonde, reminds us of a hockey player. He really speedy. Ernie McNeely stacked himself into the limelight on several occasions last, while Lowery and Cowley team splendidly together. "Speedy" Walt. Lacoste was the game that is usually witnessed around these parts but he was missing and did not satisfy in their play. We feel the local fans will appreciate an informal invitation to the KEM-ROID should be used. promptly told Dr. Leonhardt the circulation, relieves the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and then the walls begin to shrink and tender parts.

Now, that senior baseball is washed up and the marbles counted in Belleville there is the matter of five or six, of the seven O.O.B.L. clubs that will be represented next season by belleville and their disposition. These once-cherished flags should be carefully preserved until they reach the stage of antiques and then our grandchildren can see them, they'll gaze with awe and wonder. What are those flags for grandpappy?" they'll enquire, bring back fond memories and the then bewhiskered grandsire could reply—"why grandson, those are the pennants won by a Belleville baseball team years ago when baseball knighthood was in flower in this burg." How many reasons why baseball has fallen into disrepute in this city, the chief one being indifference on the part of all interested. Then there was the old "let George do it" feeling also.

Perhaps the failure of the senior ball club, a few years back, to provide reputable opposition was paramount. A decade ago Belleville could boast of really good junior ball players, but when they graduated up to try out with the senior club, they were given little or no encouragement by the veteran senior players of that era. Of course the lack of interest shown by local talent in recent years did not help to stimulate the game. Only a handful of fans turned out to the Intercity games when they were being staged here, and the conclusion of the matter always places the figure thirty or forty dollars in the red for the information of the limelype put it, Minister Composite H's Belleville.

THERTY (with cash) for baseball in Belleville. Peterboro is willing to subscription to the use of a whistle officials in the hockey games, claiming that the shrill sound of a whistle cannot be heard above the roar of the crowd at a packed city hockey game. We agree with him for certainly no one in Monday night's Peterboro at the game, but when the Lintock City scribe says, "What fans need here is a whistle, they didn't backcheck worth a darn" then every unnecessary penalty handed out when they only had to go through the motions to beat the referee's whistle and now they have a tough scrap in Tweed against, against, a bolstered squad playing on its own ice. We are quite confident our Colts will cop group honors again but they'll have to play hockey. The fans in Belleville should be on "on a lot of good."

Poem by the Baffle stooge"—

"Requiescat in Pace
Hang out the crepe upon the door,
Our basketball team just ain't no more
They died last night of ing'ring illness
Because of local men's unwillness
To buy tickets, backs or ends, to give
To help the poor things strive to live
Peterboro
They passed 'em soft; they panned 'em hard
And now, hoist by their own petard

GOALIE GRANT BREAKS NOSE

Philadelphia Fans Nearly Ready For Big-Time Hockey

By The Canadian Press

If support given to their International-American Hockey League club can be taken as a criterion, Philadelphia fans are ready for renewal of big-time hockey. A crowd of 5,000 turned out to see Rambler polish off Springfield Indians 6-3 last night and take a three-point lead over the Redmen in the eastern section.

Philadelphians are sure going for their hockey this winter and seem to be sold on the team Lester Patrick is farming under his New York Rangers. Perhaps the fans would not turn out in such goodly numbers if Coach Herb Gardiner and his were't producing favorable results but right now prospects Philadelphia may bid for a National League berth next winter, some observers say.

It was a costly loss for Indians in player-strength as well as points. Handsome Benny Grant, Springfield goalie, stopped a puck with his face and examination later showed he had a broken nose. Ramblers were leading 6-0 at the time Grant was replaced by trainer Harvey Stone. The change seeming to inspire the Indians who went on to score three times.

There were no casualties in the only other game of the night as Providence Reds pasted the lowly Cleveland Falcons 9-2 to move further away from New Haven Eagles, east group leaders. Goalie Sammy Byrne, playing a great game in Reds' net, kept his citadel clear for 50 minutes before Speed Swanson and Mig Brenneman solved his wizardry.

Brian Hextall was the big gunner for Ramblers, scoring three goals. Tommy Plimore nicked Indians' first marker with less than five minutes play remaining in the third period and 15 seconds later, Toupin scored. The Frenchman banged another one home before the final bell.

"Y" Swim Club Plans Program

With enthusiasm and deep interest the members of the Y.M.C.A. Swim Club met last evening to arrange their programme for the next six weeks. Members will alternate in directing the weekly events in the following order—Jan. 19th, Marion MacLean; Jan. 26th, Eva Smith; Feb. 2nd, Doris Gardner; Feb. 9th, Elton McGregor; Feb. 16th, Edna Bush; Feb. 23rd, Rose Clare.

Club members will assist the staff in instruction programmes and . in coaching members of various groups in an effort to develop those who wish to swim well.

The club will be represented by a team in the championship meet to be held in the Queen's University pool in the Easter holidays.

Social events will also be included in the programme, said Jean Short the "Y" secretary, and those interested in swimming are invited to avail themselves of the opportunity and privileges.

SPORTSMEN DEPLORE POSSIBLE CLOSING OF GAME BIRDS

"It will be the biggest mistake the government ever made to allow the season to close on game birds on the open market. It will mean the ruin of the flocks of the gorgeous birds in the district," commented leading sportsmen and even farmers of the district in reference to reports that the Ontario government may alter the raising and selling of pheasant and game fowl in the province.

"Keep me out of this argument, but most of the blame for the indiscriminate shooting of pheasants in particular in this section, and then selling them," declared one of the city's leading conservationists. "Right now we have flocks of the beautiful birds coming along nicely and the farmers are glad to have them around the place as weed and bug destroyers. If their sale is legalized, it will mean the end of them," he added.

It was pointed out, however, that in the case of shooting this could easily recognized on the carcass of the bird with a probable penalty attached.

J. M. WILKINSON, TWEED HAD PERFECT SCORE

London, Ont., Jan. 14 (CP)—J. M. Wilkinson of Tweed and Bruce Richardson of Wellington tied for first place in the chess grading competitions here yesterday in connection with the tenth annual convention of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association. Both had perfect scores. W. G. Wells of Innerkip had a score of 98.

INSULIN USED TO TREAT INSANITY.

Specialists Describe Experiments to Relieve Dementia Praecox

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(CP)—Treatment of psychoses by sharp reduction in the sugar content of the blood, has been met with a reasonable amount of success, New York psychiatrists agreed today after hearing their views before a meeting of the New York Neurological society and the New York Academy of Medicine section of Neurology and Psychiatry.

The papers were read last night by Dr. Manfred Sakel of Austria, Dr. Bernard Glueck of Canning, N.Y., and Dr. Joseph Wortis of New York's Bellevue psychiatric Hospital staff.

While admitting they were encouraged by past results, the doctors were unanimous in pointing out the number of patients treated thus far by this method was so small they could not safely discuss its degree of permanency. They said how significant and how striking its effect surely are in other respects."

The treatment, which involves the injection of insulin—necessary in treating the treatment of diabetes—into the patient's blood stream, is called hypoglycopic therapy of psychoses. Hypoglycemia is an abnormal condition characterized by a decreased amount of sugar in the blood.

Toronto Observes Record Year

Toronto, Jan. 13.—(CP)— Dementia praecox was successfully treated in Ontario mental hospitals by insulin shock, Dr. H. E. Mitchell, Deputy Minister of Health indicated today.

The department has sent Dr. Norman L. Easton to New York to study the method, Dr. Mitchell said there "with surprising results". Dr. Mackay Kelso of the New York Academy of Medicine out that of one hundred cases of the most common form of insanity, 86 had shown good or fair recovery when treated by insulin shock.

"The treatment is a rather dangerous one if the nurse in charge is used," said Dr. McChie. "It is a shock treatment from lowering the blood sugar suddenly by the injection of insulin."

In ordinary cases this causes the collapse of a patient as was often the case in the early days of insulin. / Such patients recover almost instantly by taking sugar.

Pictures too Realistic To Suit Art Critics

Kansas City, Jan. 13 (AP).—Missouri's civil art war centred today on Thomas Hart Benton, the unruffled Thomas Hart Benton, the muralist, who mixes his paints with egg yolks.

Patriotic critics said the ribs of Liberty, a figure in the recently completed murals in the State Capital lounge at Jefferson City, were entirely too skinny for any Missouri girl.

Said Benton, a leading United States "realist":

"Any real farmer knows a milk cow doesn't take on fat. I haven't heard a single dirt farmer object to the way she's painted—only sycophantic farmers who never milked a cow."

His first commission from his native State—the legislature appropriated $5,000 for the murals—evoked both praise and criticism, all of it intense, from the home folks.

The 47-year-old artist, centre of numerous art controversies, also was given free rein by the legislators to paint the "social history of Missouri."

The result: Scenes showing Jesse James robbing a bank; brawny workers sulking down heavy lines; a farmer at a country political rally disparing her baby; negro slaves being beaten by an overseer; the founder in the famous "Frankie and Johnnie" ballad; and a lusty, stockyard lad'gers slaying a steer—near the left, a cigarette-puffing "V. Tweed and District

Tweed, Jan. 13—Miss Margaret Kerr entertained Mrs. R. Hanna and Mrs. D. Johnston of Selwood at an afternoon tea on Wednesday.

The first meeting of the W.M.S. of Tweed United Church for the year was held in the church parlours on Thursday, Jan. 7th. Mrs. Claude Bargent presided over the meeting which was opened with a hymn and prayer, Mrs. W. J. McCutcheon read the devotional leaflet which was followed by reports of the various secretaries and the financial statement by the treasurer.

The pastor, Rev. R. R. Nicholson installed the new officers and spoke in a very encouraging manner of what had been accomplished during the past year. Following the Installation ceremony Mr. Nicholson addressed the ladies briefly on the subject of "Weariness and Strength." Mrs. W. E. Tummon, peace secretary, gave a fine resume of world events. Short items were given by Mrs. J. McGown, temperance secretary and Mrs. McIntosh, literature secretary. Mrs. S. H. Conger sang a delightful solo and the meeting was closed with prayer by the president.

Hon. President: Mrs. R. R. Nicholson.

President: Mrs. C. Barnett.

Rec. Secretary: Mrs. T. C. Graham.

Treasurer: Mrs. E. Jones.

Cor. Secretaries: Mrs. W. H. Hicks and Miss A. Bulledge.

Christian Stewardship Secretary: Mrs. W. J. McCutcheon.

Peace Secretary: Mrs. W. E. Tummon.

Temperance Secretary: Mrs. J. McGown.

Literature Secretary: Mrs. J. W. Kingston.

Press Secretary: Mrs. S. H. Conger.

Mission Band Leaders: Mrs. S. G. Way, Mrs. Amy Gerald and Mrs. F. B. Foster.

Baby Band: Mrs. Geo. Gerald.

Pianist: Mrs. S. H. Connor.

Assistant: Mrs. H. Foster.

The Brotherhood class of the United Church held a meeting of officers on Sunday afternoon. The following were elected:

President: T. C. Graham.

Vice President: Frank Tummon.

Secretary: Ed. Bath.

Treasurer: Alton Foster.

There was an attendance of about 25 at the meeting which was addressed by Mr. Price.

On Sunday, January 17th, Rev. Frank Langford, General Secretary of Religious Education of the United Church in Canada will be the special speaker at Tweed United Church. He will preach at both morning and evening services.

Mrs. Harry Grier has returned from Erie's short visit with relatives in Peterboro.

HUFF'S ISLAND

Huff's Island—Mr. and Mrs. B. Allen spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. H. Fairman.

Sunday visitors at Mr. F. E. Wallbridge's were: Mr. and Mrs. R. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. W. Fairman and Nancy, Miss Bessie Wallbridge, Mesdames G. Anderson and R. A. Hay and Mary Lou.

Miss Lottie Wallbridge spent the 1-n hour and Sunday night with Mrs. Milford Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hall, Avondale, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Barber and Marilyn spent the supper hour and evening at Mr. W. H. Montgomery's on Sunday.

The W. I. met at the home of Mrs. J. E. Wallbridge Wednesday afternoon with a good attendance, every lady from the Island being present, which certainly constitutes a record. It was a "Grandmothers" meeting, the convener being Mrs. E. E. Wallbridge and all enjoyed the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Motley, Esping and Myrtle spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs.-B. Dickson, Cb'lerne.

Mr and Mrs. B. Baxter, Echobarle, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. Wallbridge.

FOXBORO MISSION BAND

Foxboro Mission Band was held on Sunday, January 10th. The meeting was opened by the singing of a hymn followed by a prayer by Lois Spencer. The roll call was answered with fifteen present. The collection was taken by Percy Priest. The Scripture was then read by Marjorie Tenny. A story was given by Miss Doris Horton and was very much enjoyed, followed by a reading by Doris Scott. The business was conducted by Miss Marion Daniels. It was moved by Ralph Jamieson and seconded by Hazel Dafoe that Doris Scott and Lois Spencer be on the programme committee for February.

A hymn was sung followed by the Mizpah Benediction.

No Dairy Exhibition, First in 75 Years

London, Ont., Jan. 13.—(CP)—For the first time in 79 years there is no butter and cheese exhibition in connection with the annual convention of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association.

The 79th convention opened at the Masonic Temple here today and the pleading across the butter and cheese exhibit in the basement was lacking.

The cheese and butter grading competitions are being continued as usual. It is understood that the dairy exhibition because of lack of funds, but according to Secretary F. Herns the exhibition will be continued again next year if there is sufficient interest and demand.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was in back of the sporting page showing smoke rings, and I said. Hay pop?

Do you mean me? pop said.

Meaning what, and I said, I just made up my mind I think I'll be a doctor when I grow up and have to be something.

You couldn't be anything more useful, pop said. It's estimated that doctors keep down the death rate 50 per cent by the simple expedient of sending in regular monthly bills, so that people are afraid to get sick, and where there's no sickness there's no foothold for germs, he said, and I said, O well, I think I guess I'll change my mind and be a lawyer, because doctors have to get out of bed too much, and that's the worst thing I'm good at.

Lawyers are also reliable citizens pop said. Thousands of young lawyers at this very moment are toiling in their cheerless offices consoling themselves with the thawt that millions of people are treating each other more hutly than they could if they didn't know that a lawsuit would send them to jail if they lost it and so the poor house if they won it, he said, and I said, Anyway, lawyers have to study too hard to learn all the rules and things, and besides, Leroy Shoonover's father is a lawyer, and I wouldn't want to look like him, or even smell like him. I'm going to be a architect, I said.

Some of my best friends are architects, pop said. The real estate industry is having a difficult time but without the aid of the architects it would topple over the verge of collapse into abdominal ruin, he said, and I said, How do you mean, or do you mean nobody could bild houses unless the architects drew a picture of them first to show how they were suppose to look?

Not quite, pop said I mean that people with start out to bild their own house in these remarkable times show the architect's beautiful plans to a bilder, take one look at the bilder's estimate and then hastily buy somebody else's house from a real estate man who was bizsily starving to death and now run your house, he said.

Wich I did, deciding I'd rather be a glass blower anyways.

SAVE money and enjoy the best when you buy... AYLMER

BALMY WEATHER FOOLS FLOWERS

Bulbs And Plants Sprout Out of Frost-Free Ground

Under the persuasion of returning spring-like weather, flower sprouts in the south Leeds district have moved and early bulbs made their appearance in Southern Ontario gardens last week.

In the past 24-hour period, maximum temperatures were between 50 and 58 degrees and it appeared the mercury would go considerably higher with continued bright and clear weather generally.

Residents of Kemptville found more lively butterflies and surprised gardeners in the south of the province discovered early growth in backyard garden plots.

Early bulbs sprouted from the earth in Brockville and the St. Lawrence River was generally ice-locked at this time of year was open from Brockville to Montreal. International ferry vessels operated and pleasure parties motored trips to nearby islands in row boats.

Temperatures were lower in Northern Ontario but weather was considered unusual for mid-January.

UNION VALE

Union Vale—The annual trustee meeting was held at the school house. Mr. Harold Martin was appointed as the new trustee.

TWO CONVICTED FOR CARRYING FIRE-ARMS

Grand Forks, B.C., Jan. 13 (CP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police today held for alleged illegal entry into Canada two men convicted yesterday of being aliens in possession of loaded firearms and fined $50 each.

Police said the men, giving their names as Leonard Dahl, 31, and William Bailey, 34, had a revolver two rifles and a shotgun, all loaded, another unloaded rifle and a quantity of ammunition, when arrested Monday night on a snow-bound highway thirty miles east of this border town, 226 miles east of Vancouver.

The men had a motor truck and a coupe automobile, and in their possession was $300 United States currency in five, ten and twenty dollar bills.

They said they were from Miles City, Mont., and enroute to Metaline Falls, Wash." They did not explain their presence in British Columbia.

British Columbia police stated the arrests were routine business of the border patrol and had no special significance insofar as Canadian authorities were aware. State of Washington police said the arrests had no significance to them at present.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Gypsy Woman

By Margaret Hoss

No wonder he hated her, coming like a filter wind out of the past to get him. Oh, she was pretty enough. If you have an eye for a gypsy woman with a mouth like a wild pomegranate and black hair wound in braids that threw off blue in the sun. One morning he came over with a fine red shawl.

"I found this under my window. That fence is a deadline. I built it for you."

The gypsy woman laughed low in her throat. "I go where I please."

I went to the dance and claimed them like mad. Call her place a house if you like; an honest working woman like me would call it something else. Made of funny, colored tins it was, with a tiling the color of a patio, and fat little gods called a patio, and fat little gods and wicked looking knives along the wall. Maybe it would pass where rich people live, but stuck off in the hinterlands as close to his citrus trees and his plain little shack as she could get it, no wonder I recalled mosaic in the Florida air.

Carrie stopped by the grove for supper next day. Carrie was his sort —tall, yellow-haired and quiet. Married, they would have a lot of nice yellow-haired kids. The gypsy woman—her name was Marya—whispered something to her dog. I haven't mentioned that dog, Timmy, for a good reason. I was afraid of him. God knows what breed he was. Anyway when Carrie walked to her flivver, he was at her like a long gray wolf. Carrie screamed. The wolf-thing stopped just for a heart-beat, then with a curving leap was at her throat.

The gypsy woman called, slow and assured. There lay Carrie flat on the ground, not a tooth mark on her. And there was Jim, his blue eyes blazing, shaking the gypsy woman until her hair was a ragged black shawl that hated her kisses.

"Try that again," he whispered. "Try it. I'll send you, you, into where he belongs."

She stared at him with her pomegranate mouth wide and terrible. "Oh, no. It is only women you kill; you with your clodtrooper look and right-with-God ways. Your friend of the fat face by gins and her squeaky car is gone with her. Timmy will see that she stays."

"You, Jim," whirling to me, "take your saucer eyes into the house."

Why didn't I quit? I couldn't. That gypsy woman fascinated me. And I liked Jim Torgeson; for all his cold Norse eyes was high-and-mighty ways, I liked him. After the day Carrie left her eggs in shattered splotches in the muck there was only a great black waiting between him and the gypsy woman. She hesied herself in queer secret ways. There was a sunken pool where she lay for hours, brown and beautiful in the sun. I never knew why the gypsy woman left the house.

Weeks. Weeks. Weeks. And still that queer black waiting.

"Look here." I said to the gypsy woman, "I heard something in town today. Jim and Carrie are to be married."

The gypsy woman touch Tomiy's ugly snout. Then she picked up a little Byzantine Madonna dreaming in a niche on the wall.

"Do you think I could ever be like that? Still and peaceful?"

"No." Then I surprised myself. "Yes. Maybe, if you had a child at your breast."

I was screaming for Jim. Blood—I can see it yet, welling the clear, gorgeous purple of her dress. Everything went dark and when I opened my eyes I saw Jim's face, white and tormented.

"Dead?" I gasped. "Is she dead? Jim Torgeson, may God have mercy on your soul, for I never will."

I heard the gypsy woman laugh. Only her hand was hurt. Did the knife slip or was it just her way of getting Jim where she could get as good as mine.

"Bills," she spoke kind of puzzled. "I didn't know you liked me."

"Nor did I."

As I bandaged her hand, I might have been made of air for all the attention they gave me. I was ashamed of listening but a woman who has never known passion will always listen if she gets a chance.

Jims mouth was almost on hers. "You left me. You—my wife. When I saw that blood over your heart."

His wife! And me believing all that gossip about Jim and Carrie!

"You were hard." That was the gypsy woman. Her eyes were cold and God was always with you. I left you alone with him in the snows of the North. When I came back you were gone. When I followed you here you shut the door in my face. So I smiled and built this house. I knew it would make you angry and I built it. I love you. You can trample on me but I will never leave you again. I love you."

Well, it wasn't decency that stopped my listening; it was Jim picking up that gypsy woman and carrying her out to the pine needles under the moon. Carrie? Now there's a woman I understand. She married Abel Burt, the plumber, and she has the best kept house in the citrus country. I am going over to sew with her this afternoon.

Algoma Milling Rate Being Stepped Up

The additional equipment required to give effect to the step-up to 100-tons daily in capacity of Algoma Mines' mill has been purchased and is being shipped, an official of the company advises. The machinery should be on the ground within a week and allowing a few days for installation, it should be running well before the end of this month.

The doubling of the mill capacity reflects the very substantial growth of the mine's ore position resulting from the large scale ore development operations in recent months in this West ore zone. Since late Fall it is estimated that development supplemented by diamond drilling has blocked sufficient new ore in the West zone to feed the larger mill for a period of approximately two years. In addition the possibilities of increasing ore tonnages given brighter as work proceeds.

A telling feature of these development results which has so far not been stressed is the materially higher grade of ore coming up in underground work than has been milled in the past. A footage of $30.00 grade has been reported along the drift on the 200 foot level. With this grade of ore available the enlarged mine production and earnings can be expected to show expansion.

That powerful bullish forces are at work throughout the world is apparent in the vigorous way various material forecasts from reparatory setbacks. Dispatches from Paris described strong security markets following Germany's peaceful settlement with France. of differences existing. Of the former's activities in Spanish Morocco. The French bull market for securities which was so long in getting under way, now appears to a real start now for it is described as ready to carry the main advance forward at any sign of a let-up in troublesome European affairs.

The strength of the New York market in the face of the serious strike in the motor industry is a source of wonderment. Many believe that Canadian markets would act even better than they have been if no such strike, with its possible far-reaching consequences, has not occurred in the United States.

Several recent decisions of the Securities and Exchange Commission make it evident that the SEC intends to enter more actively into controlling the over-the-counter markets. This is indicated when it allowed the New York Curb to extend its unlisted trading privileges to the issues of the Edison Electric of Boston, and authorized the delisting of an issue which had applied on the application of the outside market specialist. Also it is beyond registering over-the-counter dealers, as special control has been exercised by the Commission over their market.

After a year in which the newsprint industry has staged a marvelous recovery and established an all-time record in production the industry has entered upon a new year with bullish prospects ahead, not the least of which is a rise in the contract price as from January 1 from the base of $41 per ton f.o.b. New York to $42.50 per ton. The price applies to papers here is $39.00 per ton f.o.b. mill, which is equivalent to the price quoted f.o.b. New York. This, on the basis of 5,000,000 ton output for the year, should bring in an added revenue of between four and five million dollars, but against this is the fact that expenses have increased, particularly at respect to woods operations.

Nemanda Mines

Because this has been a very large producer of copper, pencils have been charged with the idea of estimating what the recent rise in the price of this red metal would mean to the earnings of the Noranda Company. Before arriving at any accurate conclusion, one must have to know how much Noranda is under control for and at what price, some of these contracts run as long as two years.

This company is fortunate in that there is considerable flexibility in its copper-gold ore bodies and that production can be readily adjusted to the demand and profit relationship existing between the two metals. While the price of copper is relatively low to that of gold during the past three years, Noranda has relied primarily on the higher gold content ores for profits and dividends. Now that consumption and the price of copper is increasing, a higher ratio of copper to gold in dollar value of production is probable. Valuing copper at 12 cents per pound and assuming a total production of 75 million pounds, one can readily see that Noranda's earning power might easily reach the equivalent of $5.00 a share.

TORRENTIAL RAIN

Leaside viaduct filling cellars and basements.

Etobicoke Creek raged and threatened Brampton business section. Part of Toronto-Hamilton highway disappeared under a foot of water from the flooded west branch of the Humber river.

The river speed, at Guelph, helped under pressure of heavy rains and public works employees stood guard at points along its banks where danger threatened.

Rise of Waters Unprecedented.

Rise of the waters was unprecedented and the river rosed higher even than during periods of spring thaw. At Riverside Park in Guelph a bridge was torn away and the municipal wood supply swept down stream.

Waterloo county farmers near Kitchener saw a one and one-third inch rainfall during the past few hours and streams threatening to go on the rampage.

At Bridgeport the Grand River rose five feet during the night and the village dam overflowed to sidewalks and streets as the waters continued to press.

In Niagara Falls district flood conditions also loomed. Beaver Creek near St. Catharines raced over its banks and two streets were submerged. Below Merritton, Hartzell Road was flooded but traffic was able to move slowly.

Cellars Flooded.

Keith Creek Flats around St. Thomas felt the touch of flood waters early lightly although several homes in the city had water-filled cellars. Conditions at Port Stanley were normal.

Continuous rain in Brockville district caused West-end Creek to rise about six feet above normal level and the waterfront Canadian Pacific Railways spur line was inundated and two or three small traffic bridges were partly submerged. Low farmlands were flooded.

Thaw, following the Southwest Ontario was rain-swollen also and reached a new season high-mark. Thames River, the main stream with moving water and at Ingersoll water seeped into basements.

In far-northern parts of the province normal January conditions prevail in evidence. There was no open water in North Bay district and only a couple of even residents was the streets and sidewalks.

Elsewhere throughout Ontario continued to be handicapped by lack of snow and severely removal of cut lumber from the woods.

To farmers in districts removed from dangerous areas the mild continuous low temperatures were a blessing. Feeding problems were lightened by the drop in wintering animals' appetites. And lack of feed-supplies caused by drought conditions in many parts of the province last summer were not felt as severely.

At Goderich grain vessels were able to move in elevators unhindered by ice conditions for the first time in years.

Water Up Six Feet.

Brockville, Ont., Jan. 14 (CP)—Heavy local downpours of rain during the night caused the west-end creek here to rise about six feet above normal level, inundating the waterfront spur of the Canadian Pacific Railway and also flooding four or three small traffic bridges.

Farmers reported all low-lying land to be flooded.

Present Weather Aids Destruction of Insects

Severe frosts which may possibly follow the present period of warm and unseasonable weather may result in the killing of millions of insect pests, throughout Ontario, is the opinion of Mr. A. B. Baird, chief of the Dominion Entomological Laboratory, supporting a statement by Prof. F. A. Urquhart of the University of Toronto's entomological department, made yesterday.

Mild weather, it was pointed out, sometimes causes or harmful development of the insect eggs with the result that a hard frost would cause the destruction of the half formed insect.

Four Deseronto residents appeared in county police court yesterday on charges of failure to procure radio licences for the year 1936. The quartette pleaded guilty as charged and were fined one dollar and costs, amounting to $3.75 in all. The cases were presented by F. J. McWatters, representing the Department of Marine of the Dominion government.

One of the four persons to have been delinquent in this matter was a celestial gentleman, who paid his fine in five and ten cent pieces, allegedly procured from a slot machine. Other charges of failure to procure radio licences will be laid in this district, Mr. McWatters announced after court.

Today, for the fourth day in succession, no arrests were necessary in Belleville. Police activities were purely routine, while nine translents hurried to the police station during last night's downpour and were given dry sleeping quarters.

RIVER LEVEL RISES 16 IN. DURING NIGHT

A full report of local conditions following an all night rain last night and consequent flooding of creeks and streams in this district was furnished the Ontario Department of Highways this morning by City Engineer, Chas. Mout, following a request from officials at Port Hope.

In the report it was pointed out that during the night the Ahrns River had risen 16 inches due to the heavy drainage received, but that fears of a repetition of last spring's flood were so far remote.

"The river is now clear of ice from the Bay to well north of Cannifton and the river has free access its whole length to the Bay", declared the report.

At Pickering it was stated that due to the flood conditions of the Canaraska River at Port Hope, No. 2 Highway traffic was being routed north.

DESCRIBES FLOOD OF GANARASKA RIVER

Rev. W. H. Reid of Belleville described the condition of Port Hope and Cobourg as serious this morning. Mr. Reid said that the water rose very rapidly this morning as the flood waters gathered headway pouring through culverts down to the lake and from seven-thirty to nine o'clock water rose at least eighteen inches. Large quantities of ice were inundated.

The highway was closed to traffic being covered with water in places.

Mr. Reid had to drive by way of side streets to get out of the town to make his way to the highway and proceed eastward.

WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 14 (AP)—Automotive shares showed a firm undertone with rallies of 1 to 3 points in today's Stock Market as prospects improved for settlement of the General Motors' strike.

With a conference under way between General Motors officials and Union representatives at least a start of effecting a peaceful conclusion of the present labor impasse, the entire Street sentiment appeared to be substantially improved.

Canadian Pacific and McIntyre improved fractionally among Dominion issues while small price setbacks occurred in Dome Mines, International Nickel, Distillers Corp.-Seagrams and Hiram Walker. On the curb, Base Metals rose a point. Canadian Government bonds were inactive, Canadian dollars were unchanged at 99.96 7-8 cents.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 14 (CP)—The mining list ticked away from some of the early high prices but a few sharp gainers stood out in both the gold and the base metal groups on the closing section of Toronto Exchange this afternoon. Sisco and Sylvanite were features, with gains of 20 and 30 cents each on new highs and Noranda on a rise of two points to better than the base metals.

McIntyre, Buffalo-Ankerite, Pioneer and Malartic Corporation were up and Lake Shore and O'Brien a little lower. Homestead advanced to 70 cents and Wright-Hargreaves to 76, Texas-Canadian and Home improved and Calgary-Edmonton weakened.

Livestock

Toronto, Jan. 14 (CP)—Hog prices were firm on the Toronto Livestock Market today. Other divisions held near previous levels in dull action. Cattle hold over from Wednesday was 200 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 20; calves 20; hogs 230; sheep and lambs 100.

Good butcher steers were from $5.50 to $6.00 with a few as high as $6.25. Common butchers traded downward to 4.50. Some cows of heavy type sold at $4.50.

A few calves offered sold between $5 and $7.50.

Off truck bacon hogs were mostly at $8.00 but one long haulé going as high as $8.75.

Sheep and lamb division was unchanged.

HOG QUOTATIONS

Toronto, Jan. 14 (CP)—Lower at 23 cents per pound. Bacon hogs and 24 cents in dressed-weights were noted in Chatham today. Other market points reported steady prices:

Liverweights: Guelph $8.15; London $8.25; Hull $8.25; Peterborough $8.10; Chatham $8; Stratford $8.25.

Dressedweights: Guelph $10.80; London $11; Hull $11.30; Peterborough $10.85; Chatham $10.85; Stratford $11.

WAR - - KIDNAPPING - - POLITICS - - DISASTER - -

BUT.... it's the LITTLE THINGS that count....

New drapes for the guest room, and Junior's first haircut. A new recipe for peach pie and new pans for baking it. A picnic at the beach, and a new hat for the weekly bridge. Every day events? Of course! But they're the things that make life livable! What's a war in Illyria and another Arctic expedition, compared to the thrill of the first glimpse of the family that's moving in next door, and the delivery of a shining new refrigerator? What's a royal wedding, and twelve rooms filled with gifts, when Anne has her fifth birthday tomorrow? They're interesting enough, something to talk about, to wonder at, perhaps, but pretty far away from that most important spot and the people who live there . . . your own home.

That's where your heart is, and that's where the real thrills lie, in the things that concern you and the people who live around you, next door, in the next block, anywhere in town. There's news about them in every issue of the daily Ontario Intelligencer in "inside page" stories—and in every ad too, for the ads in the Ontario Intelligencer are news! There's news about new clothes for the family, and new food for the table, and new furniture for the home. There's news about new entertainment, and new ways to get to it. There's news about something new on every page, from the latest dispatch on the front page to the new shoes for Anne on the last . . . all written to you and for you, put up in a neat package and delivered at your door-step every day.

"WINGS OF LOVE"

(The Love Story of a Sky Pilot and Girl Who Planned on a Fifty-Fifty Financial System that Almost Wrecked Their Happiness)

By Janet Doran

"I'll get a new dress, new slippers," she decided, at noon, "I can't afford them, and it's reckless and extravagant, but I can't go without a dress. Not on Sky's celebration party. Besides, now that he's got a real run, a real mail berth, we'll have more. It was the break he was waiting for . . . that we didn't even dare hope for for again!"

Suzanne had to pay much more than she had figured for the new dress, because there was nothing else available to anywhere near justify the occasion. She, too, felt a large, worrying spot in her heart, subduing bank book.

There was no time for lunch, and the slippers had to wait until after work, but Suzanne's little mouth set. Sky had his chance, at last. He was on his way up, now. Tonight, they were celebrating!

She had forgotten their "Double" arrangement until Sky raised his hand for a taxi, murmuring a brief, "This is on me!"

In the cab, Suzanne combed out half the taxi fare, and the total cost of the new dress, the new slippers, and the slim, cut-glass bottle of perfume she had slipped on, hovered between Sky and her all the way uptown to the fine and dance place he had elected.

"I forgot," she thought blankly, "I was so crazy happy over Sky's promotion, I completely forgot!"

When they had halved the supper check, the tip, and the taxi fare home again, Suzanne had a sick feeling of dismay in her stomach as she realized she had been paying a stiff, expensive fee for Sky's promotion, without any additional promotion on her own part, to meet the rather staggering expenses.

"Thank heaven, it won't be too often," was her rather guilty thought as they entered her little apartment again, too tired to talk over the gay celebration with an alarm-clock set for the usual eight o'clock trains to catch.

"Well do this again," Sky spoke from the closet, where he was hanging away his evening clothes, and his voice was muffled, and blurred sounding, as it cut across Suzanne's thrifty line of thought, "trouble with most married couples is, they forget what fun they had stepping out occasionally, before the wedding!"

Suzanne was blankly silent, as his words demolished her little plan for recouping the debt made in her savings account. Sky liked going out! He wanted to do this again. Often. He said so. And economy bent before the invincible law of marriage, of love! What did it matter, matter but Sky's happiness?

Sky spent a long time hanging up his things away, in the closet. Composing his mind against the shock of discovering the truth of Speed's words of that morning.

"What are you grousing about anybody, Nichols. You don't want to take her places! Why kick if someone else does?"

It had knocked the anger completely from Sky's mind at first, like cold, icy wall of fear there, instead. Supposing Speed were right! Supposing Suzanne did regret their Dutch Treat arrangement, and long for good times, dances, parties, movies they could not really afford! Wasn't that the reason for misunderstandings turned on? One party trying to sell the other on his theory, his plan, while all the time they were pulling in another direction!

He was the joker in the pack: the one he had been too busy to analyze. He had been so sure that he was ace-high. He had not given that poverty could clip the wings of even the bravest bird.

"Sky," Suzanne's voice was a small, little murmur, as she sleepily tugged off a dress, and, still shocking, "don't you like to stay home with me, now, does it hurt you to stay in and read, or play the radio?"

Speed's goading insinuation that everything was fair in love . . . in the Dutch-treat love, at least, was blowing, red pinpoint of rage, ready to burst into explosive violence, was given the slightest incentive. Sky felt his nerves tighten, like mind bands of cautious warning, as he listened to Suzanne's slow, halting little voice.

"Of course," he agreed, "who doesn't. But we're only young, once, and after all, in the day and age, today is about all we can gamble on. Tomorrows aren't exactly . . . charted for us!"

Suzanne said sharply, painfully, "don't. Don't . . . talk about that! Please . . ." She broke off helplessly, and Sky emerged from the closet, smoothing his thick blonde hair with lean, bronzed fingers that were tense, and taut with weariness.

"I want," he said, grinning briefly, tolerantly down at her, "I meant automobiles and germs and gunmen . . . not flying."

Suzanne brushed easier, finished removing her shoulder-pads, her mind still puzzling over his sudden change of heart. It was a matter of hours ago that he had been firm in his conviction that they could not afford a maid stepping in. They could not afford to because they had to be "Dutch" and it meant asking her to spend her money. Now . . . this!

"We're not any richer than we were last week, Sky," she began again in a puzzled tone, and he sat down beside her and flung an affectionate arm about her soft creamy shoulders, bare except for the lacy lingerie. He eyed her fresh wave, and refrained from rumpling her hair ruthlessly, as had been his wont, up to the moment he learned about waves, and their expense, and the necessity for keeping the fragile luxury as long as possible, without disturbing it.

"But we will be," he promised, smooth. I'm going to take on some thing that will give us extra cash. Extra money. Money to have good times on."

He did not explain. Did not tell her that it meant terrific, dumb, inane men, and dumber women how to fly. People who asked more questions than a seven-year-old. The idea was too new for that. It was so new it was a secret. A few minutes old. He had decided, while they danced, that Sky would propod around for an answer to these financial troubles.

"Nix," he had said before, hundreds of times, "not me. I'll take engines apart, shoot trouble, hunt grief on the ledge at 2,000 feet, but not play around! I'd go crazy. Besides, I couldn't teach a genius to fly!"

"Spare time," he explained to Suzanne, now, carefully, "I'm going to give a few lessons at the field. The old man asked me. He said it would be extra. I'm at the field four days a week, on this end of the run. I'll get in a lot of instruction hours on those days."

His voice was slow, careful, controlled. He was quite sure he was convincing Suzanne.

"But, Sky," Suzanne protested pleasantly, "Sky, you've always said you'd never instruct! You've always said it would drive you crazy!"

"Sure," Sky said briefly, his soft full mouth tightening slightly, "but not having enough money would drive me crazier," and the ghost of Speed's laughing taunt hovered between them like a wraith, chilling the warm intimacy of the scene to drab, cold blankness.

"Oh," Suzanne said wearily, a little defeatedly, "so this . . . this hurt enough, Sky?" His did not answer for a long moment. He was trying to think of something that eluded the slow, emberassed fumbles of his methodical mind.

CHAPTER 5

SUZANNE BORROWS A DRESS

"Look, Suzie," Sky began carefully, tilting his neat black shoes with the pathetically neat soles, surgeon mouthing an appendectomy they can revise a lot of the old pattern. He'd start so far, so fixed, a code and method goes. But fundamentally, some things never change. Even superficially." He was groping for words, slightly flushed of face, as he always was when he make clear this conviction that started bright and strong, within his mind. "When two people love each other," he continued soberly, "misery, they become one in more than fact, say given ritual of church or county can cover. What I mean is, your happiness is mine. The things we did before we were married, and were happy doing, can't lose their measure of happiness for us, simply because we are married."

Suzanne knew what he meant. She knew that Sky meant that they had had glorious fun going places, dancing, picnicking, exploring old haunts, now "Dutch" would not not protest. Could not say, "but Sky, I don't want to do those things now . . . I'd rather save so we can buy a home of our own!"

The words weren't uttered forever, behind a wall of irrefutable logic. She had gone along with Speed, and regardless the logic, the misunderstanding motivating her error, Sky would never ignore the fact that she had gone. It was, perhaps, Sky's own words, Dutch quality that she was slowly beginning to loathe was inherent, and unchangeable.

"Well," she temporized, slamming the mental door on the ruin of what though keeping alive in her mind, "I'll try to be glad for you, Sky, ahead, too, Sky. And $2.00 a week, multiplied by two, means $200.00 a year, and in ten years . . ."

"Quit toting your business-girl head home at home, Mrs. Nichols. I'm too weary to think beyond tomorrow." And the day after, maybe," Sky flashed her a sly grin, finished pulling his clothes away neatly, in his drawer and closet, and vanished into the bathroom to brush his teeth. And for the period of several moments, Suzanne felt much, much older than her 22 years. She felt as if an alien intruder had attached itself; barnacle fashion, to her frail bark of happiness, and that the slightest misjudgment would unbalance the craft, and hurl it over dire rapids, into a whirlpool. And because she was young in years and experience, and high in hope, she did not better her decision against invisible foes. Instead, she groped eagerly, vigorously, for alternative means.

"If we're to make more money, that's all," she told herself sleepily, "something deep down within me will settle and down comfortter, in a luxury of relaxation, "if Sky is happy doing what he's doing, I've got to make more money, so I can keep up. I mustn't fail him. Somehow I try to remodel him. That's the mistake most wives make."

She did not dream that she had grasped the very solution Sky had decided on. After that baffling enraging interview with Speed, earlier, she had dreamed that many of their problems, arising from this economic decision, would be parallel. A new freedom, a new relaxation brought a fresh, carefree happiness that would overflow, when her new day dawned. Sky could not turn the emotional uplift into words, and Suzanne only knew that all at once their world was young and gay again. That happiness was to be theirs for the finding.

Sky concocted his own special scrambled eggs - with - cheese - gratings, and Suzanne did not mind that he had, as usual, put much too much red pepper in the dish. And Suzanne boiled milk, to make Sky's special German coffee. Sky was not punning when he declared this an new kind of a Dutch Treat, and they left for their day's work, feeling gay and happy.

It was not so easy, however, to effect the increased income, as it had been to plan it. Whichever Suzanne tried to actually widen the engine gaps, shoot trouble, hunt grief on the ledge at 2,000 feet, but not play around! I'd go crazy. Besides, I couldn't teach a genius to fly!"

"Spare time," he explained to Suzanne, now, carefully, "I'm going to give a few lessons at the field. The old man asked me. He said it would be extra. I'm at the field four days a week, on this end of the run. I'll get in a lot of instruction hours on those days."

DUKE OF WINDSOR MAY LEAVE CASTLE

Probably be Guest at a Castle Near Budapest

Enzsfeld, Austria, Jan. 14 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor, it was disclosed today, may leave Austria's Enzsfeld, his retreat since ex-Sovereign Edward VIII abdicated the throne, to be the guest of Hungarian friends near Budapest.

Friends of the former King said it was understood he would be a guest at a castle near Budapest at least for a short time, and then would return here.

Vienna newspapers reported the Duke is devoting his evening hours to practising Austrian waltzes on an accordion he received for a Christmas present.

DEAN OF COMMONS WILL NOT ATTEND

Ottawa, Jan. 14 (CP)—For the first time since he was elected to the House of Commons in 1900, Dean Charles Marcil will not attend the opening of parliament today. Seriously ill for the past month the Dean of the House of Commons was slightly improved today.

TWO MEXICAN AIRLINERS ARE REPORTED FOUND

Mexico City, Jan. 14 (AP)—Two missing Mexican airliners were reported found in mountainous country.

Municipal authorities of San Cristobal Las Casas said one plane, piloted by Roberto Alvarez, with two physicians as passengers, had been found with its three occupants dead.

Reports of the other plane, however, with a crew of three and six passengers aboard, were not confirmed. The plane is believed to have been forced down Monday near Tehuantlan, Oaxaca, on a flight from Mexico City. Hope was virtually abandoned, however, that the occupants could be found alive.

Fairbanks, Alaska, Jan. 14 (CP)—It was "Merry Christmas" today in this city—three weeks late. The postoffice received 400 sacks of holiday mail delayed by the United States seamen's and longshoremen's strike. Long queues formed in front of distribution windows while clerks hurriedly sorted 25,000 pieces of mail.

Premier King Adopting Attitude Taken by Other Dominions

WOODSWORTH CRITICAL

Legislative Proposals In Throne Speech Many And Varied

Ottawa, Jan. 15 (CP)—Members of the House of Commons today will consider a message of loyalty to King George VI and any criticism that may be forthcoming regarding the governments handling of the constitutional crisis will be postponed.

On Monday the House will take up the speech from the throne read at the opening of parliament yesterday and presenting a brief, compact program of important legislation.

The gunfire and rattle of sabres which accompanied yesterday's ceremonial opening had scarcely died away before the abdication of Edward VIII and the accession of King George became subjects of bitter debate in the grave chamber.

James S. Woodsworth, gritted veteran Labor member for Winnipeg North Centre, and leader of the C.C.F., took quick exception to Premier Mackenzie Kings proposal to adopt as a message of loyalty to His Majesty a resolution of parliament approving of the accession changes.

Truck Driver Not Responsible For Boy's Death

—William Thompson, Trenton, was absolved of all blame in connection with the death of William LaBelle, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. William LaBelle, Dundas Street, Trenton, who died of injuries, when run over by a truck in a driveway back of his home on January 5th Coroner Dr. W. J. Ponton presided at the inquest held last evening, while R. G. Donnan interrogated the several witnesses.

William Thompson, driver of the truck, owned by Frank Travis, contractor, of Trenton, testified, that his wife was behind the wheel of the truck at the time of the accident but that he was driving the truck with his right hand and shifting all the gears. He stated to the jury that he came out from a store and found his wife, who had been in the truck and wished a ride home sitting behind the wheel. "As there was only a short distance to go up the driveway to the garage, my wife stayed behind the wheel and I drove the truck and looked after all the gears", said the witness.

Robert Hall, playmate of LaBelle at the time of the accident stated that he saw the truck run over the boy and his companion, who fell underneath the back wheel and was run over. He could not truly say think the driver was to blame for the accident.

Gas Masks for Babies Perfected in Britain

LONDON, Jan. 15—Great Britain announced perfection of a gas mask which can be used even by babies—latest product of the completeness with which the Government is tackling the problem of home defense.

Hope expressed for navy and air armament to put Britain in a powerful position to combat con- tinuing world unrest by 1939. But before the problems of protection against air raids and starvation at home are solved by immediate solution.

Geoffrey A. Under-Secretary in the Home Office, who disclosed recently that 9,000,000 gas masks would be distributed free throughout Britain in 1937, announced the baby mask invention.

The new protector, he said, is suitable for use by the smallest infant in the event of hostile air raids.

During the Great War there were comparatively few air-raid casualties, but development of airplanes and long-range bombers, officials emphasized today, now would permit destructive raids on London—centre of finance and Government —as well as on ships transporting food supplies.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Columbus, O., Jan. 15 (CP)—An automobile salesman wrote the State Industrial Commission that he was injured "north of the city while demonstrating a new car."

He asked compensation and his employer certified the claim.

However, Robert Nott, State Supervisor of Information, recommended the claim be rejected and the Commission agreed with him.

"The accident occurred north of a city," Nott reported, after an investigation, "but it was north of Toronto, Canada, while the salesman and his boss were on a fishing trip."

BRITISH SUPPORT OF ANTI-RED BLOC IS FASCIST HOPE

Opinion in Rome is That This Would be Price of Neutrality

FRANCE INVITED?

Formation of Bloc Said to be Object of Italian Visit of Goering

Rome, Jan. 15 (AP)—British adherence to a European anti-Communist bloc was reported today in informed Fascist party circles as the Italian prize for strict non-intervention in the Spanish civil war.

Should Great Britain decline the invitation which Premier Mussolini and German Air Minister Hermann Goering are reported drafting, Fascists said the negotiation for Germany and Italy to support the Spanish insurgents openly would be resumed.

If British joins Italy and Germany in the agreement, Communism, however, these sources said, there would be no further obstacles to strict non-intervention in Spain.

In the meantime, it was reported no answer to the last British demand for a ban on foreign volunteers to Spanish armies could be expected until Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler's first visitors have fully determined the joint Italo-German procedure.

Another invitation, it was said, would be extended to France. While the French attitude has not been considered doubtful, last autumn's Franco-Soviet pact with Communist pressed would be an important phase of the agreement.

Fascist circles here was thought to be the main purpose of Goering's visit to Italy.

'Mary of Scotland' Banned in Japan

Tokyo, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Authorities today announced a ban had been placed upon two moving pictures, "Mary of Scotland" and "Mutiny on the Bounty".

They said the first picture was banned out of consideration for the Japanese throne while the second was forbidden on the ground it was too revolutionary for Japan.

14th Annual Luncheon One of the Best Ever Held

ALL EXPRESS VIEWS

Council Expects One of The Busiest Years In History

Members of Belleville City Council, about to enter into their first serious duties of civic management for the year, met last night to discuss task with the promise of full co-operation and support during the coming year, at the annual meeting afternoon by members of the local Chamber of Commerce at the twenty-fourth annual luncheon of the organization at which newly elected council were guests. The forty-two members present at the official records as one of the most successful yet held in point of interest, attendance and the free exchange of ideas between members composing both civic bodies.

As President of the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. E. P. Bernard extended his official greeting and welcome to Mayor and councillors following the excellent luncheon served.

"As my last official act of the year I will be called upon to perform this opportunity of welcoming you members of council, will also be one of my happiest," declared President Bernstein. "We of the Chamber of Commerce extend to you our heartiest congratulations upon your election to office, for at this time, we can only repeat and emphasize the wish and hope, that has so often been expressed in the past to previous councils, the wish, that we may be able to co-operate and assist you in every manner possible during the coming year. We are glad to be behind you and will do all in our power to further interests of the city you represent."

Mayor Richard D. Arnott in the briefest of replies expressed his thanks for the invitation extended to the Board of Trade assembled, for the promise of support and co-operation promised for the coming year. "During that year we hope to merit the confidence the people have reposed in us."

Pointing to the number of by-laws that had been voted upon by the electors of the city, Mayor Arnott declared the duty of himself and councillors was to put those by-laws into effect, thus avoiding possible opportunity. These include city managerially, public utilities commission reduction in council and reduction in school board.

Major Green denied guilt, shaking his head and saying over and over, "Not me."

Kidnap Suspect Declines To Tell His Movements Since Week of Dec. 27th

Lee Fowler Remains Secretive After Hours of Questioning

MAN DISAPPEARS

Leaves Cootage Last Wednesday—Blue Clay Found Nearby

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 15 (AP)—Fred Orrin Haynes, ex-convict Folsom, Calif., prison, tonight refused questioning in the Charles Mattson kidnap-killing case surrendered here today and was questioned in the office of Assistant Marshall Scrafford's office.

The detective said Haynes came into the city police station early today, while state police were seeking a man and a woman who disappeared from a four-room furnished cottage five miles north of Seattle Wednesday—two days after the body of the 10-year-old boy was discovered near Everett, Wash.

Suspect Held.

Another man, Lee Haskell Fowler, 35, was held in the county jail at Bellingham, Wash. The jail was blockaded while federal officers interrogated him.

Five miles north of Seattle, Chief William Cole of the state police investigated the four-room cottage "spotlessly clean", and said neighbors reported a man resembling ex-convict Fred Haynes of California occupied it until Wednesday.

The blue clay pit is along a creek nearby but Cole said the "whole country there is of blue clay formation."

An official source asserted the Bellingham prisoner, Fowler, declined to account during several hours of questioning, for his whereabouts since Dec. 27, the night 10-year-old Charles was seized for the $28,000 ransom his physician father tried in vain to pay.

The same source said suspicion was aroused by Fowler's sudden action in pleading guilty Tuesday to robbing a mailing company Dec. 11, to be under 20-year-sentence.

At San Jose, Calif., former Sheriff Edward Clark Cooper W. Lyle a photograph convinced that Haynes was the man to whom she rented the cottage near Seattle two months ago. Lyle, who was here seven months ago to California for receiving stolen goods, is wanted for questioning by the Mattson investigators.

At Everett, the killer's trail grew warmer as detectives sought yet further the bloody piece of the kidnap mystery.

Lack of blood-stained clothing found inside a deserted shack, both a boy's and a man's.

STRIKE PARTIES TO OPEN PARLEY

Labor Dispute To be Discussed in Detroit Monday

Detroit, Jan. 15 (AP)—General Motors Corporation and the United Automobile Workers of America agreed today to open negotiations for a settlement of their labor dispute in Detroit, Monday morning.

Representatives of each revealed their agreement in statements by Governor Frank Murphy, of Michigan, who made them public. Strikes called by the Union have left more than 114,000 General Motors workers idle and led to rioting at Flint, Mich., in which 27 persons were injured.

"The evacuation of all-down strikers will be effectuated as soon as practicable and before Monday morning," the Union said. General Motors has stipulated every car struck Monday began more than a week ago to arrange a peace parley that such a move must precede the opening of conferences for collective bargaining.

Belleville's Appropriation For Relief $63,300—Croll

1937 Relief Policy Announced by Welfare Minister

NO FURTHER GRANTS

Toronto, Jan.-15 (CP)—Maximum relief grants to Ontario Municipalities for 1937 were announced today by Hon. David Croll, Ontario Minister of Welfare, and Municipal Affairs. Basis of assistance will be 75 per cent of all relief granted in accordance with Provincial regulations and within the maximum fixed by the Public Welfare Department.

In the face of Dominion cuts Ontario will maintain, for the present at least, its rate of relief contribution to the municipalities," said Mr. Croll in defining the 1937 relief policy. "At the same time municipal authorities will be further curbed by reduction in the larger centres' maximum relief, thereby limiting to which the government will contribute at the full rate.

In a letter forwarded to the municipalities today, Mr. Croll says: "We reserve the right to adjust our rates of assistance in conformity with reductions in the Federal grant-in-aid. Due consideration should be given to this possibility by all municipalities."

The schedule of maximum grants announced today does not include supervised municipalities. Policy for these municipalities will be fixed later.

Italy Accepts 14-Inch Gun

London, Jan. 15 (CP)—Italy today accepted the 14-inch gun for her battleships.

With the exception of Japan, all the principal naval powers have now accepted the limitation of the 14-inch gun. Negotiations are under way with Japan to secure her acceptance.

Adoption of the 14-inch gun by all naval powers would mean a halt had been called in the threatened upward race in both gun and the size of ships. Italy's decision consequently is received in London with the greatest satisfaction.

The London Naval Treaty signed by the British Commonwealth, United States and France early in 1935 sought to impose a limit on the size of guns.

HEPBURN ORDERED TO TAKE VACATION

Toronto, Jan. 15.—(CP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn may be unable to attend the opening of the Ontario Legislature Tuesday next, it was learned today, after physicians have advised the premier to take a complete rest.

Confined to his hotel suite for a week with an attack of bronchitis, Premier Hepburn was told by his physician, Dr. Wynn, acting premier and other ministers to the hotel for conferences today.

Whether the Premier being absent, will preside at Cabinet Council this afternoon, Cabinet will discuss the legislative program for the session.

DISCUSS INFORMALLY TREATY WITH CANADA

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt and the United States minister was discussing informally with Canada prospects of holding a formal conference on a new St. Lawrence waterway treaty, it was said today, but indications that the matter had not proceeded beyond that stage. It was said therefore a new treaty would be submitted to the Senate this session.

The Senate rejected the original treaty years ago.

City and District News

DEAD OWL FOUND AT NORTH STATION

The long body of a yearling owl whose roistering throughout a night had evidently exhausted will help the city was picked up on the north platform just beyond the end of the Canadian National Railway this morning.

It was believed that the large bird had become confused by the lights of oncoming day and had plunged heavily into the side of the station, breaking its neck.

No Damage To Crops Unless Weather Turns Extremely Cold

Fears that this extra moisture now present on the land in the district as a result of the week's earlier and heavier thaws would be destroyed by next spring's crops were allayed today by Mr. Wm. Michael, Brampton district seed inspector of the local office.

RECORD NUMBER TOURNEY SOUTH

Many residents of this city and district have travelled to southern climes for winter holidays this year than ever before in the opinion of officials of the local Chamber of Commerce, busy for weeks past giving out folders describing various vacation spots and answering typical questions addressed by questing wanderers.

Florida this year ranks highest in popularity among local residents with California also a favorite State although several have extended their tour to take in more remote southern points.

FISHERMAN FALLS THROUGH THE ICE

AMERICANS BUY HORSES HERE

Further proof of the scarcity of horses in this country and the United States was furnished Gowsell's report that several American buyers have been making the rounds through this district purchasing suitable type animals for export south of the border. Several shipments have already been made.

It is pointed out that local purchases in the United States was responsible for the loss of thousands of horses from the city stock, and replacements are now being made.

The U.S. Customs duty on horses is $30 per head if the animal is not valued at over $150.

FEWER INMATES IN COUNTY JAIL

"It's a very low average for this time of the year," commented Governor O. H. Prentice, referring to the twenty four male and one female inmates whose sex at present housed in the County Jail. Other years have seen the male inhabitant number of guests of the city, he said, especially at the beginning of the new year. Further this time the weather is proving to be a prime factor in the Governor's smiled. "Outdoors, these days is certainly much more attractive than the cold walls of a jail cell."

COUNTY PRISONERS MAKE FRIENDS WITH FLOCK OF PIGEONS

There is at least one happy family of generous prisoners in the city who are not troubled with the depression, scarcity of food or comfortable sleeping quarters. Handdown or so of beautiful fan-tail pigeons which their domicile in the vicinity of the County Buildings are these days cooing their pleasure at life in a prison. They are well-fed, plump and are clothed in a heavy plumage.

And the prisoners at the County Jail are proud of their little feathered friends. They feed them at every opportunity and some of the birds have become so tame that they will flutter to the outstretched hands of the jail inmates and get their meals "first-hand."The warmer weather when windows of the cells are again open, they have been known to squeeze their way through the bars on the outside of the windows, get their meal and depart via the same route.

ON INSPECTION TOUR

Mr. E. Sexton of the Dominion Employment Service, who visits this city for the past few days looking after matters pertaining to that department and also making several inspections in matters concerning the Interprovincial Bridge Board, Mr. Sexton and Mr. Ross, of the local employment office, motored yesterday to Madoc and the surrounding district on a tour of inspection tour of the various highway projects.

SHELTER OFFICIALS EXPRESS APPRECIATION

Owing to a slight misunderstanding in the translation of instructions regarding the children who were unable to the Children's Shelter at Christmas, it was reported that there were seven in the institution at the time. Officials report there were only four inmates and these were all of a very young age.

However, the splendid response on the part of the Belleville public to the distribution of candies, etc. is greatly appreciated by those in charge of the shelter and those donations of candies, etc. make the little brighter for the ten children who were unable to be remembered after by the Shelter. Any further donations will also be greatly appreciated by the officials.

EGG PRODUCTION UP IN THIS DISTRICT

Feed grain is becoming scarcer in this and other sections of Ontario, according to the latest bulletin of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The number of hogs and young pigs is also reported by the bulletin to be increasing, owing mainly due to the mild weather in this district and Prince Edward.

FOUR RESIDENTS FAIL TO PRODUCE LICENSES

Pulling up process their 1936 radio receiving licences resulted in four local citizens being arraigned in today's police court, when they appeared before Magistrate R. J. Butler K.C., charged with operating radios without licence when requested. All pleaded guilty to the charges and were fined one dollar and costs, totalling $2.75 in all. The charges were laid by P. J. Gowsell, district radio inspector from the Department of Marine of the Federal Government after a check-up in this city recently. Other than any other radio operators, who have served defaulted licence and I have been instructed by the Department to follow up in this matter", stated Inspector Gowsell yesterday morning. All of those to appear in today's court stated they had procured their 1936 licence after having been summoned into court, however.

ANNUAL DINNER POSTPONED TILL JUNE

At the Board of Directors meeting of the Belleville Curling Club held following the annual luncheon in members of the city council yesterday afternoon it was decided that the annual get-together of the Chamber and the Hastings County Council usually held in the latter month of January, be postponed until some time in June owing to the difficulty in securing a speaker a suitable speaker.

Following a request by President Reg Mercerlaf of the civic Bathing Beach Committee for the appointment of two members of the Chamber on this body, W. S. Deacon and Fred Thompson were named for these positions.

TWEED-BELLEVILLE GAME CALLED OFF

Shortly after two o'clock today Manager Melville Thomas visited the Belleville Arena and after viewing conditions at the ice informed the Tweed Hockey Club, that tonight's junior O.H.A. game would have to be postponed owing to the thick of ice. The game will be played at a later date. With the probabilities predicting colder weather in the offing, the Arena officials will endeavour to rebuild their surface for next Tuesday's Petrboro at Belleville tournaments game.

SMOKE FILLS HOUSE AS STOVEPIPES PART

The sudden parting of stovepipes in a house on Charles Street resulted in an alarm being sent in to the city Fire Department shortly after seven o'clock last night. Clouds of smoke filled the house but no blaze was discovered by the firemen. Adjustment of the pipes removed the fire hazard, with little damage resulting from the smoke, Smoke Ills.

SNOWFLURRY STARTS JUST BEFORE NOON

Flying snow flakes swirled over the city and district today, commencing during the forenoon as a change from the drizzling rains that have been received almost daily for the past several days. The snow followed a welcome drop in temperatures ushering the district perhaps an expected cold wave reported the from the north.

SLEEPING GIRL STEALS THE SHOW

The crowd milled around the window of the store where a hypnotic subject was lying asleep. Old ladies and young girls, men and boys pushed and jostled their way in an effort to secure a place of vantage They crowded about the window in ever increasing numbers.

Then it happened. Across the street a gaily-trimmed car parked. An automobile travelling in a northerly direction attempted to turn in along side the truck, turned too sharply and the crash of breaking glass rang out. At the end of each of the dashboards of the truck smashed through a rear window of the car. Paint was scraped off the door of the car.

But across the street not a head turned. No one screamed, no one fell over, and see what happened. Not one of that multitude moved. Even that a minor accident had happened. They were too interested in the novelty of the moment.

STREET CAR, BUS COLLIDE IN RAIN

St. Catharines Nurse is Killed in Vehicles Driven by Brothers

St. Catharines, Ont., Jan. 14 (CP) —A street car and a bus, driven by brothers, collided in the rain at a street intersection here last night, striking Miss Jean Potter, 30, and injuring ten other persons, one seriously.

The street car, with motorman Alec Newell at the controls, crashed into the side of the bus en route from Niagara Falls to Hamilton and Toronto, which had rounded the bus' front wheels. The impact tore the steel side from the bus and threw it to the left and in front of the street car to emerge from the windows.

Miss Potter, a nurse at St. Catharines General Hospital, died of a fractured skull. Mrs. Bruce Lechner, companion of Miss Potter also a nurse, was taken to hospital seriously injured about the head. Both had boarded the bus at the hospital a few blocks away from the scene of the crash.

Others injured were Mrs. Margaret Kay, St. Catharines; Ross Hornsberger, St. Catharines; Miss Mary Ponsey, Caledonia; Mrs. Emily Smith, Hamilton; Mrs. Linda Hayes, St. Catharines; John Scott, Hamilton, Hedley Marriot, St. Catharines, Norman Newell, and Alec Newell.

Ice-Cutting Operations Halted on Thursday

Gulls silently patrolled the bay this morning in which wide-open patches of water were greeted by the gulls, following the initial break-up of the ice earlier this week. Open water now stretches from the Bay Bridge to a point beyond the Government Dock, while in other sections of the bay small patches of ice are traversed by wide cracks.

Ice-cutting being carried on by local concerns during the past few days east of the Government dock, was discontinued yesterday owing to the danger both to men and equipment as the thin block became more porous and soft under the action of warmer weather. Free access to the Government dock for the Moira River now runs at half-foot depth of water, through the fact that at the mouth of the river, there is open water across from the park open water creek.

At present only two tiny fishing shanties are observed on the ice, considerably short of the usual number.

DIAMONDS IN DEMAND

New York, Jan. 15.—(CP) Diamonds, always the most popular of gems, are heralding a new wave of prosperity for 1937.

New York jewelers, calling their business "distinctly one of luxury in the upper brackets", said to-day there was a marked upswing in the demand for fine gems, with diamonds leading the way. One mentioned sales of 30,000 pieces in recent weeks.

NAMES and LETTERS

Any letter written for publication and received at this office will not be published unless the writer sends six of her names with the letter. If the writer desires, the name will not be published but may use a pseudonym at the discretion of the editor. The letter may be published.

Each Ontario Intelligencer must know the names of letter writers as evidence of good faith.

Sometimes unsigned letter has just been received at this office and will not appear in print until the name of the person who composed it is known to the newspaper. Insistence upon this small formality is considered essential.

Obituary

MISS LURENE SMITH

The death of Miss Lurene Smith, teacher at Queen Alexandra School, Ann Street, this city, which occurred at the Belleville General Hospital early this Friday morning, in her 24th. year, has brought deep feelings of sorrow and regret to many of her friends and acquaintances in Belleville. On Saturday last she underwent an operation for appendicitis, and was making satisfactory recovery when complications developed and well lined her death.

Miss Smith had been a resident of this city and district for nearly six years, having arrived here in 1931. She was the teacher at the Avondale Public School, Rednersville for the past year and a half she had been on the staff of Queen Alexandra School in this city. She was an efficient and popular teacher and well liked by her pupils and by her fellow teachers. She was a former member of Bridge Street United Church and was active in the Young People's Union in connection with the church.

The late Miss Lurene Smith was born twenty-nine years ago in Northumberland County, Ontario, and was the daughter of the late Robert F. Smith and Mrs. Smith of Springfield, Ont., and Mr. Godfrey Smith of Tillsonburg, Ont.

The funeral will take place on Monday at 11.30 o'clock the Rev. Dr. James Semple, pastor of Bridge Street United Church, conducted services in the chapel at the Belleville Burial Ground, Front Road, Campbell Street, at which a large number of the relatives and friends were present.

Later the body was forwarded to Woodstock. The funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon. Interment to be made in Dereham Township cemetery.

TOLMIE IS EMBARRASSED

Ottawa, January 15.—(CP)—"I could have died with embarrassment," declared Conservative New Credit representative Member for Victoria, said as he explained how he "got mixed up" with the present seat of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Opposition Leader, after he had been introduced to the House of Commons yesterday.

The trouble was I didn't notice whose seat it was. It wasn't until the laughter and shouting was over that I realized what all the laughter and shouting was about."

Then Dr. Tolmie's eyes twinkled as he looked down over his rather substantial frame, "But I guess I filled the seat all right."

STORE ROBBERS FOUND GUILTY

Cornwall Fair Sentenced to Reformatory by Magistrate Butler

Clarence Gallinger, 37 year old former Cornwall hockey goalkeeper, pleaded guilty to the theft of a leather coat and one pair of leather leggings, when he appeared before Magistrate R. J. Butler, K.C., this morning. Prior to the meeting out of the sentence, R. C. Donnan, K.C., for Gallinger's list of previous convictions, which prompted His Worship to sentence Gallinger to not more than two years less one day and not less than six months determinate in the Ontario Reformatory.

George Vincent, 21 year old companion or Gallinger at the time of the robbery, was convicted of their participation in the store robberies in the same institution. Vincent pleaded not guilty to the charge of stealing the coat and leggings from in front of Goodfellow's store on Jan. 9th last.

Vincent these men and took the leather leggings away from Vincent on Pinnacle St." stated Sam Goodfellow, manager of the store from which the goods were stolen. At this point Magistrate Butler ordered the proceedings and endeavored to assume full responsibility of the robbery.

"I stole both the coat and the leggings. We were drunk, but Vincent had no hand in the theft. He was about ten feet in front of me. Later I gave him the leggings though," stated Gallinger, who admitted being with Vincent before and after the time of robbery.

"I find you guilty. Three months in the Reformatory," stated His Worship to Gallinger. Laurie Lewis, chairman of Welfare, and himself.

"Unless we can get the proper care and co-operation, our job is going to be a very hard one this year," pointed out the chairman of Labor.

"We are asking the municipalities for the unemployed home owner of Belleville who has found it pretty tough going for the past few years to make ends meet," stated Mr. Lewis, "We have a list made up of this class of citizens, and we will take these men from this list. It will be held at the Unemployment Relief payment office, while a duplicate copy will also be held at the city relief office. If citizens who have any kind of work, or know of any one for small odd job, will call this Unemployment Office, we'll see that the right man gets the work.

Car Exports Total Half Million Weekly

Toronto, Jan. 15.—(CP)—Value of Canadian-built automobiles exported during nearly $600,000 a week in 1936, J. L. Stewart, General Manager of the Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce reported today. Value for the year was $32,500,000.

The average workers employed was 15,481 per month, total paid in wages and salaries for year was $23,111,892.70, based

Public Reception Tonight For New Year Baby

Babe And Mother Will Be Tendered Reception at Belle Theatre—Followed by Christening Ceremony—Culmination of Week of Interesting Happenings in Baby's Behalf.

As a fitting conclusion of what might be termed Belleville Baby Week or a week of making obeisance to His Majesty the New Year Baby and preparing an endowment for his youthful days, a public reception will be tendered shortly after the bells ring in the New Year, Manager George Rathbun has arranged a public reception for the Baby this evening at the Belle Theatre at 11.30. The doors will open at eleven o'clock and the Midnight Entertainment in which Kirma, the Mystic, is featured in a demonstration astonishing to spiritualists and mediums, and preceding this at 11.30 New Year Baby and his mother will appear on the stage and through Kirma acknowledge with thanks the kindness of the citizens in providing a nest for the babe. At the same hour an important ceremony will take place in the christening of the baby, which will appear clad in the pretty garments furnished by the citizens through The Ontario Intelligencer.

The New Year baby has two little sisters and one little brother, one girl of 4-1-2 years, one of three years and a baby brother aged two years eight months. The name for New Year Baby will be glad to share his popularity with his little brother and sisters and appreciate any clothing or toys or other articles donated for them, which can be brought to the theatre this evening. Eight as well go the entire distance and make this a memorable collorary of the kindliness of Belleville citizens. Clothing for the ——— and mother would also be a ——— and any one who wishes to increase the baby's endowment by a cash subscription can do so at the Belle Theatre on the theatre or The Ontario Intelligencer office.

Incidentally the Belle Theatre will contribute $15 to the Baby Fund in honor of the occasion.

You are invited to attend the Public Reception to be tendered the New Year Baby and his mother at 11.30 this evening at the Belle Theatre. Kirma will act as Master of Ceremonies and introduce the New Year Baby, after which the babe will be christened.

Aldermen Appeal To Citizens to Find Work for Unemployed

The co-operation of manufacturing firms, business houses, and citizens in general in finding jobs for the city's unemployed was asked this morning by Alderman W. J. Baldrey, chairman of Relief, Alderman Laurie Lewis, chairman of Welfare, and himself.

"Unless we get the proper help and co-operation, our job is going to be a very hard one this year," pointed out the chairman of Labor.

"We are asking the municipalities for the unemployed home owner of Belleville who has found it pretty tough going for the past few years to make ends meet," stated Mr. Lewis, "We have a list made up of this class of citizens, and we will take these men from this list. It will be held at the city Unemployment Relief payment office, while a duplicate copy will also be held at the city relief office. If citizens who have any kind of work, or know of any one for small odd job, will call this Unemployment Office, we'll see that the right man gets the work.

WILL RETIREMENT CANADA

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Canada's representative on the commission responsible, for the forthcoming Empire Exhibition to be held in Glasgow next year, will be Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Canadian High Commissioner, and C. P. Fowler, Canada's Minister of Trade and Commerce, it was announced today.

The Canadian Kingdom will be represented by those persons who are members of the Coronation Committee of the Privy Council.

KIDNAP SUSPECT

Pleaded Guilty to Robbery.

A heavy knife—perhaps the one with which the boy was stabbed in the back before he was bludgeoned to death.

A short-stained automobile, stolen and abandoned—believed to be the one in which the boy was taken to and from a point near Everett and left to freeze in the snow.

And Miss Mary Bell who picked up near the spot where a young hunter stumbled on the victim's body.

Among the missing pieces of the puzzle were the $1000 ransom note the boy's mother is said to have stolen from an Arlington, Wash., resident.

Information that Hitts Charles Kidnap suspect, abductor, was taken to his family, was denied by the family and by the family Post-Intelligencer. It quoted a spokesman for the family.

At Portland, Seattle's mayor, John F. Dore asserted in an interview "we could have caught that guy who stole the kidnap-boy if it hadn't been for the C-men but the guy arrested says hands off until the matter is reported."

(Dr. W. W. Mattson, the boy's lawyer, had previously said all police activities at the time, fearing the kidnaper might become terrorized and kill the child.)

New Year Baby Thanks Many Kind Friends For Nice Nest-Egg

First-born Baby of The New Year Has Received a Cordial Welcome and Been Outfitted With Clothing by Well-wishers, Together With a Nice Cash Nest-egg— Great Interest Manifested in Baby and Kirma Questions And Answers.

All things come to an end—but the 1937 Baby does on, not forever—but it is hoped for many years of usefulness as a good citizen of Canada.

Kirma, the Mystic's engagement in Belleville, also comes to a close on Saturday, and with it a week of novelty, and exceptional interest, evidenced in various ways. Kirma has gripped the interest of hundreds of citizens, particularly the women, and he has been besieged with questions on every conceivable subject. Great interest has been shown in the effort by the newspaper to create a nest-egg for the New Year Baby and the gifts also given by Kirma, which took an interest in the New Year Baby and voluntarily offered to answer the questions sent to this newspaper. Free, if accompanied by a donation of clothing or cash of ten cents or over for the Baby.

Hundreds of letters with questions were received and are still coming in, accompanied with cash or clothing donations. Most of the cash donations were for the nest-egg fund, some quarters and one of sizeable dimensions, while a few Pictons was accompanied by one dollar.

No more questions can be answered after today, except those already received, as the rush of letters has been such that it will take Kirma all the light and all his spare time tomorrow to answer those received. He has promised to do his best, however, to answer all questions, and the answers will be printed in this paper Saturday.

Now that the baby has been presented—for a week, at least, the good work might be carried—a bit further, by a formal visit to the father, a good mechanic, stroke and lacrosse player. Regular pay checks bring health and happiness to families.

Those who wish to contribute to the New Year Baby Fund, without questions, can do so, for there is ample opportunity and need. The rains and sickness of New Year Baby's parents can be obviated at this office by those wishing to be one of the sponsors of the Babe by helping in some tangible way to make easier the pathway of this little newcomer to Belleville.

The Ontario Intelligencer wishes to extend thanks to Kirma for his kindly and all-important assistance, also Mr. George Forbes, Manager of the Bella Theatre, to readers of this newspaper for their kindly interest and assistance, and to all who have given or will give a helping hand to the New Year Baby, discovered by an Ontario Intelligencer reporter, and introduced to the world by this newspaper. May the child live many years to be a comfort and help to his parents and a fine Canadian of which Belleville can well be proud.

Clothing Donations up to Friday noon were as follows:

Kirma Answers

P.T.—Yes, I see success for the Picton Centennial to be held July 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 1937. We might add that properly gone after, it will far surpass present expectations.

Just a Roamer—Your present state of health will not permit child-birth successfully. See your physician as I see that this condition can be corrected easily.

R.W.—The crystal shows an increase in your wages during the month of April. There will be permanent employment in your present location.

L.R.—Your husband's mother has been ill. However, her illness was nothing serious, in fact you will hear from her within a few weeks.

E.A.R.S.—There will be another marriage for you in five years but not to the party you now have in mind.

B.E.Y.—Yes, in November. It will be he.

W.H.—He is afraid to write because of the circumstances you suspect. He will return within the fall of this year. He is well.

R.100.—No. You will not be successful in this trade. You will in fact make a change to an entirely different occupation within this year. For the better.

W.P.M.—This trouble is due to your nervous system. I suggest some good nerve specialist.

L.W.F.—The change in question will be made for the better.

R.B.—Your son will resume his former position with the same company.

J.B.S.—Devote your efforts to dancing.

F.W.G.—You will not be afforded the opportunity of selling the property before the spring of the coming year.

R.S.P.—The plant will prove a success. There will be many changes to overcome however.

H.M.G.—I see a materialization of your plans.

E.K.—The change was all right but the matter regarding the other man will never terminate. H.B.—It was not the right one. Forget it.

D.C.—Your husband will make the trip abroad successfully.

V.V.—Your father's general condition will be improved, but he will never walk without assistance.

A.L.—Place no confidence in this man. He has even given you an assumed name.

E.M.L.—Eventually you will be compelled to undergo the operation.

P.E.M.S.—Your sister's condition will be greatly improved through treatment of the nature mentioned in your question.

B 1 6 4—You will not be disappointed in the matter of the promotion. In fact I see it in the near future.

Babe—You will leave your present position and marry Jack within six months.

B.S.B.—Keep your property. I see an increase in value within the next three years.

T9—You will have no trouble with your confinement.

E.M.S.—An investment of the nature will prove advisable providing you make it within this year.

A.M.M.—Make the change to another city. Conditions will be much better for you in your line of business there.

X2—It will be a number of years before you are enabled to make the trip to see your parents. You will see them alive.

Red—There is no marriage for you for at least two years.

TX3—You will receive the position in question. However, it does not come to me in the near future.

F.M.—You will take a position on a vessel.

C.L.—It would be necessary for your sister-in-law to write that question personally.

C.S.—He will not obtain a steady position in the near future.

G.V.B.—Your husband will obtain a position here. There is no move away.

H.J.F.—Your husband will never give up liquor. He will use it more moderately eventually.

43A—You will be re-instated in the government position.

M.E. 86—This will never fully repay you.

Q.Y.Z.—Her husband will never return. She should forget him and be happy to do so.

B.J. 2—Your husband will get the position in August.

V.G.C.—I see success for you in music. Don't give up.

M.R. 2—I see a marriage for you within 18 months. I feel that you know him.

EDM—Your husband's health will be improved.

M.R.R. 6—Financial conditions will be greatly improved within this year. Have confidence and you will not be disappointed.

Y.Y.—There will be a "blessed event" in this year.

No. 2—It will be better. Understand?

R. 100—I cannot promise much so far as her husband is concerned. He will eventually do better but it will require some time for him to change.

A.A.—Take the trip and you will get what you are after.

L.M.—He will retain his position through this Spring.

X.T.V.—You will see him soon. Don't labor under delusions about the outcome of the affair.—Just friendship.

Anxious Ann—Your husband will obtain a position in this locality within the immediate future.

N.L.M.—It is advisable for him to enter into this business venture. It will prove successful.

H.M.—Keep your present position until you connect with the other position definitely.

320—You will successfully pass the examinations.

R.A.H.—Yes. I do see you will follow your plans regarding the trip. The Summer.

B.V.D.—Have patience he will propose. Just give him a chance.

M.A.D.—By all means continue your plans regarding this business.

E.&L.—The pension will be re-instated.

K.2—I see improvements greatly for your family.

M.D.S.—He must continue on as he is. There will be changes during the summer which will make his connection worth while.

6KB—You will make a change in your location the early part of May this year. For the better.

R. 40—You will not see this farm in the near future. In fact it is not advisable.

B. 88—You have nothing whatever to fear regarding your educational pursuit. Especially the exams.

363—You will make the team.

Jenny—It is doubtful if you will succeed in voice.

G.M.W.—Never.

E.M.C.—Your estate will be settled the first of November.

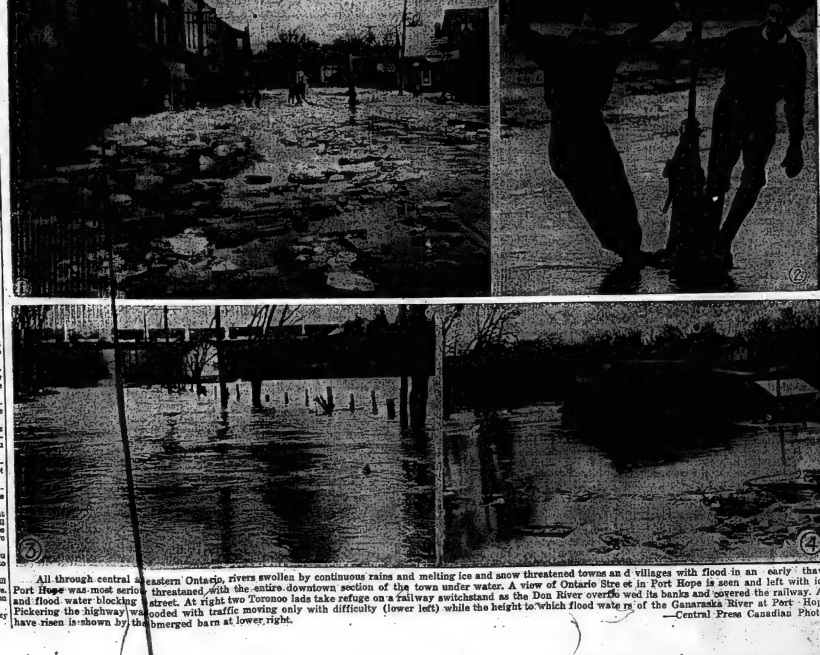
BRIEF FACTS ABOUT WORLD DAIRY PRODUCE

The breeding of animals for milk must rank as one of the world's oldest industries, and, for the world as a whole, milk is probably still the leading source of farming income, states the Dairy Produce report of the Imperial Economic Committee. In the United States, the production of cow's milk exceeds in value that of wheat, and even in Canada it is worth little less than the wheat crop. In the United Kingdom, milk production by value easily exceeds that of any other farm commodity.



Statistics of the world production of butter are incomplete but sufficient information exists for the countries interested in inter-trade to indicate that the increase apparent for many years (interrupted only by the Great War) continued between 1920 and 1936 in Empire countries generally and in most importing countries.

Empire countries do not figure as large consumers of cheese. The United Kingdom comes on top with a consumption equal to about 9 pounds per head of population, or 2 1-3 times that of Canada or Australia. European countries show a larger per capita consumption, equal to about 12 to 13 pounds in Germany; 11 pounds in France, and nearly 26 pounds in Switzerland.

The few estimates available with regard to the world consumption of eggs suggest, says the Report, that consumption has declined in some countries since 1929. However, the consumption of eggs in Canada is high, averaging about 270 eggs per head of population every year. The United States consumes about 260 eggs per head yearly, and the United Kingdom 160 eggs per head, and Germany about 100.

In the world trade in liquid eggs and in albumen and yolks of eggs prepared and preserved in various ways, China is the source of about 95 per cent of the total world's exports. This trade in egg products has grown in post-war years from very small dimensions to an important trade.

Floods Sweeping Down on Ontario Towns as Rains Mild Weather Swell Rivers

All through central and eastern Ontario, rivers swollen by continuous rains and melting ice and snow threatened towns and villages with flood in an early thaw. Port Hope was most seriously threatened with the entire downtown section of the town under water. A view of Ontario Street in Port Hope is seen and left with ice and flood water blocking the street. At right two Toronto lads take refuge on a railway switchstand as the Don River overflows its banks and covered the railway. At Pickering the highway was flooded with traffic moving only with difficulty (lower left) while the height to which flood waters of the Ganaraska River at Port Hope have risen is shown by the submerged barn at lower right.

TEST LIGHTING OF HIGHWAYS

The Highway Department of the State of Washington reports an enviable night-safety record during 1936 for the 2.9-mile stretch of Pacific highway, south of Tacoma, which is lighted with sodium safety lamps in December, 1935. Not one night accident has occurred on the stretch during the past year, L. V. Murrow, director of the department reports. General Electric engineers who developed the lighting system.

"This record speaks particularly well for the efficiency of the lights when it is taken into consideration that 20 per cent of the length of the installation is through a section which is built up immediately adjacent to the highway with fruit stands, produce markets and small restaurants," Director Murrow declared. "At all hours of the day and a major portion of the night, but more particularly between the hours of 5 and 7 p.m., a large number of vehicles are stopping and leaving these places of business. The lights seem to have been particularly advantageous in bringing into view a vehicle entering upon the main traveled portion of the highway.

"The use of these lights has proved to be very effective during heavy fogs which are prevalent through this area, and also during other times when storms have been encountered.

"From the results obtained by this installation, it is indicated that a much greater degree of safety is afforded the traveling public by such lighting."

The section of the lighted Pacific highway was newly constructed at the time the installation and had not been used by motor vehicles previously. Consequently no comparative figures on the number of accidents before lighting are available.

Lighting of a highway in Ontario, it was reported some time ago, would be undertaken as an experiment. Results of lighting of highways are followed with interest by the public which is deeply concerned over safety in travel.

ADVENTURE TO THE LAST

Martin Johnson, whose life was one great adventure, who charted unknown wastes and brought back to civilized man the stories and pictures of life in the little known parts of the world to add spice to whatever dullness there is in modern ways of living, and met wild uncivilized races, who used the romantic means of modern transportation, the plane, went out west in the last adventure. He had had a premonition of this end and was traveling by train instead, but had at least to transfer to a plane to make connections with the Pacific Coast to fulfill a lecturing engagement. In this last voyage his fate met him.

He leaves the world poorer for the loss of a rich and engaging personality and a source of interest and entertainment has passed away.

LETTER WRITERS' NAMES

In yesterday's issue and in today's there is published a reference to unsigned letters which reach this office for publication. Again and again letters bearing a pseudonym or sometimes no mark at all are received, without the writers' names. As stated in the note in these two issues such letters will not be published unless the writers inform the Ontario Intelligencer as to their identity.

The reason is clear. The newspaper must know the source of such communications, as has been so often explained to use the names, but as evidence of good faith. If requested such names will not be published. But knowledge as to who are the writers is necessary.

SCOTLAND MOVING

Though Thomas Tannahill, member of the staff of Glasgow Observatory reported yesterday that Scotland is drifting towards Ireland and America at the rate of more than eight feet a year, and that the situation is "far too startling to accept without further investigation," because it has been shown that England has not joined in the movement and hence Britain is bending in two, people of the north of Great Britain will not worry much, though scientists may.

The seventy year period covered by Thomas Tannahill showed a westward shift of over 600 feet by the mainland of Scotland. That looks like a greater shift than the eight feet a year.

Not so long ago some one reported Greenland as moving towards America. Perhaps the surface of the earth has a habit of shifting.

Men seldom die of hard work; activity is God's medicine. The highest genius is willingness and ability to do hard work. Any other conception of genius makes it a doubtful, if not a dangerous possession. —McArthur.

CHRISTMAS IN THE SOUTH

The southern sunshine floods the earth,
The palm trees wave their verdant plumes,
And here and there along the street,
Poinsettias flaunt their scarlet blooms;
The lake is sparkling in the sun,
Where swans and ducklings stately glide,
While tropic trees in leafage green
Adorn the landscape far and wide.

We see no trace of ice and snow
In this remote and tropic clime,
In vain we list the North wind's blow,
Keen herald of the Christmas time;
But oh! the yuletide now is here,
For city homes are gay and bright,
And throngs are hurrying to and fro
With gladsome hearts and spirits light.

The Star that shone o'er Bethlehem,
That silent night so long ago,
Still sheds its beams of light alike
O'er tropic clime or frigid snow;
And floating downward through the years,
To every tribe and race of men,
Still rings the angel message clear
That Christ was born in Bethlehem.

MARTIN JOHNSON IS DEAD, and Osa, his wife, lies seriously injured as the result of a passenger plane crash out of Los Angeles. Martin Johnson and his wife Osa are known and loved by many readers of their books upon Africa, and admirers of the motion pictures taken by them of mountains, bush and plain, and the mighty animals which have their haunts in Darkest Africa. Martin and Osa Johnson have two planes which they use as African aerial safaris, with base in Nairobi, Kenya Colony, and their book with descriptions of African adventures on land and in the air is easily one of the most interesting books published recently. Curiously enough their first aerial safari was prematurely ended when Osa was taken seriously ill and had to receive medical specialist treatment without delay. One of the planes was fitted up at once and flew from Central Africa to London where an operation saved her life. Their desire for speed made them both ardent flyers and whenever possible they travelled by air. Hence the trip to California was started by air liner and the crash in a storm followed in which Mr. Johnston received injuries which resulted in his death, and the serious injury of his wife Osa. Those who have read the Johnson books have formed a deep and friendly attachment with them and will sorrow with Osa in her bereavement which will mean so much to her on account of accompanying her husband on all his travels and sharing discomforts and hardships with him uncomplainingly in order to accomplish their purpose. Readers of this column who have not perused "Over African Jungles", the record of the aerial safari conducted by Martin and Osa Johnson should repair the omission as soon as possible and become acquainted with two very charming people in thrilling and intensely interesting surroundings and adventures.

A SWEET PEA VINE BUDDING IN JANUARY in a Belleville garden—such was one of the queer quirks of a queer season—dust flying in January, trees budding, flowers opening their petals in surprise thinking it is spring. This ambitious sweet pea was picked in the garden of a Victoria Avenue residence and laid upon the editorial desk for confirmation. Welcome stranger.

HARD

Harry had done no work for over a year and his father was getting tired of keeping him.

"Harry," said his father one day, "I hear there's been a death at Johnson's factory. Why don't you go and see if you can fill the vacancy."

Harry went. On his return he explained that he could have the job but that the work was too hard for him.

"But," protested his father, "you're a strong, fit man. If the man who died could do it, surely you could."

"It wasn't a man that died," replied Harry. "It was a horse!"

Text of Throne Speech

Ottawa, January 18—Text of the Speech from the Throne, read in the Senate by Governor-General and Viscount Tweedsmuir at the opening of Parliament, follows:

Honorable Members of the Senate:

It affords me much pleasure to meet you at the commencement of another session of your Parliament.

The people of Canada, in common with the people of other parts of the British Commonwealth of Nations, learned with deep concern of the decision of His Majesty King Edward the Eighth to renounce the throne for himself and his descendants. In accordance with the Statute of Westminster, steps were immediately taken to set forth the request and consent of Canada to the enactment of legislation by the Parliament at Westminster for the purpose of giving effect to His Majesty's instrument of abdication and providing for the succession to the Throne. In accordance with the same statute the assent of the Parliament of Canada will be sought to the alteration in the law touching the succession.

You will be invited to adopt a resolution expressive of the loyalty of the Members of both Houses of Parliament to His Majesty King George the Sixth.

His Majesty has been graciously pleased to set the twelfth of May as the date for his Coronation. Provision will be recommended for the appropriate representation of Canada at the Coronation ceremonies.

An Imperial Conference will be held in London, beginning in May of this year, for the consideration of questions of interest to the various members of the British Commonwealth.

The international situation continues to give much ground for anxiety. The September assembly of the League of Nations gave earnest consideration to the bearing of recent developments upon the activities of the League and a committee was appointed on which Canada is represented to consider the question of the application of the principles of the Covenant.

Happily, international relations on this continent and conditions in Canada, present a striking contrast to those of many other countries.

The visit of the President of the United States to Canada in July last was a much appreciated occasion of international friendliness and goodwill.

National Recovery Noted

The year just closed has witnessed a steady improvement in conditions throughout Canada, and has borne testimony to the beneficial effects of the fiscal policies of the administration, and of other methods employed to achieve national recovery. A growing confidence in itself an augury of the continuance of recovery.

A marked increase in trade and commerce has been accompanied by a noticeable improvement in the general economic position. Outstanding features of this improvement have been an expansion of employment, including a substantial increase in employment, according Government revenues, and upward trend in the prices received by primary industries Improvement has also been registered in construction.

There has been a pronounced increase in the volume of farm products exported. It is the intention of the Government to continue a vigorous promotion of the sale of agricultural products in home and abroad.

The Government's efforts to expand Canada's trade have been unremitting. Since the last session of Parliament Ministers of the Crown have visited Great Britain and other countries, to participate personally in the negotiation of trade agreements. At the present time, the Minister of Trade and Commerce is on the way to Australia and New Zealand to discuss the revision of existing agreements.

You will be pleased to learn that an agreement in principle has been reached between His Majesty's Governments in the United Kingdom and Canada with respect to a new trade agreement. The agreement itself will be submitted for your approval during the present session.

With the assistance and co-operation of the National Employment Commission, progress has been made in coping with unemployment and relief. Relief camps were closed on July 1. A registration of unemployed persons on relief has been completed. Dominion - Provincial agreements have been entered into respecting a farm employment plan, under the terms of which work has been provided for thousands of single homeless men. A home improvement plan has been put into operation. Despite these measures, however, and the substantial increase of employment, the provision for large numbers on relief remains a foremost problem.

Measures will be taken in co-operation with the Provinces to assist in the establishment of unemployed young people.

A comprehensive programme to relieve distress in areas affected by widespread and intense drought in Western Canada was adopted during the summer months.

The amalgamation and consolidation of certain branches of the public service, for which provision was made at the last session, have been effected. The Board of Governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and the Board of Directors of the Canadian National Railways have been appointed and have entered upon their duties. Through the purchase of stock and the appointment of directors, authorized by Parliament, the Government has assumed a predominant interest in the ownership and an effective control of the Bank of Canada.

New Measures Planned

Measures will be introduced to provide for the establishment of a trans-Canada air service; to extend the authority of the Board of Railway Commissioners, and to revise the capital structure of the Canadian National Railways, and other proposed legislative enactments to which your attention will be invited, will be bills to facilitate the making of loans for the repair and improvement of rural and urban homes to amend and consolidate the acts which relate to combines and mergers in trade and industry, and to provide for pensions to the blind at a lower age than 70 years. A measure will also be submitted with respect to the discharge, in any coin or currency which is legal tender, of debt payments at present required to be made in gold or gold coin.

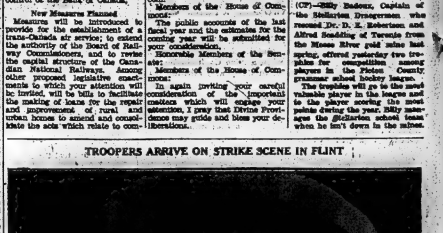
The public accounts of the last fiscal year and the estimates for the coming year will be submitted for your consideration.

Honorable Members of the Senate:

Members of the House of Commons:



In again inviting your careful consideration of the important matters which will engage your attention, I pray that Divine Providence may guide and bless your deliberations.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Jan. 15th, 1917.

Shortly after seven o'clock last evening fire destroyed a fine, large brick residence, the property of Mr. J. F. Chisholm and occupied by him on Dundas street just east of the hospital. The loss on building and contents will be upwards of $7,000.00.

The Rev. A. B. Sanderson of Campbellford was a visitor in the city today.

The Rev. J. P. Wilson, pastor of Trinity Church, Peterboro, and a former pastor of Bridge Street Church, Belleville, occupied the pulpit in the latter church on Sunday last and his discourses were much appreciated by the congregations.

Last year Belleville citizens contributed the sum of $30,000.00 to the Canadian Patriotic Association. It is expected that a greater amount will be given this year.

Jan. 15th, 1907.

The inaugural meeting of the Belleville City Council for the year 1907 was held in the council chamber at the city hall yesterday morning. All the members were present, namely, Mayor Charles W. Gulnan, Aldermen, Meyers, Ramsay, McCrodan, Green, Ackerman, Burrows, Fuller, Starling, Butler and Thompson. Mayor Gulnan was escorted to chair by Ald. Ackerman and Ald. Butler. The Rev. J. P. Wilson, pastor of Bridge Street Methodist Church made the opening prayers. The following chairmen were elected: Executive Committee, Ald. Marsh; Public Works Committee, Ald. Panter; Fire Committee, Ald. McCrodan; Light Committee, Ald. Burrows; Market and City Property, Ald. Ackerman; Railways and Parks Committee, Ald. Butler; Water Committee, Ald. Vermilyea; Gas Committee, Ald. Green; Printing, Advertising and Industries Committee, Thompson.

Mrs. A. McIntyre of Winnipeg is visiting her mother, Mrs. John Van Norman, Ann Street.

Mr. James D. McKenna, who has been home on a short visit, has returned to Syracuse, N.Y.

One of the old landmarks on the Belleville and Tweed gravel road, the residence of Mr. Alex. Wright, near Chapman, was destroyed by fire on Saturday last. The house had stood for about half a century.

40 YEARS AGO

Jan. 13th, 1897.

The annual meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Society was held at the Secretary's office last evening and was well attended. All the reports were satisfactory; the secretary-treasurer showed a balance of $433.56 on hand. The following officers were elected for the year 1897: President, W. G. Reid (re-elected); First Vice-President, S. J. Wedden (re-elected); Second Vice President, William Kemp; Secretary-Treasurer, W. Jeffers Diamond (re-elected); Directors, John Aris, A. M. Ketchesen, William Graham, F. D. Diamond, Dr. Tracy, John Harris, J. Copeland, J. W. Leeson, W. J. Diamond; Auditors, James A. Conger and William Rodbourne.

Ald. Falkiner, Ald. Starling and Mr. H. Corby were in Trenton, today.

The Rev. E. N. Baker and the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Stratford, have commenced four weeks of Union Evangelistic services in that city.

50 YEARS AGO

Jan. 18th, 1887.

The new telegraph office, which is to be located in the office of the Rathbun Company, is being fitted with the necessary fixtures.

Owing to the efforts made by the police the sidewalks in all parts of the city are being properly and promptly cleared of snow.

A counterfeit ten dollar bill was passed off yesterday on Mr. H. Sibbett of the Queen's Hotel, but the counterfeit was detected on the bill.

The annual meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Society was held last evening. The treasurer's reports showed a balance on hand of $421.66. The following officers were elected: President, Mr. J. Kennedy; Vice President, H. McNinch; Secretary-Treasurer, W. Jeffers Diamond; Directors, William Cornell, Jr., Brenton, James Mapson, H. McNinch, Mr. Turner, J. W. Loudon and W. Jeffers Diamond; Auditors, James A. Conger and J. W. Botterfield.

"WINGS OF LOVE"

(The Love Story of a Sky Pilot and Girl Who Planned on a Fifty-Fifty Financial System that Almost Wrecked Their Happiness)

By Janet Doran

"Johnny," Suzanne was scared of the silence, tight feeling in her throat, the sudden burn to her eyelids, as she stood up slowly, and faced Woodland, "Johnny, do you suppose I could learn to sell those pictures? Do you suppose you could tell me how it's done?"

"I did," he offered briefly, "if I could learn how to sell a $40,000 estate, after seven years' drilling in engineering, why can't you?"

"And if I can, Johnny," Suzanne's voice was a scared, little-girl sort of breathless whisper, "what then?"

"Well," Johnny pointed out practically, "they are often you'll have to be largely in your favor, I'd say."

"Johnny," Suzanne pleaded eagerly, "give me a chance! Give me a break? Oh, Johnny, you'll never, never know how terribly I need it! How I've simply got to make more money . . . or lose everything that makes living worth while!"

He was silent a moment in embarrassed wordless confusion, and Suzanne rushed on:

"Have you ever yet known a girl to go into this field, and make good, Johnny?"

"No," he admitted slowly, soberly, "but I know a girl auto salesman out in Chicago, and she's a whiz. Heads her corporation, and has 40 men under her. Heck! women can do almost anything men can, if they make up their minds to stick at it. It's a matter of discarding feminine methods, and thinking like a man."

"Think with your brains, Suzanne, not with your emotions. And always wait for the other fellow to show his hand first."

He gripped her shoulder briefly, in lean, tense fingers, and walked quickly into Dick Hale's private office, to tender his resignation. Ten minutes later, the boxer flared on Suzanne's desk and she got up to answer Dick Hale's ring hastily, her knees shaking, and her hands so cold she could not hold her notebook and pencils.

CHAPTER 9
IN STRANGE, DEEP WATERS

Suzanne rushed open the door to meet her friend, in a slightly brisk, junior partner's office, and meeting his grave, friendly gaze, wondered in a little rush of self-reproof, that she had ever been afraid to face this kindly, sympathetic man on any issue. Afterward, when she could sort things out carefully, in her orderly mind, she was to realize that it was guilt, a sort of crystalised certainty that it would be unfair to ask him for anything more, after his valiant efforts of the past three years to keep them all on the payroll, when circumstances tore at the underpinning of their business, and sought to greedily sweep everything downstream in a tidal wave of destruction. Afterward, she was to know the strange panic she had labored under all day by the right name.

Now, she stood still a moment, a truant ray of late autumn sunshine picking out a coppery glow in her dark hair, a sort of defiance in her eyes. Her slim fingers grasped the worn, dog-eared notebook, as if it were a life-preserver, and her tense little face was drawn and white, until her dark eyes fell under the warm, reassuring sympathy of Dick Hale's gray gaze.

"Come in, Miss . . . Mrs. Nichols. Sit down. Johnny has been telling me of your ambition to sell real estate, and it's such a big idea, it requires a little discussion, I think."

Suzanne heard Johnny's wrist watch ticking busily, and it sounded loud, against the instant of silence. Her dark eyes swept the orderly desk, with the four-in-tah pen and ink set of black enamel and bronze, the dark bookset, neatly encased in fine leather covers, the file of books held firmly by bronze twin bronzes. It occurred to her that she had sat here, at the side of this desk, countless times, and there had never been anything to cause pain, fear, or even mild trepidation in the quiet, serious business matters, and discreet chatter, clean-cut sentences, who rarely but still often enough to make her familiar with the wood, dropped business matters, and discussed other things with her in a genial, man-to-man sort of fashion.

"My chief concern," Dick Hale began quietly, "at the moment, is that you won't be able to move enough or our list to make the trouble worth your while."

Suzanne flashed him a warm, appreciative glance, and for a moment, Johnny stopped to say over the lamp in her throat. Johnny was such a dear, that's a lovable, blundering, dependable buddy. "I . . . I feel sort of dazed, still," she managed, forced stiff, I won't make the grade!"

He was slamming drawers open and shut, and heaping stuff on the desk. Accumulation of over three years in one office, at one desk. His long, lean fingers collected a stack of folders, pamphlets, magazines, and circulars, and he brought them over to Suzanne's desk and dumped them there.

"Read 'em," he commanded soberly, "every word of 'em. Read 'em, study 'em, learn em by heart. Eat and sleep and drink and live real estate. Think it, dream and frontage, taxation, increased valuations, investment policies, and market highs and lows. Forget you've got a nose or a powder puff, except when you go out to sell. Remember that every dollar put into real estate has a bright possibility of emerging a ten, a twenty or a fifty, with luck. Be a psychologist. Make your customer believe he's doing the buying; never let him guess you're doing the selling. And don't-expect miracles. For every black bull, there's bound to be a rainbow colored bunch of sales waiting to balance the sheet. And work! Work like hell, and good luck. You'll need it. The god knows what that shipping-clerk-turned-farming husband of yours will think of this."

"It's because of Sky, I'm doing this, Johnny. It's because of him, that I have to make good!" Suzanna stuffed the papers into a briefcase and slipped it after. "Sky got a promotion, and a chance to make more money, and I've got to equal the raise."

Johnny stared at her in frank amazement.

"Wh . . . s . . . a . . . a?" he demanded, "You mean a raise for the sky-rider doesn't mean a chance to go off this nutty Dutch-treat plan you've been fooling around with?"

"He got the raise so we could go more, have more good times," Suzanne explained, "and Johnny was not at all in sympathy with her arguments. "That means I've got to make enough to keep out of debt, if I'm to lay along for what it isn't a nutty notion. It's a sane, intelligent, modern arrangement, and we're not fooling—we're dead serious, Johnny."

She picked up the zipper bag and reached for the telephone, suddenly remembering this was a long-awaited-at-last day. Suddenly she felt tired, and a little uneasy and frightened over the doubts Johnny had flung at her financial plan.

"You call it anything you like, Suzie." Johnny declared hardily, "I still say it's bolshevik. When a guy gets a raise, and promotion, it means only one thing to those old haltered time-ordained eyes: take the wife out of office players, and put her in a nice, shiny little kitchen all dolled up with new-fangled gadgets."

"You're not a big enough raise," Suzanne explained thickly, discouraged that Johnny should criticize Sky like this, even in well-meant, kindly brotherly affection, "and besides I'm not able bodied as Sky. I'd feel horribly guilty puttering around all day in a two-by-four apartment, when it takes less than two hours to do everything there is to do, with the work I've planned carefully."

"It's your funeral," Johnny grinned at her wryly, "only don't kid yourself too far, Susie. You can't make over many things. And you're fooling with a plant that has its roots imbeded in rock and soil for more centuries than we're days old."

He breezed out, flinging a nonchalant salute her way, as he went through the door, and Suzanne began groping for the voice at the air-port end of her telephone connection.

"Sorry Lady," the crisp, young masculine voice answered, "Dutch Nichols is up for a 45-minute instruction period. If you're Miss Suzanne Nichols, I'm bound to say the girl is as safe as she'd be in a rocking chair at home! The Flying Dutchman know his air-waves!"

Suzanne thanked him, her voice cool and flat, and hung up. She was wondering a little uneasily, if Sky Nichols' Dutch Descendants, the society girl . when the door opened and a tall young man, the uniform cap under his arm, stalked masculine society magazine ad, walked in.

"I'm Dell Langley," he explained, "and Johnny Woodland sent me here to find out about the place in Brookstead. I'm looking for a summer . . . ."

"My car is outside," Dell went on, "and I'd like to run out and look the place over if you can spare the time."

Suzanne stepped past Dell Langley into the long, rakish Mercedes roadster, with a little thrill of anxiety over being late home, late for lunch, and a sharp pang of regret before the rosy vision of collecting over $200.00 in a fat commission. Should the sale go through.

"I think I've missed seeing you around," Dell was saying as the big car leaped ahead of traffic, and out toward the open country, "I suppose it's the old story of unsound investments, and the necessity for a job at any price. Do I perhaps know you're people? Aunt, Uncle, or whosever?"

Suzanne drew a long, careful little breath on the amazing discovery that this impeccable young man of the innermost social circle believed her to be a debutante . . . a debutante, working, not a working girl, boldly crashing into the social field for a matter of so much money in commissions!

"I'm afraid not," she began. Dell laughed heartily. His lean fingers fell to the seat in a careless gesture of friendliness, and closed briefly about Suzanne's small gloved hand.

"I like you," he said boyishly, "you're the kind. A pretty smooth little number, I hope the place is half as smooth!"

Suzanne fixed her mind grimly on the commission she was going to get, and forced the real, true method, the attending annoyances and irritations, to a new low level in her busy mind.

"Think like a man," Johnny had said, "with your brain . . . not your emotions."

Her clear eyes were quite cool, quite fearless, and her brief smile, a poised, schooled interrogation, as she removed her hand from Dell's grasp, and began talking about the place for sale.

CHAPTER 10
THE EAGLE MEETS A BUZZARD

Suzanne did not need to watch the sky enthusiasm, the alert eagerness of Dell Langley as he opened cupboard and closet doors, squinted up spacious fireplace chimneys, and opened shutters to get lighting effects, to know she had made a sale. But her feminine intuition warned her that it was more than half sheer luck. That real estate was not sold with such ease, such celerity.

When Dell wheeled the big roadster back toward town again, her mind was ready, waiting for the joker in the deck. She was even surprised that her sub-conscious mind could go on, clicking off plans formulating thought, while her conscious mind went through sales talk, elaborating details that she know would never interest her, should she ever reach the point where a $20,000 estate was in vogue.

VICKS COUGH DROP

Personals

Miss Irene Thornton who has been visiting relatives near Stirling has returned to her home.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Irvine, Grier Street, are celebrating the 43rd anniversary of their wedding today and are receiving the congratulations of their many friends.

Two Red Cross Home Nursing Classes have been organized for this season and one group has already begun the course. With Mrs. Taylor as instructor, a class was organized from Tabernacle Church and Mrs. J. G. Forster will conduct a class from Bellevue Street Church. Mrs. A. D. Archibald is convener of this branch of Red Cross activity.

With upwards of one hundred members and invited guests being present, the inaugural social event of the Ladies' Auxiliary 99 of the Canadian Legion, held in the Ashnaa Club rooms on Wednesday evening was an unqualified success and rummy were the medium of the cards entertainment of the evening with Mrs. Gillette, winning the major prize in the former, contest, Mrs. Lindsay and Mrs. Patterson won second and third prizes respectively in the bridge contest. Mrs. Fisher finished first, with Mrs. Baker securing the consolation prize. The delightful skyblue of Kerr's Orchestra provided a fine musical background, enlivening the session of the entertainment a delectable luncheon was served by the committee in charge. This was composed of Mesdames Jelly, Gullet, Kerr, Revell, Bradford, Kent and Mierby.

Last evening St. Andrew's Club held a Pot Luck Supper and entertainment at which husbands and friends of the members were guests. After the bleating was given by Rev. W. J. Walker, a delicious supper was served and at its conclusion a sing song was led by Morley Anderson. Of special interest was the demonstration of the "Call" given by the Clubs. Youthful pictures of members and their husbands were shown on the screen and provoked much laughter. A description of each picture was read by Mr. Baird, the adjectives being supplied by the guests. A clever silent play was presented, the cast including Miss M. Campbell, Mrs. V. Weir, Mrs. O. Thorne, Mrs. W. J. Walker, Mrs. W. Muir and Mr. C. Bateman. A "Major Bowes" Amateur Hour was conducted by Morley Anderson and the numbers were as follows: Orchestra Selection: Mr. and Mrs. Bewis; Mr. and Mrs. Wood; Piano Duet, Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Wilson; Solo, Douglas Browning; Reading, Hazel Beamond; Solo, Mr. R. Williamson; Reading, Mrs. Farm Animals, Mrs. K. S. Hill; Answers to Questions on Bowes' Law by the Scouts; Solo, Morley Anderson. After a spelling match the very enjoyable evening's program closed with a sing-song.

SIDNEY COUPLE MARK 35TH ANNIVERSARY

Sidney, Jan. 15—On Monday evening, January 11th, about thirty five guests gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Reilly for a surprise party to celebrate with them the occasion of the thirty-eighth anniversary of their wedding.

At 11.30 p.m. the gathering was called to order and Mrs. Reilly were seated in the centre of the room and the following address was read by Mrs. Wm. Barrie.

Dear Father and Mother:

Coming to this very happy occasion we, your children, and grandchildren have taken the privilege of your hospitality of your home, that we might have the opportunity to congratulate you and in true sincerity rejoice with you on this special occasion.

But this is not the only occasion of rejoicing which your lives afforded us, we your children, are grateful to God not only for a father and mother, but for such a father, and such a mother.

We realize full well that we have not always seemed to appreciate you, as we do now.

We can express our feelings in no better way than by saying that as you have loved us, so we love you. On this your thirty-eighth anniversary we ask you except this gift.

May God watch over you and we may He in rejoicing with you in the years to come.

Signed on behalf of the family.

Mrs. Reilly very graciously expressed their thanks and appreciation to those present for their lovely gift.

A delicious lunch was served after which all departed with many expressions of pleasure at being present on this happy occasion.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Price and family, Miss Dora and Albert Price of of Wellington, Mr. and Mrs. Len Reilly and family, Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Reilly and family of Belleville, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Lott and family, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Barrie and baby, all of Sidney, Mr. Wilbert Reilly of Frankford.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kincaid of Rodlin, who, on January 8th, 1937, celebrated the fortieth anniversary of their wedding.

Many Debutantes To Be Presented At Drawing Room

Ottawa, Jan. 15 (CP)—Tonight sees the debutantes' fete in the Senate Chamber, but many of the nation's best known members of society who will make their first bow to Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir had a foretaste yesterday of the pageantry surrounding this event's official functions.

Not all of those who attended the Court of Peculiar Privileges yesterday were lucky enough to sit on the crimson leather benches on the floor of the Senate Chamber, but veterans of many "openings" remarked they had rarely seen so many young faces in the ranks of high-ranking officials.

The opening, at which many persons had seen a preliminary rehearsal on other days, saw the first lady-in-waiting line up in the Senate lobby at 11.30 a.m. and prepare to wait till 3 p.m. when the event started.

Yesterday's ceremony, brilliant enough, is less spectacular than tonight's drawing room at which women wear their most extravagant gowns, tiaras and feathers in their hair, marching slowly in a long line to curtsy briefly before Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir, once to each, and take their place in the chamber to watch those behind do the same thing.

Tonight about 1,000 women, more than 60 of them debutantes, are expected to walk up the presentation line. Among the debutantes will be some who attended the opening yesterday.

At that event, Mrs. W. E. Foster, wife of the speaker of the Senate, was accompanied by her two daughters, Miss Jean and Miss Charlotte Foster. Mrs. Arthur Beauchesne, wife of the clerk of the House of Commons had with her her debutante daughters, Miss Olive and Miss Patricia Beauchesne. Miss Katherine Dunning was with her mother, Mrs. G. A. Dunning, wife of the Minister of Finance.

Mrs. J. E. Michaud, wife of the Minister of Fisheries, took with her Miss Annette Michaud, her debutante daughter. Miss Dorothy Crerar, daughter of the Minister of Mines and Resources, was with her mother. Mrs. Earle Lawson of Toronto, chaperoned her debutante daughter, Miss Dorothy Jane Lawson and her debutante friends, Miss Helen Gardiner, Miss Suzanne and Miss Kay Gaby.

Weddings

FITZGERALD—MARTIN

A very pretty wedding took place at Holy Trinity Church, Toronto, on Saturday, January 9th, when Miss Isabella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hermon Martin, Whitney, Ontario, became the bride of John Edward, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael E. Fitzgerald, Maynooth.

The bride, entering the church to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, looked lovely in a gift of Coronation bliss crepe, silver lame hat and matching accessories. She wore a corsage of Sweetheart roses and carried a white prayer book.

Miss Mary Fitzgerald, Maynooth, as bridesmaid, was gowned in Cuban rust crepe, made on princess lines, gold lame hat and old gold accessories. A corsage of Talisman roses completed her costume.

Mr. Ambrose Wyndham, Tweed, ably supported the groom.

For their trip to Montreal and other points east, the bride donned a tailored frock of Cuban rust crepe, a Hudson seal coat, the gift of the groom, and black suede accessories.

Upon their return they will reside in Maynooth.

HELLO, GOOD LOOKING YOUR NEW GLASSES ARE VERY SMART

No Two Faces Are Shaped Alike Hence Glasses Should be Built to Suit

"I like your glasses," is a remark that is often made to men and women whose glasses we have fitted. This is due to the fact that, next to making sure that the lenses provide the accurate correction for defective vision, our consideration is the wearer's appearance in glasses to the best styles to suit the contour of the features is a study with us, and our patrons are always pleased with the result.

No two faces are exactly alike, therefore, glasses that are very becoming to one person may be entirely unsuited to another. Each person needs an individual eye examination, an individual fitting, and individual service—such as you get at Edwards, Eyesight Specialists, 366 Front St., Belleville, Ont.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Old Corral"

An old fashioned holdup of a modern cross-country bus, western horsemen pitted against high-powered autos, Eastern gangsters in a bitter war with Western deputy sheriffs, briefly describe the action of "The Old Corral," a story featuring the rivalry existing between the East and West which plays at the Capitol on Friday and Saturday.

With Gene Autry, the singing cowboy, as the star, Hope Manning, operatic beauty as the chief feminine attraction, Smiley Burnette, Sammy Cohen and two dozen character actors of Hollywood note—the film provides a wide range of entertainment.

Autry has written, and sings two new songs—"The Old Corral" and "Old Pinto." That brings his song-writing record well over the 300 mark. His recordings have sold more than a million.

Different from other stories in which Gene has appeared "The Old Corral" embraces the cosmopolitan night life of Eastern cities, modern cross-country streamline travel, a murder mystery, publicity mad radio crooners, holdups, gun battles, and hard riding pistol toting sheriffs and shooting scenes. She is action by Autry and his henchmen, Smiley Burnette and Frankie Marvin.

Added Shorts

Ends Today

Shown for the last times today are two swell entertaining features. Hit No. 1, "Sing 'Em a-Love Song," with James Ellison, Kean Pitts and Hugh Herbert starring and as hit No. 2, Low Ayres in "Murder With Pictures". Also on our stage bottle at 8.30. we are presenting another of our "Auction Nites". Come and enjoy the laugh and watch and a few extra dollars by trying to outguess the auctioneer who buys articles from the audience for cash. This is different and we hope—you sell with no lucky numbers.

AT THE BELLE

"Lloyd's of London"

The epic drama of the world's strangest organization, "...ndwriters" who made a business of chance, ...verwhelming spectacle of heroic men, ... heart breaking love, ...

SUES J. LABATT FOR DAMAGES

Meisner Alleges 'Malicious Prosecution' Against Brewer

Toronto, Jan. 15 (CP)—Writ was issued at Osgoode Hall today by David Meisner of Ovington, S.Y., against John Labatt, London, Ont., seeking unstated damages for alleged "malicious prosecution and negligent identification."

Meisner, who spent more than a year in Kingston penitentiary for the kidnapping of Labatt, was acquitted at a second trial in London March 31, 1936.

The jury deliberated seven hours before freeing the 27-year-old Meisner, who at his first trial had been convicted and sentenced to 18 years in Kingston penitentiary.

Justice Middleton LeNoitre later ordered a new trial after Michael McCardell had made what he said was a full confession of the kidnapping. McCardell absolved Meisner of all implication and the second trial was carried out in August, 1934, before Judge Samson. Richard Knowles and Albert Pegram, McCardell's pals, pleaded guilty and Knowles' term each sentenced to 15 years. Pegram has not yet been captured.

At the first trial Labatt identified Meisner as one of his kidnappers who acted as his guard when he was held captive in a Muskoka cottage three days. At the second trial the London brewer said he had been mistaken and was convinced he had mistaken Meisner for McCardell.

Leitch Continues to Locate High Grade

Narrow Veins Mean Sorting of Ore But Less Mining Required

As the new Leitch mill is being turned into regular operation on a 24-hour basis, more definite news concerning the development of a rein mineralized in depth appears to point to a fifth level. This rein has now been encountered in the face of a drift fifty-five feet south of the shaft, which position continues to be about the same as those first obtained and reported in the News-Chronicle a few weeks ago, namely, a width of seven inches. Drifting north has been started.

On the fourth level, rein number two has been cut from the station, has been drifted, on for about twenty-eight feet. Samples taken, twenty-four feet west of the station ran $63 over four inches. These high values in narrow widths necessarily of the ore before going to a mill, a cost which will be squeezed by eliminating the necessity for milling non pay rock. A preliminary estimate is that mill heads will run $15 per ton.—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

GOODYEAR EXTRA DIVIDEND OF $2.50 ON COMMON STOCK

Surplus Adequate to Cover Future Requirements

In a letter to Common stock holders of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. of Can. Ltd., the President, Mr. A. G. Partridge says:

"We are enclosing a cheque which includes the regular dividend of 25c per share payable in respect of your Common shareholdings for the year 1936 and an extra dividend of $2.50 per share, which we gradually all earned during 1936. The Company's present earnings position seems entirely adequate to cover everything forthcoming in the near future and, therefore, we believe it advisable to distribute among the Common shareholders the balance of the 1936 earnings, after payment of dividends on the Preferred stock. Any small portion of the additional dividend not earned during 1936 will be taken from surplus."

Mint Silver Dollars To Mark Coronation?

Ottawa, Jan. 15 (CP)—To commemorate the coronation of King George and Queen Elizabeth, Canada should mint a specified amount of silver dollars, according to Mrs. George Black (Conservative, Yukon). A resolution to this effect stands in her name in the House of Commons votes and proceedings. It reads:

"That in the opinion of this House, the government should consider the issuance in the currency of Canada of one million silver dollars to commemorate the coronation year of their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth."

WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 15.— (AP)—Alternating rallies steamed up the Stock Market today, with the forenoon climbing operations to 2 points and a number posting new recovery tops.

Coppers and Oils refused to follow the forward push and the Utilities were listless. Farm Implements also appeared to have lost vigor of yesterday.

McIntyre lost a point among Dominion Stocks. Coons and Hamilton Corp.-Seagrams were slightly lower, while Intercolonial Coal, Steel and Canadian Pacific ruled about even. On the Curb, Lake Shore gained a point, Standard Oil improved 1-64 of a cent at 99.96 and Ford cents.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Jan. 15.—(CP)—Industrial listings were sold for narrow losses and volume tapered off on Toronto Stock Exchange this afternoon, following a fairly active early session. A few issues held to the upward course, notably Ford A, Bell Telephone and Abitibi pfd. Base shares showed holding steady. Among the weak leaders appeared Steel Canada, off nearly a point and a group of the preferred stocks. Losses of a point or more were marked for the preferred issues of Tamblyns, Consumers Glass, Canada Cement and Wire A.

Oil Stocks were generally firm Lingham Gold was the lease than gain and Nickel and Brazilian were steady.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 15—(CP)—A few of the mining shares were bulfeted about in fairly active quietly Toronto mining exchange this afternoon. Offerings appeared in considerable losses, but the general loss was only mildly weak. SOONER or later this moment comes in every parent's life. Your little baby, your rollicking tomboy, grows into a sweet young woman. And what a tug at your heart strings when the break in the family circle comes. But at least you're happy to know she will have the protection and support of strong young arms.

So you're glad Tom has a job; glad that industry has been able to provide a place for this eager, intelligent young man, and give him the opportunity to make a home of his own and carve out a path to success.

Many a Canadian family gets its start in just this way with the automotive industry. Thousands are employed in automotive plants and distributing and selling organizations. Thousands more earn their livings in those that make the materials used in building motor cars, and in the making and handling of food products, clothing, furniture, purchased by automotive workers.

The money put in circulation reaches the farmer, fisherman, miner, lumberman, railway worker. So the true value of the automotive industry to Canada is measured by the number of Canadians it puts to work.

That is why we need a strong, prosperous automotive industry in Canada.

For Instance, take Our Own Industry

Over $12,000,000 was paid by the Automobile Manufacturers in salaries and wages during 1936. This huge sum is dwarfed by the wages paid in the factories that produce the materials and parts that go into a completed car, which wages are built in large part on our purchases. Only Canadian industries — glass, steel, rubber, textile, paint, chemical; so many a few — are stimulated by the manufacture and sale of Canadian built cars. The prosperity of their employees is likewise reflected as is that of those who supply their individual living necessities.

Hop Expenditures Down

"Our main duty, however, our most important one will be to limit expenditures down as much as we can during the year," he said. "I think that there are lots of things needed in this city and there is, however, but a few dollars with which to do these things. We have a large circle — they can't be a heavy year always, and I can only say, that we be given the same co-operation and assistance that has been given other councils before us," added the Mayor, who endorsed necessarily was limited owing to lateness of the hour at which he was called to be present to the executive office of the city hall for the purpose of signing the by-laws.

Introduced from right to left in the large circle, they comprised Alderman Harry Greenleaf, as first speaker, who, after thanking the chairman for the appointment of the Tourist and Publicity Committee, went on to outline the duties and work of the past year.

"We had a reputation term for tourists last year at the lower end of the city and we hope to have the same thing again this year to our advantage," he said. "We intend to find out what our locality has to offer and we will be glad to have any suggestions. What are we going to do with the tourists who come to the city this year, but this has always been a problem which we have failed to solve. Much of this trouble has been caused by the debris that gathers on the lee in the river, towards Green's Harbor and leaves large deposits. Then stones pile up and block the flow of water.

Do Little For Year

Perhaps we can't do anything very remarkable about it this year, but if we could do a little bit every year we would avoid this. In this we might be helped by the government and the industrial the merchants are also back of us one hundred per cent."

"Also at the mouth of the river, we have another menace which is the sewage problem. We have the sewage problem there. If it had not been for the nuisance it would disappear. But, in any event, I believe council should appoint a committee to see what is required to create a sewage disposal plant. This is not a result for a year or two necessarily, but merely to find out for our own information just what is needed in this line. This matter is one that needs investigation," concluded Alderman Greenleaf.

Alderman Laurie Lewis, again this year named Chairman of Welfare, declared himself happy to be appointed to the committee of the Chamber of Commerce was made up of directors. "I feel confident here with you," he added.

"As Alderman said this year, the department I am most interested in is relief. . . . Incidentally on the waterfront development also. I commend this waterfront committee, or bathing beach committee to you, and the work they have done. It was a job last year, but it will be a big job next year because we intend to go right after it.

"I believe, that the city management is extremely interested in this only, from for the City of Belleville.

"As Chairman of the Welfare or Relief Committee I have a problem, that is peculiarly different in that of Yourself pardon me if I am critical," Alderman Lewis at this point remarked. "I find it extremely hard to conditions one year that last because of statements that have been made, statements that have been made by even only officials, and at times in odd committee. Again I say I don't want to be too critical because I feel that many of these statements made by aldermen are made unintentionally because they did not have the right perspective. . . . But it so happens from time to time that they are approached by persons for some relief with a grudge, and a story to tell by a neighbor, and they will reply they don't see how this can't be fixed up, and they know nothing of the true details; they don't get the personal problem at all."

Requested Free Hand

Alderman Lewis requested a free hand in the management of affairs of this department.

"We have skulduggery going on in this city all the time. There are people here who are going to get my money out of the taxpayers' pocket every means in their power. They believe, that they can get it in a better year than last year for their purposes. There is going to be a big war on the welfare by the end of the year. This morning I was in the office at 2.30 as I would be, to review cases I expected in the forenoon one last time. . . . But at ten o'clock I was still there. Then when Alderman Baldwin, who had been assisting me in the office at the city hall left me I went downstairs and was there until after eleven o'clock in the morning and several cases had been attended to by that time.

"The question of rents has come up. I believe some statements in the press have led them to believe that they are going to get cheaper rent, as well as food and clothing. Yet we have been approached by many young women on the relief rolls; the man could get a good job, and the young lady, if she was really anxious could get some kind of work to do, but one thing which would pay these rents—but, instead of that they would go on relief with a horde. All they want to do is to settle down and let the city look after them. . . . Now we have to Leave Details to Department

"Leave all these matters to the relief department and let us wealthy city men, who have to pay the bills to them and protect the taxpayer's money as far as we can.

"Conditionally relief officials were forced to stretch a point, admitted Alderman Lewis.

"If a man is a taxpayer, at times we have to stretch a little bit for the sake of humanity. In these cases we are only asking for a little barrack-ing. But there are other men, men who are given relief, and the next day they have a job and they pick up a little money to get a couple of days more hungry and no worky person has suffered. But, we are there in front of these children and husky young women out, and we have to stretch a point. We are going to try and force them to raise their own rent even if we have to otherwise."

Alderman Lewis turned to other matters of importance to you for your favorable consideration, the waterfront, parks and Belleville Publicity. We should have all civic organizations behind us, including the board of develop the tourist trade and industry. That is why I suggested that the waterfront development is a good idea and should be carried through to its ultimate end.

"But", concluded Alderman Lewis, "I am interested in all matters, that the city will permit Belleville to improve and go forward."

Alderman A. M. (Andy) Kennedy declared himself strongly in favor of new industries for Belleville, but professed, that as yet nothing definite had been digested. "However", he continued, "we are all going to work together on the matter and do all we can to better the city."

Waterfront Development

Waterfront development was also looked upon favorably by the alderman.

"The end of the park is no place for our children to swim. All our sewage goes down there. A supper, naturally collects on the shore. I suppose, however, that if we do get a beach on the east side, the people on the west side will want one too.

"I hope that the Mayor's address will be made known to the residents, particularly the item in which it said all meetings of council in the future would be open ones and that no more business would be carried on behind closed doors. Mayor Ansley and I will not give any delegations in committee and I believe that is what you people approve of that. Have your say there in open council and you will get the people down there to the city hall. It will be a good move, in the past they have come down at seven-thirty in the evening and sat around until after nine and council will still be in committee.

"As far as I can help this year, not one dollar of the taxpayer's money will be wasted", assured Alderman Kennedy in conclusion.

Alderman J. J. Robins declared that when he first came to Belleville in 1906 a far different picture presented itself to the eye to that observed now.

"Then Belleville was an industrial centre. The rolling mills in Belleville employed much more men one pay day than all the industries here now combined. The other rolling mill and industries and wages were all a decent level. Belleville was a busy city, a live people; people even those employed by carriers in a bit of dissention there is no money to spend. Part of the blame for this must be laid at the previous councils. Now we have drifters coming into Belleville, living here for years and then go to the city, and they don't even pay a city.

"I say the two or even three year residence period should be enforced. One hundred families have moved into Belleville from outside points and are now a charge on the city.

Things To Consider

"Referring to the waterfront development question Alderman Robins declared that many things needed to be considered before the project should be carried on on too great a scale.

"We must not forget that in Fisher Ward, where the beach is situated there are no sewers and that consequently, it is a poor district. We obtained from the proposed highway crossing that there is to be filled would not be an inspiring one, particularly as motorists using the highway would see only the backs of the houses. Several petitions have been made for sewers in Fisher Ward, but they seem to have been sidetracked every year.

"As for the Park Park goes it should be fixed up. The entrance, particularly is in terrible shape and last year we had a soft ball team in Belleville which brought in the revenue. Perhaps we should have a fence, an Ontario championship. We should endeavor to get the grounds in shape with a suitable ball park. Where they could train; visitors there could enjoy the park. If these suggestions were put into effect I believe they would at least help make Belleville a better place.

Prior to my election, and even since I have been in, I have been called an agitator and a spendthrift, and the supposedly cheap man in council in a turmoil during the year. Those who have called me these names do not know me going to prove they are by working in as close harmony with my fellow members as it is possible to do so," assured Alderman Bedford.

Cost of Plant Obtained

Alderman J. W. Sarnor declared he had been a guest at the annual luncheon now for three years he had been a guest at the annual luncheon now for three years and each one he considered better than the previous one. One by one he reviewed re-cent years' activities.

"I'll start at Alderman Greenleaf and assure him that the cost of the disposal for the city has already been ascertained by per-centage.

"Alderman Lewis expressed just a few of the things that the Department of Welfare and as we all know he has had plenty and will have plenty to do this year. Like Mr. Lewis, he said, he started hard this year, but I would like to say a few things to be a better one for him than last year because he will have a lot to do. I would like to say to Mr. Baldrew, chairman of Labor, one who will be invaluable through the year.

"Alderman Kennedy mentioned closed doors in relation to council meetings during the past year. He is not the only one, he has tried to get council to open council come out in the open to transact business before us. I have voted for a long time. It was the wrong way to do it. It was not right, and I have received delegations to come into the committee rooms. They should come into the council chamber in all matters, that the will permit Belleville to improve and go forward."

Alderman A. E. Bedford declared that he was only one who knew about the fact of there being no sewers in that ward. "I didn't know until last summer, when Alderman Graham and myself went through the ward, while on the Property Committee, and found that much be done about that condition down there.

Turning to the matter of city property, Alderman Barlow explained the formation of a special property committee to deal with this question last year. "We had lots of city property to sell, when the committee was formed, and we still have some. We are going to co-operate in every manner possible by providing this property for any industry which might wish to visit Belleville."

Fire Department Excellent

As chairman of Fire again this year, Alderman Barlow declared the department to be in excellent condition at the present time. "The fire department is what I can give you in that respect was the reduction in the insurance that was given us during the year."

"The proper place to mention, what I am about to say is in the local press in the form of a printed advertisement so I will not dwell on it too long, but we intend to publish a booklet setting forth things, which they must follow in the event of fire, so that they will know what to do. Views under present circumstances are being violated in this booklet, which will be issued in bill of expense to the ratepayers.

"I am pleased to say that this year in the matter of carrying out the fire drills that everything will be done to the best of our ability. I can only hope that the fire drills and the method of procedure of this council will be the same as in the past. We have had to have our arguments and discussions, but they have been based upon that was the end of it; the matter was not carried further or carried out into the street.

Alderman Barlow returned to the matter of waterfront.

"We have made up our minds, that if we intend to do all the residences on this vacant property that we have in the city, that the city will be better off for the revenue it will bring in to the city. The other way, leaving them vacant, we were getting nothing and the taxpayers were keeping them up. We sold some property this year upon which some excellent residences have been built. We intend to do all in our power to dispose of this property to the best advantage of the city."

Co-operate With All

Alderman Clifford Barrage declared that it was his second appearance at the annual luncheon at which he and fellow councillors had been privileged to hear, excellent suggestions given by members of that body. For personal reasons, Alderman Barrage, he stated had not chairmanship of any committees he given him the first year, he declared, but he had not enjoyed his experience last year as chairman of Industrial Committee. I intend to co-operate to the fullest extent with every member of council," he added.

"That has been one of the biggest problems of past councils and this council, like previous councils, and as in the past has promised co-operation with the Industrial Board. Through this very thing of economy is a very difficult matter to obtain, lacks unless more money is spent to do so, and get new industries here. The small appropriation this department gets is not enough. In the Chamber of Commerce we have a real asset, and in the secretary we also have a real man, who is particularly fitted for the job of going out and securing industries. From my view toward having them locate their plants in Belleville. There has been a change in the past on this very thing because they could not be seen, and as I expected, but even though the city council and the Chamber of Commerce industries have wanted to do one thing, they have been forced to do another. . . .

In an attempt to create better conditions for the unemployed I sought in this country — by other countries of taxation, declared Alderman Barrage. He referred to the recent Conference of Mayors of the Chamber of Commerce at which city auditor Fred Chamberlain gave a paper on municipal taxation."

"I felt that address was a very good one and that the subject was one that should be taken up by municipalities of the city as well as the city council should investigate before the next session of the legislature. Alderman Chamberlain pointed out that we were going to prove they are by working in as close harmony with our fellow members as it is possible to do so," assured Alderman Bedford.

They should come into the council chamber in all matters, that the will permit Belleville to improve and go forward."

Alderman Andrews mentioned the condition of Foster Ward, and again he is not the only one whom knows about the fact of there being no sewers in that ward. "I didn't know until last summer, when Alderman Graham and myself went through the ward, while on the Property Committee, and found that much be done about that condition down there.

Toronto Baseball Club Sold To D. G. Ross and Syndicate With Dan Howley as Manager

Deal Completed Will Keep Professional Baseball in Queen City

PRICE NOT STATED

Club Will Not Tie up With Any Major League Team

TORONTO BASEBALL Ba3an.

Toronto, Jan. 15.—(CP)—Backed by a syndicate headed by the prominent sportsman-lawyer and handled by the capable Dan Howley, Toronto's Baseball Club of the International League was launched on a new career today.

Genial Dan will toss all his lengthy experience into building up a winning team for the home town supporters, breathing easier today now that the club is not slated for transfer across the border.

Donald G. Ross, member of the legal firm of Ross and Millet, led the syndicate into the battle to retain the club for Toronto during the week-end an organization meeting will be held and Mr. Ross is expected to be chosen president of the new company.

A discussion with an associate in his office as to what the summer held for them resulted in Howley calling to enlist baseball field. During their talk the fear was expressed there would be no baseball game to see, for at that time the Toronto club seemed destined for a United States berth.

"We arrived at a more serious discussion," Howley related, "and the result that I interested some other Toronto business men."

Howley was contacted—"and, well we just made the deal, that's all", he described his part in the affair. There are five men in the syndicate, who purchased the franchise and other assets of the club.

Not Purely Business Venture

"And I want to make it clear, that this isn't a business venture in the ordinary sense of the word," continued Ross. "We went into the thing because we didn't want to see Toronto lose its International League baseball team."

The deal was completed yesterday with Cliff Oakley and Robert Pentland, former club directors, and a representative made, Ross, however, did not reveal the purchase price.

Dan Howley will have charge of sales, trades and will bear complete responsibility in whipping the team into shape. He plans starting on his job immediately, making a tour of major league baseball clubs.

"I'll visit Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Washington, Philadelphia, Minneapolis and conclude with the Boston Clubs," Howley said. "Out of that bunch I should get a few results for a good start."

Plenty of Money

"This Toronto Club has plenty of money behind it, as a good manager needs and more," Dan continued. "We are in a position to buy young players, when we want to and eventually we should be independent of the majors to a greater extent than any other class AA club.

Howley came up from the hard-fisted empire-batting brigade of ball players, leaving high school to enter pro ball 21 years ago when he signed with the Indianapolis club. He went to Grand Rapids and they won the pennant. He went back to Indianapolis, then to Utica club which sold him to Cleveland.

He refused to report to Cleveland Indians and went to Portland, Ore., from where he made the jump into a uniform of the Philadelphia Nationals. As manager he was first with Montreal, starting in 1914, then to Boston Red Sox and later to Toronto Leafs who he guided to a pennant in his first season in 1918. He managed St. Louis Browns and Cincinnati Reds, coming to Toronto in 1933.

Maroons Swamp Black Hawks While Detroit Red Wings Take Rangers to Increase Loop Lead

Canadiens-Maroon Tilt Saturday Night is "Natural

BRILLIANT HOCKEY

By A. E. Fulford

Canadian Press Staff Writer

This Saturday night's clash between Maroons and Canadiens did not need a buildup because Montreal fans are just crazy to see it but Maroons are crazy, too, to win it. They defeated Chicago Black Hawks 7-3 last night and are now but within four points of the Habitants.

That gives the interesting possibility that Tommy Gorman's men will defeat Canadiens and leave only a single operation there making the National Hockey League's Canadian Division fight something near an all-Montreal battle if it isn't that now.

Apart from the high-scoring affair in Montreal, last night's program provided only the Detroit Red Wing's 2-0 win over Rangers in New York to keep the fans interested until the week-end bunching of games. The victory gives Wings four points up on Lester Patrick's team at the top of the American section standings.

Record Scoring Game

The Maroon-Hawk game set a record for goals scored this season. Eight goals have been scored in five different games but no contest but last night's has provided more than that. The avalanche of Maroon counters hailed the Hawk two-game winning streak at just that.

It looked close in the first period until Mackenzie Ross got one goal to take a 3-1 lead, one of them coming while Tiny Thompson, Hawk defenceman, was serving a penalty. Jerry Shannon had scored for the Manufacturers in the first minute of the game and Wilder Larochelle had evened it just three minutes later.

But when Dave Trottier and Herb Cain gave Tommy Thompson's team the edge Hawks had to open things up and leave Mike Karakas, in the Hawk net, with little protection.

Trottier scored the only goal of the second period and Jimmy Ward, Baldy Northcott and Gus Marker made it 7-1 before Hawks finally broke through for goals by Larochelle and Glenn Brydson.

Brilliant in Victory

Larry Aurie and Marty Barry demonstrated in New York they can work almost as well apart. Combining Sorrell filling out their trio as when Herb Lewis is playing. The left winger was absent again through illness last night and Aurie took a pass from Barry and scored a spectacular goal with a backhander, while Pitching got the other.

That was in the first period and there was no more scoring until half way through the third when Orville Roulston gave Wally Kilrea a pass from the goal, that made a Wing victory sure.

While Rangers were being beaten, the other New York team, Americanes, were making efforts to strengthen their squad. Manager Red Dutton announced he has traded "Deep" Klein of Saskatoon to Cleveland Indians of the International-American League for Les Cunningham, a left wing. Cunningham will report in time to play for Americs against Bolton on Sunday.

Cooling Off With The Hot Stovers

By Sid Feder
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Cooling off with the hot Stovers: Tom Yawkey has not only quit looking his bankroll around for big league batsmellers, but he's going to take personal pains this season to see that there aren't any more duds. Forget all about "Prima Donna-itis." Word from the Red Sox wigwam tells that Tom is working on a plan by which the temperamental members of his cast will learn to leave their temperament in the closet at home, along with their family skeleton and last summer's straw hat.

Pittsburgh Pirates are toying with the idea of benching Woody Jenkins and letting Rookie Johnny Dickshot roam the outfield beat. Dickshot, up for his third big-league tryout this spring, packed plenty of batting punch for the Buffalo International League Bisons last year, finishing with a .315 average fir the pennant winners.

If he sticks this season, it will have taken Frankie Gustine, Pittsburgh Bees' slugging prospect, 11 years of coaxing around the bases to make the big time. He's had tryouts galore in that time, showing up at the Philadelphia Athletics' training camp as far back as 1922 and with St. Louis Browns' in 1928, but each time he barely lasted long enough for the grapefruit league windup. Meantime, he's been doing duty in such double A organizations as Milwaukee, Columbus, Minneapolis, Baltimore, and, lately, Buffalo.

Washington Senators are sure of the baritone in their clubhouse quartet for the season. Joe Cascarella, who warbles a nifty tune has signed up.

Col. Jake Ruppert, who'd rather own his farms than have working agreements with them, may buy into the Pacific Coast loop to add another double A outfit to his New York Yankees' chain. He has his eyes on the Oakland Oaks.

INTERSCHOLASTIC HOCKEY LEAGUE

Although three games have already been played the Bay of Quinte Senior Interscholastic hockey schedule was only released today. Last night's O.S.D.-Albert College game was postponed as was a previously scheduled O.S.D. at Picton C.I. game, while the Napanee-Collegiate at Picton game slated for tonight, will also be played at a later date.

Of the games played to date, however, the Napanee Collegiate is leading the league by virtue of two victories in as many starts. The Napanee team defeated the Picton C.I. seniors 4 to 1 and the Albert College 12 to 5. Picton won over B.C.I. 3 to 1 in the only remaining game yet played. The postponed game will be played at a later date. The Bay of Quinte senior interscholastic hockey schedule for 1937 reads:

Jan. 13—Picton at Albert.
B.C.I. at O.S.D.
21—B.C.I. at Albert.
Jan. 22—O.S.D. at Napanee.
Jan. 25—Napanee at B.C.I.
Picton at O.S.D.
Jan. 28—O.S.D. at Albert.
Jan. 29—Picton at Napanee.
Feb. 1—Picton at B.C.I.
Napanee at Albert.
Feb. 11—O.S.D. at B.C.I.
Feb. 12—Albert at Picton.
Feb. 15—Napanee at O.S.D.
Albert at B.C.I.

The postponed games of O.S.D. at Picton C.I.; Albert at O.S.D. and Napanee at Picton will be played at later dates.

STIRLING WILL RETURN TO OLD HOCKEY WARS

Organize Senior Club, Stirling And Madoc Schools in Tie

Stirling, Jan. 15 (Special)—Stirling High School hockey team elected their second set of game in as many starts this season, on Wednesday night at the local arena when before a large crowd of enthusiastic supporters they battled to an exhibition draw with Madoc in a real thrilling game which ended 2-2. The local team have yet to score their first victory and also their first defeat, having tied the Madoc team on the first of the season in Tweed last week. Mr. Good, principal of the school, is also coaching the team is quite satisfied with the efforts of the boys and expects them to give a better fair team before the play-off time arrives.

Senior Team is Planned in Stirling

A meeting was held in the Stirling Agricultural Hall on Monday evening last to discuss the possibility of forming a senior hockey team to be entered in the new hockey league which will be formed by Madoc, Marmora, Tweed, Belleville and a single team representing both towns of Stirling and Havelock. All other towns mentioned have already organizing and a schedule has been drawn up including Stirling. Although four of the players who appeared on the Stirling All-star team which incidently won the championship, are not available this year, it is thought Stirling still possess sufficient players to form a strong team and with this in mind it was decided to form a club and the following officers were elected to direct the affairs:

President—Mr. C. A. Wells.
Hon.-Pres.—Mr. H. A. Luery
Sec.-Treas.—Mr. T. W. Solmes.
Management Committee—Messrs W. J. Gilbert, Tom Thrall, William Jones and the President.

Mr. Wells, speaking of the proposed schedule in hand it was impossible to discuss the matter any further, Mr. Jack Middleton representing the Rink Committee suggested that all games must be planned not to conflict with Fridays and Tuesdays of each week since the Central Hastings Junior A.H.A. have these dates. He said however, that the Rink Committee would do all in their power to offer assistance to the team which would represent the village. The meeting was then adjourned.

Sports Roundup

Brooklyn directors may as well know it now as later: Van Mungo wants $15,000 to toss that horse-hide this season—and not a dime less, gents. . . . A certain New York fellow has $5,000 to bet on Bob Pastor at prevailing odds. . . . Looks like old age will catch up with Billey Grant before he gets a well-deserved chance on the Davis Cup team.

Well, well. . . . So they're going to give Boston Bees a regular place to eat in St. Pete this Spring! The hotel where the club was quartered last year had everything but a dining room. . . . So Prexy Bob Quinn has arranged to rent one and told him to put on the feed with them. More he pleases. Most of the money went into slot machines. . . . This year the Bees will move into a hotel with a bar.

If the anti-fight boycott goes through, Joe Jacobs will cancel Max Schmeling's exhibition tour. . . . Chuck Dressen says: "The Cubs will be weaker, the Giants no better and the Reds will be stronger". . . . So there you are.

Then Dodo Leger fabricated a girl a players' forum going. . . . Every rookie, veteran and castoff gets a chance to shoot off steam and advance ideas for the betterment of the game. Anyone who is champion of the middleweights, he'll never feel quite safe with him around. Ex-Marcus and Fred Apostoli hanging around.

Sports Roundup

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Brooklyn directors may as well know it now as later: Van Mungo wants $15,000 to toss that horse-hide this season—and not a dime less, gents. . . . A certain New York fellow has $5,000 to bet on Bob Pastor at prevailing odds. . . . Looks like old age will catch up with Billey Grant before he gets a well-deserved chance on the Davis Cup team.

Well, well. . . . So they're going to give Boston Bees a regular place to eat in St. Pete this Spring! The hotel where the club was quartered last year had everything but a dining room. . . . So Prexy Bob Quinn has arranged to rent one and told him to put on the feed with them. More he pleases. Most of the money went into slot machines. . . . This year the Bees will move into a hotel with a bar.

If the anti-fight boycott goes through, Joe Jacobs will cancel Max Schmeling's exhibition tour. . . . Chuck Dressen says: "The Cubs will be weaker, the Giants no better and the Reds will be stronger". . . . So there you are.

Then Dodo Leger fabricated a girl a players' forum going. . . . Every rookie, veteran and castoff gets a chance to shoot off steam and advance ideas for the betterment of the game. Anyone who is champion of the middleweights, he'll never feel quite safe with him around. Ex-Marcus and Fred Apostoli hanging around.

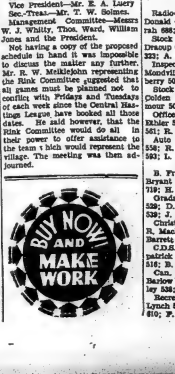
When a crowd of well over one thousand will turn out to practically all the opening games of the hockey season in Belleville and knowing that a well worked condition is not suitable for the manufacture of good natural ice, as was the case on Wednesday night, it is a sure sign the winter pastime is regaining its prominence of past years in this city. If such crowds could be assured for all games there is little doubt but that an artificial ice plant could once again be operated in the Belleville Arena profitably.

Six hockey clubs, from the district, that once comprised the old Trent Valley League, met in Madoc recently and formed a new district group. "Duke" Smith, procured a berth for his Belleville Yachti Club "Sailors" in this loop, that includes Madoc, Marmora, Tweed, Norwood-Havelock and Stirling besides the local aggregation. According to the schedule started the "Sailors" own their part of the schedule at Madoc versus Marmora, on Tuesday next. Whether the "Sailors" are going to play their home games at the Belleville arena, or operate in the same manner as the Grills' Garage outfit in former years, namely by playing their home scheduled games on their opponent's ice, we have been unable to ascertain up to this time.



The K.O.A.B.A. swings into action on Saturday night when the Belleville "Y" intermediates journey to Kingston, where they take on the Frontenac County Juniors at "Coach Red" Gordon, former Toronto Varsity star and all round athlete, outpost for a stiff practice last night in preparation for this game. Belleville boast of a really strong squad of hoopsters this year.

The Napanee Collegiate, with two wins in as many starts is leading the senior section of hockey schools in the Bay of Quinte group. The Napanee kids won from the B.C.I. 4 to 1 and downed Albert College 12 to 5, both games being played in Napanee. Larry Aurie and Les Hunter-colored B. C. I. seniors dropped their second consecutive game when the Picton Collegiate won an 8 to 1 decision. Another defeat for the "Collegiate" and they will be eliminated for the 1936 provincial interscholastic finalists. Last night's Albert College-O.S.D. game was called off owing to mild weather. As a matter of fact, this kind of weather is playing havoc with all classes of hockey throughout the province.

Weather permitting by then the annual V.O.N. ice carnival will be held on Feb. 5th this year. The committee in charge named their various chairmen last night and a night of real entertainment is being planned.

DAILY SHORT STORY
FALSE NOTES
By Catharine Foss Allen

Tony Calvey sat up in bed and rubbed his fingers through his thick hair. "Whew! What a head!" he groaned. He wallowed for a few minutes in the morning-after misery. His mind held only a picture of dark brown waves with a white cleft, small and oval, which advanced and receded, dirting up and down.

"What a fool", he muttered. He looked at the watch on his wrist. Nine o'clock. There was something this morning. . . . Oh, yes, Mrs. Lingenfelt coming for the final sitting for her portrait at ten. You'd think a wife would see to it that her husband didn't get plastered the night before an appointment like that. And he looked around at the twin bed next to his, a cluster of chenille on a white pillow and a mound of covers—that was his wife. She was very particular which suggested to the back of his mind that she, Lenny, had protested often against his drinking, only served to increase his irritation.

"Quite," they had said. "Suits me fine," he had told her, "and now I'm going out to accidentally alone, thank God."

The little white dair rose again from the brown waves before his eyes. It looked something like a face. Yes, that was it, a small white face. A girl's face. He began to see it now. Those round, trusting eyes. The delicate mouth. She was saying something . . . "Painter-man."

Oh, sure, it was a girl at the party last night. He remembered now. He had called her by some name and she had laughed and called him Painter-man.

The face faded. He looked at his watch. Quarter past nine. He'd better be getting ready for that fat old woman. "Old fool," he muttered. "Got to take off twenty years and fill wrinkles and still make the portrait look like her. I wish I could paint her just as she is—the homely old hag. That isn't a job for an artist, it's a job for a laborer. Palm notes, that's what portrait painting is. Not art—false notes."

Now he remembered what he had been saying to that girl last night. That was false—false and true.

He had said to her, "You have a dainty face." He remembered her eyes as he told her that. They had opened in surprise, "Yes," he had continued, calmly. And your colors are pink and pale blue. That dress you have on is all wrong." He remembered looking with disgust at the crimson bib below her face.

False notes. All of his life was that! He who thought he had dedicated his life to beauty. It was all wrong! How that girl last night. She would understand . . . But was she? He remembered tears in her eyes once. What was that about? Oh, yes, he had said, "Had you lived long ago, you'd have been consecrated to the church, and gone weekly for your healing from the priest."

"And because it's now," she had said—and that was when tears had trembled in her eyes—"I am consecrated to a purpose and take my healing, but not from a priest."

"If some man heals you," he remembered saying, "it's a great builder! Mother gave it to me when I was a lad."

"Fellows' does put you right on this fact. Look at the Little Fairies [illegible] — always sickly until the Doctor suggested 'Fellows'. Now she's the picture of health!"

"Well, Mother, Doctors know. So it's 'Fellows' for me, too! We want you to grow healthy with plenty of big bone and muscle."

Then a vivid mask seemed to settle over her face.

Lenny sat up quickly in bed, and a laugh cut through Tony's consciousness. A blatant laugh that clanged in his ears.

"Wal," Lenny growled him gaily, "Oh, my boy, you were priceless last night. You didn't even know me.

Tony sat on the bed beside her, his sensitive fingers gently over her mouth. "Don't laugh, Lenny," he said quietly. Then he stopped and just looked at her. He saw the mask lift from her face and her eyes, dark as a transparent quality. "Last night," he said, and his low voice filled the stillness of the room, "a man fell in love with a woman—"

"A painter-man with a nun?" she said softly, and the shadows retreated to her gray eyes. "Oh, Tony—" her arms were around his neck. He held her close, buried his face in the checkered cloth.

A laugh rose from her throat. A laugh like the sweet low rumble of a fluttering heart. "And I was tired of being gay," she whispered.

3RD SIDNEY

3rd Sidney, Jan. 15—The annual congregational meeting of Allen's Church was opened on Tuesday evening with singing hymns and prayer by the pastor, Rev. H. B. Johnson, and others present.

Rev. Johnson acted as chairman, with Mr. Wm. Wheeler being appointed church secretary for the evening, and the coming year.

After the minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted, the treasurer of the church, Mr. Arthur Bennett, gave his report showing total receipts $284.11, and being a deficit of almost $190. The auditors and maintenance of duty was $95.15. Mrs. Stanley Spafford, treasurer for the W.A., read an encouraging report showing a balance on hand of $29.00, a considerable advance of this being carried over from 1936.

Mrs. Frank Grills gave the W.M.S. report showing the total income $188.61. The Sunday school report was given by Donald McMullen showing a balance on hand of $46.96.

Mr. A. Bunnett was again appointed treasurer for 1937 and the old stewards were again appointed. It was also moved that Mrs. Stanley Spafford, the Sunday School Superintendent and his staff carry on for another year.

Carman Grills, Edgar Way, C. McMullen and Donald Johnson were appointed to receive the offerings and act as ushers. It was decided at the meeting to organize a Young People's Society. The ladies served a light lunch and the meeting was closed with prayer.

Several ladies from this line attended the W.M.S. meeting on Wednesday held at the home of Mrs. H. Hamilton, 2nd Line.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Parry were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Cook.

Mr. and Mrs. Abe Finkle, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hyde of Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hamilton, 2nd line were dinner guests on Tuesday of Mrs Harley Hoskin and family.

On Saturday evening the near neighbors of Mr. C. E. Sinclair's were invited to his home to enjoy a social evening.

After the oysters had been partaken of the evening was spent in visiting and music and singing with Mrs. Fred Westover at the piano.

NILES' CORNERS

Niles Corners, Jan. 13—Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Clapp and Vernon of Hillier were Saturday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. Reburn McDonald visited Mr. and Mrs. Will Mills on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Baird and Jean of Wellington visited Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mills Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Dafoe were visitors at Mr. Fulford's home Sunday night.

Mr. T. Smith of Bloomfield spent a few days the past week at N. Dafoe's.

A number from here attended the social evening under the auspices of the Anglican Church on Friday evening.

TARZAN'S QUEST (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Prince Shorov let his dark brooding eyes feast upon Jane. Had it not been for her, he would not have come on this hazardous expedition. But, to be near her he would risk much. How lithe was her figure, how lovely her face—how thoroughly desirable.

Had Tarzan seen any man gazing upon his mate with such sinister eyes, that man would have felt the strength of his mighty arm. Fortunately for the silken prince, Tarzan was deep in the forest. At that moment the ape-man was gazing aloft, sniffing the air.

"A bad storm is coming," he announced. Soon ragged clouds scudded across the sky like buffaloes stampeding in terror. Wind whipped the branches of the trees. The jungle grew dark. Thunder crashed; and rain fell in solid, blinding sheets.

Suddenly the ape-man cocked his ear. Above the moan of a plane rose to a crescendo, then died away. Tarzan scowled sadly. "If pity those who fly in such a storm. If they seek a resting place in the jungle, they will find none—except a final resting place."

CORRESPONDENCE

Loyalty Bill Introduced.

The Prime Minister had introduced the necessary bill to ratify the government's action in consenting to the British parliament's inclusion of Canada in the United Kingdom bill providing for the change in succession to the throne; for consultations consent to joining the loyalty address on the order paper for today.

"Action on the bill would be lacking in reality if it came after the message of loyalty had been passed," Mr. Woodsworth declared. He did not approve of the way the government had conducted itself in the constitutional crisis and he objected also to the fact that he had been asked for the call of allegiance to the new sovereign before taking his seat this session.

Against Waiving Right.

The motion set down for today, waiving the regulation forty-eight hours notice, was "another attempt to deprive members of their right to express themselves fully" Mr. Woodsworth declared. He did not press his objection but declared he would discuss the matter in the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King, in his statement to the House the government's correspondence on Riverdale abdication would not be tabled. He was adopting the attitude already taken by the British government and some of the Dominions. He would, however, make a statement later and would endeavor to satisfy questioners, he said.

Lord Tweedsmuir, presiding for the second time at the opening of parliament, read a throne speech that was brief but comprehensive, standing among the legislative proposals were:

Ratification of an Anglo-Canadian trade agreement now agreed in principle; creation of the Bank of Canada; amendments to assist in the establishment of unemployed youth; legislation for a trans-Canada air service; revision of the capital structure of the Canadian National Railways, home-repair loans, amendments to the Combines Investigation Act and removal of the gold clause from public and private bonds and debentures.

Proceedings Short.

Today's proceedings will probably be short. A great number of returns and reports will be tabled and Prime Minister Mackenzie King will lead in tributes to members who died during the recess. The main discussion will be on the message of loyalty to His Majesty and to this it is expected Mr. Hon. Hr. Geo. Perley, the leader of the Conservatives in the house, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Hon. Hr. Hackmore, leader of Social Credit group, and Mr. Woodsworth will lend support.

Premier Bennett will arrive home from his empire tour over week-end and is expected to be in his seat when the House resumes on Monday. The address in reply to the speech from the throne will be moved Monday by Norman McLeod (Lib., Essex West), and seconded by Dr. F. X. Venot (Lib., Gloucester).

BELLEVILLE'S APPROPIATION

Toronto Gets 13.9 P.C.

Assistance for Toronto, up to 75 per cent of relief costs, is set at a maximum of $4,788,000, a reduction of 36.9 per cent from 1936 subsidies. The Toronto subsidy, as well as all others, will be paid on a monthly basis.

Maximum 1937 grants announced by Mr. Croll are:

Kingston, $87,700; Port Arthur, $114,800; Oshawa, $1,300,800; London, $414,000; Kitchener, $180,100; Hamilton, $1,067,000; Fort William, $126,500; Chatham, $46,670; Brockville, $47,250; Brantford, $414,870; Belleville, $61,300; Sarnia, $57,200; Galt, $61,000; Guelph, $139,970; Owen Sound, $200,200; Owen Sound, $64,250; Peterborough, $99,000; Sudbury, $61,750; Stratford, $85,715; Woodstock, $20,800; Sault Ste. Marie, $97,500.

Towns included in today's list were Smiths Falls, $23,000; Barrie, $25,128; St. Mary's, $3,450.

No Additional Grants

Mr. Croll's letter to the municipalities says: "We must urge upon you the necessity of keeping your costs within the amount specified by this province plus the appropriation from your own funds. No additional consideration will be accorded from governmental sources. The Province is starting off 1937 with a federal contribution 25 per cent less than that prevailing a year ago, and the Dominion Government has announced a policy of progressive reduction in its grants-in-aid. We reserve the right to adjust our rate of assistance in case of hardship.

"There's no relief everywhere," commented Mr. Croll in making the announcement. "The economic situation is far healthier, and during 1936 we ran about 25 per cent lower than in 1935. We can look forward to a greater reduction in 1937."

Must Slash Relief

While there was less relief in 1936 than 1935, there is still too much, declared the Minister. "Municipalities haven't slashed into their rolls the way they should. In very many cases our maximum last year were too high, out of line with sound conditions, and cities didn't have to do the thorough house-cleaning we wanted to see." Municipalities will have to cleanse their rolls of all but legitimate cases of relief," Mr. Croll said. "They won't be permitted to cut standards, but they will be required to remove from the lists all those who have no valid rights to public help."

Mr. Croll said 1937 should see a steady reduction in the present expensive administrative units built up for relief in the larger centres.

"They were necessary, when relief was at its peak but the whole system has become top-heavy and we must be able to get away from present administrative expenditure," he added.

If the municipalities co-operate with the governments in reducing relief lists, they will continue to receive help on the 75 per cent basis, said Mr. Croll.

Hole Stands For Protest

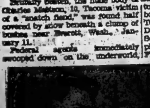
"That rate, the highest in relief history, stands for the present," he declared. "We cannot be more definite than that because we have no way of knowing what treatment we will receive from the Federal Government. They've announced progressive reduction in their grant-in-aid. We have to reserve the right to reconsider our basis of help to municipalities."

Mr. Croll's letter to the municipalities has a note of warning. It is: "It must be realized governmental assistance is contingent upon maintenance of adequate relief standards in your municipality. If these standards are not maintained then the government will take such action, under the terms of the Unemployment Relief Act, as it deems appropriate."

SUB-COMMITTEES CARNIVAL NAMED

Mammoth Program to Aid Y. O. N. Work is Planned

Efforts to assure success in the presentation of the second annual mammoth ice carnival at the Belleville Arena are not being spared by those interested in the venture. The energetic committee in charge met under Chairman Chir Kidd at the public room rooms last evening and the respective chairmen for the various sub committees, necessary were named, while the campaign to include a mammoth program was also launched.



The chairmen and committees named last night were — Tickets, Eddie Jones and Jack Hanley; Advertising and Publicity, Lorne McDougall and Herb Mott; Program Fred Johson and Ken. J. The Belleville Municipal Band will supply the special music for all events.

Kidnapped Boy Found Tortured, Murdered

Brutally beaten, the nude body of sterling every possible clue pointing Charles Mattson, 10, Tacoma victim of a "snatch fiend," was found half covered by snow beneath a clump of bushes near Everett, Wash., Jan. 13. (U.)

Federal agents immediately swooped down on the underworld, San Francisco.

Mattson boy. He was hunting rabbits in the woods when he stumbled over the nude body lying in the snow.

This Soundphoto graphically pictures the scene where Charles Mattson's bruised little body was found. Arrow points to what C-man believes was a valuable clue—footprints of the murderer.

THE DOUBLE-BARRED CROSS

International Symbol of the Crusade against Tuberculosis

As armies march across the pages of history, the cross is the basic design of their banners. Sometimes it is the cross alone, but more often it is the cross with other symbols added to it. Whether they are the banners of kings, or the emblems of knights, the cross has always been the basic design.

Good or bad, the cross was always blessed forth in the name of Christ, which gradually became a highly specialized study. After the decline of Christian era the cross became a symbol of knighthood. Knights, in the days of the Crusades, Christian knights, marched forth to do battle for his principles and to save to men the Holy Land from the infidel.

Crosses of all shapes, sizes and combinations have been used by nations, states, provinces, cities, guilds, fraternities and orders, but only one has found a religious symbol among the Latins which was very similar to the cross, the swastika, or crooked cross of the Nazis. It is the double-barred cross, which is the symbol of the fight against tuberculosis. This cross has been carried over into our modern civilization and since such precautions against disease still follow that age-old custom.

It was therefore quite natural that this was the war symbol of the Latin nations, and when the Latin nation was the only nation to adopt the international emblem should be chosen which would be principally the cross that was given careful consideration for all the associations that it has had in the past. It is international in character, yet it is universal appeal, and yet it should be distinctly different from anything else adopted international symbol such as the Red Cross.

Some of the most beautiful crosses are examples of the eighteen-nineties or thereabouts, although they were not used as a symbol that would have something like the significance and importance of the Red [illegible] Cross. It is the cross of Lorraine, the cross of Jerusalem, the cross of Malta, the cross of Calvary, the cross of Geneva,

FASCIST STATES COUNT COST OF INTERVENTION

Primate of Spain Calls on Basque Government to Aid Insurgent Forces

25,000 Men Maximum Germany Able to Send To Aid of Gen. Franco

MAN COSTS $5 A DAY

Minister of Economics Opposes Large Contribution to Rebels

Berlin, Jan. 16 (AP)—German experts were reported today to have made an appraisal of resources with an eye to the practical cost of Spain's intervention in Spain. They were said to have set a force of 25,000 troops as the maximum contribution possible to aid General Franco.

Both military and financial experts were said to have joined in setting that figure as the point beyond which it would be imprudent to go.

They expressed doubt anywhere near the 25,000 limit already had been send from Germany to General Franco's army.

According to the best information available, each man sent to Spain is costing Germany $5 a day.

Dr. Helmar Schacht, Minister of Economics, who has to find the money to pay the bills, is understood to have joined military men in opposing open aid of Gen. Franco with a large expeditionary force.

Italy Considers.

Rome, Jan. 16 (AP)—French approval of Premier Leon Blum's stringent terms to close France's frontier against volunteers to Spain was added strength today to Italy's German discussions of their future course in the civil war.

Action of the French Chamber of Deputies in granting such powers in a unanimous vote, Fascists said, would undoubtedly be thoroughly canvassed by Premier Mussini and German Air Minister Hermann Goering before reaching a final decision on their non-intervention stand.

The French plan, announced as designed to aid Germany and Italy in action from other nations, was likewise welcomed cautiously. Fascist newspapers stated the broadly conditional clauses, basing enforcement on a future international accord, gave Blum an opportunity to make a withdrawal and for the Spanish government behind professed non-intervention intentions.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Varcadia, Wis., Jan. 16 (CP)—Farmer Edward Sauer's luck has changed.

Last spring he suffered a broken hip when a cow kicked him. Then his barn burned, stay in a hospital he suffered livestock losses. His 22-year-old son died.

Soon after his discharge he broke his hip again while working over a valued horse which fractured a leg in a fall. The horse was destroyed.

Sauer's bad luck has been reversed at last. His friends came through with $2,000 in cash and cancelled debts.

Statistical studies of cancer," said the physician, "show that women suffer much less from cancer of the lips and of the mouth generally, than do men in this country.

"Perhaps the lip pomade is to be colored or colorless is not a medical problem."

They've pulled a buggy from the barn in which 3 babies were born in seven days. Three horses in a nearby corral took one look at it, shied and jumped over a high wire fence.

Denver, Jan. 16 (CP)—How did Britain kill scab Child Yalow Hand? Historians do not agree. Neither did William E. Roberts, scab, and John F. Gaylen, scab.

Detective George Magor said that Gaylen, the latest scab corpse to be found in the Indian, was shot in the head and right at a restaurant. And, Magor added, Roberts claimed self-defence even as he shouted "Cody didn't scalp him."

Gaylen probably will recover.

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 16 (CP)—Ontario's reformatory school farm is a problem to nole today. They are the growing pigging of a hole in the ground on the reformatory farm for an escape. The hole goods came along and filled it completely with water. Then the hole froze solid. Now nobody can get out.

DRIVE ON MALAGA

20,000 Fascists Force to Within Six Miles of Marabella

Madrid, Jan. 16.—(CP-Havas)—Government lines in Madrid's Northwestern University have been attacked today despite Insurgent attempts to break through under cover of darkness.

General Jose Miaja's defence Junta claimed that Fascist attempts to regain lost positions in the sector had been crushed with heavy losses to the attackers. The attack had lasted about two hours.

Malaga, Jan. 16 (AP) —General Gonzalo Queipo de Llano's southern Fascist army today pushed its coastal drive on the strategic government Port of Malaga.

His 30,000 troops, opposed by a Socialist force hurriedly reinforced from Madrid, hammered their way to within six miles of Marbella, believed to be the last obstacle to capture of Malaga.

Fascist headquarters announced the nationalists commanded had captured San Pedro Alcantara, across the Guadalmansa and Guadalmina rivers from Estepona, after 48 hours of heavy fighting.

KINGSTON PAIR HURT IN CRASH

Miss Ann Pitt Sustains Injuries and is Taken to Hospital

Napanee, Ont., Jan. 16.—(CP)— Two Kingston residents were injured one seriously eight miles east of Napanee last night when a car driven by John K. Bruce, 426 Brock street, Kingston, was allegedly forced off the road by an approaching transport. The car rolled sideways into a hydro pole. Miss Ann Pitt, Gananoque, Kingston, riding in the front seat with Bruce, suffered severe arm injuries and shock. She was taken to the house of Arch. Dowker and Provincial Highway and Dr.; T. M. Gallagher of Napanee, after Provincial Offi cer Ed. Wood the girl removed to Kingston hospital. Bruce only sustained minor injuries. Provincial Officer F. W. Barrett of Napanee, was assisting and is investigating.

The impact snapped a hydro pole breaking the power wires and plunged Napanee into darkness. In the rural area to the south lights were off for more than an hour.

Bayonne, France, Jan. 16 (CP) —Thousands of demonstrators were reported parading the streets of the insurgent Spanish city of Pamplona today, threatening to storm the city's prisons and exact "an eye for eye" vengeance on more than 2,000 Socialist prisoners.

The demonstrators were reported incensed over the alleged massacre early in the week of 208 insurgent hostages at the Basque capital of Bilbao in retaliation for an aerial bombardment.

Reports reaching the border said authorities had invoked strict military control to prevent an assault on the prisoners.

Similar incidents were said to be taking place in other cities and towns of Navarre province where popular feeling was running high, following the spread of the Bilbao reports.

Bilbao, Spain, Jan. 16 (CP-Havas)—The Basque government today created a warning on Extremist groups who staged demonstrations as a result of dissatisfaction with the moderate policies of the regime.

The Minister of the Interior warned that the government will proceed with firmness and will call upon Trade Union and political organizations to check riots on the loyalty of their members.

Detectives to Study Records Of Degenerates in Tacoma

Brutal Slaying of Mattson Boy Appears Work of a Demented Person

SUPPORTED BY FACTS

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 16.—(AP) — Records of Tacoma degenerates were studied in detail today as search for the killer of 10-year-old Charles Mattson swung back to Tacoma's criminal records.

Federal agents, a reliable source said, requested and received records of Tacoma criminal trials, including several sexual perversion cases.

The disclosure strengthened a frequently expressed theory the Mattson kidnapping and slaying was the work of a demented person who possibly knew the Mattson family personally, rather than a well-planned abduction by an organized band or a "big-time" criminal.

Supporting points included:

The manner of the kidnapping—seizure of little Charles December 27, at his home while his brother and sister looked on. Rather than abduction from street or playground.

Characterized as a "definite suspect" by Chief of Police Frix Hennissy, Arthur Madsen, 36, a former insane asylum inmate, was held at Sacramento, Calif.

Officers checked Madsen's story he had been in a Works Progress Administration Camp at Tillamook, Ore., December 27 and examined carefully a long knife he claimed to have purchased on a bus for one cent.

At Bellingham, Wash., Leigh Haskell Fowler, and admitted robber in jail since January 9, refused to answer questions about his activities prior to that date. He was kept in solitary confinement.

Suspect Arrested in Kentucky

Prestonburg, Ky., Jan. 16.—(CP) —Policeman Arthur Blackburn said today's man answering the description of the kidnapper killer of Charles Mattson at Tacoma, Wash., was under arrest here.

He said the man gave his name as "White" and his address as Pikeville, Va. Blackburn estimated the prisoner was about thirty years of age.

SLEEPLESS NIGHT FOR POPE PIUS

Vatican City, Jan. 16 (AP) — Pope Pius who reported was today after an almost sleepless night but he was holding to his ruling of restricted schedule and, after hearing Mass, devoted his time to audiences with Vatican officials.

Dr. Amnita Milani spent several hours attempting to ease the pain in the Pope's right leg and to relieve the Holy Father's shortness of breath.

The Pontiff's difficulty in breathing made it necessary to keep him propped up with pillows, almost to a sitting position.

STATE MEDICINE ASKED FOR ALTA.

Want it Available For Every Person at Earliest Date

Edmonton, Jan. 16 (CP)—State medicine for Alberta was urged in a resolution passed by the Alberta Social Credit League at the concluding session of its two-day convention here.

The resolution, which will be sent to the provincial government for action, called for state medicine within the reach of every person at the earliest possible date. The government also will consider resolutions favoring extension of the Mothers' Allowance Act, redrafting of relief regulations to cover border-line cases and amendments to the Communication Act to deal with burnt-out industrial workers.

The Provincial government was commended for its efforts to foster exchange of Alberta products with British Columbia organizations and was urged to extend the scheme.

The league, political organization behind the Social Credit Government, decided to amend its constitution to provide for women's auxiliaries and youth associations.

A resolution urging a government investigation of every wholesale, manufacturing and financial company operating in Alberta was discussed and tabled, it was learned in unofficial circles.

Mystery Woman Fails to Get $37,000 Nobel Peace Money

'ACTING ON ORDERS'

Oslo, Norway, Jan. 16 (AP)— Police today seized the passport of the "mystery woman" who attempted to collect the $37,000 Nobel Peace Prize awarded to the German pacifist, Carl Von Ossietzky.

The woman, supposedly a German, who gave the name of Mrs. Alexandra Kreutzberger, was confined to her hotel where she refused to see reporters. She said she was secretary to a Dr. Kurt Wannow, of Berlin, and was acting at his instructions.

"I don't know Ossietzky or his wife personally and am only acting on orders," she declared.

It was understood the bank, to which the prize committee entrusted the funds for payment, turned down Mrs. Kreutzberger because it did not consider her authorization satisfactory."

Catholic Church in Spain Calls on Basque Gov't. to Help Insurgents

London, Jan. 16 (AP)—Competent British sources reported today that more than 1,000 volunteers from France and more than 1,000 from Italy had joined government and insurgent sides in Spain within the last week.

The French Chamber of Deputies today voted Premier Blum broad power to stop such volunteers, but only in conjunction with other nations concerned.

There was no recent information concerning German aid to Spain, but reliable estimates put the number now serving there between 10,000 and 12,000.

Italian volunteers in Spain total at least 10,000 and possibly 20,000, informed persons said.

The first volunteers reaching Madrid from France, it was reported, were half Frenchmen and half from other countries.

Letter Sent by Prelate

Avila, Spain, Jan. 16 (CP Havas) —The Roman Catholic Church in Spain today called upon the autonomous Basque government, which has supported the Spanish government, to rally to the Insurgent cause.

In an open letter to President Jose Antonio Aguirre, Isidro Cardinal Tomas Goma, Primate of Spain and Archbishop of Toledo, urged that the head of the Basque government at Bilbao consider the advantages of a larger Spanish State, instead of the "lamentable error" of attempting to establish "a series of little republics."

Hero Condemned

Hendaye, France, Jan. 16 (AP) —Fascist press dispatches from Burgos, Spain, reported today an Insurgent courtmartial had condemned Lieutenant General Emilio Mola, one of the "twin heros" in the suppression of the 1934 revolt of Catalan Separatists to death.

Previous press reports from Burgos said Mola, 54, commander of the Government garrison there before the revolt broke out last July, was charged with treason.

John Barrymore's Romance Ending in the Divorce Court

Honeymoon Disrupted by False Accusations Says Elaine

CLAIMS JOHN JEALOUS

Los Angeles, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The cyclonic romance of Elaine (Artist) Barrie, 21, and John (Caliban) Barrymore, began in a hospital, flared in public and ended in a court country chase by plane and train—and today it was in the Divorce Court.

The dark-eyed New York girl testified to have a stage career, charged:

The actor struck her ("roughened me up a bit" she said at the time) during a New Year's party at Hollywood night club. Threatened "to kill or seriously maim" her. Called her "violent, vile, obscene, indecent, profane or opprobrious name."

And all because he was jealous over her stage aspirations.

In filing suit yesterday to end her brief career as Barrymore's fourth wife—they were married Nov. 9 at Yuma, Ariz., after an airplane elopement—she also charged their honeymoon was disrupted by his false accusations of her attentions to other men.

Barrymore Silent

At the home of his trainer, Ken Kelly, where he has stayed since the separation two weeks ago, Barrymore declined to comment.

Asserting she is without funds, Miss Barrie asked for reasonable alimony", she requested that Barrymore be required to pay $10,000 attorney's fees and $1,000 court costs out of his earnings, which she estimated in excess of $3,000 weekly.

"I do not intend to ask for permanent alimony," she declared. "All I want is funds to enable me to live for the present and sorry it is Hollywood night club. Threatened all of luck."

Expressing concern for community property of securities, cash, contracts, and real estate she said are in Barrymore's possession, Miss Barrie asked a court order to restrain him from disposing of hypothecating them.

She is rehearsing for the new play which opens Feb. 1 in San Francisco.

City and District News

QUICK ACTION PREVENTS FIRE

The quick action and presence of mind of William Elliott, co-operator of Elliott's garage, on Main-street street averted what might have been a serious fire on Friday. It is believed a short circuit ignited either the insulation of the new electric pump in front of Elliott's garage. Mr. Elliott saw the outbreak of flames and immediately shut also the garage and procured a fire extinguisher, by which he successfully combated the flames and put the fire out without damage to the pump. Had the fire gained headway and entered the gasoline tanks below the street, serious results might have happened. The fire department was not needed, owing to Mr. Elliott's coolness of mind.

H. J. ALLIN FOR SANE ECONOMY

New Chairman of Board of Education Has Served 7 Years as Trustee

Mr. H. J. Allin, newly elected Chairman of the local Board of Education, who was indicted in office at the inaugural meeting last evening for school year, is a chairman service on the Board with his election to the highest office in that civic body. One of the youngest and more active members, he has served a record of many new reforms during his tenure of office, chief of which is the introduction of the present "Fee System" of supplying children of public schools with necessary supplies for class room work during the school year. As chairman of the Supplies Committee, a position he had during five of the seven years he has served, he had fostered this idea until its ultimate adoption two years ago. It will estimate that savings to parents in the operation of this system approximates about $4,000 per year," he declares.

Born in Hampton, Ontario, Mr. Allin has been a continuous resident of Belleville since 1894 when he came to this city and accepted employment with the Bell Telephone Company. A chairman of the Supplies Committee, a position he had during five of the seven years he has served, he had fostered this idea until its ultimate adoption two years ago. It will estimate that savings to parents in the operation of this system approximates about $4,000 per year," he declares.

Interested in the development of athletics in the city's schools, Mr. Allin is well known to the boys, and among the younger pupils and has been a keen exponent of physical culture and field and rowing in Friday's local police court, J. J. McCann, District Radio Inspector of the Department of Marine, Ottawa, stated today.

The radio inspector added other such delinquents were being sought out in Belleville where a like decided decrease in radio licenses was noted in 1936, in comparison to the previous year of 1935, it was stated.

MRS. EARL GAINFORTH (Wooler)

The death occurred at the Belleville General Hospital on Friday night, Jan. 15, of Mrs. Earl Gainforth of Wooler, Ont., age 41 years. She had been a patient at the hospital since Jan. 6th.

MISS AMANDA A. SPRAGUE

After being in failing health for some time Miss Amanda A. Sprague passed away early this Saturday morning, January 16th, at her residence, 207 McDougall Ave. in Thurlow township, just beyond the city boundary.

The late Miss Sprague was born in the second concession of Tyendinaga township, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Smith Sprague. Thirty-six years ago she came to reside here and by all who knew her she was held in high esteem. In religion she was a member of John Street United Church and while health permitted she took an active part in church work.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. John Boldwick, Picton, Ont., and Mrs. A. Gordon-Smith, McDonald Ave., Belleville. One sister, Mrs. Calabrine Thompson, one brother, Samuel Gordon Sprague, passed away some years ago.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

"Past Officers' Night" at O.E.S. Belleville Chapt.

"Past Officers' Night" was an interesting event at Belleville Chapter No. 56, Order of Eastern Star, last evening. All chairs were filled by Past Matrons and Past Patrons who were welcomed on behalf of the Chapter by Mrs. Thelma Liddle Worthy Matron and Mr. Charles Brown, Worthy Patron.

The degree of the Order was splendidly exemplified by this group of past officers under the direction of Mrs. Flossie Smith, P.M., who accompanied the ritual on these officials for the privileges of being allowed to work. Mr. Arthur Naylor was Patron.

The presence of Mr. Quintin Boyd, Grand Patron, and other visitors, many from a distance, was a feature of the evening.

Mr. Harvey Stewart, a member of this Chapter, Toronto, now a resident in this city, was presented with an honorary membership by Mrs. Charles Hamilton, on behalf of the chapter, to which the recipient made a very grateful response.

Mrs. Liddle thanked the officers of the night for their excellent work. Buffet luncheon and a dance brought to a conclusion a wonderful evening.

DONALD REILLY BITTEN BY DOG

Owner Instructed to Keep Canine Under Leash in Future

Donald Reilly, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Reilly, 21 Everett Street, was severely bitten by a dog near his home yesterday afternoon. Little Donald had previously been in the habit of playing with the canine, that belonged to a neighbor, without injury on previous occasions. The dog bit the little kid on the right arm, tearing the right sleeve out of the boy's coat and police were investigated and instructed the owner of the dog to keep it in custody in the future.

The first arrest to be reported in the city was on the police blotter today, the inmate of the cell block last night being arrested on a charge of intoxication. The assailant was promptly let his penal liberty early this morning to repear at Monday's police court appear at Monday's police court on a charge of intoxication.

Eleven transients occupied the cell block at the police station last night, while the first motor accident of the year was also reported last night. The crash proved rather trivial, however, only a bent fender resulting when a truck and motor car collided on Front Street.

UNKNOWN MAN SENDS DOLLARS

Three Local Men Are Mystified by Envelopes

Dollar bills in plain envelopes, unmarked by the sender's address, and containing from one to ten dollars origin or purpose beyond the bare fact that they are donated for Brockville the day before!

That is the latest mystery that confronts three men whom have now received these anonymous bills all in the same day in the same separate envelopes. Not even a shred of paper was contained in the envelope with the bills to help unravel the mystery.

"Take a look at this," invited one of the local men to a friend who had walked in his office while the letter was being opened. Here's a chap with plenty of money to spend—so much that he must be tuning outside directories to obtain addresses. I don't know anyone in Brockville who might want to send me a dollar."

The same sentiment was echoed by the two other recipients of the John-dollar.

It will be recalled that a few months ago, Mr. Paul Lalonde, well known resident received one of the same mysterious anonymous envelopes from a United States address. No explanation was obtained as yet as to the sender.

CHAMBER NAMES FOUR DIRECTORS

H. E. Fairfield, E. V. Illsey, W. H. Morton, Leo B. Riggs Named

The final election for the position of directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce was concluded yesterday afternoon with the return of the following candidates:

H. E. Fairfield, E. V. Illsey, W. H. Morton and Leo B. Riggs.

In the Chamber of Commerce elections there is never any canvassing for the candidates, the candidates accepting whatever may be the will of the voters without any previous attempts to influence the electorate.

Messrs. Fairfield, Illsey, Morton and Riggs are elected for a two year term. Last year Messrs. J. B. Boyce, H. W. Ackerman, Mackenzie Smith and A. A. Mahbood, and E. F. Bernstein were also elected for two year terms. Following the making up a directors' board of nine members.

747 CASES HEARD IN POLICE COURT

Police Constable Gives Yearly Report For Belleville

Startling figures were shown when Chief Constable Alex Kidd submitted his report to members of the Belleville Police Commission at their annual meeting this morning held in the police buildings. Chief Kidd's report showed there had been 747 cases heard in the police courts during the year 1936, the largest number recorded in any year. The decrease in the number of break-ins was attributed to the efficient work of the Belleville police force, installed by Sergeant Arthur Booth last spring. A full report will appear in Monday's issue.

House Sings National Anthem After Loyalty Message is Adopted

Ottawa, Jan. 16—(CP)—With the formalities of the session ended the House of Commons will settle down on Monday to the task, mainly of routine, to prove a short session. The address in reply to the Speech from the Throne will be moved on that and this will precipitate a debate in which all members will no doubt may praise or criticize the government.

Yesterday the House paid tribute to two members who died during the recess after which it sang the hymn of devotion and loyalty to King George was carring unanimously.

But before it passed J. S. Woodsworth took strong objection to the proceeding by which His Majesty became King of Canada and to the manner of presenting measures dealing with succession to parliament.

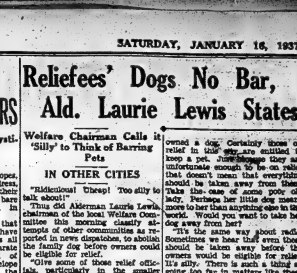
Reliefees' Dogs No Bar, Ald. Laurie Lewis States

Welfare Chairman Calls it 'Silly' to Think of Barring Pets



IN OTHER CITIES

"Ridiculous! Cheap! Too silly to talk about!"

That Ald Alderman Laurie Lewis, chairman of the local Welfare Committee this morning classify attempts of other communities as reported in news dispatches, to abolish the family dog before persons could be eligible for relief.

"Give some of those relief officials, particularly in the smaller places, a little authority . . .

"Why we here in Belleville would not bother asking such a question of a relief applicant as to whether they owned a dog. Certainly those on relief in that age, entitled to keep a pet. Just because they are unfortunate enough to be on relief that doesn't mean that everything should be taken away from them. Why, some of the poor people have old lady. Perhaps her little dog means more to her than anything else in the world. Would you want to take her little dog away from her?

"It's the same way about radio. Sometimes we hear that even those receiving relief have savey before the owners would be eligible for relief. It's silly. There is such a thing as going too far in matters like these and all those relief administrators do have to inject a little humanity into the business of giving out relief."

The sharp voice of the bearded leader of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation injected the only note of controversy into the passing of an address of loyalty to the new King. It was the chief business of the sitting which ended with members and gallery visitors rising to sing "God Save The King."

Prime Minister Mackenzie King moved the adoption of the message with Sir George Perley, acting Conservative leader, as seconder. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Quebec leader, endorsed it in the French language and John Blackmore, Social Credit leader, joined in the expression on behalf of his party.

Mr. Woodsworth made it clear he did not object to the passage of the resolution but he contended it should not be passed until parliament had passed the bill changing the succession to the throne.

Woodsworth's Contention

Mr. Woodsworth said he did not believe George VI or the King until the parliament had passed the necessary legislation

He was not so much concerned with who occupied the throne as with the rights of members of parliament.

He regretted having to interject a note in this resolution and declared this could have been avoided if the Prime Minister had delayed bringing in this address, until the Succession Bill had been disposed of.

When the succession was altered, Mr. Woodsworth said, he believed it should not have been considered for members of the House of Commons in some new order of things. Balance before taking their seats. He had not considered it important enough, however, "to make a scene."

"I have no desire to do any mudsling," said Mr. Woodsworth, "but the people are entitled to all the facts in relation to the King."

It was the intent of the government on Dec. 10 was constitutional there was no necessity for the bill gov-erniment had introduced in parliament.

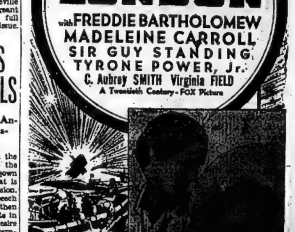
Refuses to Modify Statement

Why, he asked, should the Liberal party be in a position to decide who is to be King of the Canadian people. Mr. King interrupted when Mr. Woodsworth said "the cost of pleasing the British government had been too great."

Mr Woodsworth refused to modify his statement. He charged the Statute of Westminster had been made a farce. The Canadian government had simply "rubber stamped" a decision of the British government.

He argued the government had no authority to act on behalf of Canada in associating this country with the passage of the parliament giving effect to the abdication of Edward VIII and the accession of the new king.

It was strange, said Mr. Woodsworth, that it was up for the rights of the Canadian parliament, but would have to oppose Mr. Mackenzie King who, in opposition, always made himself a champion of those rights.



Statute of Westminster

If the Prime Minister could place a new king in authority over Canada in defiance of existing parliament the Prime Minister could declare a king by virtue of the government had made the Statute of Westminster a farce, for that statute declared that no change in the succession of the throne could be made without the consent of the parliaments of the Dominions, he declared.

Mr. Woodsworth King left discussion of the events leading to the abdication of Edward VIII until a later occasion. He said these events served to bring out clearly the dual nature of the relationship of the king and the people, consecration on the part of the crown to what was highest and best and loyalty on the part of the people to the crown as a symbol of the most cherished things in their collective life.

RELIEF OFFICE IS MODERNIZED

All-Night Work Completely Transforms Rooms at City Hall

Working all night, carpenters had by this morning completed the transformation of the city relief office, completely changing over the quarters allotted in the lower section of the city hall in an effort to provide greater efficiency for the staff and greater administration of relief. Under the new system tedious waiting of individual applicants formerly noted, is expected to be avoided.

Working from plans drawn up yesterday by the city engineer, under the direction of the administrator Leslie Lewis, the old glass wickets and counters have been moved to new positions and a complete change in layout of the office was also made.

Under the new plan, applicants who will use the main door, of the hall will until spring, will pass through the front side door directly to the desk of Miss Lynch, in the relief office. Situated at the north end of the counter in which the filing system is kept this desk will give the necessary authority to proceed to the counter, where vouchers may be secured. East of the main counter, a second counter will be set up where distribution of clothing will be made. This will be made.

Clerks of the office not connected with the filing system will be allotted larger quarters and more privacy at the rear of the counter.

Using relief carpenter labor, the change over is being made without cost to the city, except for the livery tone paint which will be used to tint the floor similar to an efficient business office.

FAMOUS RESTAURATEUR DIES

New York, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Anatolio Boccardo, 57, restaurateur the friend of many famous people while teaching New York cooking the meaning of an Italian table d'hote dinner, died Thursday. He was 89.

O. Henry, author of the Gargantuan English, the Ottawa actress, Ida Tarbell, the novelist and historian were familiar with the expansive charm of the Italian proprietor of the old Lafayette hotel and restaurant in Greenwich Village.

RESTRICTIONS ON BEER CONTINUED

Winnipeg, Jan. 16.—(CP)—Manitoba will continue present restrictions against beer brewed in other provinces "for the sake of local self defence." It is announced by Premier John Bracken.

In an address yesterday to the Manitoba Liberal Association executive, the Premier said the additional $1.20 charged by the government Liquor Commission on each case beer over the $3.30 charged for Manitoba-brewed beer would be continued unless the legislature decided upon some other restrictive measure.

SEAWAY PACT IS NOW ASSURED

Deep Water St. Lawrence Shipping Route May be Realized

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—From high authorities in both the United States and Canada came assurances today of renewed efforts to develop a deep water St. Lawrence River shipping route under an internal treaty, that may also cover a vast public power development.

President Roosevelt said this country was discussing with Canada a formal conference on a new treaty and the Department of External Affairs at Ottawa confirmed that negotiations were underway.

Mr. Roosevelt, who said he did not know if a new treaty would be ready for submission to the U.S. Senate at its present session, declared its physical aspects would include everything from the Great Lakes at the head of Lake Superior to the sea.

The statement was made in answer to a question whether the Democratic platform plank which Palls power still improvement project—Niagara Falls—Ottawa did not comment on this phrase of the treaty.

The Senate refused two years ago to ratify a St. Lawrence waterway treaty that called for international co-operation in completing a 27-foot channel from the Great Lakes Cities to the Atlantic Ocean.

President—Mrs. H. W. Ackerman.
Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Ross Thompson.
Sec-Treas.—Mrs. Anna Hurley.
Chairman of House Committee—Mrs. R. A. Bonter.
Chairman of Entertainment—Mrs. C. A. Cameron.

BABY RACE WILL DUE FOR DELAY

Counsel For Some Parties Appeal Against Certain Rulings

Toronto, Jan. 16.—(CP)—Half a million dollars in gold at the end of a stork-studded, writ-plastered rainbow, the Baby Race will be withheld from the winner, Lucy Millar is due for further delay in the courts before any appeals filed for Monday can be heard.

Counsel for some appealing against recent court rulings in connection with the will said today that Monday with the postponed until the end of next week or the following week, in the event of the first court session over the will, Mr. Justice W. E. Middleton ruled that the Baby Race clause was void. He also declared that illegitimate children do not inherit the estate.

Appealing against the validity of the will are Mrs. Lyle Axell, West and Alexander Butler, niece and nephew of Nancy Vance Millar, the baby's grandmother-foster mother who left the will. They claim the will is void as motherhood in question is "contrary to public policy", encouraging illegitimacy. Motherhood is not valid. As next of kin, they say the $500,000 should revert to them. Counsel for Mrs. West and Butler are Sam Factor, K.C., and I. F. Hellmuth, K.C.

C. H. McKeown, K.C., is acting for Lucy Millar, the baby in charge in the derby. Five of her 10 children may be ruled out of the race by the illegitimacy ruling since her husband left her before they were married. Court workers argue the eligibility of her family.

ANN HARDING INTENDS TO WED

Husband-to-be is Symphony Orchestra Leader, Werner Janssen

LONDON, Jan. 16.— (AP)—Ann Harding, the picture star married to Werner Janssen, New York Symphony Orchestra conductor, today filed their intentions of marriage at London Registry office.

Miss Harding, now conducting in London, has seen a great deal of the actress since her flight to England last year to retain custody of her young daughter. The Hollywood star is also acting over the British stage since then.

Miss Harding came across the United States and Canada last June to take her daughter outside the jurisdiction of American Courts where her former husband, Harry Bannister was suing every legal weapon to gain custody.

Miss Harding recently won permission from Hollywood courts to bring her daughter Jane, to England until next May. Then she plans to return to Hollywood with Jane and Janssen.

OPTOMETRIC SERVICE and OPTICAL MATERIALS

In both factors the public throughout the Province is being deceived by the advertising of some optical stores which use the "low-price" bait.

In the case of factor No. 1 your only safeguard is to be found in a known reputation and actual comparison—which I readily invite.

As to the latter factor (lenses) you ensure protection by demanding a CERTIFICATE. Those who will be satisfied by inferior lenses will be surprised at how cheaply unscrupified service can be supplied.

Trenton and District

Trenton, Jan. 16 (Special)—The swimming season for 1937 officially opened here yesterday when Ross Brummell, Dundas Street, a husky local youth jumped off the municipal docks into the chilly swift moving waters of the Trent River. In other seasons Lee Angel Station for the year, but because the Spring lump and always was the late evening that Ross took the fatal swim in the Fall. A number watched Ross Brummell from the town bridge and lightened their overcoats when he climbed from the water in the vicinity in which

Elect Officers

On Thursday afternoon fifty-five ladies of St. George's Anglican Parochial Guild met in their club rooms in Canterbury hall for the annual meeting. The members and guests were welcomed by the President, Mrs. M. O. Waldorf, Mrs. Thomas Taylor on behalf of the Guild thanked the executive for the excellent arrangements and hoped that many more social functions might be held throughout the year. It was encouraging to learn that the financial allocation set for each group had been attained. All office having been declared vacant Rev. F. A. Smith took the chair and conducted the election of officers. The retiring president, Mrs. M. C. Waldorf and officers Mrs. W. Simpson, and Mrs. T. Spear were called to the floor. Mrs. Waldorf was presented with a basket of roses by Miss E. Armstrong Officers selected were: President, Mrs. F. A. Smith; Pre-sident, Mrs. M. C. Waldorf; First Vice President, Miss E. Armstrong; Second Vice President, Mrs. C. L. Bonter; Third Vice President, Mrs. R. Bonter; Fourth Vice President, Mrs. F. Little; Secretary, Mrs. J. Utley; Treasurer, Mrs. A. O'Neil. Mrs. Jones presided at the afternoon luncheon were: Mrs. G. L. Bonter, Misses E. and D. Armstrong, Mrs. M. C. Waldorf, Mrs. F. A. Smith, Mrs. H. Wood, Mrs. J. Utley, Mrs. W. Miller, Mrs. T. Spear, Mrs. J. H. Kinney, Mrs. F. Little, Mrs. W Simpson.

David L. Silverthorne paid $7.36 for violating the H.T.A. and Allen Baker was fined $7.25 for speeding.

Fred Cooper of Gardenville, pleaded guilty to transferring old ducks in a sealed package and was assessed $12.86, Cooper said he did not have any money and was granted time to settle. Ten days in Belleville Jail is the penalty on default of payment.

Albert C. Marion of Lindsay charged with unlawfully obtaining three mattresses and a small amount of cash from Mr. M. Mitchell in November under false pretenses was remanded till Monday January 18th, for sentence. Local authorities brought Marion from Lindsay for trial. Evidence revealed, that Marion told Mrs. Mitchell he would remodel her feather mattresses at his place of business. A check up showed that Marion operated in Cobourg for a short period but had been out of Jail for three months. The finger print report of the accused man is returning from Ottawa and will be here on Monday.

Suggests Zwick's Island for Airport

The possibility that this city may approach the federal government in an effort to secure one third of the $1,000,000 allotted for construction of airports built by cities on the proposed trans-Canada air route, Belleville, it was pointed out, is on this air line route.

Step into the front of it just for a little while until I sound out some of the rest of the council on the matter," requested the alderman. "But I think it's a good idea. We have the island property in fact already earthly use for anything, and if we did have an airport, it might attract a lot of business our way. The whole project which would give our unemployed work, shouldn't cost very much for our two thirds share."

"We haven't estimated the cost of building an air port there, because we thought the consideration of an air port on the island to council some time ago I was not asked for an estimate," stated City Engineer Chas. Mott, later.

"However, there's lots of room there. If we took eight or ten more feet off the top to level the Island, we could fill in the marsh and make about eleven acres of good landing space. The island could be made into a place suitable for both land and sea planes", pointed out the city engineer.

MORE THAN 400 SETS UNLICENSED

Percentage of licenses secured for the installation of radio sets in Belleville shows many sets yet unlicensed for the year. While registrations in most other cities increased for the year 1936-37 to the end of December last, Belleville report shows 2372 registered as against 2297 registered for the year ending Mar. 31 last.

District Inspector J.J. McWatters stated to The Ontario Intelligencer today that last year's total in Belleville of 2297 is thought to be about 80 per cent. of the number of sets operated. In most centres there are fewer sets in use than there were a year ago as a result of the better times. For instance in Kingston for the year ending Mar. 31, there were 3807 registrations as against 4363 up to Dec. 31, 1936. It is believed that this total will reach 4,000 in Kingston by Mar. 31, the end of the present fiscal year.

It is believed there are about 400 unlicensed sets in Belleville for the present year ending Mar. 31. "Next week we are going to spend two days here and proceed with the enforcement of the law," said Mr. McWatters.

He also stated that steps are to be taken to force sellers of radio sets to secure from purchasers before purchase receipts showing that licenses have been secured.

Port Hope registrations stand at 1038 up to Dec. 31 as against 972 for the year ending Mar. 31, 1936, and in Peterborough the last year's total licenses are 4224 as against 3667 for the previous year.

The Belleville registration this year does not show up as well as Trenton, where they stand at 705 as against 730 for the year ending Mar. 31st, 1936. Inspector McWatters said that a house-to-house canvass is to be made one day the week of January 18, in Trenton to clean up the arrears in licenses.

New Year's Baby Baptised In Solemn Ritual at Belle

The youngest star to play in front of the footlights in the city of Belleville if not in the Dominion of Canada made an auspicious debut last night at the Belle Theatre, when Belleville's Baby 1937, Master Douglas Ronald Mitchell to you, played the leading role in a one-act drama called "The Baptism" in front of one of the largest crowds in the history of the theatre.

But the youthful "star", he is exactly sixteen days old today was oblivious to the glare of the footlights, the buzz of the crowded auditorium, and the plaudits of the crowd, which at the end of the scene, did first appearance on the stage. Por wrapped in the warmth of a snug wool blanket, the eight pounds of gurgling masculinity which came to bless the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Mitchell on New Year's Day, slumbered peacefully through his successful "first night".

Not even the touch of the baptismal water as it was sprinkled over his tiny wrinkled face by the Rev. L. A. Wright, who conducted the service disturbed the healthful baby slumber of Belleville's Public Baby No. 1.

Tiny Hand Clutched Blanket

Tiny pink hands clutching the folds of the blanket. A tiny chest rose and fell in regular breathing. A small cluster took moved slowly at one time only to relax again. Then as the words "I baptize thee child Douglas Ronald Mitchell", sounded clearly in the dense hush of the theatre, tiny eyelids flickered for a moment as if in mute recognition, of the name, which he will bear through life, to close again in peaceful slumber.

As if a magic wand had been waved over the auditorium, which was filled to capacity with a laughing, talking crowd of people an hour before the service began, the appearance of the principals of this human drama brought a sudden silence silence.

Headed by Kirna, psychic marvel, whose generosity of the gift of his marvellous powers is give Belleville a good start in the year, echoed in the splendid response of the city and district public, the tiny cavalcade moved across the stage in front of the footlights.

Immediately following came Mrs. George Forhan, wife of the popular manager of the theatre, leading the young "leading man" in her arms. Then came, Mrs. Mitchell looking slightly nervous but with a gleam of pride in their eyes. The proud father, Mr. Mitchell followed. In a low voice, which rang out clear in the tense silence of the auditorium Mr. Wright read the baptismal lines in firm clear voices the young parents made the responses.

Crowd Most Respectful

"Out in front" crowd rows of faces were etched against the dimmed lights of the theatre. The most expectant faces, wide-eyed and breathless, the faces of all ages and from all walks of life sat silent and respectful as the simple ceremony was performed before their eyes.

Somewhere in the large audience a woman sobbed. Men moved uneasily in their seats. Children sat up straighter and adjusted themselves in an effort to get closer. Then as the solemn words of the Benediction rang out in the silence, heads bowed involuntarily, and the service was over.

The baptism of Douglas Ronald, the first baptism in Belleville this year, and Belleville's 1937 Baby preceded the final appearance of Kirna, the psychic sensation, who electrified Belleville audiences all week with his uncanny predictions, at a midnight performance in the Belle Theatre last night.

The New Year Baby and sponsors for the event are indebted to Mr. L. S. Wight for not only giving his services gratis but also for a cash donation to the fund.

NEAR AND FAR

Would you learn how close is creation?
You will not time the tide
That dances in tune to a throbbing moon
Across the oceanside.
But think how the pulse of a bridegroom
Can rhythm the heart of a bride.

Would you learn how close is creation?
You will search intent
The wood that ties the starry skies
To form one firmament,
But think how hope holds a people
On a great adventure bent.

Would you learn how close is creation?
You will not wist the way
A kindly sun counts one by one
Each blossom and blade its ray,
But think how the love of the Father
Is portioned us day by day.

MRS. CALVIN COOLIDGE, widow of a recent president of the United States, has been voted an honorarium of $5,000 a year by the United States Senate. President Coolidge was a Republican but the measure was approved by President Roosevelt and the resolution was moved by Senator Carter Glass, a Democrat of Virginia, and carried unanimously. President Coolidge will be known longer for his quiet personality than he will for the high position for president "I do not choose to run", than for anything else that happened during his term of office.

CONFIDENCE IS THE KEY WORD FOR 1937—all business, big and little, has taken a deep breath after finishing a more or less strenuous year and caught a vision of Bigger and Better-Business right ahead and fewer and smaller hurdles to avoid. Letters from business executives since the New Year are all keyed high with confidence and courage and indicate the determination to take full advantage of returning prosperity. Here's an extract from a letter recently received from Robert C. Smith, President of the R .C. Smith & Son Limited, Advertising Service Agency, Toronto:

"Another year has dawned . . . another opportunity for you and me, and the other brewers of wood and carriers of water, to buckle on our harness and with renewed vigor and determination do our full share of building up in those with whom we come in contact a loyal and healthy confidence in our present industrial system. The general trend of business in Canada during the year just closed would make a splendid theme on which to build a story of achievement and service to the public. A few . . . a very few farsighted businessmen like W. H. Kellogg have told it. They have consistently taken the people into their confidence and told them not only about their goods but about themselves . . . told of their years of struggle and their histories and ideals. They have added a human personal touch to every sale. They have made not only customers but friends. Today is the very beginning of another year Mr. W. K. Kellogg again announces his faith in newspapers . . . one of the factors with which he built up one of the largest industries of its kind in the world. It must be exceedingly pleasing to you, as the business head of one of these newspapers that has consistently co-operated during the past year in building up such a record of good will and friendship among your readers, to know you have helped to create this renewed feeling of confidence.

W. K. Kellogg is famous as the originator of Kellogg's All Bran and other ready-to-eat breakfast foods.

Big Canadians of Yesteryear

No. 1

By J. Lambert Payne

(Copyright Reserved)

There humble start and what they did is an inspiration to every one capable and ambitious young Canadian—the author's personal recollections of them.

I have a single purpose in writing this story, of sketches about big Canadians of yesteryear. It is to inspire the youth of today to emulate their example of courage and hard work.

These big men were not always big. Bigness was not thrust upon them. They had to earn it. Nor, once of them was born with a silver spoon in his mouth. Very few of them ever sat in a high school or a college. The long upward road was neither smooth nor easy. They met with competition at every step.

They made their way to high place by their own efforts, their own initiative, their own genius and their own integrity. There are a thousand ways of making a living today that were not open to them. There is more room at the top than there was a hundred years ago.

Starting Point of Big Men

Sir John Macdonald was the son of a struggling Scottish merchant in the little hamlet of Sone Mills on the Bay of Quinte.

Hon. Alexander MacKenzie began in servitude as a stonemason at Dunkeld, Scotland.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was the son of poor parents, struggling farmers at St. Lin, Province of Quebec, but he was rich in those qualities which ennoble manhood.

Sir MacKenzie Bowell was an industrious boy who started life as a printers' devil in Belleville.

Sir Charles Tupper, son of a Baptist minister, began as a country doctor.

Sir John Thompson was still a child when his father moved from a farm to the city of London, grew a cow over every side of the farm and died a pauper.

Hon. A. G. Blair was born in a cottage in Fredericton and, unaided by money or prestige, won his way to lofty provincial and federal honors.

Hon. H. R. Emmerson first saw the light of day in the humble home of an itinerant Baptist minister in the village of Musgrevitle, New Brunswick.

Hon. W. S. Fielding had nothing but the spur of poverty and limitations to carry him to high noble rank.

It Was a Long Climb

Of these ten distinguished Canadians, all served more than in the capacity of private secretary when they had climbed the long ladder to fame in our public life. The others I knew with intimacy. I know their life story, and am going to tell you about it.

There are others about whom I shall write, and who were not politicians. Sir William Van Horne had been a passenger agent. Donald MacKenzie and Sir Donald Mann were lumbermen who had hard sledding before they reached prosperity which ran into hundreds of millions. James J. Hill of the old Sandford Fleming had been village boys.

These were the men who did things, who helped to shape the destiny of their country, men of them took part in the planning of Confederation. Others brought about the building of the Canadian Pacific and other big railway systems. These were great constructive forces in our national history. One marked them off to nationhood, and the other to a transcontinental unity, strength and a new outlook. Of the great railway builders, I shall have something to say in a succeeding sketch.

Only the blind and timid believe that opportunity has fled forever. What chances had any of these men had when they began? I am not writing? Yet what they did can be repeated.

Wilderness to St. James

I have before me a picture of the drawing of the last spike of the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway. That event created new national interests. Tremendous results followed. Yet neither the setting nor the actors stand out as they do in the historian so much as the men who appear in this scene. I know specifically all of them.

First, there was Sir Donald A. Smith, later Lord Strathcona, he wielding the sledge hammer, and quite appropriately, for his part in the great enterprise had been official. That such an honor would come to this man who entered into the dreams of the lad who left rural Scotland in his teens and went to bleak Labrador to serve the Hudson Bay Company. But he had brains and ambition, which is another way of saying he had a store of which success is fabricated. He rambled in the wilderness for thirteen years, seeing few other than Indians. Nothing daunted him; he was transferred to the Canadian North West, where, step by step, he mounted in the order of authority until he came to be Chief Factor, and ultimately the virtual owner of the Company of Adventurers chartered by Charles the Second in 1670. Then came the event which was to that vast wilderness, and he took as wife the daughter of an Indian mother and a Scotch father.

When the South African war broke out in 1899 Donald Strathcona was High Commissioner for Canada in London. He gave to the British government the famous regiment of Strathcona Horse, and before that he and Lord Mount Stephen, another big Canadian of the C. P. R. days, had given Western Hospital to the city of Montreal. Subsequently he built and gave to McGill University of Royal Victoria College, for girl students. Although from his thirteenth year he lived beyond his sixtieth year he had lived outside the bounds of civilization. He had one of the most courtly men it has been my privilege to know. He spoke, and manner he was, under all circumstances the perfect gentleman. He was fabulously rich, yet attended every train that stopped. thy men should be.

Sir Donald's name is a long time to wait before discharging a duty. Here and now, I want to say that Sandford Fleming, who became my secretary I was in 1896, commissioned me to announce, at my discretion, that Sir Sandford Fleming had given to Queen's University his entire estate, valued at $100,000. Upon the death of Lady Fleming, who was the last of the family, the bequest was to be made. Sir Sandford Fleming, who was the builder of the Intercolonial. He was born in 1827, and died in 1915. Sir John A. Macdonald, who also first saw the light of day in Scotland, Glasgow, in 1815, like both Strathcona and Macdonald, came early in life to Canada, believing as an engineer, he had a noble head, and like many who have had noble heads and high positions of authority, he was exceedingly modest. That noble head was full of noble ideas, and more, of them were unconnected and therefore unrealized. Nevertheless, he had more to do with bringing about our present system of government than any one had any other man.

When Hon. MacKenzie Bowell undertook his mission to Australia in 1893, Mr. Fleming was one of the men who was knighted. We were twenty-three days at sea, and for us we sailed the South Pacific, Fleming and I made so many circuits of the deck, he would tender an hyperbole to say that I gathered a fresh idea from him on every round, yet it was his unique opportunity to discover the breadth of his knowledge.

He was the originator of the scheme for a Pacific cable, and so well did he put his case before the Imperial Conference that the antipodes that when the Colonial Conference took place in October, 1902, everything was in readiness for the laying of the cable. Within the ensuing five years it was laid under the auspices of the completed. Incidentally, that mission of Sir Donald's was the first step in the establishment of Canada's present far-flung system of foreign representation. Whether he had anything to emphasize, all events have been identified.

When Tenacity Counted

Sir John Macdonald was one of the Fathers of Confederation, yet no one can study the history of that great achievement without identifying three men as standing head and shoulders above the rest. Namely: They were Sir John Macdonald, Hon. George Brown and Sir Charles Tupper. In the Harris painting there are three hold the prominent places. Sir John Macdonald, the central figure, is judged leader. There is always a leader. I did not know George Brown except indirectly. But I knew Sir John Macdonald with considerable intimacy, and I knew Sir Charles Tupper's private secretary during the short period he was Prime Minister of Canada. Within a little further along I shall have something to say about the illustrious Conservative chieftain, and in a succeeding sketch something of the three men—Sir John Macdonald, Hon. George Brown and Hon. John Henry Pope. I mean in the political sense. They composed the trio of ministers who went to England in 1881 to arrange for the financing of the project. What they had to do was to lay before financiers an offer of $25,000,000 in cash and 25,000,000 acres of land for the building of Canada's first transcontinental railway. Enormous amount of money would be easily obtainable from the Canadian people; but not then. Fifty year, ago $25,000,000 was a large sum even in Great Britain. Capitalists and investors shied from the idea of getting their interest out of a railway which had to be built through the wilderness, and at the end of a month of hard work the three Canadian ministers had to confess complete failure. That is, so far as the British capitalists were concerned.

Then came the vital part. Hon. John Henry Pope played. History is full of instances in which great achievements have been overcome by the courage and genius of one man. Sir John said to his colleagues to make one more effort. "Let us run over to Holland. At least we will have a change to see there." Sir John and Sir Charles Tupper, accordingly, made a short letter on the idea. If we have been unable to interest our British compatriots," they argued, "that hope is there of success with the Dutch." In 1881 Hon. John Henry Pope, as Minister of Railways, was the Canadian group; if he had lost hope he kept it from his associates; if he had not thought and planned he kept it to himself. He was the one who converted his colleagues to his way of thinking. He was the one member of the Canadian Pacific have been abandoned? At that time, yes; but Hon. Pope said, "No, we will not quit when, no one may say. Probably years hence, when the Canadian people were not in the least enthusiastic about the matter. In that event, the people of the Province of Ontario might have been delighted to build the turn of the century. Who knew?

Hon. John Henry Pope comes legitimately into the scope of these sketches about big Canadians of yesteryear. Although his part in national development was not carried out with sound of trumpet and flare of publicity, it was known to the unknown west or Ottawa. Yet he was an exceedingly interesting man. To me, he was always more than Lincoln in almost every characteristic. He was persuasive, with delicious touches of story-telling. He had a rich, full, resonant, oblique personalities our Canadian Parliament has known. His reputation for originality of humor is found in the earlier eighties. Hon. Edward Blake had come to Ottawa to take a hack on the immigration policy of Sir John Macdonald whose department administered that policy. Blake cried attentively. When Blake sat down Pope arose in his place. In inimitable way he said: "I've followed the honorable gentleman in all he has had to say this session, Speaker, there ain't nothin' to it" It was the way he said it, however, that the House was astounded.

Next day, however, that speech stands on the record as the ranked example of brevity and effectiveness. Pope's speech was never equalled it in terseness, although the masterpiece of Salisbury was uttered in less than four hundred words.

The Famous Chieftain

The other day I stood in Calarton cemetery, Ontario, and looked long and reflectively at a plain but handsome tree than two feet in height, bearing a brief inscription: "John A. Macdonald—1815—1891." No slab, no high words. Yet, this was the grave of a genuinely great Canadian. The Empire Review published a glowing eulogy. His monument is Canada, the Dominion of Canada, and the man has done. He was in public life for nearly half a century. It was during that period he welded together the diverse elements that made Confederation possible.

I heard him speak a thousand times, both in and out of Parliament. He was a master debater. I smiles with him in his election campaigns. He was a master of humor. His outstanding characteristic, I should say unhesitatingly it was his gift of conciliation. He was a leader. He may be that he played on the prejudices and passions, the prejudices and their foibles, their weakness and their strength, their hopes and their fears. He was a politician. His opponents called him a politician, but unfortunately so those who lived close to the man his civilization always seemed unjust. It was a matter of fact, I dare to say he was tactful, and that is the highest quality in a statesman. In his own way he was trying to serve Canada, and to that end he was willing to sacrifice himself on his hand. That, at least, is my personal impression.

As Prime Minister from 1878 to the middle of 1891, Sir John Macdonald dominated Canada, and effectively that he won the support of the Province of Quebec and created the Orangemen of Ontario. His enemies spoke of this as the "Orange" back of Protestantism, but taking were three men—Sir John Macdonald, Hon. George Brown and Hon. John Henry Pope. I mean in the political sense. At a special meeting of the executive committee of the Belleville Good Roads Association it was decided to send a circular letter to every County, Town and Township Council asking them to appoint delegates to Provincial Convention to be held early in March 1st to present the matter of the Government assuming and maintaining the Kingston Road from Toronto to the eastern end of the Province as a Provincial highway.

The R. T. of T. Knitting Circle held their first meeting of this year at the home of Mrs. (Rev.) William Street. A number of letters were read from boys at the front telling how much they appreciate the socks which are sent to them. Mrs. Brown (nee Miss M. J. Miller) a member of the Circle, who is now residing in Calgary, and Mrs. Paul, Minn., was the recipient of a handsome present in a "shower". Miss Miller was also presented with a silver knife and fork case by the members of the Royal Templar Lodge of this city.

VIOLENT RIVERS TURN PEACEFUL

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto, Jan. 16.—Under the destruction during the past 24 hours by bathing rain, Southern Ontario's normally placid rivers and streams today subsided almost as suddenly as they had broken, over their banks.

Dropping temperatures in most of the flood-threatened districts helped ease an anxious situation as thousands of residents watched. Let up of the heavy rains allowed the streams to subside to their courses.

Actual property damage was slight but trees were uprooted, highway shoulders were torn and gravel piled along the river edge were destroyed. Traffic was at a standstill for several days.

Flood conditions were still actual in a few sections of Southern Ontario. The Welland River was five feet above normal at the Welland rains and rushed only a few inches below the edge of highways and threatened Niagara Falls.

At Cayuga, the Grand River still was above normal in that area, and the river road running between there and Caledonia Village had to be changed in many cases. Colder weather which would bring relief in the situation was expected.

Auditorium Committee: Chairman Ross Harry Rollins and B. C. Slater.

Athletics Committee: Chairman Harry Rollins, with Harry Slater, Brown, Wotten, Payne, Slater, Ross Hunter and Secretary Pritchard.

Mr. J. B. Findlay was unanimously re-elected Secretary-Treasurer of the Board of Education for the coming year.

Mr. H. D. Ranson was re-elected Truant Officer for the coming term by unanimous vote.

The nominating Committee composed of representatives of the Board was as follows: Russ. Wotten, Rev. S. A. Wight, Rev. A. B. Payne, Geo. F. Lent, Reg. Moncrieff, Rev. W. H. Reid, G. W. Proctor and Dr. Chas. E. Hoyle. Hamilton Reid was chairman of the committee.

Escorted to Chair

Escorted to the chair by Trustees Percy McGuire and Ray Zufelt following his election, Mr. Allin, the new chairman, was brief and direct in his inaugural address. During the coming year the policy of the Board as directed by him would be confirming matters of routine and recommending in all departments, while a number of minor reforms are also hoped to be effected, some of which will be the index card system of all pupils kept by principals of the various schools. While other suggestions are concerned with the various branches of the work among pupils.

For the first time in thirty-three years, the place on the Board table comple" by Col. W. H. Ponton, K.C., the faithful and perhaps the longest record of voluntary service in the city's history, was unoccupied at the inaugural meeting, due to his retirement this year. The new chairman, Mr. Allin, "Dean of the Board" was the occasion for numerous remarks on the part of the new chairman and members of the Board.

In taking over office, Chairman Allin expressed his appreciation for the confidence, that had been expressed in him by fellow trustees. "At this time, also, I would like to express some of my regret I felt and which is borne by all members of the Board that the "Dean of the Board", Col. W. H. Ponton, has decided to retire. His sound judgment and guiding influence will be missed by us all.

"I had hoped, that when my turn came for the chairmanship, that I would be honored by his presence. Coupled with this regret is a friendly welcome to the new members, Mr. Lent, third member, who is now a great asset to the Board and to the cause of education in Belleville.

"Your attention is called to the effort of city council to formulate a policy as per by-law to the ratepayers of the city, and I know the School Board will do all in its power to further the interest of such economy.

Burial Card System

"It is my desire this year to have the principals of the public schools initial a card index system to cover the whole school record of each child from the beginning of school to their entry into high school.

"In nominating the committee should name a strong committee to assist in the athletic and physical development of the boys and girls, as I would also like to see the girls in the fourth class of public schools take classes of Calisthenics at our Collegiate half a day each week if it can be so arranged by the Board.

"As our staff book in conclusion, that the friendly relations between the teachers and the Board will continue during the term for things and that the last year of the large staff will be one of complete harmony."

The resignation of one popular member, Col. Ponton, was then read by Harold Reid, who for the past three years as Trustee has worked indefatigably in the interests of health and education during his term of office, always ably and with much regret on the part of fellow trustees, when tendered in writing. Change of address also made necessary the resignation. Rev. Mr. Reid, in moving the thanks of the chairmanships he was appointed to during the coming year will be filled by Col. J. W. Bowerman.

On motion of Chairman H. J. Allin:

"I regret the necessity of severing connection with the Board, because I have enjoyed my three terms. Recent developments, however, have made it necessary for me to seek work elsewhere. I leave the Board with a great deal of regret," declared Rev. Mr. Reid.

"I can only trust and hope, that during the coming term for things in which I had an interest will be carried on the same as in the past. The matter of the survey of school children by the Department of Health I feel is a matter that in the past to determine incipient or early cases of tuberculosis has been one of the major institutions we have set in force. It has been the vision of the many years and I believe that we were justified in spending much on this work.

Will Follow Survey

"For the present year at this is necessary for the Department to do is to check up on the pupils coming into the schools. I feel sure the city will be very low, but nothing is to be gained by the Board that will concur in this object.

"Recommendations will follow with the deepest interest the actions of the Board upon which I have been happy to accept.

"It is with deep regret that we leave the Board, and trust that the Board will continue the work as Mr. Reid," declared former chairman Col. Ponton, K.C. "The Board has been one of our most valued institutions in the city. We have worked unceasingly for the interests of the city and for the pupils with. In this city the Board has never failed.

"Little actual business faced the new Board following the inaugural address by the chairman and the naming of the standing committee.

A request by the Library Board of the Collegiate Institute for the grant of $150 was honored, while a second request from the Canadian Encyclopaedia Britannica was passed to the Finance Committee for consideration.

Regarding the communication from the Ontario Department of Health, tendered by Mr. H. J. Cody, School Inspector, it was stated that a campaign in the schools for dental work was commenced in Ontario by the Canadian Dental Hygiene Council. It was agreed that all schools of the city would welcome the visit of a representative of such a body.

Reverend Harold Reid will represent the Board at the cremation at the funeral of the late Mrs Lurene Bellamy, wife of a former Collegiate staff, who died on Friday. The funeral from Toronto will be held from her home, Brantford, Ontario, on Sunday. A letter of condolence will be sent her parents by the Board.

Committee Named

In the Order of Motions, it was moved by Rev. Mr. Reid, seconded by the chairman of the Board, Jas. Col. E. A. Ponton, K.C., that a letter be be named a committee to compose a suitable resolution of recognition of the long and faithful services of Col. W. N. Ponton and that a copy of Mr. Ponton be placed in the minutes book and one sent to Col. Ponton. And that also a recent photograph be secured, framed and hung in the Board room, the motion received unanimous support.

Col. Ponton, pointed out the move of the resolution, Trustee Hyde, "has been one of the outstanding citizens, not only of Belleville, but within the British Empire. Service such as his should not go unrecognized, he should be suitably recognized by us."

The possibility that in the future in purchasing agents, preferably Secretary J. B. Findlay, would be appointed, and have full jurisdiction over and be responsible for every purchase made by the Board, was appeared with a notice of motion made by Trustee Reg. Moncrieff that at the next meeting on this his effect would be made.

Trustee Moncrieff had asked for a vote upon the matter at the inaugural meeting.

"Your idea is a good one and it should be considered, but I believe it is wiser and I would ask you to wait until the next meeting when it can be presented in more concrete form, with a seconder for it," advised Chairman Allin.

To Get Medal Back

Speaking not as a member of the Board, but one interested in affairs of education in the city, Hyde pointed out by School Inspector H. J. Cody, that the medal the Lord Aberdeen on a visit to this city presented Belleville school children with, a Gold Medal.

"That medal hangs in the City Hall and I believe that it is a school medal, it should rightly be in possession of the Board of Education and be placed in the Board room where it belongs," declared Mr. Hyde, who served Mr. Clarke.

Mr. Hyde moved and seconded that Secretary J. B. Findlay be instructed to get the City Council and request that the medal be given into the possession of the Board.

In the Order of Business Attendance officer, H. D. Ranson, submitted his report for 1936, it was shown that during that period a total of 1063 absences cases had been investigated. These were listed as follows: Queen Mary School 254; Alexandra 235; Queen Victoria, 250; King George, 182; Collegiate 144. Number of visits to schools during the year were 486. Eight employment certificates were issued during the year and home permits issued. Duty of this number six returned to school.

Tourist Homes Inspected, Health Bd. Inaugurates Survey

Many Phases of Work of Inspection by Health Department Revealed

1936 REPORT MADE

Health conditions in Belleville were shown to be in an excellent condition by the report presented by Mr. H. McGinnis, Inspector of the Department of Health to the Board of Health on Thursday afternoon. The report which was adopted indicated conditions of health, referred to inspection of tourist's dairies and milk producers, water and ice supply, tourist homes, and inspection of septic tank and privy areas, during and after the great flood of last year.

The report in detail follows:—

January 6th, 1937.
Belleville, Ontario.

Doctor G. S. Cronk,
Medical Officer of Health,
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Sir:—

I beg to submit herewith my annual report for the fiscal year of 1936.

Contagious Diseases

Scarlet fever	28
Measles	115
Typhoid	3
Paratyphoid	1
Diphtheria	2
Chickenpox	1
Infantile Paralysis	3
Mumps	1

The one single case of typhoid was a patient who came in from Ivanhoe, Ontario. The case resulted from any of the above cases. At the close of the year there was no case of contagious disease in the city. The Isolation Hospital was opened for use for the most considerably longer period than in the previous years. This hospital, though open, is naturally a heavy drain on our Board of Health appropriation.

Early in 1936, I received instructions from the City Council, I made a canvass of the entire city, could contact who were in debt to the City of Belleville for services rendered at the Isolation Hospital during the year 1935. This enumerated this investigation which covered four weeks—off and on, I made out a list of delinquents and handed same to the City Clerk.

Inspection of Tenements

Early in 1936, Dr. Bell, Deputy Minister of Health, Dr. Cronk, M. O. H., and I made the rounds of some dwelling places in the city which were in unsanitary condition for human habitation. Later a detailed report of the same was forwarded by the Deputy Minister of Health to the local Board of Health and a copy of the report also received a report. One of these places had since been torn down and some improvements have been made on others. However, this matter rests now in the hands of the local Board.

Dairies and Producers

Last August, Mr. Ball of the Provincial Department of Health arrived in Belleville and a rigid inspection of all the milk producers' dairies was made; altogether this official spent nearly a week here. The result is that all the milk from dairies in the rural parts that distribute milk in the city is certified. Of the producers supplying the dairies were also visited and the cattle and cattle sheds were inspected. Valuable information and suggestions were given to the producers concerned. The men will also be shown an opportunity to take many subjects affiliated with the clothing business and the management of same, the complete analysis of the styles, models, and fabrics which fashion authority has decreed should be used in the coming season's trends. The Tip Top Tailors have also planned with the men's clothing, which each year becomes more apparent. Tip Top Tailors are also doing considerable research and study in every fashion detail in order to improve and to impress upon their store managers the far-reaching importance of fashion trends and to show them the results, so that they may better serve the public. The Tip Top Tailors have called their managers together.

Among the Tip Top executives who will address the convention are: H. Mackechnie, General Manager; Mr. A. M. Talbot, General Sales Manager; and others.

NAMES and LETTERS

Any letter written for publication and received at this office will not be published unless the writer sends his or her name with the letter. If not to be published the name will not be published but may use a pseudonym or nom de plume if desired add the letter may be published.

The Ontario Intelligencer must know the name of letter writers as evidence of good faith.

Another unsigned letter has just been received at this office and will not appear in print, unless the name of the person who composed it is known to the newspaper. Inattention upon this small formality is considered unkindly.

Many of these cases had to be re-inspected.

Complaints are generalized as follows:—Smoke nuisances, garbage, filthy, Basements, etc., Drains, Basements, especially during the flood, Sewer troubles, Overcrowded homes, City dumping grounds.

This year something new was inaugurated in the way of examination of all tourist homes under our local Department acting on instructions from the Provincial Department of Health. I found that each home I visited complied with the regulations.

Following an agitation for a public bathing beach, some time in August, Dr. Berry of the Provincial Department arrived in Belleville and in company with the Mayor, the Medical Officer of Health, Chairman and members of the local board, the City Engineer and myself made an inspection of several sites along the water front. Following this visit a report was sent to the Provincial Laboratories in Toronto. None of the sites was really satisfactory, but provided certain regulations are carried out, that the beach at Victoria Johnson Plant was judged to be the most suitable.

Inspection of Flooded Basements

Last March Belleville was visited by a very disastrous flood which inflicted great hardship on our merchants and citizens. Many of the flooded areas. Prompt measures were undertaken by the City Council, Board of Health, Public Works, Fire and Relief Department, Provincial Police and Provincial Department in Toronto send out workers to assist in the work. Johnson upon arrival made a thorough investigation of the situation and issued instructions that every basement should be pumped out and still flooded. Mr. Johnson and I repeated these instructions from the City Council, I made a canvass of the entire city, could contact who were in debt to the City of Belleville for services rendered at the Isolation Hospital during the year 1935. This enumerated this investigation which covered four weeks—off and on, I made out a list of delinquents and handed same to the City Clerk.

Ice Supply

Samples of ice from the area in the Bay of Quinte from which the local ice dealers procure their supply were forwarded to the Provincial Laboratory last December and all were reported to be in order.

General Inspections

The usual inspections were made of the following—bakeries, restaurants, cafes, meat markets, etc. camps, parks, etc.

As regards the open markets and the public markets, inspection is made here as often as twice a week. In connection with our restaurants, cafes, bakeries and hotels, we have, in general, one would have to travel far to find any cleaner or better kept than in the City of Belleville.

Complaints

Approximately 175 complaints were received, investigated and

KIRMA EXPOSES SPECTRAL FORMS SLATE WRITING

Psychic Marvel Demonstrates Fallacies of Spiritual Mediums

BOY QUITE CLEVER

Spectral forms floating through the darkness of the Belleville auditorium, weird spirit voices reasoning from the end of a tin horn, supposedly giving messages from the beyond, ghostly hands painting sacred symbols on a canvas screen and the sudden appearance of massive writings in chalk on a room school slate, elicited shrieks of terror from the feminine part of the audience and spasms of fright on the part of some of the males in the crowded auditorium of the Belle Theatre last night, when Kirma, psychic marvel, demonstrated in no uncertain manner the fallacies of some of the so-called spiritual mediums.

Slate writing appeared simple with the medium, exchanging a blank slate for one with a message written on it by pure sleight of hand.

The painting of sacred pictures on a canvas, Spiritual hands after members of the audience had volunteered to hold the canvas, demonstrated by Kirma, then the false fabric of the trick was disclosed and exposed to the gaze of the astounded audience.

A really versatile comedian, unheralded and unsung and drawn at random from the audience, Kirma's stole the show in the mind-reading act. Asked to choose a volunteer, the youngster, who appeared to be as much at home on the stage as in his own family dinner table, entered into the spirit of the thing and in a few minutes brought down the house with his humorous antics.

Clever Pantomime

Inability to name the numbers written on a piece of paper had the youthful comedian "stuck" at first, but following a whispered "Hello" the application of the name "the boy with the big ears" to Kirma's sphere. Pulling in the next sentence, he was given a pantomime which he donned in true Roman style. Again he failed and he was then the magic crystal, but with instructions how to use it. His part brought the curtain and the youthful seer outdid his former humorous actions with a clever pantomime of a mystic.

Climaxing the entire performance, the trick which amazed the audience, in the hearts of some of those present was the reading of the thoughts of ghostly figures in the theatre.

The low voice of Kirma intoned what might happen. "There will be a ghost in the balcony," he said. "They will hover over you, touch you, and then, if you may even sit on our lap. And you may feel a cold clammy hand encircling your throat."

Suddenly the lights went out. The Kirma, Spiritualist, started. At first there was a tense silence as eyes were strained to discover themselves to the darkness. Then a woman screamed. "Don't touch me. There it is", a young girl shrilled. Slowly in the darkness a few feet above the heads of the audience, a silvery ghostlike form took shape, faintly it revealed above the heads of the people near the front of the theatre. Screams and shouts challenged, came right back strong.

There is no telling how the arguments would have terminated, with each contestant growing warmer, had not Kirma, the boy who plucked the gardener's sleeve, said, "Be easy", he whispered, "it's Premier Bennett!"

Did you know — that this is the second session of the eighteenth legislature assembled in Toronto, that during the recess the Commons lost one veteran politician and gained another, that Premier Peter Veniot having been a provincial premier for a longer term than he came to Ottawa — Hon. Dr. Simon Tolmie having behind him a decade of active service in provincial and federal politics — that Dr. Tolmie was a year ago, Leader-elect Conservative organizer — that Senator William Ross Dingwall, a member of the Red Chamber sworn in during the brief reign of Edward VIII — that the standing of the Commons is exactly what it was a year ago, Liberals numbering 178 out of a House of 245 — that in the Senate the government is still there with a large advance majority—

Being a great man has some disadvantages.

For example, when you try to do some business over the 'phone.

The following conversation was reported to me as having been noted in an Ottawa broker's office.

Voice over the 'phone: "Is this the office of Blank and Blank?"

Broker: "Yes, it is."

Clerk, annoyed: "Oh, don't play the giddy fool."

x x x

Another Borden anecdote is rather ancient, but it ought to go down for the record.

It was the night in February, two decades ago, when the Parliament Buildings burned down, taking live, destroying valuable records, frightfully complicating matters at a time when the country was desperately engaged in a long war.

Sir Robert Borden, then prime

The point of this anecdote is that, minister, is reported to have stood very often officials at the Experimental Farms are asked to share their around without being aware of the slightest idea who the people are.

The chief gardener at Lethbridge found himself one sunny afternoon some time ago accosting a group of well-dressed strangers.

"Is there anything else that can help to this blasted government?"

I heard this week a charming story about the Minister of National Defence (Hon. Ian Mackenzie) and another prominent personality.

The Minister got to thinking, one evening, while the House was sitting, about the address he would have to make later on in the week, about the unveiling of the Vimy Memorial.

He decided he had better "strut up" on the subject, and wrote the following note to the Chief Librarian:

"Dear Mr. Burrill,

I hear you would be so good as to dig up for me some of the available addresses made on the unveiling of famous memorials.

Sincerely,
Ian Mackenzie.

On the outside of the note he scribbled, in his fine handwriting, "Mr. Burrill" and gave it to a page.

A couple of minutes later he was stopped in the lobby with the following reply:

"Dear Mackenzie:

"I shall be delighted to do so. It happens that I have an exceptionally good collection of such addresses, and shall be happy to lend them to you.

Sincerely,
R. B. Bennett

The Minister saw, of course, what had happened. The page had misread "Burrill" for "Bennett" and the leader of the Opposition had not detected the error.

A moment later, Mr. Bennett caught Mr. Mackenzie's eye, bowed slightly in confirmation of his note, and then wrote a message that the Minister could do but to accept the situation, grateful that the opposition leader had taken the initiative. He bowed in reply.

Then a few minutes later, Mr. Bennett, feeling that there was something just a little unusual about the request of the Minister of National Defence, dug out the note again, and studied it.

This time he saw what had happened, chuckled anew at the Minister of Defence, and waving the note, he gestured his comprehension, and then bold record heartily.

It need not be added that the request for the loan of the note has been held for one another was not lessened by this exchange of courtesies.

6 NEW MEMBERS IN COUNTY COUNCIL

Body Meets on Tuesday and First Business to Select Warden

Six new faces will adorn the 1937 Hastings Council when that body meets in the inaugural session at Shire Hall on Tuesday next. While many of the members were returned via the election route a great number of the new council were elected by acclamation. Last year's Warden, William West, of Stirling village was defeated in the recent election by Thomas Graydon of Stirling.

Highlighting the inaugural session on Tuesday will be the election of the Warden for 1937. While there are several will offer themselves for the position, it is quite likely that a lively election will cease before the Warden is elected.

Members of the Hastings County Council for 1937 are as follows: Sidney, George W. Bush, and Clem Ketcheson; Thurlow, Thomas Gray and Roscoe Robson; Tweedsmuir, Thomas Graydon and Fred Thrasher; Rawdon, Geo. E. Thompson and G. B. Bedford; Huntingdon, H. S. Woodley; Hungerford, Wm. Jordan and Charles Nash; Marmora and Lake, Wm. Ketcheson and Leonard Shaw; Madoc, Wm. Ketcheson and Orlando Hubbs; Elzevir and Grimsthorpe, James A. Moore; Tudor and Cashel, Wm. Mitchell; Limerick; Wollaston, Charles A. Rollins; Tyendinaga, Wm. Ketcheson and Wm. Cranston; Sidney, Robert Bristol; Tweed, W. H. Sayers; Marmora, Wm. Ketcheson and Wm. Corbett, Dr. E. S. Lingh; Deloro, S. H. Wright; Frankford, D. R. Ketcheson.

Mrs. J. E. Forrester and Miss Grace Orchard will be hostesses at the Badminton Club party this evening.

Miss Grace Stewart, Turnbull Street, entertained a number of girl friends on Wednesday, January 13, the occasion being her 18th birthday. Out-of-town guests included, Mrs. Julia Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Earle Fox and Les Stewart, of Centre.

Calla lilies and blue irises made a graceful and striking centrepiece for the afternoon tea held at the home of Miss Elizabeth Corbett yesterday under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the T.M.C.A. Large numbers of guests enjoyed the hospitality of Miss Corbett's home on the occasion. Receiving with the hostess were Mrs. J. E. Sherrit and Mrs. C. B. Scanlebury. The tea table with its charming floral arrangement of calla lilies, tapers in silver holders, was presided over by Mrs. G. W. Mitchell and Mrs. R. D. Arnold. Tea was served by Mrs. Earl Hagerman and Mrs. Bert Mickey, Miss Helen Sulman and Miss Aileen McKeown. Also assisting during the afternoon were Mrs. Harry Roblin, Mrs. Talbot Ketchum, Mrs. Gordon Mowbray and Mrs. Gilroy. The home-cooking table was in charge of Mrs. W. Boyd, Mrs. H. Lee, Mrs. Price and Mrs. J. Boyd. Mrs. J. Arbuckle was treasurer. The convenors of the successful event were Miss E. Forman and Miss Corbett.

Weddings

BROOK—KENNEDY

A quiet wedding took place at the United Church Parsonage, Consecon, on Thursday afternoon, January 14th, when Jessie Lorna Kennedy was united in marriage to Frederick George Brook, both of Ballcroft, by Rev. H. Hall, officiating. The young couple will reside in Ballcroft.

PRESENTATION TO MISS G. RABBIE

Pack-away Case And Purse Given Departing Pastor

A number gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Snider, Friday evening, Jan. 8th, the occasion being a surprise as our pastor was leaving us for a new field of labour. The evening was spent in song and questions on the Bible, and was very interesting event. Then came a halt in the programme and Mrs. IX Steenburgh was requested by Mr. G. Snider to read an address and Mrs. G. Snider made the presentation of a lovely pack-away wardrobe case and purse of money. So surprised was the pastor, Miss G. Rabbie, that she had hadn't words to express her appreciation, which was very much felt. Dear Sister Rabbie:

We, your brothers and sisters in Christ, of the Ostler district, feel we cannot let you go without a few remarks. We haven't words adequate to express our feelings at this time of appreciation for the many, many services you have rendered us and for the wonderful teachings of Christ that you have brought to us from time to time. Twas through your untiring efforts many of us were spiritually wakened from a deep slumber. But the time and patience is almost spent, and the call you alone know. But thank God for such a noble character, for with great fortitude the goal was in sight, you now scale heights through and filled with the Holy Ghost.

You have always raised the standard high for Christ and your greatest ambition while with us, was for each one of us to reach that same standard. We are sorry Sister Rabbie to have failed in so much making it doubly hard for you. "God forgive us," and may we ask you to forgive us too?

Before you leave for your new field of labour may we ask you to accept this little gift, to pay for services rendered? No! That could never be.

This parting from you brings sorrow and regret from many. However we feel our loss will be no other's gain. We sincerely pray God's richest blessing will follow you wherever you go and may the sheep of your new pasture be found more worthy than we have been, is the ardent wish of all. But, far or near, will you breathe a prayer for your Outlet congregation.

Signed on behalf of the Outlet district, Mrs. Robert Steenburgh, Mrs. Guy Snider, Mrs. Bert Rankin.

As in the beginning (of, Grace), so may our end be.

We were wandering about
In the sheds from the fold,
Where Jesus looked down
From His Heavenly home.

His heart it was wrung.
To see how we lived:
In a big world of darkness
Oh! He couldn't stand this.

So He sent us a sunbeam.
With a big ray of light,
That dark was banished.
And all was so bright.

We've read about some,
So rare, and of great price,
But God sent a jewel
To bring us the Gospel light.

We were so happy
So free from worldly care,
When this God-given treasure
Led us into The Garden of Prayer.

An outstanding Rose,
In God's garden so fair;
Did not fill the sharp thorns
In her ministry there.

Her future I'm sure. -
Is in God's hands
While I was in prayer
She came and stood there.

She stood and stood o'er her,
Oh! Beautiful sight!
It's wings were spread out
Like a mantle of white
So shiny and white.

Oh dear God, bless her,
By day and by night,
Is the prayer of my heart.
While she's out of our sight.

—Mrs. Delbert Steenburgh.

Community Honors Mrs. B. Morton at Farewell Party

On Wednesday evening, a great many friends gathered at the home of Mrs. B. Morton to say farewell and family to bid them farewell before leaving this community and to wish them all happiness and success in their new home.

Mr. H. Emerson acted as chairman and called upon Mr. H. Mott to read the following address: :

Dear Mrs. Morton, Leona and Beatrice:

It was with our deepest regret that we, your friends and neighbours of Morira, learned of your decision to move from our midst. No greater loss can be suffered by the community than your leaving. The knowledge that you will take with you kind thoughts and remembrances of your many years at Morira.

If you, Mrs. Morton, pose much of the credit for such a live organization as we have in Morira. Your untiring devotion and your work in the Missionary Society has been invaluable. You and your family have set a high standard in church and social work for the rest of us to follow. Leona, you as pianist of our church and Sunday School have spent much of your time and talent in making them a success. Do, Clarence, you are a man that your manly ways and neighbourliness will long be remembered.

There has been no case of sickness, trouble or loss (time only to your notice that did not feel the benefit of your sympathy and assistance. Your lives among us have revealed the high and worthy ideals you all have held and your influence has made for progress and our highest welfare.

We are more thankful than we can express for the generous and kind responsibility you have carried and your help will be greatly missed.

We would ask you to accept this purse as some slight token of the high esteem in which you all are held.

Signed on behalf of the community:

Charles Ketchenon
James Vandewater
Clayton Vandervalker
Edward Emerson.

Mrs. Morton, Clarence and Leona replied, thanking all for their kindness and extending to all an invitation to call them in their new home, Trent Road, Belleville. A social hour was spent and lunch never be.

Valedictory Address to Mr. and Mrs. Price Morris

Recipients of Purse And Chime Clock From Bancroft Friends

AT BOWMANVILLE

Bancroft and district citizens turned out en masse Wednesday evening to bid farewell to Provincial Police Morris and family on the eve of their departure from our midst to their new labor in Bowmanville.

Taken completely by surprise the Community Hall where a large crowd were indulging in bridge and euchre. On their appearance in the Hall, the Gang's All here," the assembly present singing the chorus "For They are Jolly Good Fellows".

Mr. Jas. Pitts Morris was carried off by Mrs. E. L. McColl and Dr. Anderson, and the euchre prizes were won by Mrs. Wm. Wood and Reg. Wiggins.

Following a dainty plate lunch, Dr. Lumb called the large assembly to order and read the following address and made the presentation of the Chime Clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Price Morris:

We, the citizens of Bancroft, with whom you have made your home for many years, have gathered here tonight to honour you both on the eve of your departure from our midst. It is with regret that we learned that we were losing you as a community but realize that in the course of the Government service in which you are engaged, such transfers are to be expected. We appreciate that we could not let you go without a community farewell and you may look upon this demonstration as a public expression of the respect and esteem you have won for yourselves during your sojourn in Bancroft.

On every occasion when any community movement is afoot in Bancroft, you have given your hearty co-operation and we may assure you that this has been deeply appreciated by us all. This has been shown from the start in connection with the Cheer Club, which grew from a little organization into a big one, so little, so much happiness at the Christmas season that these things will not soon be forgotten.

With one accord, we all join in extending our success in your new appointments. May you find happiness and success in the new field made as many good friends as you are leaving here. As a final token of our appreciation we ask you to accept the purse we present you with this chime clock, knowing that you will find it useful in your new home.

Signed on behalf of the community,

Dr. Lumb.

Mrs. Morris in a few well chosen words made a fitting reply on behalf of himself and Mrs. Morris, thanking all present for their thoughtfulness and kindness.

Dancing was indulged in to the strains of music from both local orchestras, bringing to a close a very happy event.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris who have made a large number of friends in the business and social circles of the town will be greatly missed. All with Mr. and Mrs. Morris' health and success in their new field of environment.

BETHANY Y. P. S.

The regular meeting of the Bethany Y.P.U. was held on Tuesday evening, followed by the election of officers for 1937. The president, Mrs. A. Miller, opened the meeting with a hymn followed by a reading by Rev. R. R. Merrick. Mrs. Miller gave a musical reading and Jack Smith read the Scripture. Business was discussed and it was moved and seconded that Clayton Rice be the delegate for the Winter School to be held at Grace Church next week. Hymn 306 was followed by prayer by Stella Bradshaw. A reading was given by Eva Casey followed by the singing of some favorite hymns. The part of the meeting closed with a hymn and the League Benediction. Rev. R. Merrick then took charge of the election of officers. The secretary-treasurer then read the minutes. The last annual meeting which was approved. The officers for 1937 are as follows: President—Mrs. Arthur Miller; Vice-President—Edith Walker; Secretary-Treasurer—Miss Reta Clark; Pianist—Miss Eva Casey; Assistant Pianist—Miss Stella Bradshaw; Christian Fellowship—Mr. Jack Smith; Missionary—Mr. Charlie Brown; Citizenship—Miss Shirley Phillips; Christian Culture—Mrs. Hilland; Press Secretary—Mrs. Hazel Walker.

ROSE DIEMANN

Because of the fact that there is a very strong and exceedingly efficient Canadian Concert Association here, the high school students of Belleville are to have the unique opportunity of hearing one of America's noted singers next Monday afternoon. This great artist is Rose Dirmann, Lyric Soprano of New York whose appearance was made possible through arrangements that were effected last week-end when Mr. Geo. H. Milford, general director of the C. C. A. visited Belleville and conferred with Mr. T. C. MacLaurin, president, and members of the Belleville association.

Miss Dirmann is to give an afternoon recital and on Monday evening she will present a programme that, it is expected, will be one of the finest ever heard even in this musical city. When questioned by our art. conducor of the Promenade Symphony Concert in Toronto, visited New York last spring with a view to selecting guest artists for the "Proms" he heard Miss Dirmann and was so struck by her artistry that he immediately booked her. She sang in Varsity Arena last August and received an ovation that has not exceeded during the entire series of 20 Prom. concerts. She was recalled time and again and gave four or five encores, yet the huge audience of some 3,000 people almost refused to be satisfied.

Recently, this artist was engaged to appear for the Canadian Concert Association in Sarnia, and the opportunity of engaging her for other C. C. A. centres was too good to be allowed to pass. Immediately Mr. Milford arranged for her appearance in Woodstock and then completed arrangements with the Belleville Association and Kingston, whereby she would come here en route to Sarnia. Miss Dirmann was born in New Orleans and came to the east and a rapid, well-earned success has just two years ago. This followed a triumphant appearance with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. Quick to follow the Call-fornia city were the applauding critical crowds of New York's Bridgeport and Syracuse. Every-where this talented young singer was acclaimed.

Concert and oratorio have demanded much of her time during the past year. However, as her reputation as an outstanding artist has spread, she increased her activities and last year appeared in more than thirty oratorio presentations. She has sung 76 times over the network of the National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia System. It is felt that Mr. MacLaurin and his committee are to be congratulated upon securing an artist of this fine calibre and for making it possible for the young folk to hear her next Monday afternoon.

"WINGS OF LOVE"

(The Love Story of a Sky Pilot and Girl Who Planned on a Fifty-Fifty Financial System that Almost Wrecked Their Happiness)

By Janet Doran

"You know," Dell said carelessly, "if my wife is half as crazy over this place as I am, she'll want you to help decorate it for her friends in places."

"We've some very nice places on our list," Susanne began carefully," and Dell chuckled.

"I mean," he explained bluntly, "if I want to put your name up for membership at our club. The Meadowdale Country Club," and as Susanne was blankly silent, trying to think of a suitable answer, "You could learn to play golf . . . unless you already do . . . and you would bring you no end of advantageous contacts. Mix business with pleasure."

"I'm afraid it would be too expensive," Susanne, at my reach," she began, and Dell laughed outright.

"Is it on the expense side of the ledger, when you mix with the crowd that's buying your stuff? How else can you know their needs, unless you keep an ear to the ground in their immediate vicinity."

"I haven't the clothes," Susanne said practically, in a little panicky flood of alarm at the overwhelming tide of eagerness, of positive yearning that swept over her heart, at the thought of mixing with them socially, of hearing their conversation, their language, living their life, in their background, "and I simply haven't the money for membership fee!"

"If my wife likes this place," Dell reminded her, "you'll have a few pennies over the weekly budget for your allowance."

"But I want to bank that!" Susanne blurted out, "my own!" then in sudden amassed confusion. Why was she talking like this to a man she'd known across the desk for minutes ago?

Talking as if they were old friends, familiar with all the disturbing problems of daily life, instead of strangers.

"I'm pretty fresh," Dell apologized, and there was something in the boyish frankness of his face that completely wiped out any semblance of strangeness between them, of her affairs, "and I've no business barging into your private concerns like this, but you see, I think I would be a shrewd move.

"I'm not sure you don't . . . yet. I think it would pay you to get acquainted with them. Not at the table across the desk. As a club member. On the links, on the dance floor, even at the bridge table. I think you'd have fun . . . and I know you'd make money."

"I . . . I'll have to think about it," Susanne temporized, but deep in her heart she knew, knew that if this sale went through, she'd have to go out after others of her kind that Dell Langley held the key; was offering the key, unattached.

"I'll think it over," and her decision, and his last words were, "seeing you here, Susanne, has been news for you, Mrs. Langley is going to be very over-joyed to see you."

Susanne hoped, prayed, that Dell Langley was right. The prayer stirred by the guilty conscience as she flew up the stairs, and let herself in with her own key, overcome by gratitude over arriving home first, in time to compose her mind against the inevitable storm of questions, tinged any natural concern over his absence oddly.

Not until dinner was well under way, and she had decided that it was time to mention the invitation to join the Meadowdale Country Club that Dell had given her, did Susanne begin to feel pinpricks of anxiety over Ray's absence.

At seven, he appeared, his face lined with weariness, and his attitude one of dull despair that struck a guilt Susanne was to recall later with its remorseless stab, like a dagger stone in their marriage.

Halfway through the meal, Susanne's nervousness reached the breaking point, and she broke all rules for diplomacy, for Ray asked:

"What wrong, Sky," she blurted worriedly, "you look terrible, are you ill?" She felt a guilty twinge over the realization that her own excitement, all her own preoccupation and indecision made it impossible for her to hold herself capable of judging anything a mundane, as hopelessly uninteresting as a mere dinner, existed for the moment.

Sky's smile was sombre, grave, but he made a valiant effort to assume her fairly.

"Pshaw! O. K.," he said soberly, "just me. Had a punk day. Takes time to get used to all the dumbbells in this job."

Susanne's heart lurched upward. She had completely forgotten his instruction plans! Embarrassed color flamed upward in her face, as she stared over her in waves of gratifying ease. Sky wasn't angry with her. He wasn't suspicious. He knew nothing of her newly formed problems, of the past hour. Dell had met with the business of teaching dumbells not to freeze onto the ball, not to grip the golf club, instead of throttling to a minimum!

"Oh, Sky, I'm a perfect beast . . . I forgot all about your teaching! Was it all so bad?"

Sky, his spread ikonically, suddenly frozen to stiff silence, as he realized that he could not, would not share this particular phase of his cross with her. Nuh, nuh. "How tell one's wife, sitting wide-eyed, and concerned, across the table from one, about a dizzy society girl who had "frozen" about his neck, with a drowning woman's grip, on the very first trip up. Who had turned from an apparently bad tempered grouch into a fascinating, logical, intelligent attention to the gadget on the dial-board, as he explained their various uses, to half-strangle him, after a fleeting glance below—a distance of some 3,000 feet!

How . . . to make matters worse . . . explain his own betraying shock at her slim, boyish waist! It was rank treason. It was worse. It was outrageous proof that man's predatory instincts could only be harnessed by marriage. Not killed.

"I'm glad you're rich, tomorrow it will be better," he said, after a long silence that seemed hours. That was really only fleeting seconds during which he loathed, despised himself for his guilty secrecy of everything that was the disturbing, annoying personality—Wilds fiche-macher.

Susanne held her lips tightly closed, lest they should by unleashed alive in her mind "better for you . . . but for her heart, as she haste to say something lest she let Sky down with the oldest of wifely evasions—"I'm glad you think so."

"Are you glad over the promotion, Sky?" she asked, with sudden tact.

He glanced at her queerly, and shifted carefully in his chair, lighted a cigarette with deliberately careful fingers.

"I suppose it, Susanne," and after several long, restless draughts on the cigarette, "after all, a man can't expect roses to grow without thorns."

That instant, Susanne's determination to accept Dell Langley's club membership offer crystallized. Later on, she built up the strong foundation of justification. "I've got to help Sky, I'm sure that crazy worrying about Sky, if I didn't, I'd go crazy myself. I can lose myself in. Work so hard at, it'll never have time or effort to worry about his sacrifice. I got him into this. He didn't want to marry until he had things on a paying basis. Now . . . because of me . . . because he hates me to be unhappy, he's sacrificing so much, he's driving himself to do this job as a way out of an intolerable situation."

Sky finished his cigarette, and pushed up the dishes before him, to go to the kitchenette.

"Wait, Sky, darling," Susanne said violently, "I'll get ready the paper, and I'll clear up. I . . . I want to. I want to think about your work."

"Hooey," Sky scoffed gruffly, "you'll ruin the paper later on, together." The swinging door shut him off from her, and when Susanne followed with a stack of dishes, he turned from the tiny sink, where he had been scraping and sorting dishes, and impatiently her in a gentle embrace.

"Anything wrong, Susie," he asked soberly, "I mean . . . is it something bothering you because I'm on the instruction squad?"

His blue eyes searched her face hungrily, as if seeking something he was quite sure he would never find; something that would lift a vast burden from his tired, bread should-

Fresh Air and Exercise

Health Service of The Canadian Medical Association

Is your child a hot house plant? Certainly not, but unfortunately many children are being raised as if they were. Many parents do not know the meaning of healthy exercise and forget the value of fresh air.

True, every child, unless ill, plays and uses up a lot of energy. How much good will it do a child if he has to be near his mother all the time and spends his time playing in a hot stuffy kitchen, laundry or whatever his mother is working? Every child should spend three to five hours a day playing in the open air, except in the very hot, the very cold, or stormy weather.

Occasionally one sees the child who is too active, plays too hard, or does not sleep well, does not eat is irritable and restless. That child needs curbing in his activities and should be made to take more rest. When sleeping the window of the bedroom should be open to allow for fresh air, though one should not allow a direct draught on the child. Even when the child is ill the room should be aired while by letter.

Babies should sleep out of doors during the day long after one month of age. This means that except when being fed or changed babies can spend the whole day in the open air. The carriage should be placed so that the wind does not blow directly on the baby. After once accustomed to sleeping out babies seldom object strenuously if they are kept indoors. Babies and children can be out of doors in all except the most severe weather (10° below zero or lower) if proper clothed.

For exercise the infant should be allowed to kick on the clothes or a blanket on the floor with no clothes on, at bath time and before bed time at night.

Let us strive to give our children the best chance. We all know all make the fullest use of fresh air which may be so beneficial.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

MOUSTACHE TITLE TO JOHN KONTRA

81 Year Old Lays Claim to Entry 28 Inches in Length

Kapovar, Hungary, Jan. 16 (AP) John Kontra, 81 years old, came forth today to claim the world's moustache championship—28 inches in length.

Stretched, the adornment measures five inches on each side of the chin; flies, however, each wing is about eight inches.

That is because of its curl, the result of hours of lavish care. A man's born is best for this purpose, Kontra said, and he spends hours petting the moustache, caring for the curves of the born, using oil to make it conform.

The practice almost brought disaster. The special oil wasn't available one night as Kontra was getting himself and the moustache ready for bed. So he had to take oil from a burning lamp in his stable.

Then he lighted his pipe. Flames burst forth. One eye was badly hurt but the moustache was unharmed.

Kontra was taken to a hospital for treatment. His ram's horn went with him and doctors and nurses not only groped his ailing eye but helped him care for the jet-black moustache, which flourished as it never had before.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE
"Lloyds of London"

Against the turbulent canvas of adventure and intrigue which forms the pulse-stirring background of "Lloyds of London", the picture that has started two continents and which opens at the Belle Theatre today where it will remain until Wednesday matinee daily, there stands out one of the great love stories of all time, when fierce courage and vengeful fury fought to the death for a love that flamed while the fate of an empire hung in the balance.

Packed with the thrill of forbidden kisses that changed the destiny of a whole empire, as the fateful lovers forgot everything but that they were man and woman in each other's arms, the new Twentieth Century-Fox epic which tells the story of human passions that were inextricably woven with the course of history.

When Freddie Bartholomew as young Jonathan Blake, and Douglas Scott, as the youthful Horatio Nelson, discover a plot to scuttle a ship and collect the insurance from Lloyds, the boyhood friends determine to warn "Mr. Lloyd" of the plot. At the last moment, Horatio's uncle takes the boys aboard and Freddie sets out alone on the hundred-mile dash ashore.

The young lad's courage so impresses Sir Guy Standing, head of the syndicate, that he rewards the boy by taking him into the business, where every year Jonathan grows in stature and reputation.

During the years that follows, Jonathan often hears the great bell of Lloyds toll its message to the ears of listening Britons—twice for good news, once for disaster. Then comes the news of the French Revolution, of the heroic struggle between England and France for supremacy of the seas, and of the swift rise of Napoleon.

Through these eventful years, Jonathan Blake, now played by Tyrone Power, has grown along with Lloyds. A secret mission to France brings a meeting with Maddelon Carroll, a stormy sea-swept voyage back to England, during which they discover their love for each other, and the crushing blow for Jonathan's new-found hopes when he learns that she is already married to Lord Stacy, his avowed enemy.

In the midst of words turmoil and personal torment, Jonathan now famous in London, struggles to maintain equilibrium and fight his way, through to happiness for himself, honor and glory for his firm, and supremacy for England.

Loyal to Lloyds and determined to protect Admiral Nelson and keep the integrity of his fleet, and ultimately to save the British Empire, he risks everything—his position, the woman he loves, even making himself liable to charges of treason.

"Lloyds of London" stands out as one of the greatest triumphs of Darryl F. Zanuck, Twentieth Century-Fox production chief. Directed by Henry King, with Kenneth Macgowan as associate producer, the screen play of "Lloyds of London" was adapted by Ernest Pascal and Walter Ferris from an original story by Curtis Kenyon.

For your perfect enjoyment see "Lloyds of London" from the beginning at 2.30, 7.15 and 9.30.

AT THE CAPITOL
"Happy-Go-Lucky"

Commencing Sunday midnight at 12.05 with a preview we are showing "Happy-Go-Lucky," new musical comedy romance at regular admission prices.

Starring Mirth with its quaint twisting streets, its panting, half-mode of transportation, its Latin romance, weird Oriental music, tinselled parades, a polyglot than he ever Sunday midnight at 12.05 and plays Monday and Tuesday at the Capitol.

Starring in the picture is Phil Regan, handsome Irish tenor—who is more handsome and more entrancing minstrelsy than he ever has been—and exclaiming "Laughing Irish Eyes," "Join the Marines," and "Broadway Hostess."

The plot of the story revolves about the antics of an American aviator in China apparently suffering from a temporary loss of memory. The sweetheart and fiancee of the flyer is played by the beautiful Evelyn Venable who is even more fetching and regal after a few months away from screen work.

Thousands of Chinese, sailors, soldiers and mixed types appear in the Shanghai sets covering several city blocks. An all-Chinese girl chorus, the first we've ever seen in a motion picture—or anywhere—in which they present weird and dazzling musical numbers—which are sung by Miss Phil Regan.

Others in the cast include Jed Prouty, Karl Dackert, William Newell and about twenty other famous Hollywood characters and Mr. Chaplin.

Added Shorts

A satirical comedy featuring Herman Timber and Pat Rooney, "Hal, Rah, Rhythm" and a Betty Boop cartoon, "Be Human" and a novelty short, "This Badminton Racket" complete this splendid show.

Today Only

Gene Autry in "The Old Corral" for today only, matinee and evening, with new songs, new thrills, new fun with your favourite Western star as he plunges into his most dangerous job. Also an imposing array of short subjects complete this swell show.

Horticultural Society Reorganized at Stirling

Stirling—The annual meeting for the purpose of re-organization of the Stirling Horticultural Society was held on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 13th in the Stirling Agricultural Hall. Mr. J. B. Belshaw, President and District Director of the co-operative, occupied the chair. In his official report of the activities of the organization during the year 1936 Mr. Belshaw reported a total membership of 110 which was an increase over previous years. The flower show sponsored by the organization in the Stirling Fair Fair had compared very favorably with former years, he declared. He wished to express the thanks of the Society to the Community Service Building Committee for their kind co-operation and to all the officers and committee workers who had given him such splendid support. The work of civic improvement which had been carried on during the past year with the co-operation of the village council and also the Stirling Branch of the Ontario Women's Institute was progressing well until, due to other duties, he was compelled to cease work by those in charge of the erection of the cenotaph on the south side of Main Street, a project of the society which, he looked upon with favor by all citizens of the community. He also gave a very interesting report of the District Convention of Horticultural Society which took place last July in Gananoque where all delegates were the guests of the Brockville Horticultural Society. Special mention was made of the splendid meeting of Mrs. M. Sine, past secretary-treasurer of the Stirling Society, when Mr. O. C. Bateman, District Director of St. Catharines who had officiated as Secretary-Treasurer of the district governing body of the Provincial Society since its beginning. Complete report of the year's work was also given by acting secretary and treasurer.

Election of Officers

The election of officers and various committees to direct the activities of the organization for the coming year resulted in the following ladies and gentlemen being duly elected. Mr. J. B. Belshaw, who for many years has been one of the most enthusiastic workers in the society was elected President for the 1923 year in succession. The officers for 1937 are as follows:

President—Mr. J. B. Belshaw.
1st Vice President—Mrs. Jos. Wilson.
2nd Vice President—Mrs. E. T. Ward.
3rd Vice President—Mrs. J. E. O'Donnell.
Secretary-Treasurer—Mr. Quincy Leary.
Directors—Mr. L. Munro, Mr. H. Rollins, Mrs. W. J. Whitehead, Mrs. H. Williams, Mrs. C. F. Wait, Mrs. J. M. McCoe and Mrs. A. Hammond.
Canvassers—Mrs. Bateman, Mrs. E. T. Ward, Mrs. A. Hammond, Mrs. J. M. McCoe, Mrs. E. Morrow, Mrs. C. Bateman, Springbrook, Mrs. J. E. O'Donnell, Mrs. L. Munro, Mrs. C. F. Wait and Mr. J. B. Belshaw.
Delegate to Provincial Convention—Mr. J. B. Belshaw.
Premium Committee—Mr. J. B. Belshaw, Mrs. J. M. McCoe, Mrs. Rollins, Mrs. J. Wilson, and Mrs. E. T. Ward.

Among the other important matters discussed during this meeting which was well attended was the matter of holding an outdoor meeting for the society same as last year with a prominent speaker.

Promotion Day at St. Andrew's S. S.

The pupils of St. Andrew's Presbyterial Church Sunday School were responsible for a large portion of the Christmas service held in the Sabbath morning. The children of the Sunday School occupied the front seats in the auditorium and in addition to the splendid address delivered by Rev. J. A. Kofford especially for the children, they themselves contributed several interesting numbers, one of which was a drill by Junior girls, Mary Chilton, Sadie Cochrane, Geraldine Cochrane, Doris Jandrews, Marybelle Rodgers and Jean Christian, Grade 1 in an exercise entitled "The Everyday Things of Life". The pupils of the Sunday School had the additional singing and also presented two special Christmas songs.

Diplomas Presented

Third year seals—Margaret Wilson, Dorothy Rodgers, Margaret Wilson, Doris Jandrews.

Fourth year seals—Jean McIntosh, Grant Montgomery, Lillian Matthews, Mary Anne Fox.

Fifth year seals—Marie Day, Dorothy Day.

Seventh year seals—Shirley Orser and Donald McIntosh.

St. Paul's Young People's Union

The first meeting of the St. Paul's United Church Young People's Union for the year 1937 was held in the church parlors on Monday evening with a large number of the members and friends in attendance. The meeting was under the auspices of the Missionary Dept. Mr. Harry Hulin directed the opening exercise and devotional period which included the singing of the theme song" with Mrs. H. Moore at the piano and a brief song service of familiar hymns. Miss Olive Hulin rendered a splendid solo which was taken from the sixth chapter of Ephesians and Mr. Hulin led in prayer. A splendid missionary reading was presented by Miss Ina Hall.

The remaining portion of the program was directed by Miss Phyllis Matheson, vice President and leader of the Missionary Department. The speaker for the evening was Rev. Donald Scott, who took as the basis for his interesting address on the theme set forth for this particular meeting in the Young People's Union Program, His interesting talk dealt with the subject "Home Tyranny, Anarchy or Democracy." Miss Alice Rose Rowsell was a violin solo "Canto Amoroso" with Mrs. Moore at the piano. Miss Matheson gave a clever reading entitled "The altered picture" written by Lucille Eaton Hunter of Athens, Ontario. As the part of the program closed with the singing of another hymn. During the social period which followed Miss Ann Christian conducted a "Missionary Question Contest" in which the Khaki division, captained by Geraldine Bird attendance recording system received a good number present and the contest closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Personal,

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Scarlet of Belleville were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hulin. Miss Flossie Hulin accompanied them to Belleville for a visit with friends visiting in Trenton.

Mrs. J. F. Foster of Belleville was a guest on Tuesday at the home of his sister Miss Sarah Knox.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hulin were guests on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hulin.

Heavy rains and the sudden thaw of the last few days sent torrents of water rushing down the streets and gardens in various parts of the town were under the water which continued throughout Thursday but the ice surface of the local Arena remained intact. Only a few inches of water was reported on the ice surface of the local Arena which is a quick freeze-up several scheduled games slated to be played on the ice will be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur V. Hulin spent Wednesday evening visiting at the home of the former's brother, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hulin.

Messrs Arthur Duncan and E. Bateman motored to Toronto by Mac-doc and attended the weekly meeting of St. Peter's Presbyterian Young People's Union with the former being the guest speaker for the evening. Mr. Bateman's address was on the subject of "Youth today and yesterday."

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Hatton spent Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hall in Belleville.

MALONE

Malone—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kelly were in Belleville one day last week.

Mr. Isaac Wait and Master Glenn Nickle of Madoc are spending a few days in Malone.

Last Thursday a truck hauling pulp wood from Malone had the misfortune to go through the ice on stone's hill, due to the icy road, running into the ditch. It broke a fence post and turned over on its side. Fortunately the driver climbed out of the window unharmed.

Mrs. Tom McCann called on Mrs. C. Weese on Thursday last.

Mr. Levi Wannamaker, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Fox and Dorothy Mae Mrs. H. Weese and Don spent Sunday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Elmond Bird at Foxboro.

The Ladies' Aid of Malone held their annual meeting in the basement of the church. The annual report was read and much business discussed. The officers were elected as follows: Walter Cawley resigned from the office of president and Mrs. Ernest Weese and Mrs. Thomas McCann was re-elected as secretary treasurer.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Nickle for the use of the piano over his store for the past year. A word of appreciation was received from the parties who received Christmas parcels, also a box of treats, while being confined to their beds. It was decided upon by the Aid that in 1937 the treats to the sick would cease and the Aid would endeavor to help relieve the needy ones in the vicinity instead. This Aid which started one year ago this month, now has a membership of about twenty-five members and a splendid bank account to start their second year with.

The Ladies' Aid to have started in Malone by the praise of citizens for the cheer which it has brought to many home, for the past year. All hope that it will keep flowing by year and by the end of this year may it bring that much more cheer to this vicinity. The ladies closed their first year by serving lunch also to a number of gentlemen who called on the Aid that day, all singing God Save The King.

—A summer sore is one with colds.

PLAINFIELD

Plainfield—The young people of the United Church were entertained at the parsonage on Tuesday evening for their annual party, filled with a good attendance. William Dorus was appointed president, Drury Denyes, treasurer and Arthur Carleton, secretary. It was thought best to turn about from the order of service, given in the pathfinder and arrange some more suitable to the local situation and programs were made out up until the end of April. A number voted a desire to attend the Winter School session on Monday evening when Rev. J. D. Parks of Toronto is to address the young People and it is planned that a Valentine social be arranged in advance of those wishing to attend. It is expected that several will attend some of the Winter School sessions and that echoes from the school will constitute a good part of some of the local meeting on the following Tuesday evening. Other subjects that will be treated in the meetings besides giving ample thought to Worship, Fellowship and Stewardship will be War, Church Organization, and some of the moral and social problems that are confronting us to face.

Mrs. Harry Harrison led the group in community singing and at the close a light lunch was served by Mrs. Evenson.

The annual meeting of Zion Hill Sunday School was held on Wednesday evening. The report showed an average attendance of thirty-three. Mrs. Ida Wood was elected M. and M. Fund and two dollars and fifty cents given to the M. and M. Fund. The total enrollment is 51. The following were elected to the executive. Superintendent—Mr. W. E. Denyes, Assistant, Mr. Cecil Hough and Laurence Ackerson. Treasurer, Mr. Lorne Brough; Pianist, Miss Ada Marquis. Home Department, Mr. Denyes; Temperance, Mrs. Drury Denyes; Missionary, Mrs. Fred Searles; Cradle Roll, Mrs. Clifford Ketchenson; Teachers, Primary class, Mrs. Ernest Ketchenson; Mrs. Clifford Ketchenson; Junior class, Mrs. Lorne Brough and Fred Searles; Young men, Mr. Cecil Ketcheson; Young Women, Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson. Adult class, Mrs. Fred Searles and Mr. H. K. Denyes; Women's Class, Mrs. H. K. Denyes and Mrs. Harold Beatty. A large number of juvenile boys and girls received their certificates in the form of scientific temperance.

The annual meeting of the Zion Hill congregation was held in the church on Wednesday evening with the Rev. J. F. Brownell in the chair. Reports were heard from various workers, the pastor also speaking for the W.M.S. stated that $96.00 had been sent, to the branch treasurer which was a gain of $6.00 increase over 1932. The congregation raised $1,000.00 for the M. and M. Fund which amount is equal to last years contributions, and further amounts are expected to be paid in 1936 which account remains open until the end of January. The treasurer reported $11.00 on hand after all the accounts had been settled for the past year. Mr. Harold Beatty and Mr. Cecil Ketcheson were appointed auditors and after engaging a caretaker and the buying of wood, etc.

Mr. Cecil Ketcheson and Mr. H. K. Denyes were re-elected members of the session. Mr. Fred Searles' position was elected to the Board of Stewards to fill the vacancy consequent upon his removal to Grand Cranston going to Belleville. Mr. Hamilton Wood and Mr. Laurence Ackerson and Mr. Myron Hawley were re-elected to the office of steward. Mr. Cecil Ketcheson was re-appointed treasurer and Mrs. Percy Ray was re-appointed secretary.

Mr. Lorne Brough gave a report of the cemetery committee and this was found quite satisfactory. Mr. Cecil Ketcheson was appointed to form finance committee of the cemetery.

Stirling Cheese Company Sponsor Oyster Supper

Stirling—Nearly two hundred people, patrons and members of the Stirling Cheese Factory and the families gathered in the community service building in Stirling on Thursday night for a very successful oyster supper and a short program of musical numbers, readings and brief addresses by prominent citizens of district.

At seven o'clock nearly two hundred guests gathered in the lobby of the theatre and when the tables were made ready entered the dining hall. The arrangement of the tables was directed by the ladies who were also responsible for the cakes, tarts, pie, etc.

Interesting Program

At promptly eight o'clock the gathering was again called to order and Mr. M. Ellis, President of the Factory, very efficiently took over the duties of master of ceremonies. In his chairman's address he set forth very clearly the object of the gathering and lauded the Standard Reeve Tree. Cranston and Ex.-Reeve C. W. West who together had financed the use of the Stirling Community Building. The original plan of holding the event on the premises of the factory would the premises of the factory would gathering would be held from time to time in the future since they promote such a fine spirit of neighborly fellowship among the patrons.

Mr. Arthur Duncan of Stirling assisted in the leadership of lively assistant in the leadership of lively Community Singing with Miss Kathleen at the piano. Greetings were extended to the gathering on behalf of the Village Council none of whom were able to be present because of municipal meetings.

A vocal duet by Misses Blanche and Zida McMullen, playing their own accompaniment on the piano was very much enjoyed and was the first musical number on a list that provided entirely by local talent. The first speaker of the evening was Mr. W. J. Weir who expressed his sincere gratitude for the privilege of being present and spoke of the splendid spirit exemplified in such friendly gatherings. A tenor solo by Mr. Gordon Green was the next number on the program and his encore was very much enjoyed.

"Old Squiging Wheel" was a real treat. Mr. Hayton, well known elocutionist of Rawdon Township, next presented one of her most humorous readings and was received with encore by the loud applause. The presentation of a gift duet by Mr. Eric Chapelle and Miss Irene Tucker also caught the fancy of the music lovers present and this talented young couple graciously responded to a second number. The next speaker was Rev. James E. Bockel, pastor of Rawdon United Church Circuit and thanks to the latter made an tempt to give an address he caused a great deal of merriment with a story of stories of real wit and humor, the whole spoke briefly on matters available for such functions within the immediate district and the young people particularly and expressed the wish that such functions would continue in their being. Arthur Duncan was next on the program and offered a group of readings and songs. Miss Beryl Mcdonald, elocutionist, also of Rawdon Township created much laughter with her reading entitled "Wives". Introducing several names of guests present. Community singing by Mr. J. Mulhern was the biggest hit of the evening. This young man gives a very realistic impression of Sir Harry Lauder and his song, "Glasgow" was a sensation.

Each of the artists mentioned above offered encore numbers in the last half of the program which maintained its quality throughout. Other speakers included Mr. C. P. Linn, District Cheese Factory Inspector, who spoke in high praise of the excellent workmanship of the local cheesemakers who were definitely establishing a record for future years which will be hard to beat. At this time Reeve Chas. Cranston entered the hall and was warmly greeted as he extended words of welcome to all present on behalf of the local Council. At the close of the program expressions of gratitude were conveyed to the ladies for the generous help to all assisting artists and to Messrs. Cranston and West, by Mr. John Bateman and Mr. William Dorey, and this part of the evening's entertainment was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

The room was then cleared of all furnishing to make way for the dancing which was enjoyed until the early hours of the morning. Music was provided by Messrs. Blake Johnston and Irvine Eggleton and Mr. F. Martin officiated as floor manager. This was without a doubt one of the leading social functions held in Stirling this season.

The readable reminiscences of a man whose business it is to find perfect shovel-tusked mastodons out of the earth where they have reposed for six centuries is the kind of chapter Roy Chapman Andrews in his book "This Business of Exploring." Dr. Andrews in the first part of his book answers the questions often put to him, "How can I become an explorer?" and "What is there left to discover?" He gives a brief survey of the field of exploration, with particular reference to his own life and points out the wide field still remaining for explorers of the future. An exciting chapter is one devoted to the dangers of exploring, of reptiles, animals and tribal superstitions. The latter part of the book contains an account of the author's expeditions into Central Asia. Here he describes the discovery of Mongolia proved to be a treasure house packed with unknown riches. The information discovered supplied many well known links in the story of the world.

One of the most entertaining plays of the current New York season is the Edna Ferber-George S. Kaufman play "Stage Door." Taking as its background the theatre, the scene which is concerning everyone at present, they have woven it into a gay stream of youth and the theatre. With the scene laid in the Footlights Club, a club for girls of the stage in New York, a cross-section of life is presented through the episodes in the lives of these aspiring artists. The conflict of the stage versus the movies is the storm that tosses about the life of the leading character, Terry Randall. This play reveals a mastery of craftsmanship and a sharp characterization and humor reminiscent of the playwright's former success of "Royal Family."

Martin Barzun has called Canada "a land of lakes and woods of man-made uniformity" and in his latest volume "Quebec, Where Ancient Europe Lingers," he shows why this is so. He takes the reader on a delightful tour to two-hundred-year-old farm homes still in use, to old convents, museums of the days of "le seigneur". The chapters devoted to the arts of Quebec are interesting, especially furniture, and handicrafts still surviving from 1639 of gesso point and wood carving, of engravers of the 18th century and their wrought silver. Royal Bank of Canada 68th Annual Meeting

Morris W. Wilson, President and Managing Director, Strongly Urges Need for Orderly Recovery — Recommends Commission to Investigate Financial Relationships of Dominion, Provincial and Municipal Governments.

Sydney G. Dobson, General Manager, Reports $56,000,000 Increase in Deposits — Profits Improved—"Business Undoubtedly on Up Grade"

Warning against the dangers of a speculative boom and a plea that recovery be maintained on an orderly basis, were outstanding features of the address of Morris W. Wilson, President and Managing Director, at the 68th. Annual General Meeting of The Royal Bank of Canada.

That recovery was well on the way there could be little doubt, and "even the most sanguine would have instituted a year ago to predict progress as great as that which has been accomplished during 1936," stated Mr. Wilson.

In addressing the meeting, Mr. Wilson said, in part:

"A serious drought again affected large areas in the West, with consequent loss and distress to the farmers immediately concerned. Those fortunate in respect of crops last year benefited materially by high prices for wheat. In the main, of a broad recovery, farm income has lagged behind.

"It is gratifying that the stocks of grain in Canada are again at normal proportions, and that there is a fair way to take the Government of Canada out of grain handling business. It is sincerely to be hoped that she will not be drawn into it again.

Industries

"Prices for newsprint have shown a slight increase during the past year and the industry, with a heavier volume of sales, has brought encouragement to those interested in it.

"The lumber industry there has been a satisfactory volume of demand, from Great Britain over the United States of their latest building boom. This demand has been maintained during the past year and is the most important factor in the improvement of conditions in lumbering.

"The value of Canadian mineral production established a new high record in 1936, amounting to approximately $395,000,000, compared with $312 million in 1935. The prospects of the Canadian mining industry are more encouraging than at any time in the past.

"Throughout the manufacturing industries of Canada, volume of production has been above the level established in 1926 and in October reached the highest point recorded since 1929.

Employment and Relief

"At the moment manufacturing employment is close to normal. In some cases it is above normal, while general employment is greater than at any time in our history. The trade field volume of employment is not unsatisfactory. Under these circumstances, I would examine with care the claim that the time has arrived to close down relief and those entirely dependent upon unemployment relief. It is a notable fact that there has been no increase in unemployment since 1921. At a time like the present a beginning should be made on our various governing bodies facts which would help them in determination of policies.

Division of Taxes

Over a wide field of economic legislation it is virtually impossible to guess with ultimate authority rests with the Province or with the Dominion.

"Let us secure a review of the whole problem of the basis of submission with the object of resolving these complexities. Changed economic and social conditions have thrown responsibilities on various governing bodies that were never contemplated at the time of Confederation. As a consequence, there is found increasingly difficulty, in some instances, to meet these additional responsibilities with the sources of revenue at their disposal. Existing methods are inadequate for maintaining the national credit. If it is at all possible, some equitable means must be found which will permit both provinces and municipalities to continue the service of their public debt in full.

Individualistic Democracy

"It is the fashion in certain quarters to say that the system of capitalism—or as I prefer to term it, individualism—has failed.

"In the past it has adapted itself to changes in economic conditions with success, and there is no reason to think that such adaptation will not continue to be made. In fact, they must be made if the system is to be preserved between the United Kingdom and the United States. There remains Nazism in competition, individualism will survive if the best of its which it provides to the community are made to be greater than those conferred upon people living under other organizations in the society.

"If we would set ourselves to the world we must manifest that unusual degree of self-control which restrains license and thus avoids subsequent depressions.

Money

"It is for this reason then that the present monetary situation is an outstanding challenge to economic individualism. Can a people government, such as that in the United States, for instance, deal effectively with the monetary situation? The revaluation of gold by the United States and the reduction in the gold value of other currencies, made almost unanimous last year by the capitulation of the European gold bloc introduced a dynamic inflationary force into world economy. It is encouraging to note that this potentially serious to be understood by the constituents in the United States and that they are taking definite action. The world has not previously experienced a period when borrowing rates have been so low for so long a time. If continued at this basis an unhealthy and artificial situation will develop. Easy money is a powerful force. It operates somewhat slowly, but so with until it is effective it is necessary to take a lot of hand will be to create conditions which can be corrected at only the greatest cost. In some quarters we are asked to believe that the policy of increasing circulation of general economy may make it possible to continue low interest rates more or less indefinitely. I feel strongly that this will be a mistake and that the situation now being taken is by no means unsatisfactory. By use, if necessary, of the huge reserves already accumulated it would be possible to prevent any serious interruption in recovery. It is surely better that we maintain the upward trend for a prolonged period and that recovery shall proceed in an orderly manner than the minimum of encouragement to irresponsible speculation. We must on account allow recovery to degenerate into boom—the fore-runner of destruction. Reasonable recovery will stand or fall, depending upon its ability to prevent depressions.

General Manager's Address

In reviewing the annual balance sheet, Mr. S. G. Dobson, General Manager, opened with satisfaction to an increase of $54,968,757 in total assets, which aggregated $855,588,407, and to an increase in deposits generally during the year of $56,579,809. Mr. Dobson said in part:

Current Loans Situation

"The demand for loans in Canada was again disappointing, though there have been indications during the last few months of increased requirements for business purposes. While advances under the heading of Current Loans in Canada decreased $41,261,783 during the year, this does not indicate that the reduction in one of our ordinary borrowers were that much smaller as indicated by the figures published. They for by repayment of two special loans amounting to $20,000,000 by the Wheat Board liquidated principally through the sale of surplus stocks of wheat held under Government control, and the repayment by a subsidiary company of loans made to it by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, which company in turn had obtained the loan to that company made by the chartered banks under Government guarantee.

"I give this information to correct an impression which casual observation of the Bank's statement in our Balance Sheet might create, that is, that business is still undergoing a process of liquidation.

"In this connection it is interesting to note that the total of commercial loans in Canada of all banks are slightly higher than the amount outstanding at the end of 1929.

"Due to increased deposits, we are pleased to report an improvement in Profits of $1,000,000, which, by and large, this is an encouraging trend.

Improvement in Business

A review of conditions in Canada and other countries in which the bank has branches, indicates a definite improvement in business in Canada and in practically all of the foreign countries in which we are represented. Business is undoubtedly on the upgrade, and I am pleased to say that the general feeling of confidence than has been justified for some years.

NEW ZEALAND PLANS TRADE AGREEMENT WITH THE DOMINION

London, Jan. 16 (CP)—New Zealand is planning to negotiate a new trade agreement with Canada, Walter Nash, New Zealand Minister of Finance who is now in London predicted the first session of parliament between the United Kingdom and New Zealand. "We are returning home via Canada and deal directly with the Canadian ministers at Ottawa. Should Nash be unable to follow this program, trade talks between New Zealand and Canada may be expected at the time of the Imperial Conference in London in May.

"New Zealand now has a trade agreement with Canada made in 1922. The agreement is for one year, but it has been continued and is now provisionally extended until September next. Under this agreement, New Zealand takes from Canada considerable quantities of automobiles, canned fish, newsprint and lumber. Canada takes butter, hides and skins. New Zealand points to the balance of trade in favor of Canada and would like to increase her exports to Canada, particularly in wool and butter.

Babson Discusses Pros and Cons of Bond Outlook

(By Roger B. Babson)

BOND BUYERS BE CAREFUL

Babson Park, Mass., January 15, 1937. January is usually one of the biggest bond months of the year. It should be even more so this year due to the tremendous outpourings of dividend notices during December and the bonds called for January. My figures show there are between two and three dollars seeking reinvestment at the present time. Investors are perplexed. They are asking: "It is wise to hold investment funds liquid, hoping for lower prices and higher yields in the future, or are bond returns going to remain at current levels indefinitely?" Here are some of the major pros and cons which must be considered in answering this question:

FIVE BULLISH FACTORS

1. FLOOD OF MONEY: The board of money control of the Federal Reserve sources today is unprecedented. Bank deposits and reserves are at peak levels. Business and investment confidence has returned. Insurance companies, trust institutions, corporations, and individuals are all stepping on each other's toes in their efforts to get gains. Investors, instead of trying to get rich quick, are trying to avoid it. Today's bond salesman does not sell you bonds. He tells you not to buy bonds for he "let" you have them.

2. SCARCITY OF NEW ISSUES: The small driblet of new issues is not enough to satisfy the total investment assurance. Back in 1929 new capital financing amounted to $10,000,000. In 1934 the figure was $178,000,000; while in 1936 the total was still $147,000,000. Today, when the volume of new flotations is abnormally small compared with previous years, the investment market is far too small to absorb the inflow.

3. PREVAILING MONEY RATES: Interest rates are the lowest in history. Money, like labor, wheat, and other commodities, has its price, and is going to remain low as long as supply and demand. Today money is the cheapest commodity on the city. Not fully low return has dragged bond yields down to a point where, measured against stock yields, they are the most important single factor in today's bond outlook. There are some signs in the air which are pointing to a stiffening in money rates. But the huge excess reserves will prevent this for the time being.

4. GOVERNMENT POLICY: The Administration's idea is to keep the money rates easy for the long term, at least. It has the power over credit to do so and most of the decisions of the Federal Reserve during the recovery period have been in this direction. The national debt has almost doubled in the past six years. Any increase in charges to the bone, the Treasury must do all in its power to hold down money rates and to build up bond prices until it refunds all of its maturities from debt into long-term issues at 2½ per cent.

5. BUDGET OUTLOOK: The improvement of business has increased Uncle Sugar's factor although its effect is not as strong as the others. Despite astronomical spending, record-breaking tax collections are slowly narrowing the gap between income and expense. If the current trend continues there is some possibility that the budget can be balanced in 1939. This is encouraging to many trustees and other institutional investors who might otherwise turn their funds into stocks or other channels.

FIVE BEARISH INFLUENCES

Against these buoyant influences must be balanced the following five trends which will eventually level off bond prices.

1. BETTER BUSINESS: Rising business profits are perhaps the most basic bearish bond factor today. As more profit is made by corporations, the demand for money increases. Money rates gradually rise and funds are coaxed from low-yielding securities into more profitable channels. New enterprises sprout up and add to the money demand. The edge comes off bonds and bond prices slowly sag. This natural trend would already have been noticeable except for the power of government-controlled credit.

2. GOVERNMENT POLICY: Eventually, however, the Treasury will "pull the plug". When its refunding operations are concluded, the government will probably let money rates seek their own level. After federal money ceases to be unnatural factors, such as business profits and commodity prices, will determine the course of money rates and bond prices. Commercial loans will speed up. The real estate mortgage rates will stiffen. Money will pay better all around and the upward pressure will be off bond prices.

3. CHANGING DEMAND: Even today there is a substantial change in the number of investment opportunities. The stock market and industries in currently supporting high bond prices; but the trend is definitely toward a higher yield. Confidence has returned in business during 1937, large new issues of financing total doubled. In addition, certain types of bank rates have been increased. Commitments now are $700,000,000 above a year ago.

4. FEAR OF TAX EXEMPTS: The tax exemption feature is a powerful factor bothering many a bond buyer. There is a strong feeling that income tax rates in future years may be abolished. If so, thousands of investors will no longer be willing to pay for tax advantage and will turn their funds into other forms of investment. This will quickly increase the supply of corporation issues. The result could be a depressing influence on the general bond market even though certain issues might be aided by such a development.

5. LOW YIELDS: The average yield on a high-grade bond today is slightly over 2 per cent. Never before, in my opinion, have investors been able to sell callable new debenture bonds bearing 4 per cent coupons at 100. Many second-grade and junior issues are selling so high that they are offering good investments nor good speculations. The profit possibilities are few. Even when selling at 100 can later be bought for 75 or 70 to yield 4½ per cent. Such prices will automatically places a ceiling on prices.

CONCLUSION

In getting the answer to the question: "Should I buy now or wait?" the bond investor must weigh these various factors in the scales of his own individual situation. Those who do buy now must turn a shrewder eye to the problem of maturities than ever before. That is the most important bond rule today. Personally, I prefer non-callable short maturities. Simply to fatten yields, do not buy second-grade stuff. Briefly, it seems to me that the balance between the "pro" and "con" factors favors continued high prices for the near-term but lower prices over the longer-term. As I size up the outlook, the bond market is today in about the same position as the stock market was in the latter part of 1929.

Business, as estimated by the Babson statistical, is now running at 4 per cent above normal and 8 per cent above a year ago.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

"Will the U. S. automobile strike last long enough to close down the pace of business and check recovery?" asks P. M. Edwards, financial editor of Saturday night in his weekly column. "How will it affect the stock market? These are the big questions right now in financial and business circles. The strike is being referred to as 'the most devastating disorder in industry and labor.' If this is really the case, the end of the strike—at present confined directly to General Motors plants—is extended to those of other major automobile companies and followed by more drastic labor disorders, it would seem that the trouble ahead might be serious enough to disrupt business almost completely temporarily at least, destroy public confidence in the stability of industry. It is not ready, of course, caused a loss of billions of dollars in the market, ramifications of the industry's operations and its many suppliers, and increase rapidly as the strike continues."

Hollinger

For several weeks a considerable amount of selling pressure has been noted in the shares of Hollinger. It now comes to light that the liquidation has been coming from the Mackenzie Investment Trust. It is one of the leading American investing companies and controls 27,800 shares of Hollinger recently. The Mackenzie Hollinger speak very optimistically about the outlook and in a very frank manner. Recently Mr. Mackenzie, Mr. Martin estates have been on the selling side of Hollinger.

Home Improvement

Nearly a million dollars of available funds have been borrowed for home improvement in 1,640 towns throughout the country. This should put a dent in the unemployment figures.

GILLIES LAKE

In a letter to shareholders giving notice of the annual meeting January 29th, Mr. Bernard N. Hyman, President of Gillies Lake Porcupine Gold Mines, gives a short progress report for the fourth quarter of last year.

"Production for December is estimated to be close to $50,000.00. This brings the total for the fourth quarter to $140,000.00 approximately $92,000.00 as against $27,000.00 for the third quarter. The profit from the mill heads for the mine ore milled during the last three months amounted to $18.50 for October, $30.07 for November and $18.50 for December."

Mine workings at the end of the year consisted of 1,640 feet of drifts, 947 feet with levels established at 100, 200, 300, 400 and 500 feet. Ore reserves at 30c a dozen stood at 1,245,000 tons, 1,200,000 tons at 3,295 feet and crosscuts 4,173 feet. During the year a total of 2,623 feet of diamond drilling was done.

POWER RESOURCE WILL BE STUDIED

Toronto, Jan. 16 (CP)—Ontario's power resources will be one of the first problems to be studied when Premier Hepburn delves into when he returns to Queen's Park this week, hopes to recover from a bronchial ailment which has weakened him during the past few days.

With his wife and two children, the Premier will leave shortly for Arizona on the first leg of his journey to recover from his illness, complicated by his recent strenuous duties and heavy affliction.

Unofficial departure for his St. Thomas home from where he leaves Wednesday for the West, Mr. Hepburn declared yesterday he would consult members and officers of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission on his return regarding the province's power needs.

"Let me say that the great resources of Ontario in the hands of competent engineers—but if I'm not mistaken, the whole development of the power need I shall gladly institute an outside appraisal, perhaps by Hydro's needs. I do not believe that, judging from information which I have, and I'm fully confident that the power needs of this province are looked after for many years to come."

Toronto, Jan. 16.—(CP)—The sheep and lamb division of the Toronto Livestock Exchange displayed a strong tone this week, the December slaughter was reported, and prices moved about 50 cents higher. A heavy supply of cattle made that section of the trade dull in recent advance. Calves lost an early advance of 50 cents. Hog prices firmed after a soft start and closed about 25 cents higher.

Some 500 cattle were sold last Friday and Saturday at prices 50 cents over, when about 1,000 head close. Monday's market opened at previous levels, but packers gradually suffered a decline of 50 cents cwt. by the close. Tuesday's run of 1,200 cattle from Monday was reduced to around 600 by Thursday.

Butcher cattle that opened $4.25 to $5.75 with some at $6 A high mark of $7 cwt. was paid for a few Saturday for good butchers. Choice weighty steers closed at $6.50 to $6.75 with Monday's top at $7.25. Cows opened at $4.50 to $5.50 and heifers at $4 with plain grades as low as $3. Canners and Cutters brought $1.75 to $2.75.

Bulls were steady under export demand, good beef bulls and steers bringing $4 to $4.50 and bolognas $3.25 to $3.75. Stockers fed calves traded at steady prices of $6 to $7.50 with occasional tops reaching $8.

Small lots of stockers went from $5 to $6.75 cwt. and feeding heifers and springers were priced at $65 to $75 each.

Export shipments to United States were 700 cattle, including six carloads of bulls.

Calves opened the week 50 cents higher under keen export buying but faded again as orders were filled. Imports were 1,000 head. Prime vealers ranged from $11 to $12, closing at $11 to $11.50. Common light calves brought $6 to $8 cwt. and some heavies went between $8.50 and $9. Culls and calves were $4 to $4.20.

Hog prices started the period 10 cents lower at $8.50 off trucks for Saturday. The close was $8.60 to $8.75, long haulers getting the higher price. Car hogs were quoted at $8.25 to $8.50 and all weights off cars. Market tone was soft at the end of the week.

Lamb receipts included 850 weanlings and 200 Prairie lambs sold at $10 with no culling done for a rise of 50 to 60 cents, quality considered. Sheep were steady at $3.25 to $4.50 for best light ewes. Livestock branch weekly summary:

Merits of Defencemen Pair to Be Decided at Montreal as Conacher and Siebert Clash

Contests Between Maroons And Canadiens to be Thriller

LEAFS PLAY HAWKS

Must Win Game to Stay Ahead of The Americans

Without doubt the most exciting prospect of this week-end's National Hockey League battling is the clash, tonight in Montreal of Maroons and Canadiens. None of the other three games on bench is for potential thrills.

To start with there is the old rivalry between the two Montreal teams cunningly fed by the verbal battling of Cecil Hart and Tommy Gorman. The two managers have been so thrillingly nasty to each other the rumor is going around they are trying to outdo Boston's Art Ross and Toronto's Conny Smythe.

That rivalry has been enough to ensure a tough game when Maroons were in the cellar and Canadiens were away out on top of the Canadian section. Now that Gorman's team presents a real threat to the Habitants' continued look on the No. 1 spot the players have almost got around to the stage of hating each other.

Maroons will take the ice spurred by the realization they can almost overtake Hasty Siebert by whipping. But they'll have a fast world-record-tied the Habitant lead to six points and make their arena more lonely leadership that much tougher.

In the hands of Montrealers who will watch the game will be many comparing Babe Siebert's work in the corner of Stamping Babe Siebert, the big shot of Canadiens' defence, and Lionel Conacher, one of the most effective defencemen in the league. In short, the battle is a natural.

Leafs Play Hawks.

The only other game tonight brings together Toronto Maple Leafs without doubt the hardest luck team in the league, and Chicago's backward Black Hawks. Toronto must win if they are to be sure of staying in third place over the week-end.

A loss would leave open the possibility that New York Americans might defeat Boston in Saturday night and drop Conny Smythe's team right back into the scramble. Only a point separates Leafs and Americs.

After playing Toronto, the Hawks return home for a game Sunday with Detroit Red Wings who expect to run their astounding record over York Rangers to six points by taking Hawks as usual.

As he pointed Canadiens for their important battle tonight, Manager Hart announced Pete Langelle, veteran, may not be in shape to return to his duties for a month. His ruptured leg artery and complications forced an operation and the tabling of more than 100 stitches in Lepine's leg.

Another N.H.L. cripple has broken his record silence to announce he is down but not out. Roy Worters, New York Americans' reminder is awaiting a hernia operation to put him on the bot scouts the idea he is washed up for good.

Worters announced he will make no attempt to come back this season but expects to be in good shape next era ever after he spends the summer resting at his home in Toronto.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Spokane—Tiger Jack Fox, Spokane, tripped Bob Olin, 174, New York, former world light heavyweight champion, (3).

Boston—Johnny Road, 150, Worcester, Mass., outpointed Irish Jimmie O'Boyle, 162, Bangor, Me., (10); Henry Woods, 134, Boston, outpointed Bobby Britton 136, New York (10).

C. J. G. McCRACKEN IS APPOINTED ENGINEER

A former resident of Belleville, in the person of C. J. G. McCracken, has been appointed engineer in charge of underground work at DeSantis' Porcupine Mines. Mr. McCracken was for some time with the Steel Company of Canada and was associated on the reconstruction of W. R. Dunbar, Consulting Engineer, for the DeSantis property, which is located about 2½ miles south of Timmins, Ontario, in the Township of Ogden.

In making his recommendation, Mr. Dunbar stated that, with completion of the three-compartment shaft to 400 feet, and the extension of work to the 325 and 400-foot levels, the services of a junior engineer would be required. Hence the appointment.

BACK TO TENNIS BATTLES WITH PERRY

After losing his first three matches to the ex-amateur champion of the courts, Fred Perry, who turned professional, Ellsworth Vines, professional tennis champion, was sent to the hospital suffering from tonsilitis and influenza. Vines flew to Pittsburg to resume his matches, with the Englishman, but reports are that he is even here with Perry on the JUMP.

ELLSWORTH VINES DEFEATS PERRY

Piled up Points With Seeming Ease, Being at Top Form

Pittsburgh, Jan. 16 (AP)—Ellsworth Vines, United States professional tennis champion, shuttled down to Buffalo today with a double victory safely inched away—he licked a cold, then trounced Fred Perry, former amateur king.

Three times before he bowed to Perry in matches at New York, Cleveland and Chicago. Then he went to a Chicago hospital, stayed in bed for six days and licked the cold.

He went into last night's match, back in top form and except for the second set, which went to Perry, displayed marked superiority piling up points seemingly with little effort.

The victory was the first victory in the tour of forty major cities in the country, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, 6-1.

Immediately after the match and a doubles contest in which Perry and George Lott defeated, Bruce Barnes and Vines 7-5, 6-4, Vines started train for Buffalo, next stop on their tour.

SPRINTERS TO HAVE SPOTLIGHT

Herb Wesat to Meet Many Stars in 60 Yard Sprint

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—For the first time since the Venske-Cunningham-Bonthron mile matches became "the thing" several seasons back, the spotlight on an indoor track campaign shifts from middle distance doings to the sprints tonight in the 1937-ninth regiment track and field games.

While both Gene Venzke and Glenn Cunningham will show their stuff, a 60-yard sprint, bringing together several outstanding dash men, including Columbia's Herb Wesat who set a world's 100-metre indoor record a week ago, tops the bill.

Wesat will find a lot of competition from such other speedsters as Robert Redeagle, the Jersey City schoolboy who missed a chance to make the American Olympic team when he pulled a muscle in practice; Eddie O'Sullivan, New York star, and New York University's Manny Kromey.

Venzke and Cunningham are entered in 1,000 yard events, but will not have a chance to renew their rivalry which they picked up in the Knights of Columbus games last week, when the rugged Kansan whipped his Pennsylvania rival at 800 metres. Tonight each will start from scratch in races of the series of three 1,000 yard handicap events. The third of the series finds Manhattan's fast Lou Burns as the scratch entry.

QUEEN'S DEFEAT U. OF M. BY 6-4

Undefeated in Two Starts Move Into Share of Second Place Tie

McGill University's undisputed leadership of the group International-Intercollegiate Hockey League hasn't a chance of surviving another day, Queen's are three points booked tonight in the college circuit and it's down to doughnuts Harvard and Toronto will pull even with the undefeated Redmen from Montreal.

University of Montreal, who dropped a 6-4 decision to Queen's at Kingston last night, invaded U. of T. with the winner getting two points that will tie them with McGill. On the season's play, Toronto should have a handicap as should Harvard against the Tigers of Princeton and Dartmouth against the Elis of Yale.

Queen's waited little time against the French-Canadian pucksters from U. of M. Kentry shot them into a lead after two minutes of play with Johnny Munro and Catlin made it 3-1 after Leger's goal. Hepburn, McGinnis and Carver all scored a singleton for Queen's before Gagne counted for the Montrealers late in the second.

It was one power play after another in the third period and they brought U. of M. a couple of goals, Gagne scoring his second and Lecavalier firing home with only a half-minute to play.

Queen's, undefeated in two starts, moved into a share of the second place slot but they have a lot more thing about the leadership because they're not scheduled again until next Friday.

Whoever wins the Dartmouth-Yale game will get their first points of the season, both teams have dropped their first starts. Princeton has lost four straight and haven't shown anything to warrant confidence against the powerful Harvards who have defeated Toronto in one of their two games.

FREE-FOR-ALL CLIMAXES CONTEST AT CORNWALL

Cornwall, Ont., Jan. 16 (CP)—A free-for-all in which all players and a number of city and arena constables participated climaxed last night's Ottawa Senior City Hockey League game in which the Cornwall Flyers defeated Ottawa Lasalle 6-1.

Mike McMahon, Cornwall player, started the affair when Trevor Renaud had struck his elbow in McMahon's face while he was attempting to break through the Lasalle defence. McMahon whipped off his gloves and started after Renaud.

In no time other players were in the fight as well as poice. Little Ed Graham scraps broke out here and there on the ice. Renaud and McMahon were given major penalties.

Despite the flare-ups, the game was decided in favor of the Flyers all season and by their victory the Flyers broke into a three-point lead in the standings with 17 points.

The release of the standing in the various local hockey groups around this district proves there are some really important games scheduled next week, beginning the two local O. H. A. groups are scheduled Monday night with Belleville meeting Thursday. Another as Belleville fans are concerned, three of the R.C.A.F. games in the arena on Tuesday night, when the group leader also will be at stake, both squads having won their only start of the season. Next Wednesday Belleville will play in Trenton. Now as Belleville and Trenton battled to a thrilling draw between themselves for a "3" grouping at Belleville, much depends on the result of this match. These are the most important games next week in Belleville. The Junior O.H.A. classification the most important game is that on Monday night when the local kids go to Picton to play the Albert College team. Next Thursday they

Aunt Sophronia Has a Birthday

By Mary Hodges

Miss Sophronia West, Aunt Phronie to everyone in the world, sat up, shut off the alarm. It was five o'clock and cold. She was very small and thin, and she was cold. Her one room had always been so live in a country where there was good hot sunshine every day in the year.

And she still dreamed of rooms of her own instead of this tiny cubby-hole in her sister's house, with a little bit of window you couldn't see through.

Time was to start the day—grumbling—Sophronia West! Peggy's getting day, too." Peggy was the eldest of her sister Alice's five daughters.

In her long-sleeved combination and flannel petticoat she scurried to the bathroom. At that moment it came to her that this day was her birthday; that she was—Ye, she was fifty-five.

Well, nobody took any notice of it, hadn't for years. Must be ten—no—twelve years ago that Kben Bradford had sent her a card from Bombay. It said, "Many happy returns", and a day or so later came a big box of tea with a flower smell to it. She wished he'd come her an address so she could thank him. He couldn't have loved her very much. Thirty years and more he never came back. After the first year away he never wrote.

If only she could have gone! Gone to live in the house he was going to build for her in "hot sunshine, looking down on a blue sea"—the only she could think of—but then she was her sick mother, then her father, and finally Alice's motherless babies. She'd been twenty when he went. At thirty she was getting full, but her half was quite gray! Only her lovely dark eyes were still young. She looked at herself in the glass: Little, mousy, old. Sad-her eyes were not fifty-five.

"Phronie," her sister looked out of her room, "I'm getting one of my headaches. Maybe if I take aspirin and keep quiet—but there are the cakes to bake—"

"I'll attend to it. Molly and Ruth can help me—"

"They're dead, poor things! The dance was night—"

"Then I always finish on time, Alice?"

"Ooh—Aunt Phronie!" That was from the children's room. Joan and Mary were thirteen and sixteen. "Put down out our windows," Aunt Phronie, and give the furnace a —Like Greenland in here. Aunt Phronie, make pancakes for breakfast, please."

"Sh-sh-Phronie—" Alice again, "don't you want Peggy to get good sleep? If I had a cup of coffee, dear, to get the steam aspirins down. Shall I come down?"

"No, I'll bring it."

She put the kettle on, prepared the drip coffee-pot; flew down to the furnace, struggled with the heavy door; took Alice her coffee. Then she solemnly inspected the pail of dough she'd set for cheese rolls. It was just light enough, she turned it out on the board, with the rolls in the pans, she considered how much icing she'd make for the six pound cakes she baked yesterday. Oh dear, the whole sink heard taken up by dirty dishes! Molly and Ruth must have had the gang in. Chocolate, and cake crumbs. Oh, they couldn't have—but they had. Three cakes were left.

Her brother-in-law appeared. "Your busy day, Phronie. I don't want much: just eggs and bacon." He sniffed. "Hot rolls?"

"Yes, John. I'll make you toast.

"No. I'll wait. You're some cook, Phronie."

Before she could finish the cakes the girls were down, all talking at once, squabbling over the mail, perched on the table and sink, eating

"A letter for you, Aunt Phronie; on the hall table. One of those 'Pink Pills for pale people sale."

At one-thirty Alice fixed a tray for Peggy. "You forgot her, Phronie?" The dining room wasn't half ready for the buffet supper, Alice had to go to the dentist at four, at five they'd be back. There was a bulletin about dressing.

It was midnight when she fell into bed. Oh, this cold! For the second time that day she remembered her birthday, nearly gone. And that letter. Might as well se—

The regular monthly meeting of the Mohawk Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. H. Wade at Tesserons on January 13th with eighteen members and seven visitors present. The meeting opened with the Ode followed by the Lord's prayer.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The secretary Miss Elizabeth Bell being absent, Mrs. G. Maracle took the secretary's chair for this meeting. Several letters of appreciation and thanks for Christmas boxes sent to a number in the community were read. The roll call was answered with Home made sandwich recipes. The Treasurer's report showed a bank balance of $60.66. The remainder of this meeting consisted of community singing, reading by Mrs. L. McCullugh, Current Events, Mrs. G. Maracle; Two solos by Mrs. Delmer.

Mrs. H. Wade, Legislation Convenor, gave a very interesting reading of the Ontario Government.

A demonstration was given of hooked mats by Mrs. Galt of Deseronto.

The meeting closed with singing the National Anthem, after which a dainty lunch was served, and a social hour spent.

RIGHTS ON TRENT GIVEN PROVINCE

Ottawa, Jan. 13 (CP)—Agreements reached recently six months ago between the Dominion and the Province of Ontario over water power rights which have been dispelled for 75 years were given final documentary touches here today after a two-day conference between Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Transport, and Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Ontario Attorney-General and members of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission.

The agreements involve the Trent River, the Welland Canal and Decew Falls, near St. Catharines. On the Trent River the Hydro Commission now operates about twelve small developments producing a total of about 50,000 H.P., including three Canada Cements power plants taken over last year.

Under the agreements, the Hydro Commission is given authority to develop the river to increase the reserve of water and also to increase the power production. No new installations are contemplated for the near future, Mr. Roebuck said.

INAUGURATION PAGEANT MARKS START OF ROOSEVELT'S SECOND TERM

Taking the oath of office in the brilliant inauguration ceremonies in Washington, D. C., on Jan.20—almost two months earlier than has been customary since 20th amendment to the constitution ended "lame duck" sessions of congress—Franklin Delano Roosevelt begins his second term as president of United States. He succeeds himself as executive since the republic was formed. A huge throng will pack the streets and plaza in front of the White House when the president swears to uphold the constitution and a colorful parade will be reviewed by the Democratic chief executive, who was overwhelmingly endorsed by the nation's voters in the November elections. A recent view of the White House on the steps of which will be erected the reviewing stand is shown ABOVE, with the outgoing and incoming president at the RIGHT. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt are seen (TOP LEFT) driving through the streets of Washington to Mr. Roosevelt's first inauguration four years ago. Also pictured is the military parade which he reviewed that day. At the instance of Mr. Roosevelt himself, a model of the home of former President Andrew Jackson has been erected as the reviewing stand. Mr. Roosevelt is known to have a deep admiration for the great southern statesman.

FIREMEN CARRY "HOLY MAN'S" COFFIN

On the shoulders of husky city firemen, the coffin containing the remains of beloved Brother Andre, Montreal's "holy man" is borne from its resting place at the shrine on the slopes of Mount Royal to St. James' cathedral for burial services. Thousands of devout Roman Catholics filed by the bier, paying their tribute to the pious manwho many called a miracle worker. In strange contrast to his own rigidly simple life the Montreal saint is mainly responsible for the $4,000,000 shrine to St. Joseph on Mount Royal now under construction.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Puds Simkins was wawking along just wawking along, and Shorty Judgs started to go past on his way home from a errand, me saying, Whats you got in the bag, Shorty?

Rabbits, Shorty said, and Puds said, O, what for?

A rice pudding, Shorty said, and me and Puds started to wawk alongside of him friendly, me saying, Hay, Shorty, let's have a guessing contest, let's see how close we can guess to exactly how many raisins are in the bag. I'll tell you a swell way to count. We'll each take a handfull and eat one and put the next one in our pockit and eat another one and put the next one in our pockits and so on like that, and we'll just count the ones we eat and then multiply the number by 2, and then we'll add the 3 results together and that will show exackly how many was in the bag, I said.

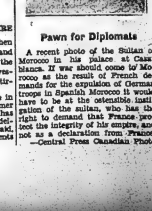
O, that's a swell idea, Puds said and Shorty said, Like fun, it's just a excuse to eat a lot of free raisins.

It is not, either, it's just a way to find out how many raisins is in a pound, so then in case anybody ever ask you, you'll always know, I said, and Shorty said, Well, then why dont you just count them by site, without eating any?

Because we'd lose track that way and have to be starting over again all a time, everybody knows that, sense of site is stronger than the sense of site, I said, and Puds said Sure, everybody knows that.

Well how about me wawking to the house with a half a pound of raisins instead of a pound? Shorty said, Do you think my mother's introsted in exact numbers? he said, and I said, Well then I tell you what, we'll eat every 3rd one instead of every 2nd one and multiply by 3 instead of 2, now are you satisfied?

No, Shorty said, I'll do it by myself and I'll eat every 20th raisin and multiply by 20, so if you really want to know how many's in a pound you can ask me the next time you see me, he said.



And he reached in for the first handfull and kept on going by himself.

Proving some people have the ideas and others get the benefit of them.

BRITISH WAR DEBT SETTLEMENT FORECAST

Nixon Promises No Prosecution of 35 Fugitives if They Give Selves Up

Trade Treaty With U. S. Forecast Likely Sequel If War Debts Adjusted

Runciman of Board of Trade And Sir Otto Niemeyer Reaching New York

DEBT AT 786 MILLIONS

France May Follow in Debt Settlement, it is Thought

By R. H. HUTCHLESUCK

New York, Jan. 18 (AP)—With the war debts enlivened in the broader question of trade and international monetary stabilization, it is believed in well-informed circles the British government is prepared to make a settlement on its debt to the United States.

This belief, prevalent for some weeks, has gained strength with the visit of Sir Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, and Sir Otto Niemeyer, of the Bank of England, Runciman will arrive tomorrow, Sir Otto is en route.

French Action Favored.

It was further believed likely that, if a settlement is made by Britain, France would quickly follow.

As personal duties were passed with debonair ease at the Waldorf-Astoria, Runciman and Niemeyer were reported intensely interested in the question has become not only one of debt settlement, but also is related to monetary stabilization, together with the possibility of a reciprocal trade agreement between the United States government and Britain.

Informed persons believed Runciman is empowered to discuss the debt question with Washington officials, if not to open formally negotiations, on stabilization and a trade treaty. He will spend next week-end as a White House guest, but President Roosevelt said his visit was personal.

Trade Pact of Importance.

The conclusion of a reciprocal trade pact with Britain would be regarded generally as a major accomplishment in the administration of Secretary of State Cordell Hull. It was felt certain by some New Yorkers close to the administration, however, the United States government would first insist upon a settlement of war debts.

According to these persons, negotiations between the United States and Great Britain might be three-fold including, after the settlement of debts, an agreement on stabilization and the conclusion of a reciprocal trade pact.

KIDNAP REPORT IS UNFOUNDED

Police Learn Screams Only Result of an Argument

Montreal, Jan. 18 (CP)—Reports a woman had been kidnapped in Montreal proved unfounded today when police learned screams of fear coming from within an automobile were the result of a dispute between a woman and her male companion.

Rookie Constable Gregoire reported the kidnapping last night after a woman screamed for help as he went to investigate a parked car. The machine sped away as the constable approached.

On his report to headquarters, police forces were instructed to look for a car in which "a woman was reported kidnapped."

Later, police, they learned the woman screamed when her companion pulled her hair during the car after she attempted to leave during an argument.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 18 (CP)—Charles Ferry, Portsmouth youth who was shot in the abdomen on Saturday, today was in a critical condition in hospital. Physicians said there were only a slim hope for his recovery. He passed a restless night and his condition is aggravated because of the fact that the bullet pierced his liver and one kidney.

Muskegon Mich., Jan. 18 (AP)—"Grandpa" Francis X. Bushee, 99 years, was accorded the highest honor the year during Muskegon's Centennial Exposition as the oldest resident of the community, died Saturday on the eve of his 103rd birthday.

Born in Montreal, Mr. Bushee came here in 1876 after 25 years as a French-Canadian woodsman. He leaves six children, 18 grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Vancouver, Jan. 18 (CP)—Nearly 300 men were arrested last night in a police raid on the Dominion Poultry and Egg Club charged with being inmates of a gaming house. Bail was set at $10 each. Andrew Galloway conviction Thursday of F. A. Jones, Robert Jones and Ernest Jones, on charges of keeping a gaming house in connection with the same club. They were fined $200 each or alternatives of three months in jail.

Woodstock, Ont., Jan. 18 (CP)—Broadway columnists haven't anything on Phil McDonald of Hamilton when it comes to concocting colorful items, his latest: Blue polish garnished with rubbing alcohol and flavored with milk of magnesia. The result? It wasn't a success, however. McDonald was sentenced to 10 days in jail on a drunk charge here yesterday by Magistrate H. B. McCrimmon.

MADAWASKA USED TO SUPPLY POWER IN EAST ONTARIO

Development Will Provide 25 Per Cent of Power Used

SOON TO OPERATE

Inequality of Contracts Gives Kingston Great Advantage

Peterborough, Ont., Jan. 18 (CP)—Plans are under consideration for power development at High Falls on the Madawaska River, T. Stewart Lyon, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, told a service club meeting here today. The development will provide 25 per cent. of all power now used in Eastern Ontario by the contracting municipalities, he said.

The Hydro chairman said the initial quantity to be supplied would not be less than 20,000 horsepower and might range as high as 30,000 horsepower. The Madawaska with some development of the storage lakes in the upper stretches was capable of providing at a reasonable low rate of investment not less than 120,000 horsepower, or more than the total present consumption of the eastern system.

"The property is owned by the municipalities of Eastern Ontario and there was no reason at all for keeping it out of use and bringing into the province from other side of the Ottawa River power which the Eastern Ontario system could order no obligation to take," Mr. Lyon continued.

Damage of $2,500,000 By Melbourne Fire

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 18 (AP) —On the hottest day of the Australian summer a $2,500,000 fire broke out at the Victoria Docks here today, destroying over nearly five acres of wooden buildings.

A possible terrible explosion was prevented by a change in the direction of the wind, which diverted flames from a number of cases containing gunnotton. The flames seriously menaced four vessels tied up at the docks, including the British steamship Port Wellington, which was moved. The fire was out adrift and the blaze extinguished in midafternoon.

With the temperature away from the blaze the firemen worked in the shade. The fire caused butter to flow from one warehouse as lava.

'It's No Use Boys' Guard Tells Bunch of Rioters

Number of Prisoners in Auditorium Give No Trouble

MATCHES PLENTIFUL

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 18 (CP) — Guard X. of the Ontario Reformatory who took charge on condition his name be withheld, today gave a narrative of the riotous outbreak among the 700 prisoners that wrecked the interior of the big provincial institution.

His calm recital came after quiet had settled over the reformatory and police were scattered through the grounds and sitting in a drenching rain to round up the 100 or so prisoners still loose.

Guard X. Testifies To Sermon.

"A large group of prisoners was in the auditorium during the service at noon listening to the sermon by a Salvation Army Officer from Kitchener," said Guard X. "There was only one guard present.

"Suddenly the talkmanship of trouble came when another guard rushed in and shouted that the men were rioting in another part of the reformatory.

"The bunch in the auditorium gave no trouble. They just stood around where they were and rushed to the tower, where apparently the trouble had started. All of the men broke through the roof of the dormitory and got into the kitchen.

Climbed Onto Roof.

"Some of them smashed the windows and climbed out onto the roof and dropped five feet to the kitchen roof. The hundred or so that got out of the cells are still missing. I didn't bother going into the kitchen. . . . they jumped over the kitchen roof into rickets, and once escaped over the power house. The rest of them went into the kitchen and ate ed everything they could lay their hands on. Then they started off on rampages through the whole building.

"I told them, 'It's no use boys, you'd better quiet down or you'll get hurt in the long run'. But they paid no heed to my warning. They were picking up everything they could find and running up into the dormitories, the school rooms, the libraries and offices, where they started.

Had Plenty of Matches.

"They had plenty of matches, as there are no restrictions on their use. By early afternoon most of them were Sergeant Maguire who accidentally got injured in the leg in the fire rickets, and one policeman, who got a jet of fire extinguisher in his eye.

"Outside of these two, the guards were not hurt. The inmates seemed more concerned about creating a lot of damage, than they were about doing anything else. I don't think just how many escaped over the kitchen. However, there don't seem to be pretty near 100 if not more. We haven't checked up yet."

Judge Madden, Napanee, Probes Reformatory Riot

Toronto, Jan. 18 (CP)—Judge James Madden, Napanee, has been named by Acting Premier Hon. Harry Nixon as commissioner under the Public Inquiries Act to conduct an investigation into the Sunday riot at the Ontario Reformatory, Guelph, and the escape of 35 prisoners.

Mr. Nixon made the following statement: "I have requested Judge James Madden of Napanee to conduct an investigation into the trouble at Guelph and he has accepted the commission under Public Inquiries Act.

"Judge Madden had a good deal of experience in the Kingston penitentiary riots, being sent as special Judge to handle the cases arising from them. He will come to Toronto tonight to see me. Tomorrow he will go to Guelph for a preliminary investigation while the episode is still fresh and as he can conveniently arrange his affairs, he will proceed with the inquiry. He will probably advise us in a day or two of the date for the investigation."

Mr. Nixon said the Madden investigation would be public.

LIKELY BALDWIN'S LAST PARLIAMENT

British House Assembles Tuesday After Christmas Holidays

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 18 (CP)—The British Parliament re-assembles tomorrow following the Christmas holidays for a session that very probably may be Prime Minister Baldwin's last. A year ago rumors of his intention to retire before long received only qualified denial. A little later the state of his health necessitated a prolonged holiday and since he has had the extreme anxiety of the constitutional crisis. It is certain, though, that if he shows improvement in his health remains, all his fellow cabinet ministers are sincerely urge his continuance in office.

Nevertheless, it is quite likely that with the coronation over and parliament settling down to the comparative quiet of late summer, a reconstruction of the ministry will be undertaken.

Conference 'Off' Martin Declares

Detroit, Jan. 18 (AP) — Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America announced today after a brief conference with General Motors officials, that "the conference is off."

Martin made his statement as he and five associates left the conference room in the General Motors building where negotiations to end widespread strikes were to have opened today.

The General Motors executives declined to confirm or deny the negotiations, headed by William S. Knudsen, executive vice-president, were in the room only five minutes.

Knudsen and his associates, John Thomas Smith, general counsel, and Donaldson Brown, vice president in finance committee, refused to comment when they emerged from the room.

Martin's terse statement indicated that General Motors had refused to open negotiations because striking unionists occupied two Fisher body plants in Flint.

Mysterious Death of Woman is Probed

Port Erie, Ont., Jan. 18.—(CP) —Coroner Albert Harry W. Malcomb, Welland, and Chief Constable A. E. Griffin were in conference today regarding the mysterious death here Saturday of Mrs. Mary Lalalle, 54, wife of Angelo of Hamilton and Montreal, who registered at a hotel here as Mrs. F. A. Pow.

Both Mr. LaSalle's eyes were blackened and she complained of severe pains in her head when the first was found. Leland or Jan. 2, Dr. T. W. O'Mullenny said today.

After a postmortem, Dr. Harold Burton declared the cause of death was due to a blood clot on her brain, due to either a fall or blow. Coroner's jury viewed the body Saturday, adjourned until Wednesday.

Brampton, Ont., Jan. 18.—(CP) —Weighing only 3½ ounces at birth Carol Anne Young, smallest living baby born in Canada to be premature, was viewed by newspaperwomen in the hospital incubator here yesterday. The child, born Nov. 18, last, now weighs four pounds, one ounce.

PRESS ASSAILED FOR 'PERSECUTION'

W. E. D. Allen Writes Letter Over Newspaper Publicity

New York, Jan. 18 (CP)—Newspaper publicity given a visit to the Duke and Duchess of Kent in company with a married woman who "pretended" to be Mrs. W. E. D. Allen, the woman's husband, in a letter to The Times, London.

A London cable in the New York Times today quoted Allen's letter as follows:

"In connection with the press persecution inflicted as a result of a casual and utterly harmless visit of my wife to a phrenologist in company with a member of the Royal Family," Allen wrote, "I should like to publish in your columns my belief that my mother-in-law, an elderly lady in weak health, has already been reduced to a state of nervous collapse. The relentless attention of reporters."

Many Letters Sent.

The London Sunday Dispatch Referee said the Duke had received a large number of letters criticizing him for the visit to the home of Allen, who tells a person's fortune according to the bumps of his head.

"Mrs. Allen," the paper declared, "is a beautiful leader, friend of early well-known as Paula Gellibrand and later as the Marquise De Casa Maury. Before her marriage the Duke since he was a junior officer in the Navy was over the most frequent visitor to the Duke and Duchess of Kent's house in Belgrave Square."

"Liberty" of Press.

Allen, in his letter to The Times, said:

"If the liberty of the press in this country is to be expressed in the form of persecution of individuals of all classes in the community—for the same treatment is extended to victims of minor incidents in poorer homes—it is high time measures were taken to prevent not just some restraint upon the license, which is now unbearable and is ever-growing scandal. Otherwise certain individuals who have grown rich upon ruthless exploitation of other people's private lives will find their fame equally short-lived with men who are not in such a helpless position as we have been recently been tortured on the wheel of the yellow press."

Even Beaverbrook's Sunday Express printed a column story on the Duke's visit, accompanied by a large two-column picture of Mrs. Allen and a seven-column banner headline, "Duke of Kent rumors a cruel campaign of innuendo and malicious slander."

SOVIETS REFRAIN VOLUNTEER BAN

Russian Statement Says No Soldiers Being Sent at Present to Spain

Moscow, Jan. 18 (CP-Havas)—The Soviet Union refrains to-day from volunteer enlistments for Spain until Germany and Italy do so, on the ground that "non-intervention" is the only equivalent to intervention in favor of the Spanish Insurgents.

The note, signed by Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff, also renewed Moscow's original proposal to the London non-intervention committee that foreign fleets establish strict control in Spanish waters.

ROADS PATROLLED AS POLICE SEARCH MISSING CONVICTS

Two Cars Stolen in Guelph Believed Work of Escapees

$200,000 DAMAGE

Undisciplined Fellows Together, Riot Cause, Says Official

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 18 (CP)—Just a lot of "undisciplined young fellows together" resulted in the rioting at the Ontario Reformatory last night, said C. G. Nesbitt, Deputy Provincial Secretary. The incontinent, who is in charge of the institution and was on the scene when the disorders began, said the fires and violence, which caused $200,000 damage.

After calling in the police and guards in rounding up the rebellious prisoners into the cells from dormitories ruined by fire and violence, Mr. Nesbitt said ordinarily there would be no trouble in getting couples in the institution, some by preference and some by discipline.

Mr. Nesbitt said the 700 on the roll of the reformatory are accommodated in the dormitories at night and for several nights they must sleep in cells.

The authorities did not find it necessary to handle the men violently and no guns were displayed. One tear gas bomb was exploded.

Mr. Nesbitt's statement follows:

"Our show of force subdued all disorderliness," Mr. Nesbitt said.

At the same time the Deputy Provincial Secretary did not minimize what will be an investigation. The ringleaders will be dealt with.

"It was the liveliest affair of the kind ever in this institution," he said.

Dr. J. D. Heslip, superintendent of the Reformatory, estimated there were 35 prisoners actually engaged in the rioting. Twenty-five had decided to make their escape. This was the first talking of the trouble. At 1 o'clock the fires and the pillage started.

Hole Had No Supper.

Dr. Heslip declared he had heard no previous complaints.

"The hole-in-the-wall has a grievance can always come in and talk to me," he said.

FIREMEN BURNED IN WINGHAM FIRE

Enveloped in Flames When Glass in Front of Shop Blows In

Wingham, Ont., Jan. 18 (CP)—Walter Lockridge and Howard Fuller, Wingham fire-fighters, were reported recovering at Wingham General Hospital today from injuries they received in a fire-fighting battle in a beauty shop fire. Cause of the fire is unknown and origin was in front window of the premises.

The glass burst with a terrific force and a sheet of flame enveloped the men. Officials believed the pressure of heat caused the blast, which resulted in $1,000 damage to the store interior.

HEAVY DAMAGE

Whole Population of Prison Out of Control For Seven Hours

Toronto, Jan. 18 (CP) — Acting Premier Harry Nixon announced today that 35 escaped prisoners from the riot-torn Ontario Reformatory at Guelph will not be prosecuted if they surrender to police, return at once to the institution or have their parents notify authorities where they can be found.

The acting government leader said he was advised at ten o'clock this morning by Deputy Provincial Secretary C. F. Nesbitt that all convicts who fled during the height of yesterday's disturbance were still at large.

Reformatory Quiet Today

"Everything is quiet at the reformatory today," Mr Nixon said. "The work of repairing damage to the institution is going ahead. Damage was not great."

In his capacity as Provincial Secretary, Mr. Nixon has charge of administration of the reformatory whose population or more than 700 men is made up of men serving sentences of less than two years.

"I want to say, if any of these fleeing chaps who seized the opportunity to escape think better of it, that they will be given opportunity to police or have their parents advise of their whereabouts, I give them my personal assurance there will be no additional penalty because of their escape," he said.

Riot Not Planned

The reformatory riot was not planned, Mr. Nixon thought.

"In my opinion it was spontaneous, not premeditated," he said. "The group fellows decided to put on a show, and they did. There was not the slightest suggestion this trouble had been brewing."

Things are quiet now, he said after talking to Mr. Neelands at Guelph. Repairs are going ahead rapidly and things are running as usual.

So far as Mr. Nixon knows there has been no reduction in the number of guards at the reformatory, he said. He thought it unlikely Complaints over food and conditions would be made.

"Prisoners are served on the cafeteria style," he said. "They take all they want and the quality is good. They get their meat, mostly cattle, and there has recently been an increase in the average cost of meals. The food these prisoners get is equal to, if not better than 90 per cent of the people have."

There are no hardened criminals, Mr. Nixon said. Most of them are serving a beauty shop fire. Cause of the "There may be a few second offenders there, but for some time now criminal policy has been to segregate young offenders from hardened criminals," he said.

"They burned a lot of blankets and other light stuff, but the big physical structure of the building is not damaged. The damage is not heavy, I am told," said Mr. Nixon.

Dr. J. D. Heslip was appointed superintendent at Guelph last fall. Previously he had been medical officer at Burwash, in Muskoka, and then in charge of medical services

NO EXTENSION

Toronto, Jan. 18 (CP)—There will be no extension of time beyond today for securing 1937 motor vehicle and drivers' licenses, said Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways.

"Anyone driving with 1936 permits Tuesday will be prosecuted," said Mr. McQuesten.

Neuralgic Weather Aggravates Condition

Vatican City, Jan. 18 (AP) — Unseasonable weather settled over the Vatican today, aggravating Pope Pius' suffering.

The Holy Father carried on with the schedule he has set for himself, however, and the tone of his nerves and feeling of spiritual exaltation for energy.

Propped up in bed to 45°-?-?° shortness of breath the Pope was said to have spent a painful night, after his busiest day since he took to his bed.

EMPLOYMENT IS UP IN GREAT BRITAIN

London, Jan. 18 (CP)—Further marked improvement in employment is recorded today by the Labor Ministry Gazette.

The estimated number of insured persons between the ages of 16 and 64, excluding ordinary civil servants, employed in the United Kingdom last year was 10,896,000, which was the net increase of 313,000 over 1935, but the highest ever recorded.

During the last six months of 1936 the total of 11,000,000 was exceeded, the number of employed reaching 11,132,000. Unemployed in the United Kingdom in 1936 made the lowest mark in 1933. These figures also exclude agricultural workers.

U. S. Authorities Guard Against Runaways

Buffalo, N.Y., Jan. 18 (AP)—J. L. O'Rourke, superintendent of the U. S. immigration service here, said today that guards on the border patrol to keep prisoners who escaped from the Ontario Reformatory prevented from reaching the United States.

Commander Martin W. Rasmussen ordered coast guardsmen to be on the lookout for suspicious craft on the Lake Erie and Ontario.

Officers in the customs border patrol were ordered by Chief Superintendent J. J. Mullen to be especially vigilant.

Food and Parcel Delivery Complained of, Says Inmate

Copyright Story in Daily Star Tells of Dissatisfaction

NOURISHMENT, WORK

Toronto, Jan. 18 (CP)—In a copyright story from Guelph, The Daily Star today quoted John Hawker of Montreal, a prisoner, as saying during the height of Sunday's riot in the Ontario Reformatory that dissatisfaction with meals and a new regulation barring delivery of parcels to prisoners led to the disturbance.

A Star reporter managed to reach prisoners' quarters while the riot raged nearby and was led to Hawker, described by the reporter as "chairman of the inmates' committee". The newspaper quoted Hawker as saying:

"I haven't been taking an active part in the demonstrations, but most of the prisoners have come to me with their side of the story. I don't mind telling you that I don't want to get in wrong because I have a ten-year sentence to serve.

"They have been complaining lack of variety in food, saying it doesn't provide enough nourishment for them to go out and do strenuous work. And since the new superintendent (Dr. J. D. Heslip) came, the inmates have not been allowed to receive any parcels from home.

"The new regulations went into effect about five weeks ago. Since then I have known two occasions when things looked threatening among the prisoners, but they never really came to a head before."

Chief Constable's Annual Report

To the Chairman,
Board of Police Commissioners,
Belleville, Ont.,

Sirs:

I have the honour to submit for the information of the Board of Police Commissioners my report for the year 1936, which includes the Criminal and other statistics for that period.

I am pleased to inform you that we have been free of any serious automobile accidents during the past year. There were 76 minor accidents reported, in which 43 persons received slight injuries. I might also add that there have been 1921 Total motor vehicles in 1921.

During the year 3231 transients were given either a night shelter or a Police Station, as compared with 1947 for the previous year.

It gives me great pleasure to inform you that the City has been free from any serious crime during the past year. There were only 3 persons charged in Court for breaking and entering as compared with 11 in 1935. I am also in position that the broadcasting radio installed by Sergeant Woods has been of great assistance to the Department.

The total amount of fines and fees collected during the year amounted to $18,418.50. All fines are paid out as follows—City Treasurer, $16,239 21; Provincial Treasurer, $816.20; Justice of the Peace, $84.00.

Assault, common, 5; assault, wife 2; assault, causing bodily harm, 3; assault, indecent 3.

Breach of By-Laws

Traffic By-Law, 128; Dog By-Law 15; Peddlers By-Law 2; Intoxicating By-Law 1; Transient Traders 1.

Truck Driver Fined For Reckless Driving

Emile Lafleur, Ottawa trucker, was found guilty on a charge of reckless driving and fined ten dollars and costs, amounting to $23.40 in all, when he appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., today. The charge arose from an accident, that happened at Milltown on Dec. 29th last when a truck, driven by Lafleur, collided with an automobile, driven by W. H. Roe, Napanee. The accident was investigated by Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Frize and resulted in the Roe car being a total wreck.

At the time of the accident the Roe car rolled down an embankment, hurling the driver into the Salmon River. The loss entailed $400 damage.

R. C. Donnan, K.C., County Crown Attorney prosecuted for the case, and S. L. Howell, local barrister, appeared for the defendant Lafleur. Both drivers contending they were driving on their own side of the road. Measurements taken by constable Frize prompted His Worship in his finding.

Boy Sent to Reformatory

Inspector T. D. Ruston of the Children's Aid Society of Belleville appeared before His Worship in a Juvenile Court held after the regular session today. Mr. Ruston asked for the committal to Bowmanville tomorrow. The lad was incorrigible.

Memorials Dedicated At Bridge St. Church

Presentation of a pulpit Bible and lamp was made to Bridge Street United church Sunday morning as memorials for the late Mr. W. J. Owens, member of the congregation for many years. The memorials were presented by Rev. E. N. Baker, D.D., on behalf of the family of the late Mr. Owens. Dr. Baker made a referring briefly to the life and character of the deceased member of the congregation. Rev. Mr. Baker dedicated the memorials on behalf of the church and congregation at the service.

At the same service on Sunday morning the officers and teachers of the Sunday School recently elected were installed by Rev. Arthur Semple. In his sermon he spoke on "The Cross of the fine art," which was teaching.

Presentation Made To Retiring Sup't

Mr. Jos. E. Short, superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School Sunday School for the past eight years, was tendered during the afternoon session presided with in the Gladstone club bag by the Sunday School Board, presentation was made by Rev. Dr. Semple and complimentary remarks were spoken by Clayton Burr and Elmer Dixon, Mr. Shortt made a happy reply.

Mr. Shortt with the 8 years superintendent of Sunday Schools in connection with the Methodist and at West United church.

He still remains on the S.S. staff but hands over the executive duties.

HEAVY FOG DELAYS HIGHWAY TRAFFIC

A blanket of pea soup fog of the typical kind of Monday morning, over the city and district this morning bringing highway traffic to a crawl as drivers of heavy transport trucks and even passenger cars attempted to pierce the grey wall against which even lights of their automobiles were useless, several instances orders were given drivers of heavy vehicles to remain in this city until a change of conditions was noted.

Obituary

MRS. R. J. BELL

After an illness of several weeks' duration Mrs. R. J. Bell passed away in hospital at Cobourg, Ont., on Sunday, Jan. 17th, last September 5th, 1936, Belleville to reside with her sister, Mrs. C. V. Anderson, at Evanston, Ill., and several weeks ago she was taken with the illness which resulted in her death. To the bereaved children and to a large number of close and intimate friends she leaves a sad but delightful sincere sorrow and deep feelings of regret.

The late Mrs. Bell was the widow of R. J. Bell, son of the late John Bell K.C., who was for a lengthy period the chief solicitor for the entire Grand Trunk Railway system with offices in this city. Her maiden name was Miss Charlotte A. Gliss, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Gliss, who for many years were prominent residents of this city. She was born in Belleville and passed all her life here. Some months ago she was the victim of a cerebral hemorrhage, was a most efficient and energetic lady who enjoyed the high esteem of all her co-workers. She was, indeed, a friend to the poor and to those who knew her best of all devoted to going doing good.

In religious faith she was a devout member of the Church of England and a faithful worshipper in the old parish church of St. Thomas, which she had known and loved since childhood days. She was deeply interested in the work of the Women's Auxiliary and in the Sunday School in which she was a teacher. Interment will be at St. Thomas' parish branch of the Woodlawn Memorial Park Cemetery Society of the Church of England in Canada, in the work of which she was also deeply interested for many years.

Memory of the many fine traits of character possessed by Mrs. Bell will live long in the hearts kindly and gracious manner will be long remembered by her many friends in Belleville, by many of whom she shall continue to live.

Mrs. C. V. Anderson, Evanston, Ill., a sister of Mrs. Bell, is the last surviving member of the family. Mrs. W. J. Gibson of Wellington and Mrs. Charles Gliss, Mrs. Chisholm of Wellington, are sisters-in-law of the late Mrs. Bell.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

WILLIAM J. (DUDLEY) CARSON

At the Belleville General Hospital this Monday morning, Jan. 18th, at the age of 72 years, Mr. Carson, residence 15 Brown Street, passed away after a lengthy illness. Two months' duration and to many friends in this city and district his death has brought deep feelings of regret.

The late Mr. Carson, who was known to hundreds of friends as "Country" Carson, was born in this year and was born in Belleville. Deceased was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William J. Carson. All his life was passed in this city and by the majority of residents he was liked and held many friendships. For a long number of years he was engaged in railroading being with the Grand Trunk Railway system and later with the Canadian National Railways, working out of the Belleville Division, and was employed in various capacities as one of the most efficient and trustworthy in the division. He was also known to many senior officers and fellow employees of the railway system as a friendly fellow. All along the line in this division "Dudley" Carson was well known and highly esteemed by fellow men. In his spare time he followed baseball and was also greatly interested in baseball being an enthusiastic fan of the game in Belleville. In religion he was a member of the Bridge St. Presbyterian Church and fraternally he was a member of The Belleville Lodge No. 177, A.F. & A.M., The Moira Chapter No. 7; King Baldwin Encampment, Trenton; Rameses Shrine, Toronto; Independent Order of Foresters and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Surviving to mourn his loss and to cherish fond memory of many friends will be extended, are his wife, Mrs. Dora Kennedy; two sons, Mrs. Dora Kennedy; two sons, Jack and Ross, both residing in Belleville.

MRS. BERTHA L. ANDREWS

Death came suddenly to Mrs. Bertha Louise Andrews, widow of David Andrews, at her late residence, 170 Charles Street, in this city, on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 16th. She was apparently in her usual state of health when taken with a heart seizure which resulted in her immediate death. Her sudden passing was a great shock to her family and friends and has brought sincere feelings of regret to her friends by whom she was highly esteemed.

The late Mrs. Andrews, whose maiden name was Miss Bertha Louise Gill, was born in Belleville and resided here all her life. Many she lived until Jan. 23 she would have been 77 years of age. In religious she was a member of Bridge Street United Church.

Survived to mourn her death are one daughter, Miss Edna L. Andrews, Minneapolis, Minn., three sons, Mr. J. C. Andrews, Minneapolis, Minn.; Mr. E. W. Andrews, Rochester, N. Y., Mr. W. B. Andrews, Detroit, Mich., two brothers, Mr. Bert Gill Belleville, and Mr. Perry Gill, Kingston, Ont.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

Cheesemen Promised Consideration of Needs

Following an interview with the Honourable Duncan Marshall, Ontario Minister of Agriculture it was announced today by Mr. R. L. Joss, Secretary of the Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association that a promise of full consideration has been given the Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association in their efforts to secure some of the rights it had under the now inoperative Natural Products Marketing Act.

Mr. Joss headed the deputation that met the Minister of Agriculture at Queen's Park. The meeting was the result of resolutions passed at annual meetings of the cheese factory patrons of the Province.

Under the Marketing Act, the Association has collected five cents on every hundred pounds of cheese manufactured.

The Secretary of the Association, Mr. R. L. Joss, stated that at the annual county Association meetings held during the past two months the cheese factory patrons had discussed the question of legislation which would enable the Association to have all cheese sold through the medium of organized cheese boards, and to collect a commenied upon favourably.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

Premier

It would seem to us that a market valuation of only $17,500,000 for Premier after the varied interests, three of which are of major importance, has financed and refinanced, including American Smelting, its strong financial position and future earnings prospects, is ultra-conservative, concluded O'Hearn & Co. In a lengthy analysis of the position and prospects of Premier Gold Mining Co. Ltd.

We definitely feel that Premier's 40 percent interest in Big Bell is now probably worth as much if not more than the present market valuation of Premier and will probably be the source of earnings which will eventually justify much higher prices for Premier shares.

Similarly, in the case of the oil that Premier's interests in Silbak Premier and Premier Border mainly produce the same result.

We would also remind the reader that although Bellef Arlington operation is still small, it might yet be very important, and while little is now known of the actual possibilities of the Black River and Arabian properties, that, by the same token, little is known of the possibilities of the Big Bell a year or so ago, or of the Turkey Foot, which was not a year ago at a profit of $800,000.

In banning a dividend in Premier, the buyers becomes a partner of American Smelting & Refining, obtains an equity in obviously undervalued holdings, and at the same time receives close to 5 percent on his investment. What could be simpler?

Hollinger

The market appraisal of $68,880,000 for Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Limited, on the basis of the current market flotation of about 45 per cent appears to be somewhat low when the following factors are considered:—(1)—Low High yield of nearly 8 percent and generous dividend record; (2) Low market value in relation to earnings; (3)—Substantial gross value of stated ore reserves; (4)—Comparatively shallow depth of mine workings; (5)—Specialized attraction existing in the International Nickel and Sherr subsidiary and in the Company's interests in mining producers and prospects; (6)—Strong financial position.

Market Comment

The stock market was a bullish affair during the last week and, led by the "paper" stocks, gave a very satisfactory performance. The 1926 or 1929 flavour was evident on Tuesday when Abe Aland acted as shareholders of The Canadian Bank of Commerce: "The question to-day seems to be not whether the present business revival will continue, but rather, whether the prospective development of business can be prevented from developing boom proportions with consequent over-speculation in the security market and over-investment in industry....."

A week of favorable news was wound up with two satisfactory earnings reports. Canada Cement reported for the year ending November 30th equivalent to $3.32 a share on Preferred as compared with 39 cents the previous year, and represented the best result in four years. Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts reported net for the first quarter of the current fiscal year equivalent to $1.41 a share on the increased number of Common shares as compared with $1.61 for the corresponding period of 1935. The company therefore more than earned a full year's dividend requirements in the first three months and indications are that for the year ending August 31st it will earn well over $6.00 per share are altogether possible as compared with $6.56 in 1936 and $4.58 in 1935.

Canada Cement On.

Earnings for year ended November 30th 1936 were the best in four years with net equivalent to $3.32 a share on Preferred as compared with 39 cents reported in 1935, 37 cents in 1934, 38 cents in 1933 and $3.81 in 1932.

Price Brothers

Price Bros. Common remains in the limelight as one of the most spectacular market performers of the last six months. The rise in the stock began in mid-August, 1936, and level approximately 5, and has continued almost without hesitation until December 1936, when a realizable level of around 20 was reached. Since then it has again reached 40. Whether the advance has been too fast for actual development, only time will tell.

Noranda

A glance at the shareholders' lists of Noranda Mines Limited reveals that a considerable quantity of the stock is now held in England. The United Steel strike leaders are well known in high quarters across the Atlantic.

WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 18 (AP) — The stock market sold off sharply today and the ticker tape fell behind during transactions following announcement by William S. Knudsen, executive vice-president of General Motors Corp., that the conference with United Steel strike leaders "is off."

A second selling wave which sent General Motors and Chrysler down about three points during the start of the fourth hour followed Knudsen's announcement after a brief talk with strike leaders.

Low-priced utilities such as General Gas and Power, Electric Power & Gas, Commonwealth and Southern and Electric Bond and Share were unusually lively, the majority at minor advances.

American and International Nickel slipped fractionally among De-troit motor stocks, while Canadian Pacific held its own. On the curb, Aluminum Co. of Canada and Canadian government bonds were inactive. Canadian dollars were unchanged at 99.93⅜ cents.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Jan. 18.—(CP)— Moving in sympathy with a weak tone on the New York Board the industrials also developed a mild reaction around mid-day on the Toronto exchange this afternoon. The list of industrial leaders were off fractions. With the weaker display, trading volume showed a slight increase.

Narrow losses were showing this afternoon for Nickel, Smelters, Brazilian, C.P.R., and some of the oils. Banks were slow and steady, with Commerce, Montreal, Dominion and steels and foods showed a preponderance of narrow losses. Some of the milling stocks, notably Maple Leaf, held up, and implements held to the top.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 18 (CP)—Adjustments in the mining list of Toronto Exchange this afternoon were mainly downward in the golds and base metals while the oils held fairly steady in slow trading. O'Brien worked back to 9.60, off 10 cents and lower prices were posted for Towagmac, Chibougamau, McKenzie, Francoeur, Sisco, Central Patricia and Sylvanite.

Paymaster was carried up to 1.36 bear's trading but last of the gain was dropped. In the base metals Fed Orville, Wabe-Amint and Ventures took narrow losses. Federal Kirkland, Sudbury Contact and Wood-Cadillac were strong spots in the penny list.

CONFIRMATION SERVICE IS HELD

Impressive Services Held at Herchimer Ave., And Point Anne

Confirmation service was conducted at St. Alban's Church, Herchimer Avenue, Sunday morning by the Right Rev. Dr. John Lyons, Bishop of Ontario. The church was filled with worshippers who declared-y-joined in the service. Immediately before the confirmation the hymn "Come Holy Ghost, our Souls Inspire," was sung by the congregation and led by the choir. After the hymn, the candidates one at a time kneeled before the bishop who placed his hands on the head and prayed "Defend, O Lord, this thy Servant." The Bishop's address was followed by the following Kingdom." The bishop's address was particularly directed to candidates and congregation. The bishop was assisted by the Rev. A. E. Pepper, M.A., and the Rev. C. H. Green.

At three o'clock, another service was held at St. John's, Point Anne, where a large congregation witnessed the Bishop's service was brilliant and hearty. A very young organist, Miss McGregor presided at the organ most effectively. The Reverends Mr. Pepper and Mr. Green assisted the Bishop.

The work of Mr. Pepper in the parish has very highly praised by Bishop Lyons. The rector's young wife deserves praise, also has been a real help-meet and is very popular in the parish.

ARGYLL REGIMENT WINS HIGH HONORS

Awarded Third Place in Efficiency Competition For M. D. No. 3

Duplicating their standing of last year, the local Argyll and Light Infantry (Tanks) have been awarded third place for centrally located units in the General Efficiency Competitions of the Canadian Militia in District 3, which includes Ottawa and Kingston Regiments.

Out of a possible 1200 points the Argyll and Light Infantry piled up a total of 982, it was only 28 marks behind the Governor General's Foot Guards, Ottawa, awarded first place, Cameron Highlanders Kingston, second place, and Prince of Wales Rangers, third.

"I wish to congratulate all officers and men on this high achievement," commented Lt.-Col. Gilchrist today in making the announcement.

ROADS PATROLLED

"As the result of the smashing in the kitchen the men had no supper. The superintendent thought the men had started on a rampage and did not intend to go so far.

The superintendent said the authorities had a "pretty good idea who the ringleaders were."

The rioting left the reformatory chapel and hospital as well as the kitchen in ruins. The chapel furniture was not smashed was burned or thrown out of the windows. Not one set all over the place. The "custodial" building escaped the flare up, is regarded as fireproof but the floors and window sills were fuel for the flames.

Patients Removed.

Twenty of the staff of seventy-four guards were on duty when the trouble began. The remaining staff and some difficulty was experienced in separating the rioters from the prisoners.

When the fire were being started some of the men battered the light gratings from the windows with pieces of chairs. Others broke over the roof of the one-story building and to the ground safely.

Three of the escaped men were arrested shortly after midnight confined to the Guelph police cells, one of them was intoxicated.

The men who escaped stolen in Guelph, presumably by reformatory guards. Two of them have been notified to be on the lookout for men in blue denim.

Rioters are Started

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 18 (CP) —An army of plumbers, electricians, carpenters and painters started the Ontario Reformatory today to repairing damage done by rioting prisoners who shattered everything they could.

As quiet reigned on the prison farm, scene of the worst riot in 25 years by men armed with rifles, provincial officials and the Ontario Western Ontario watched highways for 35 prisoners who made a clean break for liberty in the disturbance.

The 700 or more convicts locked in their cells by guards and police put down the uprising when given breakfast in their cells. Only a few trusties were permitted to go about their work on the 1,000-acre farm. Prison work shops did not open today.

Search Is Launched

The entire district was under special surveillance and authorities said they believed the number of escaped men would return voluntarily during the day.

With virtually the entire prison population locked in their cells for hours, estimates on the number who escaped ran as high as 150 at midnight. Search was launched for these, however, merely roamed over the prison grounds and then turned up when police reinforcements arrived. Others remained in cells within a short distance of the reformatory.

Plumbers and carpenters were assured of several days work repairing the damage to plumbing and other sections of the prison where water poured from broken pipes and heavy wooden clubs to batter in furniture, heating, lighting and plumbing fixtures.

Floors covered by sawgal inches of water were mopped dry by specially firemen extinguishers removed from cells and replaced by rioters and fresh bedding and broken furniture.

RESISTS OFFICER GIVEN 1 MONTH

Madoc Township Farmer Pleads Guilty to Charge

"I'll give you my word, yes my oath right here in this court house I never take another drink if you will show clemency and give me a break. My parents are aged and I have to keep them," pleaded Henry Harrington, Madoc Township farmer, when arraigned before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court for sentence. Harrington had pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication and a subsequent charge of resisting an officer, when he appeared before His Worship in the police court just one week ago, when he was sentenced to ten days on the drunk charge.

B. C. Donnan, K.C., Crown Attorney, read the list of previous convictions, that had been registered against Harrington, numbering seven in all. "I understand that a man only has to trouble when he is drinking, however," added Mr. Donnan.

Well, I'll give you an opportunity to prove that you can go straight, one month in the reformatory," declared Magistrate Butler on reply. "Thank you, sir," was Harrington's only comment.

A non-support case, that has been in the courts for some time, resulted in His Worship postponing sentence for one month in order to ascertain if the defendant cannot amicably settle the differences between them. A drunk was given ten days to raise the convention fine.

POLICE COURT

The confiscation of a slot machine, its contents and destruction was ordered by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in local police court after it had been established that a slot machine, operated by Mike Marakzas, local billiard room proprietor, had been used for gambling purposes.

Marakzas pleaded guilty to a charge of permitting gambling, to wit the redemption of slugs taken in the slot machine into the machine, pull the handle and later take the slugs ejected from the machine and hand them to Mr. Marakzas," stated the witness.

The accused, local youth stated he had been given twenty-five cents in change for slugs he had won out of the machine.

A teen-aged, local youth stated he had been given twenty-five cents in change for slugs he had won out of the machine.

His Worship imposed a fine of $25.00 and costs against the accused, amounting to $42.85 and ordered the destruction of the machine and its contents.

Counsel have to keep the machine for 30 days pending a possible appeal by the defendant, and also a subsequent 20 days more before we can carry out the court order of the destruction of the machine, B. C. Donnan, K. C., County Crown Attorney, informed the police authorities at the conclusion of the proceedings.

TODAY IS DEADLINE FOR OLD LICENCES

With the deadline for 1936 licence plates set for tonight, a fair rush of motorists to secure the new plates and licenses was the order observed at the office of the local police court this morning. It is believed that about 60 per cent of car and truck owners have secured these licences since the first warning notice appeared.

VEXED INTERVENTION QUESTION.

No solution of the vexed question of intervention in Spain has been found though the war has been in progress for half a year, discussions have been held, crises have followed one another in rapid succession. Yet nothing definite as to the ultimate end of all this has come. But so far non-intervention efforts have kept the great nations out of a general struggle, and as long as there remains peace outside of Spain there is hope.

Latest report is that Germany and Italy seem almost ready to admit that perhaps neutrality would pay the Fascist states better than any other move. Saturday Germany was reported to have been estimating the cost of equipping 250,000 men and to have gone so far as to hint that this number was the ultimate that Germany could furnish.

How much of the present stalemate is fencing for position, no one knows but the diplomats of the countries involved. It may be that Germany fearful as she is of Russia, though claiming to feel the need of expansion would trust to non-intervention in Spain as a better way than the risk of starting a struggle.

For several days, Gen. Goering has been at Rome discussing the outlook "and today's despatches indicate that an effort is being made to reconcile non-intervention with loyalty of the Fascist states to Fascist principles.

NO SNOW AND ICE

This unusual weather with the last vestiges of snow and ice disappeared lingers on, while rain falls almost daily.

Whatever it has done or is likely to do to crops, however it has changed travel on the roads and highways, however it has affected business, the absence of snow and ice has had disastrous effects on the sports. Rinks that trust to natural frigidation miss ice, and even rinks with the artificial product may suffer not from lack of cold but because the people are not so much winter-minded as usual. Outdoor games in which snow and ice are essential have been put out of business practically a month already. The normal outlet for the energies of the young schoolboys and schoolgirls in playing hockey or skating, have been pent up. There is hope piled upon hope that it is true when some one says, "It is going to freeze". After so many disappointments the spring while always hopeful might be excused if they become doubters until they actually see the ice and the snow they expected this winter.

Some years ago, there was a winter of somewhat the same character though the weather did not continue as long as it has this year.

HIGHER EMPLOYMENT FIGURES

In its survey of 1936 employment conditions the Dominion Bureau of Statistics gives an increase of 9.2 per cent as compared with 1935, the employment index having reached 111.0 on November 1, 1936, the highest point reached in six years. The movement is indicative of the important part which industry has played in bringing about this improvement. Artificial stimulation as expressed in public works enterprises was a contributing factor but more than in 1935 and the more favorable conditions noted by the bureau are attributed to a natural business revival brought about by an increased public demand for commodities and services. On this basis the rise in employment figures means much more than if it had resulted from expenditures of public money on works undertaken immediately for the conduct of public business, and not, for the most part perhaps, of a productive nature. Such expenditures do help to relieve unemployment temporarily but cannot be regarded as affording a solution of the unemployment problem. Re-employment due to industrial recovery is of far greater value from every point of view and the bureau finds evidences of improvement in practically every field of manufacturing. There were some seasonal reactions but these were relatively moderate and in every month of 1936 there was a better situation than in the corresponding month of the previous year.

The expansion in manufacturing during the year proceeded without interruption and it is noteworthy that more than half the total of workers included in the survey were employed in these industries. The survey as a whole shows the Dominion to have made some progress, chiefly through the activity of secondary industries. It does not, of course, touch upon those aspects of the unemployment problem which are most perplexing and which are engaging the attention of the National Employment Commission. Only when those aspects are fully understood will it be possible to determine the volume of genuine unemployment and to deal with the problem scientifically.—Montreal Gazette.

LAKE ONTARIO IN DECEMBER

The wind is blowing from the bay,
And in the frozen grass
Ten thousand diamonds sparkle clear,
To vanish as I pass.

A seaplane, circling overhead,
Shines silvery in the sun;
And in a pathway on the marsh
I see a partridge run.

Frozen the sand, and black as death,
And dull the water's roar;
Like spilled rock-salt, the broken ice
Is strewn along the shore.

The pungent smell of burning wood
Drifts from some little home,
Lone marsh, lone beach, and past it all
The breakers marching home!

—E. Anne Ryan.

ALL KINDS OF QUEEREOSITIES COME FROM THE LAND OF UNCLE SAM where they take life less seriously than in other parts of the world. From Chicago comes a story that 291 business men of the Loop District, all having small farm land holdings, have organized themselves in a club called "Chicago Farmers, and propose to do honor to the common cow, familiarly known as "Bossy" who, day in and day out, goes about her business, unhonored and comparatively unsung. The club came into the public eye through a banquet held this week in a Loop hotel at which the principal theme was to get social recognition for the humble cow that does a share of giving milk. Associated Press outlines the aims and objects of the Chicago Farmers as follows:

Too long, they say they feel, has the cows that answer to the name of "Bossy" not had places in the social register of cowdom, while others, with names like "Princess Eugenie III," have found it easy to win recognition with aristocratic family history. Hence, they have just finished organizing a local branch of the American Dairy Cattle Club, of which John D. Rockefeller is one of the founders. Recognition of the worthy plain cow is the club's object. The local group, known as the Chicago Farmers, is made up of 291 Loop business men who own farm land. J. Rockefeller Prentice is president of the Chicago group. He says he has records showing that of the 400,000 cattle in the dairy-herd improvement associations of the United States, 325,000 cannot get into the cow social register of the pure-bred cattle organizations.

RAN NO RISK

A member of a military band at a certain barracks came to the surgeon recently with a long face and a plaintive story about a sore throat.

"Sore throat—eh!" said the surgeon pleasantly; "let me see. Oh, that's not so bad. A slight irritation, nothing more. You'll be all right in a day or two. I think you had better take no risk of returning the trouble by using your throat, though, so I will recommend you for two weeks' sick leave."

Armed with the surgeon's certificate, the bandsman obtained two weeks' leave.

The two weeks had just come to an end when he met the surgeon on the parade ground.

The bandsman saluted. The surgeon recognized the face and stopped.

"How's the throat?" he asked pleasantly.

"It's quite well, sir," was the reply.

"That's good," said the surgeon. "You can get back to your duty now without fear. By the way, what instrument do you handle in the band?"

"The small drum, sir," said the musician.

Kirma writes from Kingston where he opened a week's engagement Saturday:

"Sorry I was unable to answer all those questions at once but since then I've completed them tomorrow. Enclosed are a few more for publication. Will send balance shortly. Opened here to tremendous business . . .

"About that 1937 Baby again. I want you to tell my readers that I received a mental impression from the little fellow and he wants some of those fellows over there to give his Daddy a job. Some day Bellesville will be proud of that fellow (Baby) and that comes as a double impression."

Letters are still coming in with questions to answer, notwithstanding the fact that Kirma has left the city and the coupon has been omitted from the newspaper. Kirma has kindly consented to answer the late letters—those which arrived up to the week-end, from Kingston where he is this week. Questions received since then cannot be guaranteed answers, although we will do our best to satisfy everybody.

Please note that NO MORE QUESTIONS CAN BE RECEIVED.

The following answers were forwarded from Kingston by Kirma:

Crawled Upstairs on All Fours

Owing to Rheumatism in Her Knees

It was not a very dignified way of going upstairs, but she had rheumatism in her knees, and it was the best she could do, at the time. Since then, she has been taking Kruschen Salts, and now feels much better. Read her letter:—

"I had very painful gout in my big toe and could only get upstairs on all fours owing to rheumatism in my knees. It is over four years ago since I commenced taking Kruschen Salts. I must say on damp days I still have a little gout, but my knees are quite better. I am over 60 years of age, have a complexion like a girl's and feel very fit. I am fully repaid for taking a half teaspoonful of Salts each morning in a cup of hot water."—(Mrs.) A. Hall.

The pains and stiffness of rheumatism are frequently caused by deposits of uric acid in the muscles and joints. The numerous salts in Kruschen assist in stimulating your liver and kidneys to healthy, regular action, and help them to get rid of the excess uric acid which is the cause of so much suffering.

Ontario Potatoes Are Quite Scarce

Toronto, Jan. 16.—(CP)—Scarcity of Ontario potatoes, due to farmers holding their product for higher prices, turned dealers today towards the Maritimes to fill consumers' needs.

In parts of Western Ontario farmers are reported determined to keep their potatoes off the market until they receive what they consider a fair price. Hilborne Bird Bradford, describing a "sit down strike" by the producers, said the decision was not made through any organized body but merely arrived at by agreement among the farmers themselves.

London reports also told of potatoes being withheld from district markets in the last two weeks by some Middlesex County growers. John McDonald of Strathroy president of the Middlesex potatoes growers said individual opinion prices were bound to improve prompted growers to hold up deliveries.

Jumps 25 cents Bag

He said during the last two days prices jumped from $1.25 to $1.50 a bag and that potatoes were moving freely in Middlesex. F. C. Riddell, Middlesex County Agricultural representative, said he didn't believe there was an organized producers' strike in Ontario, but that growers were taking advantage of the situation that seemed to be forcing prices upward. "It took the farmer a long time to get used to the idea that he was selling too cheaply," said Mr. Hisey. "When he was asking for $1.00 a bushel he should have been receiving $2.00 now he wants more than we pay for New Brunswick potatoes and he's wrong again. He won't get more."

Convicts Fire Bedding, Wreck Interior in Riot At Guelph Reformatory

Windows Are Smashed And Smoke Rolls From Building

SCORES MISSING

Officers Without Guns Struck by Missiles But Quell Riot

(By Ted Farah, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 18 (CP) — From the red-ribbon Ontario reformatory police hurried early today to round up nearly 500 prisoners still loose after a night of wild disturbance in which convicts fired bedding and wrecked the interior of the big, gray-walled institution.

Not since the Kingston penitentiary outbreak in October, 1932, has a riot flared so ominously behind the walls of any penal institution in the province.

Nearly all of the 700 convicts housed in the reformatory broke loose in a Sunday demonstration, that lasted from mid-afternoon till 10 o'clock before it was quieted by guards and police called from nearby cities.

Scores Seen Walls

Windows were smashed and smoke rolled from the reformatory into a dreary, rainy night as the screaming prisoners, bent on destruction, rolled about the dormitories. Scores nimbly sped roofs and scurried away in the darkness. At one time it was estimated as many as 150 were missing.

Inside the buildings the rioting went on, unchecked for hours. Tables and beds were wrecked, and pieces of the broken furniture wielded as clubs by the howling mob.

The rioters surged through dormitories, chapel, library, kitchen, hospital and recreation room. Everything was smashed to kindling. Mattress were set to bed clothing and mattresses and flaming masses were tossed through the broken windows.

Books Piled and Burned

Library books were piled on the floor and burned. Pieces of tables and chairs were tied to the flames that could be seen by hundreds of watchers gathered outside. More than a dozen fires blazed at one time, with flames shooting from the windows of both wings of the main building.

The prisoners could be seen dashing about like dervishes, shouting in derision at guards and police.

There were no serious injuries in the few brief clashes between officials and rioters.

Sergeant A. T. Maguire, Chief Custodial Officer was reported to have been mobbed by the prisoners. He suffered a severe cut when struck over the head and was knocked unconscious but returned to duty shortly afterward.

Officer Struck

Provincial Constable L. T. Kelley was struck with a baseball bat but was not seriously hurt. One convict suffered a fractured ankle when he jumped from the kitchen roof in attempting to escape.

Some prisoners were reported to have suffered minor bruises during the clashes. Others were overcome by smoke from the conflagration.

A few tear gas bombs were tossed by police before the disturbance was finally quelled and the prisoners herded into cells.

Damage to the institution was placed unofficially as high as $200,000.

At the height of the disturbance 13 infirmaries, in the reformatory hospital were taken to safety under guards and flames threatened them with suffocation.

Firemen Called

Firemen from Guelph were called and sent tons of water pouring into the burning buildings. They said if the building had not been of high fire-resisting construction many lives would have been lost. The chief supervising guards of the institution, the full complement, carried no arms, the usual practice. Police had only their truncheons but did not use them.

The first uproar died down many of the prisoners talked freely, keeping a watchful eye on guards. They said the trouble arose over poor quality of food and because they were not allowed delivery of parcels at Christmas.

C. F. Neelands, Deputy Provincial Secretary, called from Toronto at the first news of the disturbance, said that dissatisfaction with quality and quantity of food caused the disorder.

Brewing Several Weeks

Launching his investigation even before daybreak, he called the disturbance an outbreak of "youthful exuberance."

Prisoners told newspapermen that trouble had been brewing for several weeks. At lunch time, they said, 25 prisoners refused to accept food on their plates and walked out of the lunch room to the dormitories.

Guards followed them and took them to their cells but the remainder, the convicts related. In protest the refusers began breaking up furniture and setting fire to bed clothes.

Gas Bombs Used

The tear gas bombs were said to have been thrown by Provincial Police to break up a destructive mob in one of the dormitories, the officers shouted warning at first and were greeted with jeers. The bombs were thrown and the prisoners reeled from the room, choking and weeping.

In the "Tower", the central part of the building between the two wings, prisoners raided Sergeant Maguire's office. They broke furniture and typewriters and took away a heavy ball and chain, relics kept by the Sergeant.

The ball and chain were used to smash billiard tables in the recreation room and other furniture. Take 5 Convicts zzDE.V

Official Know Engineers

Most of the reformatory prisoners are less than 30 years old. The maximum term in the institution is two years less a day.

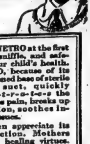
Deputy Minister Neelands, who had his own opinion of the uprising.

The trouble is that this place is run more on the lines of a college than a prison," he said. "There was a time when these fellows were treated harshly, but now we have more like nursemaids than prison guards. Maybe this will change matters a bit."

Deputy Provincial Secretary Neelands called the prisoners a "undisciplined young fellows together."

"Our show of force subdued all the excitement," said the Provincial official, "the combined county and police throughout the disturbance. He did not attempt to minimize the uniseness of the outbreak, adding it was the "loudest affair of the kind ever in this institution."

Dr. J. D. Hesslip, superintendent of Reformatory, gave his opinion that only 35 prisoners were actually responsible for riding. He said he had heard no previous complaints about food.



He said officials had a "pretty good idea who the ringleaders were".

The insurgent spirit spread quickly to all sections and the guards on duty were helpless to restore order, but they did nothing officials said, to aggravate the riots.

Many Captured

Many of the escaped prisoners were captured on the Reformatory grounds and in the city of Guelph a mile away. Some were dazed when caught.

Two were picked up along the railroad tracks in Guelph waiting for a train. Others were caught by police patrolling the country-side on foot and in motor cars.

At least 100 of the convicts escaped from second storey windows dropping to the ground roof and then into the courtyard. They scampered across the yard, scaled the powerhouse and fled into the wet night. Two automobiles were reported stolen in Guelph during the night.

Tweed and District

Tweed—Miss Grace Reeves has been engaged by Tweed Hydro as bookkeeper to succeed Mr. Oakley Courneyea who has moved to Marlbank where he has purchased a hotel business.

Mr. Waller R. Dark, bandmaster of Tweed-Sulphide Band, has been successful in passing the examinations necessary to obtain a certificate of membership in the Canadian Bandmaster Association.

The members of the Men's Bowling Club were guests of the Ladies' Bowling Club at the home of Miss Cosey Mehlenbein. The event was the regular monthly social meeting held by the ladies. Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. D. Gordon and Dr. P. T. Bowlby were winners of the bridge prizes. A committee of ladies served as a delicious lunch. Expressions of appreciation to Miss Mehlenbein were offered by the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Ardenne and son Jack attended the funeral of Mrs. Ardenne's father, Newton L. Forster, in Toronto on Tuesday. The late Mr. Forster passed away on Saturday evening at his home at 10 Orchard Park Boulevard, Toronto, after a brief illness. He was born at Britannia aerodrome eighty years ago and was a grandson of James Forster, one of the early pioneers of Peel County. When a young man he was engaged because deeply interested in astronomy, constructing a number of telescopes, and being elected to membership in the Royal Astronomical Society.

The late Newton Forster is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Pearl Stephenson, Mrs. Ross Ardenne, Tweed, Mrs. Jessie McAdam, and five sons, Howard, Newton, Morley, Walker and Harvey, children of the first marriage. He is also survived by his second wife, formerly Miss Sheffield and two brothers, F. A. Forster, Builders Corners, and Dr. J. M. Forster, Oakville.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Archibald of Bloor Beach, Toronto, assisted by Rev. J. W. Bean, pastor of the Wesleyan church. Interment was in Erindale cemetery.

The funeral of the late John A Hawkins, of Tweed, who passed away in his 87th year, was held from his late residence to St. Charlaigh's church, Tweed, where high mass sung by a nephew, Rev. Fr. J. P. Feeney, of Smith's Falls, assisted by Rev. Fr. Sullivan, of St. Edmund's cemetery, Stoco.

The deceased was the youngest son of the late John and Mary Hawkins and Huntingdon Township, one of the earliest families to reside in the district. For many years Mr. John Hawkins was engaged in the lumbering industry in Western Ontario and British Columbia.

He is survived by one daughter, Mary, Reg. N., of Tweed; two sisters Mrs. A. Meraw, Tweed, and Mrs. Jas. Feeney, Stirling, and two brothers, Michael, of Bogart, and Jonas, of Sarnia.

The bearers were Francis Meraw, William Meraw nephews; Thos. S. Rath, Geo. Stokes, Joe Rashotte and Joe Bergeron.

The inaugural meeting of Tweed Village Council was held at the Council Chambers on Monday evening. After taking the oath of office the following standing committees were appointed.

Finance—Councillors Myles, Way, Reeve Sayers.

Sheep—Reeve Sayers, Councillors Kingston, King.

Constable Hayes presented his annual report for the year 1936. A motion was passed to include in the Constable's duties that of Relief Officer, for which he will receive extra remuneration. This duty has formerly been part of the work assumed by Reeve Sayers who felt that it was more than a reeve should be expected to do.

Messrs. Stan Lee and Joe Rashotte were reappointed assessors at a salary of $40.00 each.

Mr. S. D. Corry, Editor of Tweed News, was named a member of the High School Board for the period of three years, as successor to Mr. Riley Trumpour recently moved to Bloomfield.

Several important matters were discussed by the Council at this meeting. The question of relief work for the unemployed was given consideration following the visit of a deputation which was advised that the extension of the Waverley to River Street would probably be undertaken in a short time.

A by-law to close places of business on Saturday evening at 11 o'clock and to provide for the Wednesday half holiday in the summer months will be drafted and presented to the Council for ratification at the February meeting.

The following accounts were ordered paid:

A. Godfrey, $2.40; E. Drinkwater, $18.30; Barrett's Grocery, $6.16; A. J. Maynes, $32.00; Bell Telephone $6.90; W. R. The topic for discussion—Miss Mary Elaisky, Piano Solo—Miss L. Richardson. A chapter from "Men and Women of Far Horizons" was discussed in a very interesting way by Miss Campbell and Miss Fisher. A very encouraging financial report was given by the treasurer. The Socie y's objective was reached and forwa ded to the Branch treasurer. The meeting was closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

FOXBORO LADIES' GUILD

The Foxboro Ladies' Guild and Women's Missionary Society were entertained at the home of Mrs. Jaques on Wednesday afternoon with fifteen members and visitors present. Miss Bessie Spencer presided over the Guild and opened with hymn 697 followed with Scripture reading by Mrs. G. D. McCullough. Rev. W. MacDonald led in prayer. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the sec'y, Mrs. R. Townsend and approved.

Roll call was answered with New Year's resolutions and the paying of membership fees. Miss Spencer gave a reading on New Year's gleanings. Collection was taken and meeting was handed over to Mrs. G. D. McCullough, president of W. M. S. when business was discussed and minutes read by the sec'y. Miss Nellis Bell was re-appointed Mission band leader for the coming year. A new study book is to be taken up. A card from the sec'ies is to be sent to a sick member. Roll call was answered with verses of Scripture beginning with the word from the Lord. Meeting closed in January. Mrs. Lake gave the scripture reading and Nellis Bell gave a reading on New Year's greetings. Meeting closed with hymn 382 and the Lord's prayer in unison.

THOMASBURG W. M. S.

The January meeting of Thomasburg W. M. S. met in the Vestry on Thursday, Jan. 14th, with a good attendance. The meeting was opened by the president. A hymn was sung followed by the Lord's prayer in unison. Roll was called and answered by paying membership fees. The installation of officers was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Herrington. A report of last year's financial was given by Mrs. Fox. The worship service was in charge of Mrs. F. Jones. A hymn was sung, followed by prayer by Mrs. Herrington. The Scripture reading was given by Mrs. J. Bateman. Prayer was offered by Mrs. L. Rose. A duet by motional reading was given by Mrs. M. Adams, Mrs. Harold Morton gave a chapter from the Study book. The meeting was closed by singing two verses of Hymn "Take My Life and Let it be", followed by prayer by Mrs. J. Chappel and all repeating the Mizpah Benediction.

DAD GIVES A GOOD TIP

OF COURSE, you know that children should never drink tea or coffee. But do you realize that the caffeine in tea and coffee disagrees with many grown-ups, too?

If you are bothered by headaches or indigestion, or find it difficult to sleep soundly . . . caffeine may be to blame.

Isn't it worth while to try Postum for 30 days? Postum contains no caffeine. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. It is easy to make, and costs less than one-half cent a cup. It's a delicious drink, too . . . and may prove a real help.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Reddy Merfy was standing in front of my house and Reddy was eating gum drops out of a bag without offering anybody any, me being the only other one there to offer any to, and I didn't see him for any on account of being too proud and I wasn't sure I'd take any even if he offered me some, only I probably would of, and all of a sudden Reddy threw the bag down on my front steps and put his hand up to his face, saying, Owtch, gosh hang the luck, my toothake came back again, owtch, I'm going home

Wich she started to, me calling after him, Hay, how about your bag of gum drops, and him saying I don't want them, they're no good to me, anybody can have them.

Proving when people are in trouble they forget all about their pleasures, and I thawt, G, he said anybody and I'm somebody, hurry, push you one in the snook, Reddy said.

And I started to eat the gum drops, saying them and me and it fast but not axially hurrying, and I hadn't hardly ate the last one when Reddy came back, saying, G, I hadn't any more than got in the house when my toothake stopped again, where's my gumdrops?

I ate them, I said, and he said, Wtaal, hay, you got a nerve, you must be looking for trouble.

Well, G, what's a matter, you said anybody could have them, and you can't pay I ain't anybody, I said, and Reddy said, Well that's no reason to act as if you thawt you was everybody.

And he started to look madder and madder, and I said, Well hay smoking, if you hadn't said anybody could have them it would be less different, but G wimickers that's just what you said with your last words.

It didn't say anything about swallowing them down like lightning, did I, I got a good chawd to

DO YOU HAVE "NERVES"?

No need for girls or women to suffer from periodic pains, backache or sickache, when you find that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a very beneficial tonic. This is what Mrs. L. Bowman of 115 Park Row, Woodstock, Ont., said: "I was feeling rundown and out-of-sorts, had frequent headaches, and terrible nausea on an end of discomfort. I did not get well at night. But Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription made me feel better in every way. It relieved me of nervousness, improved my appetite and helped to overcome the other symptoms."

Hydro Commissioner Geo. A. Reid, confined to his home through illness since last Wednesday has recovered sufficiently to be able to return to his office this afternoon.

Mrs. William Oliphant is seriously ill in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Barrie, with son Bobby of Camp Borden, spent the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. Benson.

Miss Margaret Burrower, 70 Dufferin Avenue, left Saturday for Montreal to visit her uncle, Dr. Stephen Leacock.

Mrs. Amy Golliver who received injuries in a fall on Wednesday evening is confined to her home, Hamilton Road.

Mr. R. T. Austin, manager of Waterworks in Belleville, who is seriously ill in Kingston General Hospital, under the care of Dr. W. T. Connell, is slightly improved.

Mrs. Roger Porter was elected Captain of the Chanel Choir meeting at the annual election of officers of the women's section, held at the Quinte Country Club on Friday afternoon.

After the evening service, twenty-five members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Choir called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Reid, Queen Street, where they sang two Christmas anthems and several favourite hymns. Mrs. Reid joined with the choir in the singing of many of the hymns. Both Mr. and Mrs. Reid expressed their appreciation of the visit and the members of the choir are looking forward to having Mrs. Reid again in the near future.

SION W. M. S.

The dinner and meeting was held at Mrs. H. Casey's with the new president in charge. The watchword and hymn 94 was followed by a Devotional period taken by Mrs. Searle. Mrs. Manley read the lesson from Samuel Chap. 1 and the Roll Call was responded to by the paying of membership fees. The New Year topic was ably given by Mrs. Cecil Rodgers and Mrs. R. Cranston favored with a solo. Rev. Evenson talked on some insight on an officer's duties in all branches of church work which were very instructive and helpful. Hymn 82 was sung and several ladies gave extracts from the new Study Book of Hymn 96 and prayer by Mrs. Evenson brought the meeting to a close.

Ann Harding Weds New York Musician

London, Jan. 18 (AP)—The unwritten law of the stage—the play must go on—could not hamper Ann Harding's 50-hour honeymoon with her second husband, Werner Janssen, New York symphony conductor, today.

Married yesterday in the registry office at Caxton Hall, the United States actress opens in a revival of O. B. Shaw's play Candida at Brighton tonight.

"I'm so happy," Miss Harding said. "Jane loves her new daddy and he is so fond of her I'm almost jealous."

Miss Harding brought her daughter to England to escape the jurisdiction of United States courts, where Harry Bannister, her first husband, was seeking to regain custody.

Janssen is 37; his wife 34.

IF YOU WANT TO BE EXTRA CAREFUL WITH COLDS

Use Vicks VapoRub . . . This New Improved Way

During this treacherous winter weather, so cold should be neglected. Don't delay. Don't experiment with half-way measures. The moment you come down with a cold, go straight to bed and use your old dependable Vicks VapoRub —and use it this new improved way. Then you not only enjoy all the benefits that have made VapoRub the standby of two generations; you actually increase its effectiveness.

To Loosen Phlegm, Relieve Coughing, Strengthen VapoRub's Action—Massage

Vicks VapoRub briskly on the back (between and below the shoulder-blades) as well as on the throat and chest, for a full minute. Then spread a thick layer of VapoRub over the chest and cover with a warmed cloth. Follow these tested directions carefully. Each step of this "5-Minute VapoRub Massage" helps to lengthen and strengthen VapoRub's famous two-way action.

Relieves a Cold Two Ways at Once—Almost before the VapoRub is well rubbed on, it starts to bring relief two ways at once—3 direct ways:

1. Through the Skin. VapoRub acts direct through the skin like a poultice or plaster.

2. Medicated Vapors. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by body heat, are breathed in for hours—about 18 times a minute—direct to the irritated air-passages of the throat, and chest.

This combined poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm and makes breathing easier—relieves irritation—eases the cough—helps break congestion. Long after you relax into comfortable sleep, VapoRub keeps right on working—hour after hour. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Avoids Risk of Stomach Upset—Only safe external treatment cannot possibly upset the stomach, as constant internal "dosing" is so apt to do. It can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

BANQUET HELD AT DELORO

Safety Committee Gives Annual Dinner—Report No Accidents in 15 Months

Marmora (Special)—The annual banquet and meeting of the Deloro Safety Committee was held on Thursday evening. The former event was staged in the staff dining room where Mrs. P. Smith and her staff served a sumptuous repast, which was made possible through the generosity of the Deloro management. Before adjournment was made to Deloro Hall for the business sessions, R. A. Elliot, Chairman, voiced the thanks of the committee to the management. S. B. Wright, general manager of the Company moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Smith and her staff for the excellent meal and the efficient service. Assembled in the hall, the business of the regular monthly meeting was first proceeded with.

George Brooks reported for the Suggestions Committee, showing that 28 suggestions had been received during the month just ended. C. T. Nicholson of the Committee Committee gave the next report showing that four of the suggestions received had been given an award and also mentioning that as a result the yearly remuneration, a further award for a safety suggestion had been given. He also said that the star again goes to the General Division. W. L. Rigg reporting for the Entertainment Committee gave an encouraging report of the general welfare of the plant. The chairman remarked that for this month, no floating member would be appointed as is generally the case, J. A. Rice told of having given Prune Medicines to the Metals Department. He will give similar practices in the engineering department during the present month. The monthly statement of the Benevolent Association was presented by C. H. Bunbard and the concluding report was that of the Publicity Committee given by W. R. Reynolds. Mr. Reynolds referred to the distribution of safety circulars, calendars and the Safety Committee's New Year's Letter. This meeting adjourned to be followed by the annual meeting. After the interval for the best annual meeting had been read and elected, H. A. Elliott gave the chairman's report.

Chairman's Report

In his opening remarks he indicated that despite the more stringent times of the past year, dividends are being paid, as result of Accident Prevention but yet dividends have been increased, which was novelse due to the record attained. The chairman referred to his report to read from a letter, which F. A. Bayly, general manager of company, had received this week from the Industrial Accidents Prevention Associations' Office in which it was shown that wherever the sum of $1,014,000 was spent out in compensation for accidents during 1935, the sum of $2,400,000 had "been spent in 1936. Also whereas 297 lost time accidents occurred in industry in 1935, 77 were reported for 1936. Mr. Elliott proceeding with his report, referred to two charts displayed wherein was shown "compensated accidents per year" and "lost days per year which came under compensation."

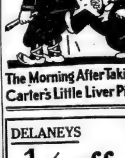
Foremen Commended

Mr. Elliot next stated that four foremen had clear records for the past year with respect to accidents and named them as follows. G. Brooks, H. G. Lovelace, D. Hewitt and H. Smith. Because of his perfect attendance at meetings, G. Brooks wa, named as a delegate to attend the Industrial Accidents Prevention Convention to be held in April. He will be accompanied by E. A. McAliley who has been appointed delegate by the staff. The chairman then referred to the St. April. He will be accompanied by the past year by Dr. H. Crawford, with Dr. R. Taft as examiner. Mr. Elliot's closing remarks dealt with accidents in the home and on the highways. Each home to be as homes the principle of Safety First and accidents prevention," he stressed. Mr. Elliot called for nominating co-operation on the part of the employees and thanked the plant. P. Paquet in giving the secretary's report summarized the activities of the sub committee. He was pleased to note from the Report of the Competitive Committee that the plant had gone 15 months without a compensation accident. Referring to the St. John's Ambulance class, he had noted with pleasure, that all the 29 candidates had passed and then announced the representatives of the different departments appointed to the committee for 1937 as follows:

Silver Plant—W. Simmons, Sr.
Oxide Plant—T. Cousins.
Engineering Division—Allan Ehler
General Division—Hector Auger

Concluding his report, Mr. Paquet, said that all should help maintain a safety conscious attitude.

S. B. Wright calling upon for some remarks, said that the reports showed effective safety Plan. He thanked all the committees for their splendid work during the past year and assured the gathering that the company will continue supporting this work in every way possible.



Officers Re-elected

Next on the agenda came the election of officers. Last year's executive were unanimously re-elected as follows: Chairman: R. A. Elliot; Vice Chairman: W. L. Rigg; Secretary, P. Paquet; Assistant Secretary, W. R. Reynolds.

At the annual meeting the election of a member to serve for three years on the Trustee Relief Board is necessitated through the retirement of H. A. Elliot from the trio, who has served three years. This year W. R. Reynolds, retiring member was re-elected for another three term. H. A. McAliley and H. Benny were re-elected auditors. The sub committees also received re-election.

Present Certificates

Next came presentation of certificates by Mr. Wright, manager of the company, to the following who recent St. John's Ambulance class, their names being Simcoe Smith, David Rattray, William Smith, W. Mehan, Donald Robertson, Clifford Wilson, William Simmons Jr., Floyd Loveless, George Brooks, Charles Nicholson, Cyril Tuncy, Marshal McCoy, Michael Coregon, Hugh Bicer, Morris Bailey, Gordon McWilliams, Robert Elliot Jr., Robert Bennett, John Bryant, Lloyd French, Percy Cray, Aarvi Konski, Harry Loveless, William Rigg, Harold Mayzer and Ronald Rogers. P. Paquet, who has been successful in leading the classes in training in St. John's Ambulance Association received the Association's medallion. At the conclusion of the presentations, Mr. Wright expressed his appreciation at the results of the examination and also said he was sorry that there was a large number of suggestions along Safety First lines are still being received by the committee. P. A. Bayly added his congratulations for the good work carried on. Referring to the letter he had received from the Office of the Industrial Accidents Prevention Association, he said it was gratifying that over a man was killed every day last year in industry. He was glad to know that the interest in Accident Prevention was still being maintained at the plant. W. L. Rigg, vice chairman again referred his inspection of the Entertainment Committee and said that from the safety point of view, he was getting into a fine shape. H. W. Sabine, Manager, in the annual banquet at which gathering expressed his appreciation of the courtesy and consideration that shown him. He said that there was a changed attitude towards safety and health than formerly. Industry should be the better of care and study and of knowing the job and this was being effected. The final speaker P. M. Reynolds in a few words said that he was proud to have had a little part in the year's good

MADAWASKA USED THRONE SPEECH DEBATE OPENS

Soon in Operation

"The Madawaska plant will be turning out power before the 19,000 horsepower, still to be called upon under the Gatineau contract is required by the municipalities," the chairman said.

Mr. Lyon told the club members and other power users who attended that so far as Eastern Ontario was concerned there had been no cancellation of power contracts. The only contract in which the Hydro Electric Power Commission was concerned was the 60,000 horsepower contract of 1927 with the Gatineau Power Company.

This contract provided for the delivery during the five years 1927-1932 of a maximum quantity of 60,000 horsepower, increasing year by year throughout the period at the rate of 6,000 horsepower a year.

If the contract had not been modified, he said, the system at present would have been under the necessity of paying for 54,000 horsepower at a price of $18 a horsepower a year for the difference of the quantity delivered in the vicinity of Ottawa, and $14.70 a horsepower for the balance delivered at Smith's Falls. This would have been increased Nov. 1 to 60,000 horsepower.

Contract Revised

There was no immediate need for this quantity of power so the contract was revised with the commission agreeing to pay $12.50 a horsepower for 42,000 horsepower and accept that quantity for delivery with a general reserve of 9,000 horsepower. Under the revised conditions, he added, the commission will pay to the Gatineau Power Company during the present year $300,000 instead of $756,000 called for under the previous contract.

Mr. Lyon said costs were being steadily reduced in the east but the reduction had been retarded by two contracts which have hitherto given Ottawa and Kingston great advantages over the other cities in the eastern part of the province.

Inequalities Shown

Under an old contract 20,000 horsepower of Ottawa's supply was provided at a rate of $11 a horsepower a year which, during the depression years, was materially less than the cost a horsepower levied upon the municipalities in Eastern Ontario.

Referring to inequalities prevailing, the chairman said Ottawa during the year ending October 31, 1936, paid the commission $306,818 for 17,000 horsepower measured at the peak of the load. Ottawa, because of its low original contract covering more than two-thirds the power supplied to it, paid $391,988 for 28,033 horsepower.

Kingston paid the commission $151,807 for 8,478 horsepower whereas Peterboro for 7,140 horsepower paid $125,541. Belleville took 4,398 horsepower and paid $138,946 or very little short of Kingston's bill, although Kingston had the use of 2,000 more horsepower.

Appearance of Hon. R. B. Bennett Is Awaited With Interest

Ottawa, Jan. 18 (CP)—Debate of the address in reply to the throne speech was scheduled to start today in the House as preparations for Conservative leader Bennett, who ordinarily would lead it was not expected in the capital till evening.

The premier arrived yesterday in Halifax after a four-months tour of the Empire and his appearance in the House was awaited with keen interest. His attitude, it was thought, would govern to a considerable extent the administration's decision how much it will make public concerning its conduct during the recent constitutional crisis in the Empire.

Thomas Moriarty (Lib. Essex West), was scheduled to move the address and C. J. Venlot (Lib. Gloucester) to second it.

Wants Copies Tabled

Public interest, usually centred on the throne speech reply debate, appeared occupied more with the constitutional question. James S. Woodsworth, Socialist C.C.F. leader, has on the order paper a motion for the tabling of copies of all correspondence and other documents relating to the question of abdication of King Edward and George VI's succession. Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House last Thursday the government did not consider it in public interest that the correspondence should be tabled.

The Prime Minister's statement on the change of sovereigns will be made when the bill now before parliament to ratify the constitutional changes comes up, unless a debate is precipitated earlier by a motion on the order paper calling on the government to table the correspondence.

The motion by, Mr. Woodsworth asks the tabling of "all documents copies of all correspondence, telegrams and other documents between the Prime Minister and any Canadian official with the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom or representative of the British Government or Government Agencies regarding the proposed marriage and abdication of King Edward and accession of King George."

Germans Abroad Liable For Military Service

Berlin, Jan. 18 (AP)—The official Gazette last night notified Germans abroad of the 1917 class living abroad, who are subject to labor service and military service, that they are liable to called next year. It said they were liable to be called for labor service in 1937 and to military service, October 1, 1938.

CHINESE HURL SLAVES FROM BURNING TRAIN

Canton, China, Jan. 18 (AP)—Rescue workers searched along fifteen miles of track today for the dead and burned bodies of panic-stricken Chinese who hurled themselves from the blazing coaches of a speeding express train.

At least 100 persons, it was estimated, perished in the third class cars of the Canton-Hong Kong Express yesterday, as the engineer, unaware of the fire, held the train speeding through the night. Some 85 bodies, burned beyond recognition, were recovered. About 50 persons were injured.

Railway officials said the fire followed the explosion of a jar of sulphuric acid in a third class car loaded with passengers.

The three coaches were burned record. Through the courtesy of the International Nickel Co., four reels were shown on the screen. The first two featured the manufacture of nickel and the other two depicted the manufacture of monel metal. The meeting came to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

Express was halted by the engineers who saw the flaming cars as the train rounded a curve. Charred bodies were sprawled over the flames while the right-of-way for fifteen miles near Shahing was scattered with the bodies of other victims.

NO FOUL PLAY

London, Jan. 18 (AP)—Captain George S. C. Swinton, 77, authority on Scottish Heraldry, was found dead today in his London residence.

Scotland Yard officials took charge of the body.

It was stated unofficially Capt. Swinton had been shot and that foul play was suspected. There was no official confirmation of this statement.

H. J. Eade, Pres. Of Deseronto Legion

At the annual meeting of the Deseronto Branch of the Canadian Legion held in Deseronto, H. J. Eade was unanimously re-elected to the presidency. The executive officers elected were: First Vice President, W. Maley; Second Vice President, Harry Fraser; Secretary Treasurer, R. Worrall; Executive committee, Comrades Aston, McAfee, Col. Pulman, Harrold and Hughes.

Wellington Raises Labor Wage Rate

Workmen laboring for the village of Wellington in 1937 will be paid at the rate of twenty-five cents an hour according to a motion laid down at the inaugural meeting of the 1937 council held last week. This constitutes a raise of five cents an hour and is the first of its kind since the labor days preceding 1929. As the labor act down by the village council is usually followed by the various industries of the village, it is felt that prosperity after all may be hovering around the corner.

Notice To Tax Payers

The City of Belleville will allow pre-payment of Taxes for the year 1937 at a discount on a basis of 4% per annum.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL
"Happy-Go-Lucky"

Scores of almost-eyed Shanghai dancing beauties comprising the first to ever appear as a chorus in movies, Argentinian dancers, three new Phil Regan songs, a thirty-piece orchestra, night life along the Shanghai Bund, romance, romance, intrigue, and Oriental color — are the chief elements that make Republic's "Happy-Go-Lucky" one of the best musical films of the year.
The story which features the beautiful, regal Evelyn Venable opposite Regan, opened last night at the Capitol Theatre and was received with overwhelming enthusiasm, especially when dancing established his first song "Happy-Go-Lucky." Two other numbers written for the star by Sammy Stept are "Treat for the Eyes", and "Right or Wrong."
The Shanghai street scenes reveling a polyglot mingling of thousands of types is an example of Republics new determination to give color and realism to some of the products.
A number of fine old character actors interpret supporting roles under the excellent direction of Harry Joe Brown including Fred Prouty, Karl Hackett, William Newell, Claude King, Carlton Young and Guy Kingsford and Jonathan Hale.
The story has to do with an American aviator in China who loses his identity and is suspected of being a spy, using amnesia as and excuse. His fiancee goes to Shanghai and they eventually unravel the mystery.

Added Bits

Herman Timber and Pat Rooney in a singing and dancing number "Rah Rah Rhythm", a Betty Boop cartoon "Be Human" and a sport novelty "Fun Badminton Racket."

On The Stage

Tuesday night only at 8.45 we are presenting another of our local stage units with Tommy Mamm and his Swing Rhythm Orchestra and 4 local acts, featuring the debut of Jack Donovan, the youngest, songster in Belleville and 3 other all star acts. All this at no increase in prices.

BENNETT IN MONTREAL

Montreal, Jan. 18 (CP)"—Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the Conservative Opposition in the Canadian House of Commons, passed through Montreal today en route to Ottawa from Halifax where he arrived Sunday, on his return from a tour of Empire countries.

AT THE REGENT
"Lloyds of London"

The emotional story of a woman's love! The flaming courage of a hero's life! The wrapped fury of an outlaw's hate! Intrigue, romance, adventure . . . with the fate of an empire at stake!
This is "Lloyds of London", the brilliant new Twentieth Century-Fox hit which opened Saturday at the Regent Theatre to three capacity audiences.
Ablaze with action, vivid with the pageantry and vital with drama, this story of a love that changed the destiny of an empire unites in ecstatic-moving kaleidoscope the thrilling account of the founding of England's sea power, and the establishment of the world's most exciting and extraordinary institution.
Freddie Bartholomew and Madeleine Carroll are the stars in this exceptional cast, which features Sir Guy Standing, and the new romantic sensation Tyrone Power, C. Aubrey Smith and Virginia Field.
In the production Freddie Bartholomew, playing Jonathan Blake, son of Sir Guy Standing, as the youthful Horatio Nelson, on behalf of the Standing family, a plot to scuttle a ship and claim the insurance from Lloyds of London.
Freddie and Douglas determine to thwart Mr. Blake's plan, but at the moment Douglas's uncle takes him off to sea. Freddie, alone, sets out to walk to London.
Arriving at Lloyd's, Freddie's story impresses Sir Guy Standing, head of the Syndicate, who rewards the boy by teaching him the business.
During the years that follow the lad of London grows into one of the French Revolution, the heroic struggle between England and France for sea supremacy, and the rise of Napoleon.
Jonathan Blake, now played by Tyrone Power, has grown into manhood. He has married in France, he meets Madeleine Carroll and sides her to escape back to England. During the stormy, sea-swept voyage, they fall in love.
Jonathan, however, receives a crushing blow when he discovers that Madeleine has married Lord Stacy . . . his avowed enemy.
The tender romance and exciting intrigue as Jonathan's power surges to a climax in a great battle in Lloyds. Madeleine, by offering to give up her entire fortune to her husband, has persuaded him to agree to a divorce.
Then comes the crushing news as the French fleet is sweeping the sea of British merchantmen. Lloyds refuses further insurance, all but Jonathan Blake, who like a lion's mark, stands against the other underwriters in an effort to prevent the destruction of England. With Madeleine at his side and the destiny of an empire in his hand, he decides on a desperate rule that brings the film to a thrilling, crescendo climax!
Darryl F. Zanuck selected Henry King to direct "Lloyds of London". "Pupe Christmas", one of the cleverest and funniest color cartoons seen on a local screen in many months preceded the feature attraction.
"Lloyds of London" is grand entertainment and the department ventures to prophesy that when the end of the year rolls around it will be hailed as this year's best film!

CANNINGTON W.M.S.

The January meeting of the W.M.S. was held at the parsonage on the first Thursday in the month, Mr. Merrick installed the new officers for the coming year. Mrs. Holgate as Life Member, had temperance reading. Several scripture readings were given by Mrs. Merrick, Mrs. W. Cole, and Mrs. C. Mills. Two short readings were given by Mrs. H. Langabeer. A Temperance Collection was taken and then Mrs. Merrick introduced the guest speaker for the day—Mrs. Ross from Carnoe. While Mrs. Ross was dressing in the costume of the Russian people out West, Mrs. Merrick spoke a few words. Mrs. Ross' address was very interesting as she told of the many of these Russian people for several years and the customs and manufactures of their customs. Everyone enjoyed her talk very much and the invitation was extended to her to come and give more facts about the Russian people when time would not be estimated. YOUTH SEEKING FOR SOLUTION

Older Boys' Premier Ken Morland and Others Speak on Outlook For Boys

Youth's effort to help itself in the present economic crisis and to make intelligent application of the modern approaches to the problems which threaten society was emphasized by Bridge Street United Church congregation on Sunday evening with a service given over to the work of the young. Kenneth Morland of Albert College, Premier of the Older Boys' Parliament of Ontario, Isaac Stephenson, Jr., and Rhea Clark, local member of the parliament, which met last month in Toronto, took part. Ross Orr read the lesson. Isaac Stephenson spoke briefly on the aims of boys' work and of the recent convention, while Kenneth Morland delivered the address, of the evening.

Possessing an excellent voice, the Older Boys' Premier betrayed no mark, of immaturity in his study of the problem of the boyhood and youth of today. He pointed to the failure of science and economics to keep political and economic step with the progress of science and social progress.

The youth of today is the most intensely studied generation ever involved. This explains their insistence upon the right to try and do something to help themselves, he explained.

Kenneth Morland pointed out that he hoped that no one would feel that the youth was over-emphasizing the situation. Because of it, youth does appreciate what the past generations have done. But it also feels the urge to play a part in their future.

Rev. Dr. Semple afterward, declared "I am ashamed to see how little is done in the province for the boys". He referred to the magnificent provision for boys' work, and the opportunity that exists where could not be estimated. In boys' work in Ontario, and as a result money has been raised as the proceeds of the sale of work at the Christmas tea and one of the national leaders hooked after the affair. CAPTURED YOUTHS TELL OF ESCAPE

Policemen Turn up Every where and Spoil Flight

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 18 (CP)—Ten youths who scattered in all directions from their reform school, Reformatory, seeking freedom through the night's fog and rain, found themselves thrown together today in a cell block at city police headquarters.

They willingly told of their adventures through the night, their brief flights from bondage which ended in capture.

"I was stealing a hack but I didn't get that far," said a good looking youth with reddish hair. "I'd just got the motor turned over when a couple came along." two others caught him in the car at the point of guns north of Guelph, and turned him over to police.

Ready To Take Trails

"I was trying to get a passenger train out," said a dark youth who was arrested by city police along the railroad tracks. "The train was just goin' when they got me."

A bland colored boy wasn't sure where he was or where he was going after he installed the new spark plugs in the truck. "I was drunk—I dunno," he explained, "I was just wanderin'—got to the tracks, I guess." He said he was intoxicated on a combination of hair tonic and face lotion.

Two 17-year-olds were trying to thumb a ride when they were seen by highways leading out of Guelph when a passenger car came by. The two said they ran through the fields and hid.

One ran a block before a pistol shot barked behind him. He stopped. Another youth was arrested in a garage shot was fired and he stopped. Still another was found by police back to headquarters. One of the youths who had escaped from Bowmanville Industrial School, said he was heading for Toronto.

Three Surrender.

Four prisoners, banded together and fled as far as Rockwood, seven miles from the institution. So the four stood on a corner shivering and wailed until a carload of Guelph city police drove along. They told officers who they were and asked to be taken back. They gave no reason for shopbreaking.

A black-skinned young man admitted stealing a car in Guelph and driving 45 miles towards Toronto. Then, trying to turn around on a narrow country road, the front wheels of the machine ran into a ditch. He couldn't back out.

Overcome by hunger and cold, he walked a mile into a town whose name he didn't know and there a policeman picked him up. He was taken from that reformatory.

"I just wanted to get to Toronto that's all," he said. "I wanted to get away from that reformatory."

Eadale, Cumberland, Jan. 18—(CP)—Cyril Spencer, 14, was the prize while cutting hay from a frozen slough in a field near here. In the stack he found $7,000 worth of jewelry.

The jewelry was identified as belonging to Mrs. Roberts, wife of the Provost of Selkirk. It had disappeared from a drawer in her room, while she was staying at WHA home August 15 last. The find included a string of pearls worth $1,200.

How the jewelry got into the hay stack remains a mystery.

Canadiens Increase Lead In Canadian Section with 5-0 Shutout over the Maroons

Victory Obtained Without Services of Babe Siebert

LEAFS WIN

Defeat Hawks 3-2 in Overtime, While Detroit Take Hawks 2-0

By A. E. FULFORD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

In the affections of their French-Canadian supporters at least, Montreal Canadiens are once again the great team that flashed along the hockey trails in their great days six and seven years ago. There is little argument in Montreal today that they are Stanley Cup material in 1937 as they were in 1930-31.

And the wonder. The collection of old men which Babe Siebert was supposed to be wearing himself out with without the great Babe Saturday night and tossed Montreal Maroons out in 5-0 loss before 12,500 persons, the largest crowd that has been a game in Montreal for five years.

Siebert was on the injured list but Bill MacKenzie took his place and the veterans were performing so well up front he wasn't missed. Maroons never had a chance against the Blackhawks rushes in the first few minutes of the game.

Held Six Point Lead

The victory gave Canadiens into a six-point lead over Maroons and they have played a game more than their rivals. It's the same lead the world champion Detroit Red Wings have over the Leafs in the Western section of the National League's American division.

Detroit took advantage of Kenora' week-end idleness to grab two points by beating Chicago Black Hawks 2-0 in Chicago last night and Boston Bruins moved up to within a point of Rangers by defeating New York Americans 3-2 in Toronto Maple Leafs were the other week-end game by taking Hawks 3-2 in overtime at Toronto Gardens.

Canadiens were so much better than Maroons that at times it reminded Under 21 Code staged across his goalmouth for minutes at a time by long wearers. The Habitants did all their scoring in the first two periods. Four in their goal, were one each, while Maroons were shorthanded.

Veteran Aurel Joliat opened the score in the first period and Toe Blake got another in that same session. Then Maroons scored twice in the second and George Brown got the other. Joe Lamb rooted Brown's fourth goal in six games and he also was credited with an assist on one of the MacKenzie counters.

Barry And Aurie Score

Marty Barry and Larry Aurie, Detroit's high scorers, continued their rivalry for point honors with each getting a goal and kept their tie for first place. Hawks outfought Wings throughout the game and for most of the second but had hard luck.

They might easily have done better with a little luck at. Toronto, where Hawks handed Leafs 3-2 in a dull first half of the game but slipped back, when Toronto got their scoring combination.

Sylvanus Apps, rookie centre, scored two of Toronto's goals and Hap Day got the winning one in the thirty minute of overtime. Glenn Brydson and Mike Marsh scored for Chicago.

Apps' second goal and Brydson's were protested on the ground they took passes inside the crease. The officials ruled they had legal but disallowed a counter made by Bob Davidson in the third because he was in the crease.

Boston scored one goal in each period against Americans. Cooney Smith marketed up the first, Cooney Weiland got the second while Dinny Lay was serving a penalty and Leroy Goldsworthy rang up the third.

N. H. L. STARS

By The Canadian Press

Bill Beveridge, Canadiens, who shot two goals and played a strong defensive game as the Frenchmen scored by 5-0 over Maroons.

Nick Metz, Toronto, whose overtime goal scored Maple Leafs with a 3-2 victory over Chicago's hapless Hawks.

Tiny Thompson, Boston, who goalitended well in his thirty shutout of the season, by 3-0 over Americans.

Norm Smith, Detroit, whose goal-tending played a leading part as Red Wings gave Chicago a Sunday-night 2-0 drubbing.

Around Bases

By Sid Feder

Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Tagging the bases:

More than one Chicago's Cubs are going to be disappointed when they see the new contracts. Salary figures for some are being dropped as sharply as their 1936 batting averages. Cincinnati Reds boast they now have the third largest farm system in the big-time. And are adding to it regularly. . . .

The Red Sox roller, fresh in from Boston, discloses a house-cleaning so thorough that all but two holdover outfielders have been let go with the moss-covered Jimmy Foxx and Mel Harder. Jean Jimmy Foxx will be switched to the ply pastures than ever a deal with the Cleveland Indians come off. . . . The squad averages 26 years in weight, is considerably younger than last year's and definitely-indicating Tom Yawkey plans to keep the rubber band on his bankroll from here on. . . .

The slide out of the majors is slippery. . . . Wesner Al Niemiec, who did considerable second-base-ing for Connie Mack's Athletics last year became there wasn't anyone else around to do it. . . . Al was sent to Baltimore several weeks ago. Now, even before he can show his stuff in Double-A Company, the Orioles are shipping him down to Little Rock. . . .

The Yankees' Norfolk farm was not sucha bad investment last year. In addition to recapturing the Piedmont League pennant, the Tars sent up a first baseman who had a lot of money in the Yankee treasury . . . He is Buddy Hassett, who was sold to the Dodgers.

Roy Hughes, who finished the 1936 with a .295 average and the regular second base job with Cincinnati Reds, is crediting George Uhle, one of the harder-hitting pitchers, with the form material for the better at the plate. . . . A little matter of not enough bat and shoulder in the swing cured his weak-hitting after Uhle went to work on him, says Roy. . . .

Big League baseball players, who now have to make four road trips apiece instead of three, will be cheered at the news that slightly tucked sheets have been provided so that those so it'll be easier to climb into the "moving Hay". . . . Most of players have been kicking about the tight sheets for years, complaining that they couldn't sleep much use going to bed on trains as they couldn't sleep anyhow.

TORONTO, McGILL AND HARVARD IN FIRST PLACE TIE

Varsity Defeats University of Montreal 3-2 on Saturday

HARVARD UNDEFEATED

Yale Wins in Overtime Over Dartmouth in Smart Game

(By The Canadian Press)

The "Big Three" of the International Intercollegiate Hockey League—Harvard, Toronto and McGill—shared first place today and everything pointed to the home-and-home series between these clubs on the ice to decide the college championship.

On the play in the schedule's early games, Queen's have the only chance of upsetting any of the leaders. The Tri-Color are unbeaten in two games but they haven't met any of the real tough clubs.

Harvard maintained its unbroken record over the week-end, scoring a 6-2 triumph over the winless Princeton sextet. The victory also moved up alongside the Crimson and McGill of Montreal with a 2-0 victory over University of Montreal.

Yale got an overtime goal by Cy Humphrey and a 4-3 win over Dartmouth. Both games taken on the victory were enough to give the Elis second place in the United States section, Dartmouth, like Princeton, remained tailless.

Little Norm McLelland set the pace for Toronto, scoring the first and third goals, one in each of the periods, as Bean Jimmy Foxx and Frenchmen's attack clicked. In between, Toronto netted twice.

Offensives Past Pairs

Offensive play was the sign-nal for a concentrated Montreal offensive that produced goals from Jimmy Foxx, Bean Jimmy Foxx and Lisle in the middle period. The attack fooled Toronto goalie Jake Forbes of T's experience in the third and fourth periods, but Forbes' aggressive work held the Skule-men's goal safe from further harm.

Princeton, who have dropped five straight, took an early lead against Harvard when Dr. Barnicle's tally but Ned Cutler tallied twice for a 2-1 decision with the end of the first. The Tigers held for another period, though, Harvard rejected the matching Pete Cook's second period tally with one of their own.

Dartmouth, after taking an early lead, were forced to come from behind to win before the second period ended. They played a successes game but Yale's Cy Humphrey into the line, broken up by Humphrey's goal and Dartmouth's.

Costello bagged two for Dartmouth and Werner one while Dick Humphrey and Childs were the other Yale marksmen.

Fliers And Petes Hook up in Tilt at The Arena Tuesday

Those who witnessed the R.C.A.F.-Fliers action at the Belleville Arena last week left with the impression that there could be no opposition that the "Airmen" would be able to come down to Belleville for any opposition in this part of the province, while with the Petes going to come down to Belleville for this question, however, will be settled when Tuesday night the Petes and the Fliers clash for the first time at the Belleville Arena.

The Petes boast of some really speedy puckters in players like Bill Gardiner, Geddes, Les Burton, Vittarelli, Ellis, Gardner and Creighton, while the defense qualities of Williamson and Archie Weir are well known and a combination that Central Ontario area as a solid team of rear-guardsmen. There are those who contend that the speed merchants the calibre of Callinding, Vittarelli and Ellis will out-fox the "Fliers" and literally fly around the Petes' defence. The answer to the question, however, will be settled on Tuesday night when the Petes and the Petes clash for the first time at the Belleville Arena.

Skipper Eddie Thomas had his junior Pirates on ice for practice Saturday night in preparation for tonight's game at Peterborough. Noble Young, speedy forward of the Wellington and District League, worked out with the locals and showed plenty of speed and stick-handling ability, but failed to impress Manager Thomas with the other lads. What the Pirates need is a few more kids, who know what it is all about when they get on the ice side their opponent's defence and in scoring positions. Coach Thomas will be in Peterborough tonight, is sending a couple of seconds to the Arena to look over this lad Carman Wellbanks, who has been a high-scoring forward on one of the best Junior prospects in Prince Edward County. Wellbanks will be with the Picton Collegiate against Albert Street. The local lad will doubtless line-up tonight identically as they did versus the Peterboro club here a week ago. The Pirates have a much better job on cut for them on Tuesday night than they did last week, when the Cobs came to the Arena and flurting all they had to do was go through the motions.

There isn't a person who will not admit that the R.C.A.F. Fliers intermediate game last week but what would tell you the "Fliers" can surely partian it out, and also take it. Well the Peterborough intermediates were never known to back down from the tough going and they don't look for any let-up when the "Fliers" and the Petes tangle at the Arena on Tuesday night. According to reports from Peterboro the intermediate club are quite optimistic and predict certain victory. We look for a game with plenty of penalties as the Petes and the "Fliers" like to "lay on the pad" and when both sides get a tough night's work for the official to charge. Referee Ken Rowe and Ridge are the "knock 'em down and drag 'em out" type while William-son and Arch Weir, of the Petes also thrive in the rough going, so it looks like a bad time at the Arena tomorrow night.

For those who like their hockey with plenty of pep, the next-to-nothing quit style, there's a double- header of senior interscholastic hockey at the Arena again. The league champs placed Picton Collegiate meets Albert College while the C.O.T.I. and V.S. squad will try to climb out of the cellar with a victory over Trenton Collegiate. The Picton boys from the School for the Deaf. Incidentally no person really knows what material Coach Cunningham has this season, as his squad is composed of debut tonight. Last year the Mr. Bill had a flock of veteran youngsters, who should look better with that year of experience behind them. Tonight Coach Sheils, at the B.C.I., is faced with the problem of selecting from the provincial finalists from the ground.

According to Coach George Laughlin of the B.C.I. basketball teams, all interscholastic games played in the Bay of Quinte group this season will take place directly after school hours, with a double-header in both the boys' and the girls' gymnasiums. This will relieve the congestion of the news bombs, four games in the afternoon. Interscholastic boys' and girls' games are being played simultaneously. This decision only leaves the O.A.B.A. football for the cage-minded adult fans.

Inspired by the stellar work of the star player and coach, the Belleville "Y" basketball squad will tackle down the throats of the highly heralded Kingston "Y" squad on the latter's floor Saturday night, the game being 33 to 38. The Limestone City cagers are, provincial finalists last year and added Buck and Brown to their squad this season. The home squad opened fast and were leading when "Red" Gordon Johnson tossed in the first game, late in the first half, to whip the locals in the lead. From that time on the Belleville boys never headed although there was never a great deal of difference in the score, the final count being 33 to 38. Local basketball lovers will get their initial peek at the Belleville squad at the Armouries tonight on Wednesday night, when they meet the strong Queen's University squad. The Belleville squad will be at their best and will start this year and it is hoped they will continue and not will as was the case last season. Saturday night there will be no less party, local players stating Referee "Curly" Karg is a star football player for Queen's, but allows plenty of clean old rough stuff to go on the basketball floor.

The week-end of hockey in the N.H.L. proved rather drastic, inasmuch as Chicago Black Hawks were concerned, the Windy City aggregation suffering two distinct losses. On Saturday night the Toronto Leafs staged a garrison finish at Maple Leaf Gardens, to down the Hawks, while last night Detroit Red Wings trimmed the blanked them 2 to 0. The Boston Bruins journeyed to Madison Square Gardens and walked out with three goals to their credit, while the Montreal Canadiens and New York Americans, couldn't even locate the nets, as each could not cope with the sterling defence set up by the opposition. Tiny Thompson, in the Boston goal, was outstanding Frenchmen". Les Canadiens, forced humble pie down the throats of the Montreal Maroons, as they fired five goals into the Maroon's net, while the vanquished failed to register. Roger Jenkins, Canadiens' goalie, never recently traded to the Canadiens, got sweet revenge as the Americans failed to register a team-mates. Time marches on.

BELLEVILLE "Y" CAGE TEAM WINS OVER KINGSTON

Score 33-30 Victory And Lead Intermediate Loop

COLE LEADS SCORERS

Nets 12 Points And Gordon is His Chief Assistant

Playing inspired ball, the Belleville "Y" C.O.T.I. basketball squad opened the current season in the O.B.A. with a 33 to 30 victory over the strong Kingston "Y" aggregation in the Limestone City Saturday night. The locals were decidedly contested and rather rough throughout, as the Belleville team assumed the leadership early in the game and never relinquished. Last season the Kingston "Y" team won the O.A.U. and continued to the Provincial finals, which makes the Belleville victory all the greater. This win places the locals at the top of the league ladder in intermediate.

Rising to heights the Belleville "Y" squad showed plenty of class when led by their playing-coach "Red" Gordon, former Toronto Varsity star. Gordon is now physical director at Albert College. Gord was one of the leading scorers of the night with nine points, scoring three rapid baskets as he injected himself into the game after the Limestone City aggregation had taken the lead in the first few minutes of play. Gordon's counters put Belleville in the lead which they never relinquished from that point. Art Cole, dynamic Belleville centre player, led the scorers of the night with twelve points, ten of which came in the last half as Cole literally ran wild to score almost at a walk. Bert Secord and Al Wintermute were the other outstanding Belleville players, while Thompson, Bob Elliott, of baseball fame, Brown and Young were the best performers for the defeated home team.

Locals Come From Behind

Kingston took an early-game lead, which was short-lived when Gordon counted on three quick baskets, however. The Quinte boys led by a score of 12 to 14 at the half-way mark and battled the homesters right down to throughout the last period. The game developed into a rather rough struggle. It pulls before the end of the game, when could not cope with the sterling defence set up by the Belleville "Y" squad, coupled with the stellar back-checking of Gordon Johnson. The Belleville "Y" team makes its initial appearance on the home court at the Armouries on Wednesday night with they meet the strong Queens University squad, the outstanding rivals in Eastern Ontario.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Johnny Gagnon of the high-riding Montreal Canadiens gained a point on the idle leaders in the National Hockey League's scoring race by collecting a pair of goals in two assists, while Detroit's Larry Aurie and Marty Barry picked up goals to run their point totals up to 25. Gagnon was one point behind the lower quartet of the Big Seven, however, went pointless.

HORNETS WIN 2 OVER WEEKEND

Complete Reversal of Form After Losing Seven in Row

(By The Canadian Press)

Seven straight lickings in a row was evidently enough for Dennie Hughes and the Wintonbrook Hornets. They have changed the order of things and during the week-end have marked up more points than any other team in the Intermediate "A" American Hockey League. Two victories, one at the expense of their old rivals, Perth, gave them a full reward of their sport.

Night of Sunday had Hughes worried last week as he could figure no definite solution to the task of halting the skids after such an auspicious start. There would likely have been a new coach behind the camp if the team had not snapped out of the boys from the ranks of Perth to take heed.

They had Earl Robertson's fine goal-tending chiefly to thank for their reinvigorated play. Robertson, who has kicked out shots from all angles as Hornets drubbed Stars 7-0 Saturday in a game marked by a free-for-all fight and 15 penalties, Art Giroux scored the winning goal against his former teammates Sunday when Pittsburgh licked Providence 3-1.

Stars Lose and Tie

The two victories moved Hornets to within eight points of Stars, atop the Western division. The Syracuse team missed a chance of amending their Saturday defeat when they permitted Philadelphia Ramblers to hold them to a 3-3 tie in another hard-fought fumble fixture.

Ramblers had better luck in Cleveland and Springfield trimmed the lowly Falcons 6-2. Their week-end victory gave the Springfield Indians points in front of Springfield in the East group and moved them into second position in their only start, blanking Providence 4-0 before 1,200 Saturday night.

Just when it looked as though the ill-tempered Falcons still had their win column, Armand Mountain, about the tying goal for New Haven Eagles with one minute and 10 seconds play remaining Sunday night. Eagles were trailing 3-2 when Cleveland 19 points in arrears of Hornets in the West Division cellar.

ASK A. A. U. OF C. TO FORM COUNCIL

Registration of Amateurs Within Province Part of Work

Toronto, Jan. 18 (CP)—The four Ontario branches of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada will be asked to ratify a proposal to form an Ontario Amateur Athletic Council to co-ordinate activities of the branches and to control registrations of amateurs within the province. Formation of the council was suggested at a week-end meeting of branch representatives here.

The proposed council would not interfere with prerogatives of the branches, which would retain their respective territories, their registration fees and other duties.

Chairman P. J. Mulqueen said the new body would serve as the clearing house for the four provincial branches and would adjust their boundaries to avoid overlapping. It would work in conjunction with the Ontario Athletic Commission, of which he is chairman, in promoting amateur sport in Ontario.

The council would consist of two representatives from each branch, one holding a two-year appointment and the other an annual appointment. Officers would include a chairman, a secretary chosen by the council from their number, and a secretary appointed by the council.

Pending endorsation of the branches, M. M. "Bobby" Robinson of Hamilton was named acting Chairman of the new council, with A. W. Steel of the Central Ontario branch serving as acting Secretary.

Attending the meeting here were Frank Cameron of Fort William and A. W. Bell of Port Arthur, representing the Northwestern Branch; J. T. Rowan and H. Gordon Hogg of Ottawa, representing Eastern Ontario Branch; J. A. Wilson of Thorold and Robert Robinson of Hamilton, the Southwestern Ontario Branch and M. E. F. Kelley, C. E. Higginbotham and A. J. Steer, all of Toronto, the Central Branch.

Finances would be obtained from the Ontario Athletic Commission to cover office expense, remuneration of a secretary and travelling expenses of council members it was proposed.

DAILY SHORT STORY

As Synonyms Go

By E. P. O'Bryan

Miss Horwinsky was a race track fan. He worked with a partner whose name was Dorris. That's how she met the average sucker and fell for him. She had big brown eyes and was a peroxide blonde. Tall and well built, with all the curves necessary to her calling. She was the last that attracted the big club.

Max and Dorris had worked out a swell scheme. Dorris would rub in with the men and give one the glad eye. Then a drink at the bar and maybe a date later. Max would manage to barge into the restaurant and suddenly he'd spot Dorris. He'd come over to her table as if he hadn't seen her for weeks.

Dorris would introduce Max to her friend:

"Great girl—Dorris would say to his new acquaintance. "Darn, ever Dorris" protests, he'd insist on telling how she had picked winners out of the paper. "Five straight she gave me," he'd vouch safe.

Before the stranger could ask any questions, Max would hurry away, saying that he'd like to see Dorris some day before the race. The next day before the race. The gentleman would want to know what it was all about, and Dorris would pretend it wasn't anything much. Just a little system—a sort of a synonym she'd worked out for fun.

"Oh, I couldn't do that," she'd say when her latest pick-up would want an explanation. "I get it with all the papers—sort of a combination of letters. It never spells out the name of the horse, but it always is a synonym for the word that tells what horse is going to win. It really does . . . you'll see."

Twice in a row on the day I am telling you about, Max placed a five-spot on horses that the synonym picked, and they won. The fellow, who put up the dough was named Ogelby. He was a school teacher from Iowa.

Mr. Ogelby was hot after that. He cashed a couple of century notes and said he'd like to bet it all on the next race, but he'd let it ride on the system.

"All right," May says, "Dorris here says today's synonym is 'spice.' How she got that is from the first letter of the names of the jockeys. Now there's Sam, Pete, Tick, Chet, and Elmer. Look at the first letter of each name. What does it spell? S-p-i-c-e, eh?"

Mr. Ogelby looked puzzled. "But how do you arrive at any system from today and see what happens."

But Mr. Ogelby was a little hesitant. He finally peeled off a sawbuck and gave it to Max. "I'll take a chance on this thing once," he said.

Max limped in eighth.

Dorris disappeared for a few hours. Finally he phoned Dorris, but she had checked out of the hotel.

"You're not by any chance Mr. Horwinsky, are you?" the clerk inquired politely.

"Yeah, that's me."

"We have a message here for you, sir."

It proved to be a note from Dorris. It read:

"Dear Max: Mr. Ogelby and I are going to be married this afternoon. I wish you all the luck in the world, only that system you figured out for making a synonym, I even fell for it myself and bet the bank roll. Hope you make the same way. Dorris."

Three months went by. Max received a letter one day with a check in it for two hundred dollars. The letter read:

"Dear Mr. Horwinsky: I've always felt that I owed you an apology for taking Dorris, who is now Mrs. Ogelby. And I owe you more than that. Check is enclosed to cover it.

"I was not satisfied the day you gave me the tip on Aromatic. Being a school teacher, I did not think the word quite suitable for a horse, so I looked around for a better one and found it. Perhaps it did not occur to you that Balmy Day was running in the next race. I put up two hundred on him and he paid twenty to one. What spice had to do with a balmy day, I haven't the least conception, except that at the time I remembered that the air on balmy days of early summer is often spice-like. Anyway, I figured she was as good as the other. Dorris sends her regards.

"Very truly yours,

"Horace Ogelby."

CORONATION PLAN MOVES RAPIDLY

Westminster Abbey Closed For Erection of Special Galleries

London, Jan. 16—(CP-Havas)—With the official schedule of coronation events approved by King George VI and made public, this capital and the entire empire today speeded up preparations for the festivities.

The Duke of Norfolk, hereditary Earl Marshal who is in charge of the ceremonies, announced last night the schedule of events, which will be prolonged for 11 weeks, from May 5 to July 22.

Already it is impossible to walk for more than a few minutes in the west end of London without coming upon evidences of the immense preparations underway.

Abbey is Closed

Westminster Abbey, where the actual coronation will take place, has been closed to the public for some time. Hundreds of workmen are busily preparing the interior. Special galleries are being erected and the Abbey's delicate accoustics altogether room will be found in the Abbey for 8,000.

Reckoning for the stands along the route of the royal procession also is in appearance. The route will lead from Buckingham Palace, along the Mall, under Admiralty Arch, through Trafalgar Square, and Whitehall to the Abbey. The return will be by the east bridge to Victoria, Piccadilly, Regent Street, Oxford Circus, Marble Arch, Hyde Park, Hyde Park Corner and Constitution Hill back to the palace.

200,000 Extra Hotel Beds

A member of the Coronation Committee organized by the Hotel Owners' Association of Great Britain said they are already pressed to find accommodation despite plans to provide 200,000 extra beds.

From the armed forces scattered through the empire, 50,000 officers and men will come to London for the ceremonies. These will be lodged in special camps to be set up in Regent Park, Kensington Gardens, Hampton Court and Primrose Hill.

Unified Decorations

The streets and private buildings will be decorated . . . in accordance with a unified scheme worked out between the Corporation of London and the Council of Westminster. The basic colors in all decorations will be blue, white and gold, the colors of Westminster, Oxford Street, however, will be decorated with green.

Thrills the coronation of King George V in 1911, the night festivities this year will have the advantage of modern lighting which will be made to harmonize with the decorative effects.

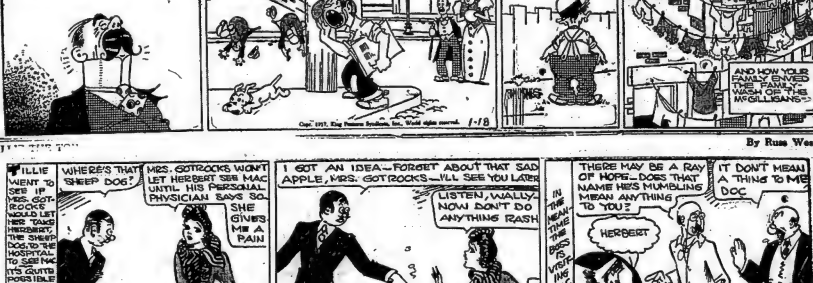
PREMIER'S BARN ON FARM BURNS

St. Thomas Fire Brigade Assists in Confining Blaze

St. Thomas, Ont., Jan. 16—(CP)—Malahm, that pig barns on the farm of Premier Hepburn in South Yarmouth were on fire sent Fire Chief Mitchell and several members of the local fire department with a fire truck and a number of police officers in a hurry over the four miles from the city to the farm early today.

The blaze, it was found, was in the large octagonal shaped building erected by the Premier's grandfather, the first Mitchell Hepburn, as a modern pig pen.

It was attacked to the south of the main barns and straw stacks and aided by a northwest wind the Hepburn employees and the city firemen succeeded in preventing the spread of the flames.



The building, however, was destroyed together with its contents including a large farm tractor, an assortment of plows, tools, farm implements and number of metal drums of gasoline and oil.

Chemicals were used by Chief Mitchell to prevent the spread of the flaming oil. The Premier's new residence, recently installed heat, was used to keep the barns dampened. Origin of the fire is unknown.

Mr. and Mrs. John Douglas Mark 45 Yrs. of Wedded Life

Fuller, Jan. 18—On January 12th forty-five years ago, John, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Douglas, Huntington Township, and Rose Anna, daughter of Thos. Carrol, and the late Mrs. Carrol of Huntington Township, were united in holy bonds of matrimony.

On Tuesday evening friends and neighbors gathered at the home of their daughter Mrs. David Thompson, and the children and grandchildren surprised them with a chair also, by the way, a very lovely studio couch, and aluminum ontware from Mr. and Mrs. Frank Meyers and Mr. and Mrs. Will Douglas, Sulphide.

Dear Mother and Father,

We, your children and grandchildren have come here this evening to celebrate an occasion that few of us reach . . . married life knowing that at any time we are welcome but tonight we come in memory of your forty-fifth anniversary. The years have flown so very swiftly until forty-five have passed. God has been good to spare you both so well in health and we hope that you will have many more happy and prosperous years.

These gifts we bring to you dad and mother as tokens of our love. Long may you live and health enjoy, for many years to come.

Signed on behalf of your children and grandchildren.

Though taken by surprise Mr. and Mrs. Douglas thanked them all and wished them a long and happy married life.

Those from a distance who were present, Mrs. Wm. McAllister, Anna and Douglas, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Burton Calvert, Irene and Dave, Mount Pleasant; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sharp, Douglas, Aubrey and Dennis Marie of Hensall; Mr. and Mrs. Sharp and Jack, Mount Pleasant; Mr. and Mrs. Will Douglas, Fuller, and Mrs. Frank Meyers and children of Sulphide, and Mrs. Reta Douglas.

"WINGS OF LOVE"

(The Love Story of a Sky Pilot and Girl Who Planned on a Fifty-Fifty Financial System that Almost Wrecked Their Happiness)

By Janet Doran

"Only . . . you want to be alone to figure things out. Figure what, Susie?" he demanded bluntly.

Susanne wriggled from his embraces, and began putting food into the refrigerator in practical, deft movements.

"How to make enough to keep up with my ambitious husband," she explained lightly.

Sky's deep, weary sigh of satisfaction brought a faint, tiny smile to Susanne's lips,as she bent to the refrigerator task. And not once again, did either approach the subject, during the evening.

At 8.30 Sky went to bed. Susanne followed, after straightening the apartment against their hasty, early morning departure. "It was long past midnight, however, before Sky finally slept. And his last thought, after many hours of trying to solve the riddle nagging him, was a disgusted, "Susie, you're a darling and a daffodil!" and a lascivious sweet, husky murmur crept through his mind for the hundredth time: "what of it." Wade had demanded in a cocky, boyish, gamin sort of defiance: "what if you are married, Captain Nichols? Your plane isn't a 'fit' And your job? Your profession? I thought all wild birds were untamed; unchanged!"

"I . . . I'm devoted to my wife," Sky had reminded her grimly, unable to quite be blasé, "in love with my wife" that had leaped through his mind, when he first became sure of her meaning.

"And I," Wade had reminded him swiftly, "am devoted to flying! I'm determined to own a pilot's license, so you might as well quit trying to get out of the job of instructing me! I can pay . . . well for the job!"

"Balmy," Sky grumbled savagely, punching his pillow into an even less comfortable bunch under one ear, "nuts as a squirrel . . . and money to burn! There ought to be a law!"

He slept, finally, his mouth parted slightly in a soft smile and the ghost of boyish, delighted laughter still crowding through the typical intelligent condemnation of his first ofiicially goofy action. His youth was still unwilling to bow before the restraint of his cool, sure reasoning.

In the morning, he walked swiftly forward his waiting plane, buckling his leather jacket hastily, unaware that he was flying a passenger to Cleveland. A small, dark-haired, hurtled, gamin person who was quite nutty, quite balmy, according to an astrologer.

Not until he roared over Pittsburgh, did he become aware of his passenger. Wade had failed him. He almost went into a tailspin, so totally unfounded did the accusation leave him.

"You!" he shouted, "how did you get here?"

"I bought a ticket," Wade explained sweetly, "paid my fare. Aren't you glad?"

Sky was startled into absolute silence.

CHAPTER 11

CLIPPED WINGS

The smoke screen blurring Pittsburgh to indistinct lines faded in the distance behind Sky. Curiosity broke the subjuntic silence.

"Why," he demanded thickly, gruffly, "why did you do this, Miss Shomecaher? A girl in your position to think like this, is a mark for gossip, always!"

"A girl in my position," she mimicked mischievously, yet with a deep, underlying note of serious-ness to every word, "has had it all said, a hundred times over, long before she is anywhere near me, Captain Nichols! Anything they could possibly say of me, I wouldn't be a patch on what has already been said! Besides, I was to fly, and I'm flying! Forget it! What I want!"

Sky was aghast. Her words, lightly spoken, ringing with sincerity, bore at some inner sensibility, wrenched him out of a security of belief he had accepted without question, ever since he could remember.

"You mean . . . don't you care what people say of you, Miss Shomecaher?" he gasped.

Her brief, straight little nose crinkled with sudden laughter.

"Silly! Of course I do. Only so much has been said that's ruinous . . . because I was an heiress, a society girl, that anything else couldn't possibly hurt, could it? Your real friends, don't lie about you; your enemies jealous and otherwise, do not count!"

"I . . . I'm not a captain," Sky offered, repetitive for the fifth time, a correction he felt duty-bound to set her right upon, "I'm merely a mail pilot, and part-time instructor."

"But I like the sound of the word. It's beautiful!" Wade insisted, "Captain Nichols . . . Captain Schuyler Nichols. May I call you Sky, please?"

Sky moved sharply, galvanized into violent protest against the danger pressing in against him, suffocating him with its cloying, paralized force.

"You've seen too many movies, Miss Shomecaher," he said gruffly, "read too many romantic novels! They're a sedative to common sense."

"Now that I've been properly rebuked, slapped down to my proper size and position, may I please?" Call you Sky, I mean?"

Sky bit back a distinctly relieving explosive expletive, and kept his blue gaze fixed firmly on the distant horizon ahead. The thunder of the big propellers was like rhythmic surf beating against their ears; the drone of the exhaust, a faint obligato to a sound that had always been sweet music to his ears, up to now.

"How you're mad," Wade complained softly, in a blurred, husky little murmur, "madder than hornets. I'm sorry, Sky, I didn't mean to be annoying."

Swiftly, his grin flashed through the grim set expression on his face, and his eyes left the distant horizon in insouciance of her charm.

"You're crazy" he said briefly, firmly, "absolutely nuts."

"But you like nutty people, Sky . . . sometimes!" she persisted.

"I like to keep out of jail," he warned her, not without grim humor, "and court."

"Is that why you're always so scared she flashed back, "I mean is that the reason why you're not very happy?"

His three her a startled, guilty glance of surprise, and kept his eyes on the instrument board and vision window.

"Who said I wasn't happy?" he wanted to know, "I've everything he,like world to make me happy. Deliriously happy," he added truculently.

"Well," Wade observed practically, "you certainly don't look it. Every time I've seen you, you looked as if you'd just been to the dentist, and had 17 further engagements with him." She finished, "Not that I've ever been so darned happy myself I could turn on the gas because there was no new joy to turn up."

Sky recoiled, inwardly, from the chilling sense of impending danger, before his new problem of the situation.

Well, that's why they nicknamed me Dutch. It's because I look so sour all the time. Maybe they dropped me when I was little. Anyhow, I am happy, and contented, quite satisfied with my lot, and don't talk about the Balkans for a change. I never did bear up much under a lot of feminine chatter."

"Liar," she whispered softly, "go to and tell Susanne that you're like Watson on the job, when you come to, and you'll get by with it."

"I dislike you," Sky told her coldly, "you're practically a brat."

"Then why don't you order the controls please, Sky?"

They joked, with impersonal subjects, chiefly flying, navigation in fogs, sleet, storm; how to bring a maimed ship down. What to do when the instruments go haywire, during electrical storms. And on through the fascinating, and endless topics of air travail.

Sky finally brought the ship down at the Cleveland field, eight minutes ahead of schedule, and hiked for a bus and his usual hotel room. His one thought was to escape the terrifying nemesis he had fled from subconsciously, ever since the day Madden called him into his main office, and turned him over to Wade Shomecaher, as chief instructor.

"Holy tailspins," he muttered softly, under his breath, banging to a stop in the crowded bus, as it slowed slowly, ponderously across town to the moderately-priced hotel he stopped at, during his stay over the run, "that girl should be a reporter. A newspaper reporter. Or else a Canadian Northwest Mounted Officer!"

His blue gaze roved the car-cards; fastened on an ad announcing a heavyweight battle scheduled for that night, and he shed his feminine gaze like a bad habit. He'd go to the movies. The fight would be fast and furious. Walker always put on a good show. And tomorrow was a long way off. All of seven hours, after the fight finished. Perhaps, he mused, he could drive to the good set of brakes to equip Miss Wade Shomecaher with.

He took a bath, ate a leisurely, simple dinner, and read the daily paper. At eight, he picked up his leather coat and hat, and started for the fight. In the hotel lobby, he ran into a pilot he had known two years back, and they bridged the months with eager talk of what had happened to each other in the interim.

"I'm cruising a big private hack," Bing Baker explained, "boy, is she a sweetheart. You should get a load of her, Dutch. Cowgirl of California Shomecaher collected the idea there was dough in running a private hack across country, and the result is me, and this Lockheed Vega I'm laughed up with, Swell racket."

"Yeah," Sky agreed absently, thinking that here at last, quite by accident, lay the answer to his quick-money problem, "it must be. Take a lot of jack to get going, though. You don't buy a crate like that on the cuff, any more."

"No," Baker agreed, "but if isn't the financial purels it seems. Come to the fight with me, and we'll talk it over. I've two tickets my boss gave me, for the ring-over. I'm carting some movie bigshots to the old home town for a bust."

Baker hailed a cab, and Sky explained that he had been heading for the fight when they met. Sky missed half the preliminaries in his excited discussion of ways and means for acquiring a private crate. The dream exploded, in full bloom, in his imagination, and he soared to the heights, visualizing his swift rise to fortune.

Walker was halfway through the third round, when Sky became aware of the person standing next to him in the excited throng of spectators, crowding the ring, ignoring the good seats they had paid well for in their excitement.

"Hullo," Wade grinned up at him in gamin defiance, and Bing Baker looked immediately indifferent.

"Introduce me to your girlfriend, Sky," he demanded, "quit holding out on an old pal. Remember that time I pulled you out for stunting under the bridge, with only a private op's license?"

"Miss Shomecaher . . . Wade Shomecaher," Sky said grimly, "Mr. Baker, Bingham Baker, of Redlands, California." He flung a scornful, furious glance at the totally unruffled girl, and added, "now I hope you're satisfied!"

"I'm not," she protested, "not in the least. I'm hungry—starved. And I'll bet Mr. Baker would buy me a hamburger sandwich, if you'd come along to keep him out of jail!"

Sky glared. "I'm going home—to my hotel," he snapped, "and you can go . . . anywhere you please, for all I care!"

"I've fight isn't half over. Walker always rocks them to sleep, and he takes eight or ten rounds to do it in. Why waste a perfectly good fight just for spite?" Wade's voice drifted away to plaintive silence, and Sky sat down again, angrily aware of Bing's amused and highly appreciative regard.

"Lived here long?" he heard Bing ask Wade, and her throaty, husky little murmur began setting him right on various dats.

"Oh no, not at all. I live in New York. I flew out . . . on business, and I'm going back with the ship when it leaves tomorrow." Sky ground his teeth, hating her futilely for the implied commonness. The next words added, "Sky is teaching me to fly in his spare time, you see."

"I . . . see!" Bing said soberly, apparently unaware of Sky's squirming discomfort, his passionate desire to hurt denial, and explanation upon explanation on the scene to clear things up. Why should Bing know he was married! Bing knew all about Suzanne!

The fight ended in sudden unexpected knockout, and they crowded slowly out of the fight arena. In the street, Bing took Sky's arm and led the way to a taxi, propelling Wade ahead of him firmly.

"I know a place," he promised, "where I can cadge up with the slickest steak and French Prieds on the continent . . . and I defy you to say you wouldn't like one right now, Dutch Nichols."

Sky knew he should protest; should get out at once, and explain, positively, why he couldn't go with them, for the late supper. Then he thought of the chill, drab hotel room, the lonely hours he knew he could finally sleep, the confusion in his mind, whenever he thought of Susanne, and the strange restraint that had grown up between them, of late, warned him of worse alternatives than listening to Wade Shomecaher's prattle. Besides, Bing was along as a substantial escort. Bing was a bachelor, and he shocks, and that should satisfy Madame Grundy.

"Snap out of it, Dutch," Bing kept urging him, as the night wore on, and Wade wore her slightly thin dancing, between attacks on the tender morsels. "you haven't said a whole sentence since we came. And you haven't asked Wade to dance. Is this a grudge meeting, or what?"

Sky lunged to his feet, without replying.

"Will you dance with me, Miss Shomecaher?" he asked formally.

She slipped into his arms, and he held her in rigid, stiff annoyance until they had circled the dance floor once.

"I don't blame you, Sky," she whispered contritely, her lovely, soft voice full of penitence. "It was beastly of me. I'm sorry. So horribly sorry. Forgive me?"

Sky felt his muscles relaxing; felt the iron resentment melting like sleet in a warm sun as he stared down into her wide eyes lifted faithfully to his.

"Forget it," he said gruffly, annoyed and confused by the sudden tightness in his throat, "I guess I was a bear . . . with a sore head."

"I guess you've been pretty special to me," Wade sighed softly, "and I wouldn't want you to think I'd deserved anything other than a swift kick . . . only I was so damned lonely. . . And nobody has ever looked behind the dollar sign in front of my name, ever since I was kneehigh to a puddle-duck."

"Well," Sky found himself saying vigorously, "it's too bad you can't lose all your money for a while, Miss Shomecaher, so you can see how it feels to know a few people who aren't dollar-conscious!"

"Meaning—you, Sky?" she challenged him softly, deliberately.

Sky almost lost step in his amazement.

"I suppose so," he confessed slowly, soberly, I hadn't thought of it in just that way, though, I meant to."

Wade laughed softly. "You meant to show me, Sky! I love being shown!"

The orchestra stopped playing, and Sky led her back to the table, further confounded by the dismay-

Throne Speech Adopted After Single Day's Debate

PREMIER EXPLAINS

Bennett Approves Action Taken by Premier in Abdication Crisis

Ottawa, Jan. 19 (CP)—After a record-breaking debate, extending the House of Commons, meanwhile today for its second routine sitting with the session already more advanced than after two weeks of a normal session.

Yesterday the House adopted the address in reply to the speech from the throne after a single day's debate and received the main estimates, prepared for the customary business during the coming year, particularly on military, naval and air services.

The throne speech debate brought from Prime Minister Mackenzie King his promised statement on the events leading to the abdication of King Edward VIII and from Conservative under Bennett, full-hearted approval of the course taken by the government in the crisis created.

Mr. Mackenzie King disclosed he had informed Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin of the United Kingdom the Canadian people would not approve of the King's proposed marriage to Mrs. Ernest Simpson whether or not she obtained a decree nisi to end a second husband.

On this question his own views coincided with those of Mr. Bennett.

Later, he said, the Canadian cabinet had given the King its full and clear advice to His Majesty direct. Through the Governor General a message had been sent to the king stating his duty to the people of the empire should outweigh any personal inclination, however great the sacrifice might be.

He denied reports Canada had pressed for a decision on the part of the King.

Bennett In Agreement

The debate found Mr. Mackenzie King and Mr. Bennett both arguing the government had acted properly in dealing with the abdication by order-in-council without summoning parliament, despite earlier criticism of this course from A. E. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader. Mr. Mackenzie King said the cabinet had been guided by considerations of time and space as well as common sense and had acted in accordance with the Statute of Westminster.

The main estimates for the fiscal year 1937-38, laid at the end of the sitting, provide for total expenditures of $465,565,000, an increase of $16,691,280 over the amount voted last year.

National defence, including military and naval services, comes in for $35,322,000, an increase of $6,553,000 over last year, and aviation including the Royal Canadian Air Force for $11,732,650, an increase of $6,352,000.

Other increased appropriations are for Administration of Justice, Pensions, External Affairs, Immigration and Colonization, Public Works and Post Office.

Decreased votes are sought for debt charges, penitentiaries, transport, external affairs and trade and commerce.

Mr. Bennett charged the government with "reckless" action. Wheat Board Act by refusing to purchase wheat at the fixed minimum prices unless the market price should fall below 90 cents. He claimed this had deprived farmers of $15,000,000 profit by the rising market. A similar view was taken by M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F., Rosetown-Biggar).

The government wheat policy, he said, had been sound, said Mr. King. It had been a selling policy as contrasted with the holding policy of the former government. The government would act on the size of its law officers in the course it has taken.

Uniformed Guards Given Rifles to Quell Further Outbreaks

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 19 (CP)—Restoration of the Ontario Guelph reformatory was well under way today as tension among officials eased under the knowledge only four prisoners of those who escaped Sunday night were still at large.

The administration of the reformatory received a report late yesterday arriving at the end of a thorough check-up to learn that no large-scale roundup is still necessary to straighten out their records. Instead of a large number believed at large, cold figures show that only four are on the list.

Further heightening of the riot picture followed a detailed examination of the damage done by the hundreds of riotous incendiary prisoners on their eight-hour rampage Sunday. Deputy Provincial Secretary (J. P. Keelaghan stated with se-

Deepest Joy in Friendship And Love, Says Sir William

Distinguished Jurist, 93 Today, Tells of Real Values in Life

'PRECIOUS WEALTH'

Toronto, Jan. 19 (CP)—Cheerful, lively-mind birthday, Sir William Mulock, distinguished jurist, educationist and lawmaker, was invited to the 93rd year of his career by the people of Ontario.

Sir William, former Chief Justice of Ontario and vice-Chancellor of the University of Toronto, said in part:

"In availing myself of this kindness, I refer first, with simplicity and complete sincerity, to voice my deep appreciation of the now continued solicitude, the repeated good wishes, of a large number of my friends and acquaintances.

Atmosphere of Kindness

"The atmosphere which surrounds me seems, indeed, to be one of constant and unwearied kindness; and this affords me a keynote for the message so kindly requested. And it leads me on to say this: that in my long and happy, and I hope useful, earlier decades of life, I have learned this fundamental fact—that those spoils of the heart, those trophies of the soul, constitute both life's true success and the heart's real and enduring satisfaction.

"I am sure that it will not be misunderstood if I put emphasis on the words I underline. Many people have known, in my long three and quarter years of life, not less of what the world calls distinction, or honors, or success in various undertakings, than I have been brought—not less, too of what are called the pleasures and the pleasures of life—than has the average man.

Confidence and Love

"And, assuming this to be conceded, I wish to observe that the deepest joy in life I have found in the balance (to say really discriminating between the two) is that of friendship and the inward gladness that springs from the full confidence of the public mind, the respect of the community that knows you best, the fellowship of the friends you value, the abiding affection of that inner circle of the friends you love.

"To have reason to believe that that precious wealth is mine, for unworthy sower of it I may feel myself to be, is the source of my deepest joy and profoundest gratitude on this my 93rd birthday morn."

Tomorrow is Anniversary Of King George V's Death

By THOMAS T. CRAMPTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 19—(CP Cable)—Tomorrow is the first anniversary of the death of King George V, but no special memorial services either for royalty or the people generally are planned.

The scheme to provide children's playing field as part of the memorial to the late monarch appears to be going well. Bankers of bank accounts have been asked to instruct their banks to transfer the odd shillings and pence standing to their credit tomorrow to the credit of the memorial fund.

It is argued that this odd money, ranging from one penny to 19 shillings, 11 pence will not be missed and will help aggregate £500,000 ($2,500,000).

The Archbishop of York, broadcasting an appeal for the fund last night, quoted the following letter: "Will you please accept the two shillings I am sending in memory of my little girl Joan, killed in a street accident, my husband and I are only poor people, but would like the money put to playing fields. It was because Joan had to play in the streets that we lost her. I know there must be others, but there must be no children in the streets as well and all the time they are in danger."

STORMS, COLD SWEEP EUROPE

Germany And Poland Suffer in Hurricane Disturbance

London, Jan. 19 (CP-Havas)—Storms and freezing weather swept over all Europe today, impeding navigation and causing vast damage.

Over Germany and Poland the storm centred nearly hurricane force velocities, driving ships in the North and Baltic Seas to seek protection and other ports. Intense cold caused a complete stoppage of traffic on the Rhine Canal.

At Saarnitz, East Prussia, trees were torn up by the wind's violence. Railway and ferry traffic was slowed down by heavy snow. Trains from Hamburg to Berlin yesterday reached Berlin more than an hour behind schedule.

Sub-zero weather was reported from all parts of Europe. The Vistula River was full of huge ice blocks, and ice-breakers changed channels to keep the shipping Bay.

Reports from Oslo said the Norwegian ship Tryn was in grave danger off the coast of Norway, with fifteen members of the crew desperately manning the pumps and the Norwegian ship Verna standing by.

GREAT TEST SEEN FOR FASCIST RED

Air Minister Goering Tells Club at Rome of Two Camps

Rome, Jan. 19 (AP)—Air Minister Hermann Goering was reported today to have predicted "a great test" to establish whether politicians or Communism shall prevail in Europe, with the Italian Fascists who ran up an extension ladder. all mail was saved. Fire in the building shortly after the fire was discovered last night.

"a new order" and "the same enemies."

Goering, Chancellor Hitler's first minister who has been conferring with Premier Benito Mussolini on German co-operation, made the remark. It was disclosed before the Roman Club of Rome.

An informant who attended the private luncheon at which Goering delivered portions of the Nazi chieftain's remarks from a stenographic copy.

The German embassy was understood to have warned German newspapermen then were urge present day not to mention parts of the address referring to "the great test." It was not published in Italian newspapers.

"Division of mankind into two camps," Goering was reported to have said, "is evermore clear-cut. The struggle between enlightenment and good faith, and a state of confusion and darkness, between Communism and the Fascist

P. T.' is Compulsory For French Children

Paris, Jan. 19 (CP) — France plans a sound body as well as a sound mind.

A government bill was introduced in the Chamber of Deputies today, making the teaching of physical education in the French public schools compulsory.

For children between the ages of six and fourteen, physical instruction is placed on an equal footing in the compulsory school curriculum with history, geography, mathematics and the French language. Special classes will be held in the open air or in covered rooms if the weather does not permit open air classes.

For those between 14 and 19 years physical instruction is equally compulsory in all preparatory schools, or at sport clubs if the boy or girl has already left school.

RESTORATION OF PAY CUTS ASKED

Welfare Minister Makes Statement on Pay Cuts

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 19 (CP)—Hon. David Croll, Minister of Municipal Affairs, Welfare and Labour, today he was encouraging restoration of pay cuts in municipally supervised municipalities.

Mr. Croll said cuts were restored especially by governmental bodies which set the pace for private employers. He said Mr. Croll "I would like to see all municipalities follow the provincial lead. Restoration may rule in full."

Cuts in municipalities whose expenditures are controlled by the Department of Municipal Affairs, Mr. Croll said, Mr. Croll, he encourages councils to restore cuts, provided they can be made in 1937 budgets, supervisors have been told, for restoration to be made part of pay cuts, especially to teachers, firemen, policemen and works department employees.

R.C.A.F. ESTIMATE IS MUCH HIGHER

$11,391,650 Estimated For 1937 as Against $4,685,-028 in 1936

Ottawa, Jan. 19 (CP)—National defence estimates have soared this year. Expenditures for the air force will need altogether $33,790,-650 for the 1936-37 fiscal year. Relief camps have been dropped, and civil aviation is now a branch of the Department of Transport, so that they do not now appear in the defence estimates.

For national defence the vote is $22,399,000 as compared with $14,-677,411 this year, while for the Royal Canadian Air Force the vote is $11,-391,650, as compared with $4,685,028. This does not include civil aviation which is now under the Department of Transport.

The Royal Canadian Air Force will consume $11,391,650, which is considerably more than twice the sum expended last year when the

MOVIE PRODUCER SETS NEW RECORD IN LONG FLIGHT

Crosses Continent in 7 Hours, 31 Minutes, Cutting Two Hours

332 M. P. H.

Circle Field in Outburst of Exuberance in Breaking Mark

Newark, N.J., Jan. 19 (AP)—During the night Howard Hughes streaked across the continent in 7 hours 31 minutes and 10 seconds, a new transcontinental speed mark.

Hughes took off from Union Air Terminal, Los Angeles at 2:14 a.m. (5:14 a.m. E.S.T.) today and roared down across Newark Municipal Airport, 2,460 miles away, at 12:43:27 p.m. making his official time 7 hours 29 minutes 27 seconds.

Breaks Old Mark

The new record breaks his old mark of 9 hours, 25 minutes, 10 seconds, set last July 7.

He roared zayp into the mists east of the field after being sure he was identified but came back in a few minutes and circled the field at terrific speed, apparently in an outburst of exuberance at setting the new mark. At his first skip down to earth at 1:11 p.m.

ALLEGED SLAYER OF FAMILY DIES

Stephen Delorie Believed Responsible For Razor-Slashing Episode

Fort St. John, B.C., Jan. 19 (CP) —Stephen Delorie, 45, found in custody here last night, fourth victim of a razor-slashing episode which wiped out his family—a 30 year old wife; Eugene, six year old son, and Stella, two year old daughter.

Full investigation into the tragedy was ordered today by Commissioner J. H. McMullin of the British Columbia police.

Fort St. John is about 260 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Mrs. Delorie and the children were found dead yesterday in the Delorie homestead, ten miles from here near Taylor, B.C. The bodies were lying on a bed. Each had their throats had been slashed with a razor.

It was believed, police said, Delorie slashed his own throat after killing his wife and two children with a straight razor. Neighbors reported Delorie had been drinking heavily Sunday and for some time prior to the killings, police said.

An inquest will be held tomorrow.

SIR L. HARMSWORTH DIES AT AGE OF 67

London, Jan. 19 (AP)—Sir Leicester Harmsworth, son of Lord Rothermere, British newspaper publisher, died today. He was 67 years old.

Sir Leicester was also a brother of the late Lord Northcliffe, newspaper owner. He was an attorney and held an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.

He sat in the House of Commons as a Liberal-Unionist. The title was created a baronet in 1918 and is inherited by his son, Alfred Harmsworth, who was born in 1893.

'Will of the Legislature Shall Not be Thwarted' Throne Speech Declares

Tribute is Paid to Memory of Late James F. Hill of East Hastings

ECONOMIC BETTERMENT

New Peaks of Mining Development And Output Marked

Toronto, Jan. 19 (CP)—The Ontario government "determined the will of the legislature shall not be thwarted," will introduce legislation to make effective a 1935 bill under which power contracts with four Quebec companies were cancelled, it was stated in the speech from the throne today at the opening of the nineteenth legislature's third session.

"The government is convinced of the justice of this measure and is determined the will of the legislature shall not be thwarted and the benefits lost to the power users of this province," said the speech. "Accordingly, legislation will be introduced with a view to making effective the purpose of the legislation already expressed."

Under the Power Commission Act, 1935, the government cancelled contracts between the Quebec companies and the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission. Suits filed by two of the companies against the Commission have been carried successfully through the courts. Premier Hepburn, absent from today's opening, announced several weeks ago the legislation would be altered to make it "unchallengable".

Highway Construction.

Other major legislation forecast in the speech included changes in the Succession Duties Act to exempt from duties contributions to charitable, religious and educational institutions when rates of duty are fixed.

A comprehensive program of highway construction and reconstruction is being prepared for 1937, it said. Highways in eastern, central and western Ontario will be "modernized" and in the north the government plans to meet the growing needs of settlers' roads and paved highways.

Legislation will co-operate with the Dominion government in construction of roads leading to mining regions which have been virtually inaccessible, the speech added.

Tribute was paid to the memory of the late James F. Hill of East Hastings who died since the last session.

Legislation

Legislation will be introduced to make effective the purpose of the Power Commission Act, 1935, under which contracts with four Quebec power companies were cancelled. The cancellations led to court actions against the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission.

A highway program for "modernizing" roads in heavily-populated areas and building and improving roads in the northern mining country will be carried out this year.

Arrangements have been made to determine the will of the Legislature and Dominion Agricultural Departments.

Legislation will make "appropriate arrangements" for celebration of the Coronation of King George VI in May, Premier Hepburn will represent the province at the coronation in London.

Changes will be made in the Succession Duties Act exempting contributions to charitable, religious and educational institutions when rates of duty are fixed.

Queen Wilhelmina's Life Saved by Motorcycle Patrol

Queen's Car in Austrian Alps Skids Almost to Precipice

WEIGHT AGAINST CAR

Innsbruck, Austria, Jan. 19 (AP)—A motorcycle policeman's quick action was credited with saving Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands today from a plunge down a 650-foot Alpine precipice.

The heavy automobile in which the queen was riding with a lady of her court skidded on the old Roman road at Mai Rei, south of Innsbruck. The wheel of the motorcycle cop in the driveway at a point where there was a sheer drop of 650 feet to the frozen river below.

The automobile was travelling as slowly as possible because of the icy-covered road and Policeman Reinhalter, who was riding ahead, ran following closely on his motorcycle, threw his weight against the slipping car until help arrived.

The queen, after expressing her gratitude, returned to Innsbruck by road.

MIGHTY OHIO RIVER AT FULL FLOOD STAGE

Chicago, Jan. 19 (AP) — The mighty Ohio River surged at flood stage along its entire 981 mile course today and other overburdened streams of the United States Midwest felt the effects of heavy rains, destruction of life and property in at least eight states.

From Pennsylvania to Arkansas workers battled flood waters crested by rains. Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia, Illinois and Missouri were other states menaced by swollen streams.

Thousands of persons fled from their homes when tainted waters engulfed lowlands in the Ohio valley, Southern Illinois and Arkansas.

Six deaths were attributed to the floods, two in Kentucky and two Indiana, one in Missouri and one in Kentucky.

WINS FOR THIRD TIME IN FIVE YEARS

For the third time in five years Hastings and Prince Edward Registered, under the command of Lt.-Col. K. M. Greer, has been awarded first place for rural units in the General Motors Competition of the Canadian Infantry Association for Military District No. 3, it was announced today.

Prosecution Ordered For Marker Defaulters

Prosecution of motorists who have not yet obtained their 1937 motor car licenses was ordered generally today by municipal authorities working in co-operation with provincial officials.

Several cars with old licenses were reported on streets at Kingston where there was an "unprecedented rush" yesterday and today for new plates. Chief of Police K. J. Robinson said he had issued orders to the members of the police force to take the numbers of all cars with old licenses number tags and that all offenders will be immediately summoned.

PAUL HARRIS DAY AT ROTARY

Paul Harris Day at Belleville Rotary Club, Monday, at the weekly gathering in the Hotel Quinte was a very lively affair, being mainly devoted to good fellowship and getting better acquainted, with each other. President Joe Shortt occupied the chair and the enlarged number of members of the club, Sandy Burrows and Loo Riggs handled the music in a masterful style, and vocal solos by Past President Will Hillman, grew of "Mavis and E. V. Illery, added charm and pleasure to the program. Plenty of laughs were generated by Jamieson Bone, Charlie Dolan, Bill Somerville, Ralph Richardson and other fun-makers of the club, while Bob Ferguson as clothes sketch in white-face based on happenings in Belleville during the past year or two ago, Notarian M. Fetterly was appointed to represent the club on Rotary Field at the Bathing Beach Committee, and Roberta Meadows of Picton was appointed as Rotary representative on the local council of the Canadian Dental Hygiene Council.

USES SKIS ON THIN ICE TO GET WOOD

The old adage, "Necessity is the Mother of Invention" had literal application in this city this morning as the part of a local unemployed resident who through a stroke of genius managed to obtain a month's supply of wood carried down to the mouth of the Moira River by recent floods.

The ice though too firm for passage by boat, is by no means safe a condition to chance on foot. Equipping himself with cravine, homemade skis, the resident managed to negotiate his way to the wood, and with the aid of a long pike pole, haul it to safety.

Major B. C. Donnan, in Line For Command

Lieut.-Col. E. A. Adams, V.D., officer commanding the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, has announced that in March he will relinquish his command on account of ill health. Col. Adams has been in command of the local unit for five years. He will be succeeded, it is expected by Major B. C. Donnan of Belleville, who is at present second-in-command. Colonel Adams has a long and brilliant war record and distinguished career as an officer in the Canadian militia. He joined the 32nd battalion at Belleville in 1908 and when it was mobilized for overseas service in 1914 was appointed adjutant. He went overseas with the battalion and was promoted to the rank of major. He was awarded the D.S.O. and bar and was mentioned in despatches. He was also awarded the Belgian Croix de Guerre. Returning to Canada he was appointed to the command of the 32nd battalion and when it was amalgamated with the Hastings Rifles in 1920 to form the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment was in 1936 the Infantry Association General Efficiency Competition for non-centrally located unit in Military District 3.

USE CINDERS TO REPAIR WASHOUT ON BRANCH LINE

Carloads of cinders are being shipped from the Belleville yards of the Canadian National Railway at the present time for use in repairing a washout on the Peterborough-Port Hope branch of the line at Port Hope, washed out by last week's heavy floods. Bridge and building crews have been brought on work trains from the Peterborough Division, while a pile driver from Cannington Division has also been sent to the scene.

KID KAR DERBY DOMINION DAY

Arrangements Now Under Way By Kinsmen For Go-Cart Derby This Year

Kinsmen Kid Kar Derby for 1937 is already bing arranged for and "Believe You Me" as the one and only Kid Kar Derby improved in fact more thrilling, would say, it is going to be bigger and better than ever. Kinsmen Kid Kar Derby of 1936 was only a preliminary to the contest held this year, on the morning of Dominion Day, Thursday, July 1. Arrangements are now being made and the kidding can begin making their racing chariots at once, after getting the special cabins, axles and regulations from General Manager, Clio Colling. The contest will be very attractive and the prizes well worth while striving for. Many boys are busy here during the Kid Kar Derby with speed and endurance, and the line-up will show champions, past, present and prospective. The list of patrons for the Derby follows: Hon. Harry Nixon, Hon. C. W. Carter, K.C., Earl Rowe, M.P., Hon. J. A. Faulkenham, K.C., M.P., Hon. Peter Heenan, K.C., M.P., Col. George A. Drew, Major R. D. Arnott, Col. W. N. Ponton, A. B. Ellis, K.C., M. G. Ilsley, B. B. Burrows, C.L.U.

Heavy Frost Wilts Many Early Sprouts

City sparrows, busy for the past few days carrying feathers, string and twig with which to build nests, looked into the bald faces of those here by the abnormally mild weather of the past few days, but decided dejectedly on down town corridors and window sills this morning. Many sparrows, in fact, were found with its frosty breath and failing temperatures, frozen to death on the south side of the home of Mr. Hattie Kelley, at 95 Pine street, where in her flower bed that had grouted their green heads above the ground, they had again withered under the heavy frosts of last night. Frosts and freezes throughout the Globe again took on a heavy coating of ice and more than one season's skating and tobogganing appeared just in the offing, as the Bay of Quinte formed heavy ice and over broken patches of water of the past week.

The odd dandelion reported in various sections of the city where the sun had coaxed the blooms out of the ground, the backyard grass shrank back into their stems, the only reminder of bright yellow-headed specimen still being displayed by a local resident after being plucked from a spot on south side of the bath-house on Victoria Park on Monday.

Rose Dirmann Delights Audience with her Fine Voice at Concert Recital

Radio Artist Showed Perfect Control of Voice in Varied Program

MANY ENCORES

Rose Dirmann, lyric soprano of New York, whose reputation as a concert and radio artist is widely known, visited Belleville last evening and charmed members of the audience, numbering approximately 600 who heard her in recital, with the beauty and appeal of her wonderful voice. Assisted by the singer, Miss Marion Brownell proved herself a brilliant artist not only as an accompanist, but as a soloist.

Association members assembled in large numbers and the well-arranged program offering splendid scope for the art of the singer was planned to satisfy diversified tastes of listeners and C. D. Macpherson, President of the Concert Association, introduced Miss Dirmann and Miss Brownell. The former visited Canada last summer as guest artist with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra at one of their popular "Prom" concerts and left such a vivid impression with her audience that the Central Committee sought to have her take part in the winter's Concert Association series. They were more than justified in their choice as Miss Dirmann is meeting with outstanding success throughout her Canadian tour.

Last evening's program opened in a serious note with Handel's "Sound the Del'" "Crepuscolo" by Respighi and the arie antiche, "Dende Lieta" from Rontini's "La Bohemie". The range of the singer's art commanded instant appreciation. With fine soprano voice the singer combined a keen perception of the value of perfect enunciation and gifted interpretation, apparent from her opening number.

Program in Two Groups

For her English songs, Miss Dirmann chose two interesting groups which showed the utmost personality and the quality of the singer's work. Her charming personality in addition added immeasurably to the enjoyment of the audience. The pure quality of Miss Dirmann's voice had lightness and sureness, and the tone flowed with smooth and sweet. Her songs in English were:

Songs My Mother Taught Me (Dvorak)

Down in the Glen (Warren)
Valley of Laughter (Sanderson)
Midsummer (Worth)
My Lovely Celia (Wilson)

MISS ROSE DIRMANN
(Lyric Soprano)

whose recital at the Canadian Concert Association last evening was a highlight of the winter's series.

Three (M. Schumann)
Children of the Moon (Warren)
Yesterday and Today (Spross)
Sylvia (Speaks)
"The Lark Now Flies"
"Her Rose".

Her French group was equally satisfying and demonstrated the brilliant flexibility of the singer's voice. From second of these, "Chanson de la Marine" was particularly lovely. The other numbers were "L'heure exquise" (Poldowski), "La Papillon" (Fourdrain) and showed to advantage the dramatic ability of the artist, the fourth in this group was musically arie from "Carmen", beautifully sung.

Miss Dirmann established rapport with her encores, responding again and again to the insistence of a delight ed audience.

In her accompanists, Miss Brownell Miss Dirmann was indeed fortunate of remarkable ability. She is a brilliant pianist, and by her sympathetic and musically fascinating transcription by Schulz-Evler "of the Strauss waltz, "The Beautiful Blue Danube" was masterly, as was her handling of the difficult Prelude by Phillips, her encore. As accompanist Miss Brownell gave the singer splendid support.

Following the recital a reception for the artists was held in the Collegiate Library.

Chaperon of Victorian Era Represents Life Values Today

Youth Must Find Principles by Which to Live or Die Says Rev. J. D. Parks

Sounding the note that the youth of today must discover values that are, value which may even receive more than quite one's life, Rev. J. D. Parks, B.D., Minister of Bridge Street United Church, Toronto, the "House of Friendship" delivered the opening address of the Bay of Quinte Winter Conference last evening at Bridge Street United Church. The conference prosper opened today with the largest attendance on record of young men and women from all parts of this portion of the province.

Mr. Donald Baxter of Bloomfield presided as he did in the chair. Associated with him on the platform were Rev. William Fletcher who read the lesson and the Rev. Ernest Robertson who offered prayer. Rev. W. J. Patterson of Canning, president of the Belleville District of the United Church brought a message of welcome. Mr. Taylor Rankin in behalf of the Y. P. U. of Bridge Street United Church extended greetings to the members of conference. Dr. Semple of Bridge Street Church introduced Rev. Parks. One of the most outstanding men in the United Church of Canada this evening was J. D. Bankier sang "Slave Song" by Del Riego and Strickland's "Friendship Divine".

"The chaperon has gone but the spirit of the chaperon lives and remain in the individual heart," said Rev. Mr. Parks. His text was quoting from the text Romans 8: 19.

Tragedy of Second Coming

"The tragedy of the second coming of Christ was the lack of appreciation in Him when He came and I am convinced we are on the verge of the second coming in regard to the second coming of Christ. Shall we know Him when He comes?" asked Rev. Parks.

"Never in the world's history was there a greater need, a greater condition today may be compared to been outstripped by a local resident after being pitched from a spot on Victoria Park on Monday.

CHRIST CHURCH HAS GOOD YEAR

$9,621.90 Collected During Year And $1,089.85 For Debt

The annual Vestry meeting of the Parish of Christ Church was held in the Parish Hall with the rector, Rev. Canon Wright presiding. A large and enthusiastic gathering of the various representative groups of the church was present including the church officers and the submission of the treasurer's report being the most important item of business.

The financial statement was submitted by the treasurer, which showed the church to have enjoyed a very successful year in the history of 1936. The total amount raised by all organizations was $9,621.90, while the amount raised for missions was $1,092.85. It was pointed out by the treasurer, however, that considerable moneys had been spent in the way of repairs and improvements to both Christ Church and St. George's Church. In Christ Church the chancel floors were relaid and an electrifying of the pedal of the pipe organ. St. George's was completely overhauled and renovated and redecorated and new electric light fixtures installed also.

Officers Elected

The election of officers at the vestry meeting last night resulted as follows—Rector's Warden—H. Percy Hamilton.

Rector's Warden—H. Percy Hentmore, Mr. O. H. Scott was elected Lay delegate to the Synod, and Mr. G. B. Smith and Mr. Geo. Stokes, are delegates for 1937. The nominating committee for the ensuing year consists of—Mrs. Bickford, R. J. Bickford, Capt. Knudsen, Robt. Ragsdale, Tas. Varley M. J. Vanner, S. T. Leigh Baker, Fred Chamberlain and Wm. Adams. S. T. Leigh Baker was re-elected as Vestry Clerk, while Thos. Marshall was re-elected Warden of St. George's Church.

The following is the list of outstanding workers during the past year—Mrs. P. W. Millard, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. J. H. Bickford, Mrs. R. E. Arnold and Mr. F. O. Redmond. Mr. Redmond for a number years was a church warden and lay delegate.

Rev. G. G. Wright thanked the various groups of the church for their efforts during the past year and a lengthy program of church activities was outlined for Christ Church during 1937. Following the business vestry meeting luncheon was served by the ladies of the parish.

CLUB INDUCTS 3 NEW MEMBERS

Three new members were inducted into the Belleville Y's Men's Club at their weekly meeting held in the Y.M.C.A. last evening. The ceremony proved solemn and impressive as the newly initiated members took upon themselves the duties of a true Y's man, President Joe Shortt presiding. Master of Ceremonies Geoffrey Scott, Gordon Moffat and George Purvis. Owing to the fact that the guest speaker announced for the evening was unable to be present, with Joe Shortt, Geoff Scott, Doug Mader and Herb Muir partaking the sales collection of the evening.

The club voted to resume their annual presentation of a play, entitled "Battalion Parade," which was prompted following the success of last year's play and comedy "A Prince There War".

Tuesday, February 2nd, Tuesday Tuis will be asked to direct the new play, to be presented soon. The title of this year's Y's Men's production will be announced "The Honour" by A. C. Milne, a three act comedy.

Obituary

MRS. H. M. DOWNER (Peterboro) (Formerly of Belleville)

Mrs. H. M. Downer passed away at Peterboro on Monday, Jan. 18th. She had been in failing health for some time.

The late Mrs. Downer, whose maiden name was Miss Mabel Bailey, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Bailey, was born at Cloyne, Ont., 71 years ago. For some time prior to and after her marriage she resided at Belleville and was highly esteemed by all who knew her. Friends here will regret to hear of her death.

Surviving to mourn her passing are her husband, Mr. H. M. Downer and one young son, Willie, Peterboro; her step-mother, Mrs. Abraham Bailey, Belleville; one half brother at Maynooth, Ont., one half sister, Mrs. Robert Lambe at Tweeder, Ont.

THE LATE MRS. R. J. BELL

The funeral of Mrs. Charlotte A. Bell, widow of R. J. Bell, took place from the Church of St. Thomas' Monday afternoon and was largely attended. From shortly after noon when the casket was placed in the church, and for two hours following the funeral, a procession of the pew which Mrs. Bell had occupied for many years members of the Woman's Auxiliary in connection with the parish, by relays, knelt at devotions, until shortly before the commencement of the service. Rev. A. E. Beauchamp Payne, vicar of the parish, conducted the burial office, which was fully choral. At the close of the service the funeral party proceeded to the Belleville Cemetery where interment was made in the Bell family plot. A committal service was said by the same minister.

The pall-bearers were Mr. Harry W. Walker, Mr. Harry C. Thompson, Mr. Percy W. Green, Mr. T. Y. Wila, Mr. Fred Chapman and Mr. Geo. N. Gorman.

The floral tributes from friends, church and welfare organizations with which the late Mrs. Bell was associated were very beautiful.

LATE MISS AMANADA A. SPRAGUE

The funeral of Miss Amanda A. Sprague took place Monday afternoon from her late residence, 217 McDonald Avenue, the service in the home and at the graveside in Thurlow Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Robert Hall, pastor of John Street United Church.

The bearers were Messrs. Harry Bell, Percy Clark, George Wishart. B. D. Harna, John W. Cook and Hugh Ross.

LATE MRS. MARY A. TURNER (Corbyville)

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Avis Turner, widow of Joseph Turner, took place from the residence of her niece, Mrs. Sarah Cook, at Corbyville, Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. The service in the home and at the graveside in Elmwood Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. W. R. Cockrill, pastor of the United Church at Canniton.

During the service a quartette consisting of Mrs. C. Spidell, W. Easton, L. Walker and C. Walker, sang "Abide With Me". The members of the quartette acted as bearers.

S. H. Connor Elected President Tweed Horticultural Society

TWEED—The annual meeting of Tweed Horticultural Society was held in the Council Chambers on Friday evening. There was a good attendance and members listened to the work of the organization. Dr. W. A. Pail, president, gave a resume of the year's activities. He thanked the directors and members for their co-operation during the past year. He specially noted the important part played by the ladies who were largely responsible for the raising of funds for the work of the society. He passed on many complimentary remarks from members of the Prince Edward and Hastings Medical Society for the satisfactory way in which the T.H.S. had handled the catering for the complimentary banquets to Dr. W. M. Malher. Dr. Pail stressed the point that Horticultural Societies should become service organizations whose chief objective should be service to the community.

The Society during the year did away with awarding of cash prizes as the Flower Show, replaced cash awards with ribbons. During the year library was started and re-established, two in Tweed Memorial Park, one in Tweed and one in Township Hall.

The financial statement was read by the treasurer, Mrs. A. C. Blakely. Total receipts for the year amounted to $260.40. Of this sum fees from 46 members. The expenditures totalled $243.07. Of this amount $60.00 was expended on civic improvements.

The following officers were elected for '1937:

Hon. President—Dr. Harold Welsh, M.P.P., Reeve W. H. Sayers, Mrs. Geo. Melkibbin.

President—Mr. S. H. Connor.

First Vice-President—Dr. W. A. Paul.

Second Vice-President—Mr. C. H. Kerr.

Secretary-Treasurer—Mrs. A. C. Blakely.

Directors for one year 1937—Mrs. M. J. Quinn, Mrs. H. Coughlin, Mrs. W. Hawley, Mrs. M. Drinkwalter, Mrs. F. B. Proctor.

Directors for two years 1937-1938—Mrs. A. Varty, Mrs. D. W. Sills, Mrs. A. Bongard, Mrs. W. A. Beasly, Rev. R. R. Nicholson.

Auditors—Mr. O. D. Wilson, Mr. J. L. Wilson.

Considerable discussion followed anent securing a new location for the Society. It was suggested that as Tweed is the centre that the planting project at the northern and southern approaches to the village be undertaken. This will be discussed more fully at a subsequent meeting. Spring Clean-up Plans were also discussed to interest more the people of the village and surrounding community in the activities of the Society and to help it grow. The membership for 1936 was 46.

Rev. R. R. Nicholson was named the delegate to attend the Ontario Horticultural Association's Provincial convention in Toronto on February 18th and 19th. Mr. Nicholson has been asked to attend the Convention on the subject of civic improvement. Following the convention he will give a report of the proceedings of the Convention at a public meeting in the local Society.

Mr. Jack Arber, junior at the local branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia wrote on his banking examination as follows:

The water level at Sioux Lake was raised one foot by the first dam at downspour. A further rise of about two feet would have flooded Memorial Park. The lake is very attractive, practically reaching the usual spring highwater level.

Tweed Village Council held an emergent meeting on Friday night and made final arrangements to undertake the extension of the water mains and sewer from Mr. Clarence Moon's residence to that of the late Mr. O. Barrett. Work will be commenced on Monday. Employment will be given to a number of the local unemployed.

The following report for the year 1936 was submitted to the Village Council by Constable J. C. Hayes:

Business premises inspected, 365; gas pumps unlocked 4; summonses served 62; arrests made for drunk and disorderly, 22; complaints received and investigated 211; letters received 286; letters written 527; licenses picked up on the street after midnight and handed in next day, 3; warnings given 148; transients given shelter in gaol 256; cases prosecuted under Criminal Code 39; cases prosecuted under the Statutes 69; fines imposed and paid 1827—Mr. C. H. Kerr.

Mr. M. J. Quinn, Mrs. H. Coughlin, Mrs. W. Hawley, Mrs. M. Drinkwalter, Mrs. F. B. Proctor.

Auditors—Mr. O. D. Wilson, Mr. J. L. Wilson.

C. P. R. Agent at Tweed For Six Years is Transferred

Tweed—The January meeting of the Women's Association of Tweed United church was held in the Church parlors on Thursday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. C. R. Parrish, presiding. The devotional was prepared by Mrs. Wagar's group. A part of the business activities of the preceding year was given by the secretary-treasurer. The following were appointed as group leaders: Mrs. W. L. Ketcheson, Mrs. H. E. Way, Mrs. W. E. Tummon, Mrs. H. E. Wager. An excellent address was given by Mrs. K. Ketcheson who spoke on the subject of "Beginnings", basing her remarks on Stanley Jones's book. Every undertaking had a beginning. The importance of a good beginning in any enterprise cannot be overestimated. In entering upon the duties of a new year, time will be well spent in looking down the things that have been accomplished in the spiritual life. One does this in connection with the ordinary affairs of life. If carried over into the spiritual the results will be surprising. This spiritual life was illustrated at the beginning of the New Year was greatly appreciated by the members.

An excellent reading "Other New Year" was given by Mrs. A. E. Way. Outlining the great happenings of the past year, Mrs. Way quoted Meiklejohn read an appropriate selection entitled "Looking for the New Year". Mrs. Alf. Davis sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" most pleasingly.

Tweed Branch of the Army and Navy Veterans held their January meeting the first of a series of bridge parties in their new quarters on Thursday evening. A very successful night at bridge. The winners were Alex. Simpson and Mrs. Ed. Hall. The veterans plan to continue these evenings at intervals through the winter.

It is with the greatest regret that Tweed citizens learn that our community generally have learned of the transfer of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McCutcheon and family from Tweed to Weston where Mr. McCutcheon will act as agent for the C. P. R. depot. Since coming to Tweed six years ago Mr. and Mrs. McCutcheon family has endeared whole-heartedly into every community interest and numerous organizations in the secular and religious life of the town. Both Mr. and Mrs. McCutcheon among the most valued members and officers.

In his position as agent in charge of Tweed C. P. R. station Mr. McCutcheon has discharged his duties in a manner highly satisfactory to the Company which he represents. The travelling public and all others who had business dealings with him have found him most obliging. His courteous manner has won for him a host of friends who will regret the removal is the cause of general regret. During the years Mr. McCutcheon has been stationed in Tweed, Trinity United Sunday School, and member of the Official Board. He was a regular attendant at the Sunday Church services and his place will be difficult to fill.

Equally interested in the work of the Public School Board where he is a member of the choir, the Women's Missionary Society in which he acted as a group leader. As leader of the Trinity Church choir he took an important post. Mrs. McCutcheon also took an active part in community activities. She was a member of the Women's Institute and has recently been elected as president of that organization.

Mr. and Mrs. McCutcheon have generally miss her help.

The loss sustained by the community at large will accompany them to their new home in the new home at the exit of the month.

An important session of the Public School Board will be held on Friday afternoon with Magistrate Ellis presiding when truancy and several cases came up for consideration.

William Chalk, formerly of Hungerford Township, was found guilty of a charge laid by Constable Hayes. On December 31st, Glenn Connor, said complainant, and Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Connor, in company with other friends motored to Belleville to "hop" the accused's car. Mr. Connor's car was being the youngster on the head, causing the boy to have spilling the contents over his clothing. The boy was knocked down and the accused drove away. The accused's identity was unknown at the time of the accident. Constable Hayes, assisted by Constable Hayes. R. C. Donnan, K. C., Crown Attorney, prosecuted the case on behalf of the Crown. Mr. J. D. Corcoran appeared for the defendant. After the evidence had been taken the accused will spend ten days in jail. Magistrate Lloyd reserved judgment on several other cases.

Three young men, Harman Simpson, Fred Levack and Pat Levack appeared on the charge of doing damage to the property of Tweed and Hungerford Parks Board, following the destruction of bulletin boards off the fence around the Fair Grounds in Bulls Park. while they were skating on a pond nearby. They pleaded guilty to the charge and were ordered to make restitution in addition to paying a fine of sentence. Fifteen days in default of making good the damage.

Juvenile court cases were also heard. Two youngsters from Hungerford were charged with loitering and entering the C. P. R. freight shed of that place. They were found guilty and fined $1 each for a period of two years in the charge of friends who assured their good behaviour.

A local juvenile pleaded guilty to a bicycle stealing charge. On motion of the S. C. A. Society was presented with a suspended sentence.

Frankford—The inaugural meeting of the Frankford Village Council was held on January 11th, at eleven a. m. when Reeve D. R. Ketcheson and Councillors took the declaration of office. Council then adjourned to meet at 8 p. m. in the Council Chambers when the following business was transacted.

Minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. By-laws appointing the following officers were read, passed, signed and sealed:

Clerk and Treasurer—W. N. Simmons; Assessor and Collector Inspector, Weed Inspector and Caretaker Municipal Property — Thos. Sweetman.

Pound Keeper—Wm. Lyons.

Board of Health—J. B. Hendrick

Auditor—W. A. Rose.

Assessor—Geo. A. Sine.

A by-law licensing "slot and pin machines" was read and passed.

Accounts amounting to about $220 were passed. A deputation of concerned young men were present, requesting the assistance of Council in obtaining a rink. They were promised consideration but were told to meet the Council on Friday night to discuss the situation.

United Church Y. P. U. Meets

The Y. P. U. met in the United Church on Monday evening, January 11th, at 8,o'clock. The meeting opened in the usual manner and Mrs. W. J. Reid led in singing and in resignations of the Misses Ruby Bongard and Hazel Mikel. Charles Anderson was elected president while Ruth Embury, Christian Culture convener.

Arvilla Conley conducted the Christian Fellowship programme and Chas. Anderson explained the Scripture Lesson. A reading "At Crest" was given by Kathleen Hibbert, piano solo by Hazel Mikel and Topic by W. H. Landon followed after which a contest on "Countries and Islands" was conducted by Arvilla Conley. Several hymns were sung and Ruby Embury read the Scripture lesson. The meeting closed with the Benediction.

At a special meeting of the Council held on Friday evening January 15th by-laws were passed compelling all retail stores to close at 9 p. m. every day except Saturday during January, February and March.

R. C. Card Party

A successful euchre and dance in aid of the R. C. Church was held in the Community Hall on Friday evening January 15th. The party was sponsored by Mrs. Jas. Hanna and Mrs. Jas. Macauley. The prizewinners were Mrs. Ross Tutty, Mrs. Ross Turley, Marie Macauley, Gerald Turley and Joseph Muirhill.

United Church Mission Circle Meeting

The Mission Circle held their January meeting at the home of Mrs. Wade Thompson on Friday night January 15th, 1937.

The Treasure's annual report was given. The Scripture Lesson, Matt. IX 1-8 was read by Mrs. W. J. Landon. Prayers were offered by Mrs. Landon and Mrs. O. Bennett. Mrs. W. Morrow read the Devotional Study Book which was given by Mrs. H. Bonisteel. The first chapter of the Study Book was given in drama by Mrs. Lane, Miss Pitcher, Mrs. Montgomery, Misses Pauline and Mary Morrow and Mrs. O. Bennett. A dialogue on Missionary Money was given by Mrs. Ward, Mrs. Pryce and Miss E. Morrow. A reading was given by Miss L. Brostoh. Miss Pryce, Miss Morrow and Mrs. Bennett were winners in the contest. Lunch was served at the close by Mrs. Lane.

Personals

Chas. Harvey is again a patient in Kingston General Hospital.

Messrs. Don Hunter and Joe Sullivan of Detroit spent a few days in town last week.

Mrs. Thos. Sweetman received the sad news last week of the death in Syracuse, N. Y., of her eldest brother, John Hamilton. Mr. Hamilton was killed in a traffic accident.

Mr. Chas. Bonisteel of Toronto spent a few days last week at his home here. Mrs. Bonisteel is ill in bed.

Mrs. MacLean has returned to her home in Toronto after attending the past month with her parents Mr. and Mrs. George Winters.

A delightful evening was spent at a euchre party in Trinity Parish Hall under the auspices of Trinity Guild on Wednesday evening, Jan. 8th. Winners at cards were—Mrs. Ira Tripp, W. H. Landon; Mr. Ross Rogerson and Ross Nicolson.

Two fire alarms were rung in on Wednesday afternoon around five o'clock within a period of ten minutes. The first call was to Mrs. Alex Wilson's residence where there was no real damage. The second was to the home of Mrs. Silas Glover's apartment in the Mack Hamilton block. Flames had rushed over there and got that blaze under control before serious damage was done.

Owing to the heavy rains Cold Creek on Wm. Mellon and Township was on another rampage. The water was high as it is in the spring but luckily the ice was not there and no serious damage was reported. On Wednesday night water over a foot deep was running over the concession road and at high way at the Fair Grounds. On Friday with the advent of colder weather the waters abated.

Marmora High School Staff, Pupils Hold Parents Night

Marmora—The second annual Parents Night, in which the Marmora High School staff and pupils entertained the parents of the pupils, Public and Separate School staffs, the village Council, the Public Library and Public School Board as well as the local clergy took place in Marmora Public School on Saturday evening of the same night the High School, with Caretaker F. Bray in charge was converted for ratepayers who desired to inspect the new water and sanitary system recently installed. The splendid program at the public school was under the supervision of Principal E. I. Gale. Three rooms were used for the demonstration and each splendid performance was repeated to enable the visitors to witness the whole program.

Three pupils, Robert Elliott, Arnold Gibson and William Hart with the aid of a mechanical fish, engaged in a discussion in the Mechanical Department. Miss Mochrie's Other exhibits of scientific nature, in charge of her pupils under C.A. and Gordier B. A., were shown in this room. Miss Gale also showed some Biological slides. Upon the walls were seen some excellent art exhibits, as well as maps and charts in the English room. Miss F. Wilson, B. A. directed "Mrs. Jarley's Waxworks", with members of the Ancient History class. Grace Prentice as "Mrs. Jarley" and Dorothy Tripcodis which represented Grecian gods and goddesses. Donald Prentice as "John" wound them up. After this under the direction of Geography, a group of senior girls and boys acted a small play "Maria Chapdelaine", as taken from the book of that title, now being read in the English course at the school.

In the French room, Miss J. Parley, B. A. demonstrated the teaching of the French language. Throughout the program and during the intermissions, over a hundred of the guests sat for their silhouettes for which the nominal fee of a shilling was asked in support of the School's hockey fund. Miss Mary Paquet was in charge of the venture. In spite of the brisk business done and the continuous rush for the small quarters, there was only one case in which the person received the wrong print. The same thing occurred when an elderly man received the silhouette of a lady, which was immediately detected. Another good source of revenue for the hockey fund was the lunch room in the north end of one of the lobbies where there was displayed a tempting dainties sealed in glass jars. Miss Lorraine Hand assisted by the pupils. Delicious refreshments were then served by the pupils. Last on the program was the presentation of the graduation diplomas. Those who were to receive them were Arnold Oldewell. Keith Cronkright, Robert Elliot, Madeline Neal, Simeon Smith, Grace Warren, William Bonter, Tom Shannon, Charles Shannon, Mary Paquet, Jean Ketlleborough, Beatrice Coldwell, James Hurrington and Josephine Shannon. Mr. Gale having thanked the Public School Board for the use of the rooms, called upon Dr. W. Elliot, Chairman of the High School Board to make the presentations. Mr. Elliot touched upon the value of the diplomas to the recipients and testified to the splendid co-operation given by the members of the Board. R. Layzell, vice chairman, spoke briefly remarking that if the students applied themselves to the instruction given it would count for their success. The National Anthem rang out and before gathering dispersed.

A. Y. P. A. BALL

The annual ball under the auspices of St. Paul's A. Y. P. A. was held in the Town Hall on Friday night. A very large crowd of young people danced to the excellent music of the Aces, and the favors and well dressed ball helped make the dance a great success. The Aces are known as the Y. M. C. A. colours, white and blue, both on the stage and downstairs in the concert dance where the lunch was served. The stage itself was decorated to represent a garden scene. Refreshments were served at the midnight hour.

TRUSTEE'S RETIREMENT

In the Rev. W. Harold Reid, who has resigned from the Board of Education after three years' service, the schools of Belleville lose a very faithful and devoted trustee.

Among the members of that body, Mr. Reid has been one of the most active. One of the movements which he sponsored and one of which he was an outstanding supporter was the clinic for examination of collegiate students for traces of incipient tuberculosis. The results of that clinic are well known. If Mr. Reid had done nothing more during his membership on the board than to help to bring about the establishment of the clinic his work would have been memorable. But he has been interested in every phase of the work falling to trustees and has taken a deep interest in the welfare of the scholars and students of the city and the cause of education.

What he has accomplished here is appreciated not only by the board but by parents and the students themselves. It will be an incentive to those who follow him to give their best to the cause of education, one of the noblest in the world because of its vital association with the welfare of individual and of society.

THE PULPIT VIEW

Man maintains his interminable search for the meaning of life, said Rev. S. E. G. Priestly at the Church of the Divine Fatherhood, York Mills. He said, is still dissatisfied and perplexed although philosophers, religious leaders and political thinkers have tried since the dawn of human history to "refine life and regulate the conduct of both the individual and the state. "Whence are we, who are we, whither do we go?", are questions that continue to baffle mankind. The various points of view in various degrees the minds of men, skepticism, materialism, and humanism have all proved inadequate. Never in history has man demanded as great a life to live. He is endeavoring to discover some magic formula how to live our lives in the midst of so much suffering.

The future does not depend on outward reform. Outward reform depends on the spirit of Christ in the common man.

Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner in Broadway Temple Church, told his congregation that the Case and Molineaux murders recently startled America into a vivid consciousness as to the possible brutality of man. "It is not merely necessary to kill the culprits," he said, "but habits and methods have made life cheap and pleasure sensual. It is announced in a neighborhood newspaper that the two-year-old birthday of a child will be celebrated with a cocktail party. We pass crime punishing laws with avidity but have little time or money for crime prevention methods.

"A distinguished citizen leaves $50,000,000 in an honest effort to help young men but makes no provision or suggestion for religion without which manhood cannot be built. We have scores of social service agencies, which have no place for religion and hence do little to lift the total atmosphere."

DYNASTY CRISIS AND CANADA

The statement made by the Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King on the part taken by the Canadian Government in connection with the recent crisis in England and the later statement of the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett that had he been in office he would have followed the same course as had been taken by Mr. King, should end parliamentary discussion at Ottawa over the withdrawal of King Edward Eighth into private life.

The matter is irrevocably settled, there has been, in the opinion of all people, a great personal tragedy which led to the inevitable abdication which all regretted.

A most difficult issue has been settled in Britain in a manner worthy of the former King whom Canadians loved and in keeping with British traditions and it little suits Canada to do anything which might open up that question again.

The Prime Minister read a message which had been sent to King Edward through the Governor General, expressing the deep sympathy which the Canadian people felt for him in the momentous decision he was being called upon to make.

"There is no doubt in our minds that a recognition by your Majesty of what the King is owing by you to the Throne and to your Majesty's subjects in all parts of the British Commonwealth should, regardless of whatever the personal sacrifice may be, be permitted to outweigh all other considerations."

The quiet explanation in the Canadian Commons by Prime Minister King and the statement of Conservative Leader Bennett were in keeping with the feelings of the people of Canada and the Empire and close reference to the matter as far as Canada is concerned.

FROM FIELDS BEYOND

Fresh-culled from Time's Infinitude of flowers,
Each New Year brings a gift bouquet of hours—
Profuse array of pregnant bud and bloom
To deck life's path from cradle to the tomb;
A treasure-trove of bright reality,
Bound with the hope of immortality.
Though thistle rob the larkspur of its blue,
And rosemary be tinged with sprigs of rue;
Though spikenard with bramble may be set
And bitter aloe mixed with mignonette;
Though sach silk-petalled rose may not be born
Without some lurking briar or scarlet thorn,
The understanding heart is quick to fell
The fragrant balm that makes bruised fingers heal,
Knowing we weave, in floral filigree,
Soul-tapestries for all eternity.

"DEATH VALLEY" SCOTT IS IN THE NEWS AGAIN. He is being sued by his wife for $1,000 a month for living expenses and medical care, and $20,000 for legal expenses and counselling and dedication of community property which she estimated at not less than $1,000,000. "Death Valley" Scotty was a prospector who went into the desert, struck a bonanza, a grubstake and came out with millions. He splashed gold dust around like water and won notoriety by chartering special trains and taking friends for long and short rides, one jaunt being across the continent. He never revealed the source of his wealth which was supposed to be a fabulously rich gold strike far in the desert. He was trailed by white men and professional Indian trackers, but his secret has never been discovered. As a token of his appreciation of the desert which gave him his wealth he erected a Spanish-Moorish castle in the northern part of Death Valley at a cost of over two million dollars, where he keeps a large staff of servants. Following the announcement of his wife's legal action Scotty's closest friend and adviser said that Scotty was broke. That is as may be but Scotty has made the same announcement several times after a spending spree and retired to the desert for a few months, to emerge with his finances again at high water mark.

SFUNNY BUT NO ONE SEEMS TO LIKE TO PAY TAXES—it's one of many expense items in which there seems no joy in satisfying. Some people will try to evade payment of taxes in any way possible. Note recent government collection of underpaid inheritance taxes. But here's a man in New York City who walks up and pays two million dollars cash down to settle an income tax case against him. The court held that in tax and interest and penalties over four million dollars was due the state, so it is little wonder that the accused hastened to lay his two million dollars on the line. The penalty charge alone amounted to $811,138.16. Mr. Hall's payments cover a period from 1919 through 1934, and were owed to the United States by Moses Parshelsky, Brooklyn building supply dealer, his brother Isaac, prominent Brooklyn philanthropist, who died in March, 1936, and four corporations which the brothers owned. The more money some folks have the less they like to part with it, apparently. Happy the man or woman to whom the income tax has no terrors, for besides being a frightful bore to make out it seems just a big bit of overburden for most folks govern their expenses by their income without including the deficiencies caused by income tax, federal and provincial. However, taxes have their good points, we get protection, peace, and a whole lot of comfort which can hardly be measured in money value.

GOOD NEWS KEEPS COMING AS THE NEW YEAR ADVANCES. Belleville folks will be interested in an announcement made in the House of Commons by H. A. McLean, M.P. for Northumberland, in addressing the Trenton Rotary Club. Mr. Fraser is reported in the Trenton Courier-Advocate as saying that "Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence, only a few days ago, authorized the expenditure of a sum between $800,000 and $900,000 during the coming year at the Trenton Air Station, the amount to be spent mostly in the erection of new buildings."

Cheese Factories Stage Social Events

On Friday evening, Plumgrove Cheese Factory was the scene of quite an oyster supper in the Orange Hall at that place and over one hundred and twenty-five enjoyed a delicious feed of oysters and a real feed of other goodies as well.

The president of the factory, Mr. Robert Wallace and everyone welcome and the cheesemaker Mr. Delbert Howe was praised for his splendid year's work as cheese maker.

After all had finished eating they journeyed across the road to Wellman's United Church where a splendid but interesting program was staged.

Mr. George McGee was Master of Ceremonies and briefly addressed the gathering. Community Singing given by Mr. H. P. Nix. Stirling Manager of the Bank of Montreal and Mr. Charles Mann, Stirling Cheese Instructor.

The decoration for the evening was Mr. Charles Dracup of Stirling who delighted with several humorous numbers.

Musical duets were given by Mr. Stewart Hoover and Miss Lois Hoover, violin and piano by Mr. and Mrs. Reid's McGee, violin and guitar; Master Gerald Taylor contributed a solo and Mrs. R. P. Ellis was guest soloist. Miss Leslie Howe rendered a humorous reading.

Those in attendance enjoyed the social event which has been an annual affair at Plumgrove Factory for several years.

The heavy rain Wednesday evening washed out several culverts in Rawdon and some of the hills are badly dug out owing to the heavy flow of water. "Bridges on several farms were moved thirty or forty feet by the heavy impact of water, while cellars in some places were reported to have two and three feet of water.

On Friday the weather turned colder and now the roads are very rough as they were so badly cut up with cars and trucks on Thursday.

Phillipston-Zion Institute Marks 25th Anniversary

Phillipston-Zion Institute marked a quarter of a century of organized Institute work on Tues. Jan. 12 and to celebrate the occasion a banquet was held at the home of Mrs. Ben and Earl Sayers. Sec.-Treas. Jan. 12, 1912, Mrs. Watts, Provincial Organizer was with a group of eight men ladies of Bethel church and founded the Phillipston Institute and several years later the Zion ladies joined with them to form the Phillipston Zion Branch. Invitations were extended to the eleven surviving members, three of which are still members of the local branch.

The dining rooms were beautifully decorated in the Institute colors, yellow and blue. The centre tables above the head table were caught and held with a large blue and yellow petal crepe and directly beneath a similar centre held the birthday cake. Covers were laid and greeted with silver and lighted with yellow candles. All tables were gaily with yellow candles, and roses in silver containers and bowls of raw fruit.

Over eighty guests were present. Before the toasts were proposed hostess of the evening.

each charter member was presented with a cup and saucer as a slight token of appreciation for their long service. After a few remarks from the toastmistress, Mrs. Bert Sayers, Mr. H. K. Denyes proposed the toast to our King and Empire which was responded to with "God Save the King." Mr. Les Institute Branches" to the Institute was responded to with "O Canada." Mrs. Percy Ray toasted the Guests and Mrs. Joe Wilson responded. The toast to the Institute given by Mr. Horace Robson and responded to by Mrs. Bella Ketcheson was followed with a solo by June Ray. Martha Treverton gave a humorous reading and Mrs. Denyes a piano solo. Our speaker of the evening, Mr. Joe Wilson, Agricultural Representative, Stirling, spoke briefly on the Junior work and stressed what the Institute can do for Juniors. After musical selections on violin and guitars by Harry Phillips, Jack Ray, Ernest Roberts the short program was brought to a close with Auld Lang Syne. Many expressions of gratitude were extended Mrs. Ben Sayers, charter member and hostess of the evening.

DEBATE FEATURES W. I. MEETING

Decide That Farming is Not Important Industry

Marmora.—The January meeting of Marmora Women's Institute met on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Jas. A. Rice with a good attendance. Owing to the illness of the president, Mrs. Gordon Jarvis, the vice-president, Mrs. Spry, was in the chair and conducted the opening exercises and business of the evening. The roll call was "A New Year's Resolution" and an oral Institute year will result in a few of the resolutions are faithfully carried out. Current events was dealt with by Mrs. Harold Munby and this was followed by a debate, resolved that the farming industry is of greater importance than any other industry." Mrs. Pack and Mrs. Albert Campion presented the affirmative while Miss Rowan and Mrs. Spry upheld the negative. The judges were Mrs. D. Thompson, Mrs. Laycock and Mrs. Gordon and their decision was given in favour of the affirmative with a small majority of points. Miss Rowan then gave a very interesting and instructive paper on Canadian Industries, after which Mrs. Prentice took charge of the lesson for the program. Miss Flora Sanderson sang a delightful solo and Mrs. Prentice contributed a humorous reading, "At the Dentist" showing how a woman's tongue runs away from her sometimes. A geography match was the last item on the program and Mrs. Campion won the prize in a three way draw. The meeting closed with the singing of "God Save the King" after which lunch was served.

George Sandford, Eldorado Celebrates 84th Birthday

Eldorado, Jan. 19.—On Wednesday, January 13th, one of Madoc township's oldest and most respected residents in the person of Mr. George Sandford of Eldorado, celebrated his 84th birthday. He spent the day visiting his brother Redmond on the farm where he was born.

Although crippled with rheumatism, Mr. Sandford enjoys remarkably good health. He is always willing to talk over old times with his many friends who visit him from time to time. A devoted reader of the daily papers he is well informed as to the current events of the day. In his youth one of the oldest residents of the county to mark his birthday, he still remembers when there were never more than six or seven families in Eldorado.

Mr. Sandford in his younger days grew up as it were in the lumbering era. For a period of over a score of years, a trusted and respected employee of the late Conquering Hero Trevlon, at that time one of the largest lumber firms in Eastern Ontario, Mr. Sandford began his career in the woods as a chopper and after several years he was promoted, at the age of 26, to the position of foreman, in charge of over 200 lumberjacks, two-thirds of whom were of French origin, with whom Mr. Sandford could converse in their own language. Each year, usually in the spring Mr. Sandford with a crew of men would go on the long trek, to take his logs to the sawmill at Trenton on the Trent River. Lake, Crowe River and the Trent River. He handled spared for many years to come.

that job to the extreme satisfaction of his employers that he became one of Gilmour's most trusted foremen. As a lumber cruiser with this drive was completed Mr. Sandford covered many thousands of acres of timber in Hastings and Addington counties, his estimate of the number of logs in a certain holding was seldom questioned by his employers.

But it was on the river where Mr. Sandford spent most of his time as foreman and as a driver. He never asked any man to go where he would not go himself. A past master at the art of driving pike-poles and in crossing the river on a single log, a man who knew the Trent River as few men ever knew it was in charge.

Many of the years he drove such rivers as the Crowe, Beaver Creek, Moira and Trent.

After over a score of years spent in the lumber business Mr. Sandford, with his brother William, built the Bridge now occupied by Mr. Wm. McIlwee. Sandford and his brother William operated one of the largest sawmills in Hastings County, sizes used in this district. Some years later he bought out his brother and built the house in which he now resides, with his daughter Mrs. Ben Sayers as his housekeeper. Mr. Sandford has also in his passed away some eight years ago.

To Mr. Sandford on his many friends and neighbors are extended the sincere hope that he may be

Madoc and District

Madoc—The W. M. S. of Trinity United Church met in the Church parlor on Thursday afternoon with a good attendance of members and visitors, with Mrs. I. E. Kennedy as leader and the president, Mrs. Hamm in the chair.

The meeting opened by the singing of an appropriate hymn after which all recited in unison the General Thanksgiving Prayer. The theme of the devotional exercises was evident in the prayer offered and in the reading of Psalm 103 by Mrs. Kennedy and also in the Scripture reading by Miss Wilson. The devotional leaflet read by Mrs. Jack mentioned several instances where missionaries had aroused interest and attention to women and children. Mrs. Kennedy closed by the leader on the above topic concluded the Worship service.

The business period was conducted by Mrs. Hamm with the assistance of the Secretary, Miss Ketcheson. The Treasurer, Mrs. S. S. Ashley presented a very encouraging financial report of the 1936 activities and accomplishments. Reports were received from the Secretaries: Mrs. M. Bristol, the Peace Sec. Mrs. Pratt, the Literary Sec. Mrs. Dowling, the Strangers' Sect. Mrs. Geo. Huffman, Mrs. A. Bristol and Mrs. D. Ashley were appointed assistants to the Strangers' Sect. Mrs. Huffman.

Much interest was shown in a well prepared study on "Correctly and Conscientiously Valuing Christian Stewardship," Allocation of Time, Talents and Money was given by Mrs. Manley Fox.

An interesting synopsis of the fifth chapter of the Study Book, "Men and Women of Par Horizon" was given ably by Mrs. H. Bailey. The meeting was concluded with the Mizpah Benediction.

The social half-hour was spent pleasantly with Mrs. Hamm as hostess.

St. Peters W. M. S.

The opening meeting for 1937 of St. Peters Presbyterian W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Mackintosh with an attendance of twenty-two. The program was the service of prayer from the Tidings and was in charge of the president Mrs. MacKirtry. The opening hymn was sung followed by a Bible reading on worship. A beautiful prayer on this subject was read by Mrs. Mackintosh. A fine Bible reading prepared by Mrs. W. Whytock on "What We Should Be Thankful For" was taken part in by nine ladies. Mrs. Whytock, Mrs. Jas. Mac-Hailstone and Mrs. Jas. Whytock read a prayer on our "Responsibilities to Foreign Fields."

The subject for the next part was "A Life of Service" as exemplified by Dr. Jonathan Goforth one of our pioneer missionaries to Honan and Manchuria, China read by Mrs. Ber.

A beautiful tribute from the Montreal Witness was read by Mrs. Johnston. Mrs. Fraser read the session preached at the Memorial Service in China and prepared by Mrs. Mackintosh and Mrs. McCarthy gave other incidents in his life and the work of the Women's Provincial W. M. S. sent to Mrs. Goforth. The business part of the meeting was then conducted by Mrs. Mackintosh the secretary gave the minutes of the last meeting and the roll call. The Treasurer, Mrs. Curry reported $323.00 sent to the Presbyterial Treasurer for 1936 and a fine letter of appreciation from Mrs. Peters was read. Mrs. Wells to the sick and shut-ins reported and thirty-five copies of the Glad Tidings for to date. The cent-a-week collection for three month and the collection was taken. The members paid their fees for the year. The meeting was closed by Mrs. J. Armstrong reading the benediction from Ephesians 3, 14-21. The hostess served refreshments.

On Friday evening the Trull Rangers gave the leadership of Mr. John Bristol were hosts to a banquet to members of the C. G. I. T. At six o'clock a splendid supper was served after which a pleasant evening was spent in community singing and games.

Canadians use their telephones more than any other people. They call the friend in the next block, in a neighboring province, across the continent. Yet there is little difference in speed or clarity whatever the distance, hence the almost instinctive use of the telephone, hence its moderate cost in Canada. It could not have reached its present development had its users not found that its value to them greatly exceeds its cost.

The main factors in achieving leadership have been continuous improvement in telephone equipment, continuous improvement in efficiency and above all, loyalty to an ideal of telephone workers.

The aim of management and employees alike has been "the best possible service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety."

There has never been a development of apparatus or method of operation of which telephone men have said, "Now that is perfect—we can't improve on that." Every improvement has been looked upon as a challenge to further advance.

What can we do to make the service better? That is always the problem as we see it!

Pop was smoking behind the special cigar we got him and I was seeing how quick I could study my lessons and I said, Hey Pop!

Quite so, pop said, and I said, I did my arithmetic and my composition and I still have a half a hour before I have to go to bed, so can I read my Paul Pepper book a while?

What kind of homework did you have? pop said, and I said, O, some history and some geography.

What was the geogrifly about? pop said, and I said, The earth.

Pop put on his different capes and where.

All rite, I'll ask you a question or 2 where's Cape Cod? pop said, and I said, Cape Cod?

You pronounce it perfeckly, which is more than many parrits can do, pop said. Where did you say is it? he said, and I said, I know where it is, I was there and it's the hardest to get around of all the capes.

Pop smiled, which was pra. tically impossible to wawk around it, pop said, and I said, It's on the end of South America.

Cape Cod? pop said, and I said, No sir, Cape Horn.

O, I see, we seem to be discussing capes in general, pop said, it's an intriging fact that a cape is also the name of an article of clothing once worn by men of fashion but now out of date unfortunately because it is generally considered to of been the most becoming garment ever worn by men and I've always had a desire to appear in one when will probably never be satisfied. And speaking of capes, a capon is an expensive variety of chickin much esteemed by the corner-sewers, he said, and I said, Well, O, pop, Cape Cod seems to be just the one that I dont seem to know.

That's a coincidence because it seems to me that the one that I asked you about, pop said. Go on with your lessons, he said.

Wich I did feeling satisfied.

Medical Advisory Board—Dr. Cook, Dr. Wilson, Dr. Ponton.

The nominating committee's report was presented by Mr. Robin who accepted in its entirety.

Rev. Robert Hall Chairman

In opening the meeting Rev. Robert Hall, who acted as chairman during the evening, welcomed the large number in attendance and referred to the growth of the local Order over the period of years during which time he had been privileged to serve upon the various committees.

The local Order during the past years has been marked rather by the ebbs than by the flows, but a satisfaction lie, today in the fact, that it has emerged through its most difficult times and period. The Victorian Order of Nurses has been established upon a firm foundation of respect and confidence, not on good luck. We see it now in its happy state as a result of the work of a few in this city, who have given their time and energy along. We have an excellent nursing staff in this city and their work is not being unnoticed. declared the Rev. Mr. Hall in his introductory remarks.

"In this work, that has been accomplished locally one or two of the present officials stand out, and their shoulders above the rest. I refer particularly at this time to Mrs. Holland, your president of last year and whom we were providentially led to secure to head the good work once again. We have in Mrs. Holland, one who is a leader and a worker and whom we were providentially led to secure to head the good work once again. We have in

The luncheon was an adventure Susanne had never dreamed of. They went to a costly, glorified place on Haverford Centre, and the food she had never seen before. She was so enchanted over it all, so awed over being spiritually a part of such a fairy land, and so impressed with the stranger, the obviously genuine honesty of Caleb Forbush, that Dell Langley might have been one of the waiters, for all the real person responsible for it all.

A dozen times Susanne's eyes escaped Susanne's usually sharp notice during that luncheon, but she was thinking, he didn't cheat . . . he didn't rope someone else into playing a part! He actually produced a customer! . . . Susanne's double-beers slipped.

Twice Dell Langley leaned down her, to soft, dulcet stringed renditions of popular tunes, and Susanne's private life, the part of her that was Sky, and her part in Sky's big seed of her, remained dormant.

She was caught up in a whirling swirling current that was faster, stronger than anything else in her life. The luncheon ended, dancing rapids that led to the heights. To success. To a good job. Scads of it. Security. The future.

The fundamental reason for all this, the thing that made it seem to make good, in order to help Sky, to help Sky out of his present situation, was lost somewhere in the complexity, the confusion and chaos of method.

You can dance like nobody's business." Dell Langley's deep, manly dad not answer, only smiled dreamily.

"You know," she amazed him by saying, "I didn't think he'd be bad. I was afraid he'd be a drunken bum, or a pansy . . . prove a number of things!"

"Bet you," Dell said vigorously, "the boys not less than 40,000 dollars worth of this stuff in you. Bet you the club membership, actual anything you like!"

"Against . . ." Susanne's white fingers glowed in a tiny frown, "against not seeing me again? I finished triumphantly, still more bold . . . I'm not a girl, I'm a lady . . . body that forfeits a bet is a . . . tramp!"

"No tramp am I," Dell whispered softly, and the music stopped, just as Susanne approached him again, and Caleb Forbush.

Caleb Forbush invited Susanne to the four places she selected to dance with Caleb Forbush, and twilight was sifting her fragrant hair in purple dusk over the countryside, when Caleb Forbush, as a true gentleman home, and turned the car homeward.

"How did this happen?" she asked Dell, after they had driven better than half an hour. "I mean . . . how you and I, alone like this?"

He chuckled, "I believe," he reminded her lightly, "I mentioned that you didn't know about my business methods!"

Susanne's face reflected blankly, uneasily.

"Tomorrow," he went on gravely, "you join the Meadowvale Country Club or else . . . by your own admission, become a tramp! Caleb Forbush is sold!"

CHAPTER 13

A WOMAN'S LOT DEFINED

Susanne had two good reasons for being glad that Sky had found her new found success. Experience told her that he would never understand about Dell Langley, nor if he could be so terribly jealous of Dell Langley's big, manly dad.

The second, was the fact that below the surface emotion must go to pay the Meadowdale Country Club dues. It was good business to join the club for the connections with the people she wanted to make her friends with, and wouldn't like it. She knew he wouldn't.

"What'd you want to go cruising around with Caleb Forbush and his wife for, Susanne?" he'd say, "They're a high-hat bunch, all of 'em. Women smoke like an exhaust, and drink gin. And they all do too much free-reeling for me, Susanne!"

No. Sky must not know. Not just yet.

Later, when she'd made enough to show him a fat bank account of commissions, she'd have a logical explanation for any criticism he made.

After it dawned on Susanne, with guilty swiftness, that Sky was unusually morose and silent.

"What's the matter, Sky," she took the dish towel from his lax hands and tilted his head to meet the glance of anxiety, "you look tired out. Maybe you'd better give up this Meadowdale idea."

"I'm all right," Sky looked darkly at the pile of plates and dishes, and put them away in the cupboard. "Listen, Susanne's on R. E. It's the dizzy dumbbells we have to instruct that wear us out!"

Susanne's heart stumbled into the one sentence that would mean the end of Sky's present happy temper, "I'll make a pile of money, so you can get out of it, Sky. But you'll have to be patient, and go to commercial flying!"

Sky's head bowed to grim lines, and he slammed the cabinet door that closed over the dishes rattled.

"Listen, Susanne, why don't you think I'm in this dizzy racket? Because I'm not! I'm in it for you. Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labour, announced in the view of the charges against the former Conservative government, that it alone was responsible for Canada's unemployment.

"We are not equipped even to maintain our normality," he said, "and nets referring to the absence of reference to national defence from the Speech from the Throne. He said the House would await with interest a statement from Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence.

Mary Ann Appointed

The proposal to remove the gold clause from contracts to pay was one of the most important pieces of legislation forecast in the speech, Mr. Bennett said. He could imagine the reaction abroad if borrowers were forced to be content with paying back money at very legal lender in the country of issue.

Increasing in number and vehemence was the attack being made on democratic government, said Mr. Bennett. Anything the government could do to strengthen democratic institutions would receive the support of the opposition.

Compulsory voting, he said, might be considered but, more particularly, the governments would have to think of the well-being of the people, regardless of the immediate political fortunes of any group or party.

Trade Treaties Help

Enactment of trade agreement with United States, ending the trade war with Japan and negotiation of trade relations with Russia had contributed greatly to increased trade and the well-being of international relations, Mr. Mackenzie King said.

"For years my Right Honorable friend has been talking about reciprocal trade and said it was a good thing," the Prime Minister said. "Now he has come under his administration and would not have any of it. Why the change?"

Replying to Mr. Bennett's reference to the Wheat Board, the Prime Minister said the government had full authority to fix a condition for the marketing of the wheat crop. The government had conferred with members of the board and with the law officers of the Crown and had been assured it could proceed with the marketing scheme.

In closing the Prime Minister discussed unemployment, which was not decreasing in proportions to the increase in the numbers being employed. He considered that the House legislation and finances which he said would come down later in the session.

RESTORATION

surance that the loss would be covered—per $20,000.

Large shipments of glass, window frames and plastering material had arrived at the scene of the fire. Workmen, bricks and twenty-five trash basket forms were one of the many items which suffered destruction, and these were being packed rapidly while the other damage is cleaned up.

Officials Surprised

Officials were surprised at the comparatively small extent of the loss and the few prisoners who made their escape. Many of those who visited gounds and police to believe a number would be found in the cells, hiding of work gangs during the rioting. Hearing the consequences of disturbances, the majority of those prisoners remained hidden in barns and other buildings on the grounds for several hours after the disorders ceased.

It was this circumstance which led officials to believe at one time 150 men had fled. The fact that only nineteen check-ups were made that afternoon indicated that the fugitives returning, they did their best to remain unobserved, so the confusion was not lessened.

Through the agencies of Orbit Construction Co., Ltd., and Provincial City Police Force, 23 escaped prisoners have been rounded up to-night. Of this total about half surrendered of their own accord through hunger and discouragement, or because of the necessity offered for those who returned to work.

A dozen uniform guards carry grounds of the reformatory. This is the first time that guns in the 22-year-old institution that the guards have been armed, but as understood the prisoners, still kept in their cells, have not emerged from their ugly temper.

Country Sent Sheet.

The sight of Canada through to start them snarling and shouting in sad, discordant voices, Mr. Bennett. Some of the prisoners, however, indulged in musical expressions of their feelings by singing.

Mr. Neelands said the wreckage looked like a cyclone had struck the was. In the chapel, for instance, the pews and pulpit were piled in the woodwork was charred. The only section not in the end of the room was the only thing untouched by the management was planning to have it redecorated in a few days.

In the auditorium books were piled in the floor, and Mr. Neelands said the books were mostly hacked from the public libraries and the gifts of generous great.

The wooden floor of the auditorium was damaged, however, and the roof was in large measure.

In the kitchen the first impression was the place had been gutted by fire and water. Everything in the thing that made it look so bad was the water. Pots, pans, dishes and ware of metal and they were filled with flood water from the rioting began. Plates and food both were strewn about.

Two Skylights Broken

Two skylights in the kitchen were broken, and the huge refrigerating machine, steam tables and other valuable articles were undamaged.

The hospital, too, was supposed to have been wrecked. But a few panes of glass in the windows were stored it so the doctor and nurses on duty there had a peaceful Sunday night were able to return.

Dr. J. R. Mullin, governor of the reformatory, had no hesitation yesterday in attributing the riot to a "host of ten or twelve agitators." The governor insisted there was no basis for complaint regarding the quality or quantity of the food.

Mr. Neelands said the riot was motivated by dissatisfaction with the meals and also anger because the prisoners were denied into the reformatory at Christmas.

INCREASED

industry was made by Lionel Chevrier (Lib. Montreal), who said the present indications of economic revival were largely due to the preference unless there was a better distribution of wealth and a greater purchasing power in the hands of its responsibilities to labor.

He favored the principle of minimum wages, maximum hours of labor, but emphasized that industrial worker against conditions detrimental to his health. If this House has the authority it will do so," he said. "Federal parliament the weapon of the Canadian people to used against offending industries.

Western wheat made an early debut in the House when Hon. Norman charged the government with violating the Wheat Board Act by dumping the board from the duty of storing wheat at a fixed minimum price.

He referred to the course taken in the suspension of the act for a fixed price was continued at 87½c per bushel. The Wheat Board Act, he buy unless the market price fell below 90 cents. This action, said Mr. Bennett cut out the guarantee to the possibility of sharing in the advantages of a rising market.

Mr. Bennett said he rejoiced in the unanimity of opinion that throughout the government would have some explaining to do in connection with the dumping of wheat on the people needing unemployment relief.

The current prosperity was not due to the action of any government, Canada was just moving along with the other nations of the world in the upswing in world trade.

Opposition to Co-operate

Mr. Bennett said he would not full speed ahead with business when he knew the Conservatives should co-operate with the government in bringing the session to a close in the shortest possible time. He would represent Canada at the coronation of King George VI.

Prime Minister King followed the opposition leader and thanked him for his assurances of support and co-operation. He said he hoped that the Conservatives would accept the government's invitation to join the official delegation to the coronation.

Discussing economic recovery Mr. Bennett said the present government had taken office at the "zero." It had pursued the same policies as the Liberal government. Conservative government and the recovery now in evidence had begun in 1935.

Revenue increase during the current fiscal year would be largely due to the increased tax and the tax on corporate profits.

Unemployment relief was increasing. It was reported the number of persons receiving relief in December area was six per cent. greater than last year. Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labour, announced in view of the charges against the former Conservative government, that it alone was responsible for Canada's unemployment.

"We are not equipped even to maintain our normality," he said. Nets referring to the absence of reference to national defence from the Speech from the Throne. He said the House would await with interest a statement from Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence.

The proposal to remove the gold clause from contracts to pay was one of the most important pieces of legislation forecast in the speech,

Belleville's Junior Redmen Suffer First Loss of Season In Hard Checking Contest

Peterboro Wins 3-2 With Winning Goal Just Before Time

ONLY ONE PENALTY

Storms And Cain Are Marksmen For The Losing Team

Peterborough, Ont., Jan. 19 (CP)—Belleville's junior "B" hockey team suffered its first defeat of the season here last night when the Peterboro Colts took a 3-2 win to gain first place in the group standing. Playing a hard checking game the heavy boys lost before some 600 fans the two well matched squads dished up a smart battle. Good hockey was out of the question as a rolling puck - made stickhandling and passing impossible. Belleville started off strong with two goals in the first period, the Colts rallying one late in the frame. The homesters got the other in the second and the winning marker with four minutes left to play.

There was little to choose between the teams, both showing better checking but the Colts doing more garnering up.

Despite the stiff checking on both sides only one penalty was drawn—Alex Storms, minor of the first frame, Storms banged a hot one into the home net in the third later in a scramble Cain put the Quints ever top. Just before the bell Kingston batted in Brady's rebound to make it 2-1.

Colts Come Up

The only counter in the middle session was scored by A. Clark a long one, that looked Sharpe in the Belleville nets. Connelly drew a penalty in the slugging period. Both sides lost hits a head in the third, banging away at the bombarding dies and nothing in the end the only goal came, on Webb's smile shot from the left hook in the last minute.

Belleville tossed the rest of the way but failed to tie it up. There were no stars in the game but they all worked hard. Belleville defence took good and Sharpe playing his first game in goal, made some fine saves. The two centremen looked effective all through and the others also went well. For the Colts, A. Clark, Hood and Wright were good while Harding in goal was hard to beat.

Lineups:

Belleville: Goal, Sharpe; defence, McGreavy and Derry; centre, Cain; wings, Tompkins and Morgan; subs, Storms, Robichaud, Jackson, Soansky and Green.

Peterborough: Goal, Harding; defence, A. Clark and Webb; centre, Starr; wings, Heal and Wright; subs, Kingston, Brady, Reid, Connelly and Jopling.

SI JOHNSON SIGNS CONTRACT WITH CARDS

St. Louis, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Manager Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis Browns last night announced Pitcher Jack Knott has been signed for 1937 and simultaneously the Cardinals revealed the receipt of the signed contract from Pitcher Silvio Johnson.

Johnson, a tall 28-year-old right-hander the Cards imported from Toronto last year. A veteran with Cincinnati and Boston clubs, he starts of two others before being shipped to Toronto, Johnson's big league record is 51 victories and 89 defeats.

MADOC LOST SCHOOL TUSSLE

Marmora H. S. Defeats Madoc 2 to 1 in Close Game

Madoc, Jan. 19 (Special)—The local high school team lost its first senior interscholastic game when they were defeated at the arena on Monday night by Marmora high school by the score of 2-1. The Marmora school officials of the visitors was too much for the Madoc team and Marmora should have scored two more goals.

The first period was fairly even, both scoring once. Hawthorne was the goal-getter for Madoc with Orville being the other. The second period was scoreless and the play was fast. Marmora put on pressure in the last but poor shooting kept them from scoring until just before the game ended when O'Neil beat Martin with a lovely shot to the corner. For Madoc Martin, Hawthorne and Faris were outstanding while the two O'Neils and Brooker and Kourt were the pick for the visitors.

Lineups:

Marmora: goal, Hart; defence, N. O'Neil; centre, Leonard; wings, Kourt and McFarlane; subs, Brooker, Lovell, Ives, Reynolds, McCrow and Gray.

Madoc: goal, Martin, defence, Hawthorne and Irvin; centre, Faris; wings, Hanton and Orville; subs, Stewart, Armstrong, Moon and Nayler.

Referee: Cousins, Deloro; Alexander, Madoc.

B. C. I. SCORE FIRST VICTORY IN SCHOOL LOOP

Defeat O. S. D. 5-1 in Game Played on Slow Ice

ALBERT EARNS TIE

Held Leading Picton Team to 2-2 Tie in Rough Contest

Les Shiels' B.C.I. d. v. S. senior interscholastic hockey team marched through to their first win in the Bay of Quinte Interscholastic hockey loop, in the C.O.S.S.A., with a 5 to 1 victory over O.S.D. Collegiate, while Albert College accepts and the Picton Collegiate students married ties as they battled to a two all tie in a twin bill of senior interscholastic hockey played at the Belleville Arena last night.

Good hockey was practically impossible, owing to the slushy condition of the ice, but despite both games diverting to galling system, at times, for the players as they watch their opponents' goal. In the first game, when the Albert College and Picton Collegiate failed to knot the score with Picton, much personal comment was made as the rough checking was in evidence in all zones. Goaltenders had their spills as the advancement of the puck in the usual orthodox manner was impossible and the fans got a very much good slash-bang hockey was dished up in the second game. The school spirit prevailed with the convention rule of cheering being given at intervals, as the student bodies endeavoured to encourage their favorites.

Picton Opens Scoring

In the initial game Picton opened the scoring late in the initial frame when Fleming, following the lanced hit very directly through the entire centre ice line, and scored the lone batted in his own rebound. The visitors' goal was short-lived however when Mady gaffed the rubber into the Picton net from an angle shot on a pass-out from McDonald, late in the canto to knot the count. The scrambles in front of the Albert College net, before Picton's goaltender Bamford, to put Picton 2-to 1 in the lead early in the second period. Yak made it two all in the third period and the game terminated with the count deadlocked. Albert's rough checking and much rough hockey was seen throughout the game, Behind Bamford to put Picton 2-to 1 in the lead early in the second period. Yak made it two all in the third period and the game terminated with the count deadlocked. Albert's rough checking and much rough hockey was seen throughout the game, Behind Bamford in the Picton nets was Gordon Hicks, at centre, and Grayden also turned in a fine game for Picton although inclined to rough matters, Mady, Yale and Gordon were the Albert College stars as Saunders and Clarke played good hockey in spots. The line-ups:

Picton: Goal, Bamford; defence, C. Welbanks, Collver; centre, Fleming; wings, Beckett, Grayden. Subs—Trumpour, Wannamaker, Lockyer, Fraser, Campbell, Saunders, Wallace, Coxall, Saunders; defence, Fraser, Campbell; centre, Brady; wings, Mady, Kidd and Yale. Subs—Clarke, B. Welbanks, G. Clouse, H. Campbell and Woolfit.

Summary

1st period—
Picton, Welbanks 15.45
Albert, Mady (McDonald) .. 18.10
Penalties—Fraser and Wannamaker (major) Collver.

B.C.I. Win

The local Collegiate pucksters proved too finished and smooth for the second and slight-cap affair by the score of 5 to 1 over the willing Oshawa lads, refereed by Frank Cunningham. The lads from the Dal Dead played a willing-ness to pass the puck, but combination play was not the forte, rubber, due to the condition of the ice. The B.C.I.I. pucksters, sensing this inability of handling the rubber, golfed the boot heel whenever in possession and later gained the O.S.D. goal to ultimately score 5 counters. The game was clearly contested, not a single penalty being necessary throughout.

Les Shiels opened the scoring for B.C.I. early in the middle canto as he banged home a 25-footer pass out. On a long shot, that beat Smith, Logie put the Collegiate's two up while Mady gaffed another in the middle stanzas as he made Bamford's goal to put the B.C.I. ahead 3 to 0 when the last period opened. The Collegiate's were around the O.S.D. goal like bees around a pore, Mady rifling home Logie's pass directly in front of Trainl. Willis Kimball broke loose and skated in on Hughes to score the Deaf boys only goal on a hard drive drive. Bowbotham terminated the scoring of the night, when he stuck Muir's pass on a nice combination play.

Both coaches started their scoring lines from lines and doubtless picked their star players for those positions. Trainl looked good in the O.S.D. nets for a beginner, however both starring from line-up stood out with Walton and Kimball playing inspired hockey for the B.C.I. second line while Mady late last and the former tricky.

The B.C.I. line-up: Trainl, defence, Molnyk, Pallie; centre, Bostian; wings, Mady and Kosik. Subs—Walton, Kimball, Nahyzsay Pierce, Perry, Byers and May. B.C.I. defence, Bowbotham and Muir; defence, O'Neill and Logie; centre, Muir; wings, Bowbotham and Amo. Subs —Cooper, Bishop, Pepper and Morris.

Summary

1st period—
No score.

Only Two Managers Favor Visiting Teams Receiving Share of the Gate Receipts

Gorman And Hart of Montreal Like The Idea

SMYTHE AGAINST

Leafs Meet Boston And Car. Better Position by Win

By The Canadian Press

At least two managers of National Hockey League teams don't see eye to eye with Tommy Gorman on the suggestion home teams around the circuit cut visiting teams in on gate receipts. The veteran pilot of Montreal Maroons wanted the league might collapse in three because some cities get all the big "gates" while others had a struggle to survive.

"Does Gorman think it's still Christmas?" snapped Glenn Loughlin of Chicago Black Hawks.

"What we have we'll hold," said Conny Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Lester Patrick of New York Rangers and Red Dutton of the New York Americans refused to be quoted but left little doubt they disapproved of the idea. Bill Tobin, business manager of Hawks, and Lou Gaffies, of Detroit Red Wings, also suggested Gorman bring it up at a league meeting.

Some support came from Cecil Hart of Canadiens, Montreal's other National Hockey League Club. Cecil Coleman of the "split gate" would come sooner or later.

Hart Likes Idea

"Of course, other clubs are not responsible for what we get at home, but there's no doubt Canadiens and Maroons are pulling them in on the road. All round it's a very good idea," said Hart.

Bowling along with the winds of success, Canadiens have few worries about gate receipts right now. Their 5-0 victory over Maroons Saturday night, attracted more than 12,000, largest professional hockey crowd Montreal has seen in five years.

Canadiens six points ahead of Maroons and on top of the Canadien division, play Rangers in New York tonight. Patrick's club trails Detroit Red Wings by six points in the United States section after keeping pace with the Stanley Cup champions up to the turn of the year.

Rangers will bustle tonight to end Canadiens' winning streak, but without the high flying Wings, have a tough assignment. Meeting Hawks, at Detroit, Chicago is still in the United States division rather far behind the pace of winning hockey last week.

The third game scheduled tonight brings Toronto Maple Leafs against the sturdy Bruins at Boston, both holding fourth place in their respective sections.

TRIBUTE IS PAID JOE HUMPHREYS

Receipts Used to Erect Plaque And Shaft Over His Grave

New York, Jan. 19 (AP)—Somewhere along the Broadway of the Great Beyond, Joe Humphreys must be smiling with condescending pride today.

The fistic world he left behind him, great and insignificant as human affairs go, paid tribute to the genial announcer with the silvery voice who called the blows in so many terrific and unqualified, deep admiration.

At Madison Square Garden, scene of Joe's greatest personal triumphs, the ring remained empty, shuffling parade of fight champions, fight fans and celebrities filing by their spokesmen, led by Postmaster Jim Farley, to the grave of the former Mayor Jimmy Walker, paid simple but impressive tribute to the departed.

"I'm one of those, perhaps, who has a great future behind him," he said. "I've had my fun human unit in that future I never shall forget—the Humphreys fun. Somehow, fun become the detractor of any man. He always left humor, owing to others and insisted on boosting them. He had to boost in every speech.

"I propose at least: 'To the winner—and still champion, Joe Humphreys.'"

Recalling Farley, long a close friend of the late Humphreys, also paid glowing tribute to his memory as a friend.

Receipts of the dinner, estimated at close to $10,000, will be used to erect a bronze plaque in Humphreys memorial plot in Woodlawn Garden and a shaft over his grave.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The All-American inefficiency of Brooklyn Dodgers, threatened by Cleveland's famous blunder in the Feller case, has made a noble comeback in the case of one John Vander Meer.

He is the young man who was voted the outstanding minor League player of 1936," and while this means little or nothing, men who know something about baseball think he's a great prospect. . . . Last year he elevated 206 and a member of the Durham Club of the Piedmont League. . . . This year he will play for Jersey City.

Vander Meer was in the Dodgers training camp two years ago under strange circumstances . . . John Heydler, then president of the National League, wanted to make an educational baseball film. . . . He sended what he vaguely described as "the typical American Boy" to make the leading role and asked Dave Driscoll, then Brooklyn business manager, to find one.

Driscoll found Vander Meer pitching in a Sunday School League baseball game. . . . That's the story, but the Dodgers didn't believe the kid could make the grade, so he got away from them.

Transition: It is the dinner in honor of Bill Terry, New York Giants and in the crowd are these strange bedfellows: Terry, Jimmy Walker, the gay promising Mayor who resigned, and Fiorello H. LaGuardia, boxing boss, now neither very gay nor very promising. . . . A negro named Joe Louis, hailed as the best heavyweight of the day, standing near the great gray-haired Jack Dempsey, with the inevitable comparison, Yawning Dempsey.

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

When the Peterboro intermediates take to the ice at the Arena versus the R.C.A.F. "Fliers" tonight, Coach Petes will have on their roster "Shrimp" McDougall, former professional player who was re-established as an amateur some time ago. McDougall played with the Kingston entry in American Association a few years ago, since when he has been coaching hockey teams in and around Peterboro and generally keeping himself in close connection with the game. All that is left to make one of the fastest hockey games in recent years to attract the fans to the arena is to have the mercury hover somewhat below the freezing point, with the convenience of the ladies, an attraction to the ladies' rest room, the north east entrance to the Arena, has been made at the foot of the north end stairway while gentlemen may enjoy a fag beneath the stairs. Also a smoking room has been provided. Both the Petes and the "Fliers" will be at full strength for the game, which the game hinges the group leadership. A large assignment of fans from the R.C.A.F. and Trenton are following the "Fliers" into town.

For the first period last night in Peterboro the home team had it on the homsters like the proverbial hoop around the barrel, but play being even thereafter. The ice was covered with slush, owing to the sunshine and mild weather, which naturally made good artistic hockey impossible. Cousins, Deloro was the fair condition, during the initial frame, the Trenantics looked to be the better team and were leading 2 to 1 when the second stanza opened. The Petes proved faster in the first period goal with only one second to play in the initial frame and tied matters in the second. Webb got the winning goal in the last stanza. The Colts and the local Petes have played two games that far this season, each winning on their home ice by one goal. Belleville was a loser by 2 and last in Peterboro 3 to 2. Both contests were fast and real sticky ice and it is to be hoped the championship game, will be played under more suitable hockey conditions, namely good fast ice. Bill Terry, of Stirling, and Cecil Quelch and now one of the famous Montreal Canadiens, are the two players selected as rival managers, but despite the fact the interested fans and admirers are going again the celestial city, they will be on hand to greet their fellow-townsmen, the Belleville Intermediates, as a 12,000 gate is realized. Tommy Gorman of the Maroons has suggested the visiting team should get a cut, but adopted throughout the league, but, as yet, no agreement anyway has been met with down-turned thumbs. If the Montreal clubs is forced to fold up, it never means Canada will be left with only two clubs in the National, the Toronto, Leafs and a Montreal entry, which would be a case for French-Canadian extraction.

The Ontario Amateur Basketball Association 1937 play-off dates were released today and, except for the winners mugs, be ready to enter the provincial play-offs on March 6th.—Eastern Ontario at Kingston, Toronto, Hamilton, March 13th.—Western Ontario at Toronto, Junior.

In order to introduce basketball in all of its ramifications the Belleville "Y" cagers, E.O.A.A.A. group leaders, are playing their fifth game of the season in the Armouries, Wednesday night, and without an admission fee being charged. The Campbell St. quints meet their diffent opposition of the season, the fast Queens University squad. The local hoopsters got away to a splendid start with a 21 to 20 victory over the Kingston "Y" squad over the week-end and a win Wednesday night should fortify them firmly in first place. Basketball has been popular in preminence in this city during the past few years. The game is thrilling, clean and the excitement from the start to the finish, Queens' salvage fleet a treat to the eye-ball, fans interested in seeing their initial basketball game and a free of charge Wednesday night. The reason for the game being played gratis is the fact the local would be wanted to see the "Independents" on a large floor and as no admission fee can be charged at the door for any sporting event presented in the Armouries. While all of this is going on in Demorest Hall, juniors pay off the Junior E.O.A.A.A. tilt against the Queens' Juniors, the game being played at the Collegiate gymnasium as part of a double-header.

In the death of William John "Dudley" Carson, Belleville has lost one of its most ardent supporters of sport, especially baseball. "Dudley" never missed a game either at home or away and when the Belleville Nationals were at the height of their power in Ontario "Dudley" could always be depended upon to be present to lend his vocal aid. He had many friends in this city and the surrounding district and especially respected among the railroad fraternity with whom he was connected for many years. To the wife and family in the hour of the deepest sympathy from a large circle of the sports fraternity.

The hand-writing on the wall indicates there will only be one pro hockey team in Montreal inside a very few years. We have witnessed the passing of major league hockey in Ottawa, and Hamilton and Quebec and now one of the famous Montreal clubs is on the block for sale. Despite the fact the interested fans and admirers are going again the celestial city, they will be on hand to greet their fellow-townsmen, the Belleville Intermediates, as a 12,000 gate is realized. Tommy Gorman of the Maroons has suggested the visiting team should get a cut, but adopted throughout the league, but, as yet, no agreement anyway has been met with down-turned thumbs. If the Montreal clubs is forced to fold up, it never means Canada will be left with only two clubs in the National, the Toronto, Leafs and a Montreal entry, which would be a case for French-Canadian extraction.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Best Gift

By E. P. O'Bryan

Jane pooped through the crisp, new curtains and saw Jim hurrying through the deepening twilight with a box in his hand.

The old darling. So he too had remembered that they had been married just two months today. Jim, the sniffy, orderly, Jim was just about perfect. Or, maybe he was just a shade touchy about that car of his, working over it, and coddling it as if it were a baby. But then a woman was lucky if a car was her only rival.

She heard Jim cautiously open the front door and suddenly she and rebellion were released in the kitchen. In a minute Jim came storming in empty handed, swept her off her feet and kissed her soundly. So the surprise was to be postponed till later.

Suddenly he stood and sniffed. "Woman," he said accusingly, "what's this I smell? Steak and fried onions, apple pie? What is this celebration?"

"As if you didn't know," said Jane enjoying his fooling.

"Know what?" his brow creased in well simulated bewilderment.

"Silly," she wrinkled her nose at him. "When do I eat?"

"Oh, all right" she pouted.

As she cleared the table after dinner she saw Jim slip into the front hall and impishly tiptoe after him. Silent and demure she stood where his hand fell over her as he backed out of the hall closet with the box in his hand.

He swung around startled, tried to hide the box behind him, laughed sheepishly, and stammered incoherently. She beamed at him and held out her hand for it and after a moment's hesitation he gave it to her.

She snapped the string in impatient anticipation, dropped the paper and lifted the cover. For a long moment she stared into the box, puzzled and disappointed. Something of black lacquer and nickel, a cross between an ear trumpet and an outlandish telephone met her eyes.

"But what is it?" she stammered.

"It's a new horn for the car," Jim explained, suddenly effusive. "I—ah—I thought I'd put it on this evening."

"Oh yes, by all means," said Jane with stiff lips and turned blindly back to the kitchen.

With a long breath of relief Jim walked out the front door, around the house to the garage in back. For the next hour he was lost in the delights and intricacies of exchanging horns. When the job was finished he crawled into the front seat and lit a cigarette.

Women were funny. Now take Jane. She'd cooked him a swell dinner, went to all sorts of bother to please him and then when she saw that horn she gave a frown up on him.

He'd drive the car around the block and try out the new horn. The car roared softly to life. Jim twiddled with gas and spark levers till it was idling smoothly. He cocked a listening ear, over the dashboard. His eyes fixed absently on a half dozen grains of rice figuring gently on the floor.

Rice! His wedding day. Just two months ago today. Light dawned on him. So that was what Jane was celebrating, bless her heart! And she thought he had a present for her. Poor kid. He'd drive down now and buy out the town for her.

That was some dinner. Almost too much. Made him feel sleepy. Somewhere a horn was blowing—down the alley—growing fainter.

Jane had cleared the table and stacked the dishes in a cheerful, fiery haze of misery. Her face burned, her throat ached, her heart was a dragging lump of lead in her breast.

Jim didn't love her any more. He could remember to buy his old car a present, but he couldn't remember to buy his bride a gift on their second month's anniversary. He had always faintly resented his absorption in his car and now suddenly she hated the car with all the fury of a woman scorned.

She slammed the precious, new china through a reckless dishwashing, piled it away with trembling hands. She sat just shaking out the dish towel when she heard her family noisily, and drawn, conscious—the blowing of the new horn. It was like a slap in the face, the jeering mockery of a hated rival, ribald laughter at her plight.

Suddenly she was frenzy and new terror, she tore open the door, raced down the walk and flung open the garage door. Jim's unconscious body lay slumped against the steering wheel, his shoulder heavy against the button of the new horn.

Hours later when the pulmotor squad had pulled away and the curious crowd had thinned, Jane knelt beside —Jim's bed. He gave her a wan, troubled smile.

"I was just going to buy you an anniversary present, sweetheart, and now I haven't got it. Would tomorrow do?"

"Dear heart," Jane answered in an agony of repentance, "I have the best, the only gift I want in all the world tonight—your life."

City and District News

LITTLE INFLUENZA REPORTED IN CITY

Despite rumours of influenza prevalent in other districts and communities, a decline in respiratory diseases during the past week or so has been noted by nurses of the local Victorian Order. It was stated this morning. We're nearly as near as we did have a little while ago," it was reported.

WES CRAY MAY BE CHOSEN AS WARDEN

According to reports emanating from County Council circles, Mr. Wesley Cray here of Thurlow, will in all probability be one of the candidates for the position of Warden of the County at the election which takes place in Shire Hall this afternoon when the inaugural session of the 1937 Hastings County Council gets under way.

Missing among the faces of the new County Council will be that of William West, Warden of the Council last year, who was defeated in the 1936 municipal contest by Thomas Cranston. With the exception of five members the Council will be the same as that of a year ago.

JANUARY BUSINESS MAINTAINS FIRM TONE

Business in general is still maintaining a firm tone in nearly all lines in the city and in many cases is beyond expectations for this period of the year, according to statements of store owners during a brief survey made this morning. "Yesterday after Christmas we just expect a decided let down in buying; that wasn't the case this year. Buying has extended well into the season and is fairly heavy. This is the customary 'pre-sale' period and our store has been well filled for the past few days," said the manager of one establishment. Purchases during the past week or so have been from stores and radios to immediate needs in clothing.

NO 1936 PLATES SEEN HERE TODAY

Car and truck licence plates of the 1936 vintage were conspicuous by their absence on city streets and highways this morning while the new familiar red and white 1937 variety dominated the scene as police of the local force and higher way department officials made their first serious scanning of vehicles for the new plates since January 1st. With the dead line for the old plates set for midnight last night, however, it is believed that the majority of motorists have now secured their licence plates and little trouble is expected by the law in enforcing the regulation.

PURCHASES NEW ZEALAND SEED PEAS

As an indication of the scarcity of seed in this section as the present season gets started under way, a local business man, on this city, has had three carloads of seed peas purchased by him in New Zealand recently would arrive in Belleville soon to the order placed. The first car part of the consignment which has been realized from the vessel will be held at Wellington, Prince Edward County, where the annual Pea Growers' Field Day next summer is held as one cause of the scarcity of this particular seed.

"Seventy-five or eighty per cent of the Belleville area's seed is purchased to buy seed next spring," declared a seed merchant of this city this morning. "Seed grain of all varieties will be scarce, although there is a fairly hay supply to be had in Quebec. Transportation seems fairly good, however, and owing to boost the cost we will have to pay more shortly."

Appointed To Bathing Beach Committee

At the regular dinner meeting of the local Y's Men's Club held last evening under the auspices of the social sfcoot, popular members of the club were appointed as representatives on the Bathing Beach Committee.

Interested Citizens Asked To Attend Early Meeting on B. B. Project

To complete plans for an early start upon the city bathing beach project next spring, a meeting of work is expected to be carried to a conclusion, a number of the executive of all interested citizens, representatives of the various clubs, organizations and other bodies who have been named on the committee will be called together, it was stated today by President of the Community Service Club, Mayor Mikel, to volunteer their services during the coming year, or wish to state their interest in the project at the meeting are asked to list their names at the local Board of Commerce either by telephone or in person, it was stated.

USES OLD FISH ROD FOR CAR AERIAL

From Mah-Jong to Monopoly in indoor sports; from the flags of the nations to flowers in the field in the dog girls, and from those to the furry tails of various animals in adornment of the cars of their automobile radiators, these things depict the trend of the minds of Mr. and Mrs. John Public, during the past few years. The latest fad, apparently is the installation in cars of various gadgets which perform the function of the radio aerials. Queer looking wire contraptions have been noticed by bobbling the tops of several cars, but it remains for one enterprising gentleman to mix a spot of economy with genius in providing one of the new-fangled aerials for his car.

Sticking straight in the air from the top of the roof of his car like the favorite weapon of a Bengal Lancer on parade, is a common steel fishing pole. At the bottom it is insulated and connected with the battery and the radio set installed inside the car. Waving and bending in the breeze like a slim reed when the car is in motion, this answer to a radio fan's prayer does as good a job as would one of a more expensive nature.

TUESDAY MARKET

The threatened rise in the price of potatoes which was forecasted by vendors on the city market last Saturday did not materialize here today, as a lone purveyor of farm and dairy produce offered the vegetable at the same price which featured these commodities over the week end.

NO WORK AS YET FOR THAWING MACHINE

Frost commenced to slowly return back into the ground last night and today as the result of chilling temperatures during the past 36 hours, but as yet waterworks department officials report no freeze up of services or other parts of the system. For the first time since its purchase by the city several years ago the machine has not been needed as so late a date.

START OUTDOOR RINK

With the application of a thin film of water being sprayed on the surface of the ice which was being put on the skating rink of the Belleville Y's Men's Club for public skating, the only suitable warm rooms in the club house for skaters, has been put in readiness for use in the city this winter.

STEERING GEAR OF CAR BREAKS

Vehicle Goes Into Ditch Breaking Telephone Pole at Base

When the steering gear of an automobile, which was driven by Mrs. M. O. Shoultz, Brockville, broke while it was travelling on the highway, struck a telephone pole and broke it off at the base just outside of the city limits early today, the person and the automobile though the automobile was badly damaged.

Mrs. Shoultz was proceeding westerly and was only a short distance from the city limits when the steering apparatus became defective, causing the loss of control of the vehicle thereof. The vehicle struck the pole with the result mentioned at the bottom. The falling pole missed striking the car, but came to rest on the highway to the north ditch. Motorcycle Patrolman Ernest Ellis investigated and reported the matter to be purely accidental. The damaged pole was later towed into a local garage for repairs.

E. B. Cronk, of Reid Street, reported the theft of a spare tire by the Belleville police authority early today. The tire was removed from the rear rear of his car during some time during the night, his discovered, when he went to drive the car today. The alleged thief left a definite clue in the matter of a glove, it was reported by police. Other police activities were quiet and only routine arrests were necessary in Belleville, leaving the blotter practically clear for county constable who sought warm sleeping quarters at the police station last night.

Blazing Chimneys Create a Fire Hazard

"We are fortunate that we have not had a great many serious fires in the city during the winter months," declared Chief Lynch today. "The great number of chimney fires which have occurred during the cold weather set in has been well above the average and fortunately they have been due to defective all blazes with very little damage. However, we cannot in public interest render great assistance in minimizing this fire hazard by having the chimneys cleaned at intervals, and to see that they are properly cleaned."

Fire squads answered an alarm at Bridge and Pinnacle streets yesterday afternoon where a blazing chimney was emitting clouds of smoke. The fire was reduced with no property damage.

3 Teen-Aged Youths Sent Home to Toronto

Foot weary, tired and sick of their ventures to seek adventure, three runaway lads from Toronto early approached the police station last night and after admitting to Sergeant Arthur Booth they had run away from their respective homes, stated they wanted to go home. The trio, who gave their names as James Richardson, 14, Rushton Park Crescent, Wilfred Mercier, 13 Adams Ave., and James Smith, 17 Adams Ave., all of Toronto and 15 years of age respectively.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Jan. 19 (CP)—Industrial stocks took the downward course and Toronto Exchange and losses were gathered among the interlisted leaders at early afternoon. Ford A was off a full point to 20, Smellers lost a couple of points and Canadian Cement issues were boarded for International Petroleum, Imperial Nickel, Brazilian, C.P.R., Walkers Common and Industrial Alcohol A.

Steels, implements and miscellaneous shares weakened with the leaders which were influenced by the heaviness of the New York front. Montreal Power and Shawinigan slipped back about a half point each.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 19 (CP)—Lower London were listed among the base metal listings downward from the opening as weakness developed around Noranda, Hudson Bay, Wallace Amulet, Sherritt, Pend Oreille and Alderman at the lower notice side. Oils were definitely strong and the golds irregularly higher.

Prices for the oils bulged to show gains of 10 to cents on Anglo Huronian, Calgary-Edmonton, Home and Dalhousie and Royalite gained about 5 points.

Heavy action in Paymaster and Preston with price gains of about 10 cents each stood out in the gold section.

WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 19 (AP)—Darkening labor clouds in the United States took another blow today in the stock market barometer.

While trading pace slowed appreciably after a fast opening, declines of fractions to two points were registered in the last half hour.

With automotive strikers clashing with police at Detroit, and no break apparent in the General Motors conflict, industrial leaders and investment forces were inclined to stand aside.

International Nickel tilted slightly lower among industrial shares, while Dome, Canadian Pacific and Distillers Corp.-Seagrams ruled even to a fraction. Substantial Steel Shore held steady in curb market dealings. Canadian dollars were unchanged at 99.90% cents.

Shares on the offside included Chrysler, down 2 points; Briggs Mfg., Electric Auto-Lite, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Montgomery Ward, Packard, New York American and American Water Works.

While unemployment relief has continued as a major problem, the government has striven essentially to encourage re-employment, and there has been a steady reduction in the relief rolls as men have been re-absorbed into industry. A substantial direct employment project, such as road building, the Forest Resources Regulation Act at the last session, is an example of this policy. Another is the encouragement of useful employment. Under the provisions of this act, extensive life limits on farm loans have been made by the province and operations started on cancer. Similarly the government will continue in all practicable ways to foster and stimulate employment during the coming year.

Wage Levels Increased

The Department of Labor has been instrumental in increasing wage levels in a number of important industries while the Department of Municipal Affairs has continued to progress in placing distressed municipalities on a firmer financial footing. Further aid to these municipalities will be afforded by legislation relieving them entirely of any responsibility for Mothers' Allowances and Old Age Pensions.

Mining Reaches New Peaks

Mining reached new peaks of production and employment in 1936, and furnished a striking example of the benefits of conservation. The Dominion and Province combined to assist in the development of the new areas, and the Hydro Commission of Ontario, benefiting from its northern properties, enabled many new mines to reach production. Three direct benefits resulted: New wealth was produced, many men were given jobs in the mines, and the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway benefited by increased freight, had substantially higher revenue. No better example can be found of well-directed expenditures.

Farm Produce Values Rise

A steady improvement in the value of farm products has been a material benefit to Ontario's basic industry. In particular, collectives marketing of farm crops and re-establishment of the sale of these upon the Ontario Produce boards have had their effect in strengthening prices. The outlook for livestock is especially encouraging. The opening of a school of agricultural study at Kemptville and Guelph show a growing interest in agricultural matters. Arrangements have been made to coordinate the work of the provincial and Federal Departments of Agriculture.

The government's policy with respect to the administration of justice in the magistrate courts and with respect to judicial offices has resulted in substantial economies as well as in a very satisfactory increase in revenue. The work of consolidating the statutes is being done by the Attorney General's department and by the law clerks under the direction of the Legislative Assembly. The cost will be substantially less than that of previous revisions and it is hoped the new statutes will take place during the current year.

The commission has continued its work during the past year in connection with 810 miles of line constructed or under construction, in 1936, and covering 5,000 miles of line ranging from $2.00 to $1.00. Marked reductions in the rates charged have also been of material benefit to industry and power users generally in the province.

Amalgamation of Departments

Amalgamation of the Department of Northern Development with the Department of Mines, announced during the past year will permit of further economies in administration. A comprehensive program of construction and reconstruction is being prepared for this year. The objects of this program will be to determine, from time to time more and more densely traveled portions of the highways which require to be rapidly as possible, dangerous level crossings; to meet the growing needs of the motor roads and to provide in the northern part of the province, to co-operate with the Federal Dominion government in the construction of tracks leading to the mineral fields which have hitherto been practically inaccessible and to co-operate to the fullest extent possible with the counties and townships in the construction of secondary roads.

Improved Instruction Sought

The curriculum of the Department of Education has been digested during the past year chiefly to the end that instruction in the teaching profession with a wider experience in teaching before receiving appointments to the staff. The courses of study are contemplated, which will provide more practical opportunities for the better adjustment of the subjects of study to the capabilities and interests of the students.

Tourist Traffic Increase

Figures show that the 10 per cent. increase in tourist traffic, with expenditures for a considerable sum this year, from which many classes of our people benefit immediately.

The game and fisheries department has also contributed to this lucrative traffic by restocking our lakes and streams and developing an interest in the conservation of wild life. Another trout-rearing station is approaching completion near North Bay, and other stations are being enlarged and improved. It is of interest to note that in 1936 more non-resident hunting and fishing licenses were issued than in the peak year of 1929.

Department of Health

During the past year, the department of health has made a special effort to reduce the ravages of tuberculosis, and has provided support for the construction of sanatoria in northern and eastern Ontario. Plans for the development will accommodate additional patients are under review. Arrangements have been made for isolation to curtail the use of endemic phenobarbital and other habit-forming drugs.

Roosevelt Rededicates Himself and New Deal to Reconstruction Plans

4-CORNERED PACT IDEA ABANDONED, ITALIANS STATE

Unfavorable Reaction to Italian Proposal Given as Cause

SPANISH TENSION

Old Locarno Signatories "Almost Radically Changed"

Rome, Jan. 20 (AP)—Italy has abandoned the idea of a four-power pact with Germany, Great Britain and France, well-informed persons said today.

They gave these reasons for the decision:

1. The tension over Spain is too great.

2. France is unwilling to part with her Soviet alliance.

3. Britain has reached unfavorable to tentative feelers on such a pact.

Virginio Gayda, the authoritative Fascist writer, described the Locarno pact of the four-power idea in Cabinets of Thais.

He said the positions of "some signatories" to the old Locarno agreements were "almost radically changed, owing to the new undertakings they have entered into," he added.

Italy has no intention of returning to a four-power pact."

BILL AIMED TO PROTECT HYDRO

Opposition Opposed But Bill Read First Time by 64-14

Toronto, Jan. 20 (CP)—When the Ontario Legislature convened this afternoon two bills aimed at protecting the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission from court judgements will be introduced by Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways. Mr. McQuesten with Attorney General Arthur W. Roebuck represents the government on the Hydro Commission.

With a bill given first reading at the opening session yesterday, the two to appear today are designed to protect the Hydro Commission from any judgment against it, the chief of which may be obtained against it as a result of cancellation of Quebec power company contracts. At the 1935 session legislation cancelling the contracts the Commission held with Quebec power was passed and court action followed, resulting in two judgments against the Commission, one of which the government has appealed to the privy council.

Following a somewhat heated debate the government yesterday won first reading of its initial Hydro bill by 64 to 14 and the first of the opposition opposition opposed introduction of the bill. Second and third legislation it was decided to bring down the Mackenzie emergency legislation" this afternoon.

Divorced Husband Gets Real Bad News

New York, Jan. 20 (CP)—The innocent wife in a divorce action "may thereafter tread the primrose path of moral relaxation while her divorced husband must continue to support her according to a ruling of Norman S. Dike, Brooklyn court referee.

Dike reported against the application of Everett Waddey, Jr., of Montclair, N.J., for reduction of alimony he has been paying to Mrs. Ethel Waddey of Wawa, Pa.

Waddey petitioned for reduction in his alimony on account of the former wife's association with the "shadier" set.

In his ruling, the referee declined to recommend the reduction saying that evidence of altered immoral conduct on the part of the wife I am strongly tempted to acquiesce, but I cannot hold that this relieves the defendant of the obligation fixed by the decree of divorce.

The innocent wife in the divorce action, Referee Dike continued "may thereafter tread the primrose path of moral relaxation while the husband is confined to the steep and thorny path of financial responsibility."

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Sault Ste Marie, Ont., Jan. 20 (CP)—Marksmen have been going north of the city lately to practice knocking bottle caps off a board with a rifle. Best record was by Jock Burns, who knocked down 9 out of 10 at 50 feet. Variation was provided by Joe Williams, who set a match stick on top of a fence post and took aim with a shotgun.

"Watch me knock that joking" he said as he fired.

After the explosion he found the top of the post blown away.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Jan. 20 (CP)—William Lynch, prospector, advises aspiring authors to write on this vicinity. Noticing the mice were active on a recent storm, he got out his peppercier's "pen and gathered the clients of mice he could find. After boiling it down, he produced a quantity of mouse ink.

New York, Jan. 20 (AP)—Ferde Grofe, gathering acclaim for many years as arranger and composer of American music, concluded his first concert performance of his "symphony in steel" last night.

An outstanding percussion section gave heaven the sound effects heard by the ear of the phony—a pneumatic drill, the rumble of a rolling mill, the siren of an overhead crane.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 20 (AP) —Casper Goldsmith's automobile was at least a fine one. But it tangled with a freight train, but Casper and the incident in a dead cost Court case today that grew out of the accident.

Judge George Sample raised Goldsmith must pay $412.22 for damages to the freight car derailed by his machine.

New York, Jan. 20 (AP)—The American museum of natural history plans a flying expedition from New York to the New Guinea highlands to collect mammals, birds and plants and study the life history of the tribes and animals in those regions, it became known today.

The expedition, which will start from here next November, will be in charge of Richard Archbold of the museum's mammal department.

Hitler Mouthpiece Calls It 'Redundant'

Berlin, Jan. 20 (CP-Havas)—Foreign Secretary Eden's speech in the House of Commons was one of "total redundant appeal to Germany of which may be obtained against it as a result of cancellation of Quebec power company contracts. At the 1935 session legislation cancelling the contracts the Commission held with Quebec power was passed and court action followed, resulting in two judgments against the Commission, one of which the government has appealed to the privy council.

President's Wife and Mother Make History of Their Own

Mrs. Roosevelt First to See Husband's Second Inaugural

USE FAMILY BIBLE

Washington, Jan. 20 (AP)—When President Roosevelt takes the right hand and takes the oath of office Thursday, Mrs. Roosevelt, at his left, two women who have not held public office but have made a little of their own.

His wife—tall, slender, 52-year-old Eleanor Roosevelt—will be permit White House glories to dim the brilliance of interest in social welfare, is the first president's wife to be present for her husband's two presidential elections. Furthermore, she is the first since Julia Dent Grant to see her husband's inauguration.

His mother—the stately and still vital, 82-year-old Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt — who had to shed her sheltered. New York dowager's life when her son became president, is the first woman to see her son take the inaugural oath twice.

Behind and around them will stand children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. They will see, under the president's left hand, the Bible on which Bible which the dowager has treasured in her Hyde Park home.

In the past four years the wife of the president has traveled many yards of miles acting as "eyes and ears" for her husband at federal projects scattered over the district. She has received almost as much mail as he.

The mother finally gave up the fight to circumvent it which she was accustomed. She donned sables and furs and sailed like a queen-mother into New York on every birthday bally for her son. She attended his political rallies, and proudly led about an injury to her leg this summer for fear she might risk her son's acceptance of his remonstrance.

But she was there.

On the last election night she stayed awake into the small hours playing hostess to jubilant Democratic party leaders.

"Franklin, you know, has always been a very good boy. I think very well of him," she said.

SWOLLEN STREAMS BATTER LEVEES IN MIDDLEWEST

Anxiety Expressed For Safety of Thousands in Area

FARMS INUNDATED

Ohio River is 4.6 Feet Over its Flood Stage

Chicago, Jan. 20 (AP) Baltimore-Ohio streams flooded levees with unabated fury in the United States middle-west today, sweeping over lowlands and forcing hundreds of families from their flood-engulfed homes.

Anxiety for the safety of thousands of other persons was heightened by forecasts of more rain in portions of Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Illinois and Arkansas.

Red Cross officials said at least 1000 families evacuated homes in the vicinity of Kennett and Senath, Mo., where the raging St. Francis river crossed through at least three levee breaks. Weary emergency workers redoubled their efforts today to restrain the stream.

Thousands of acres of farm lands were inundated during the Missouri-Arkansas line, Monette and Black Oak, Ark., and the rich farming area of northeastern Arkansas faced flood waters.

Several Hundred Evicted.

Southern Indiana flood waters evicted several hundred persons from their homes. The White river went past flood stage, threatening the Hazleton levee which protects thousands of acres.

Rivers in southern Illinois rose steadily. Many communities were in danger zone packed their belongings and fled to higher ground. The city council of Mt. Carmel, Ill., appealed for shelter for refugees.

Thirty-five persons found shelter in a suburban Cincinnati church. Scores of homes on riverside streets were without gas and heat, endangering the lives of many persons affected with influenza.

The turbulent Ohio River reached 56.6-foot mark at Cincinnati early midnight, 4.6 feet over flood stage. Meteorologist H. W. Devering predicted a 60-foot crest despite the prospect of light rains. At flood stage 52 feet, the river was 100-miles length, the Ohio was expected to reach a 60-foot crest at Ashland, Ky., and Portsmouth, O., late today or early Thursday.

Whitby Police Chief Knows His Answers

Whitby, Ont., Jan. 20 (CP)—An "item of 25 cents for burial of a cat was approved at this Ontario county town at its council meeting last night.

"How much for burying a policeman?" a councillor asked the Chief of Police.

"Twenty-six cents," he replied. "I usually dig two cents for an ordinary cat, but there is an extra 5-cent for a skunk," he smiled.

EX-LIEUTENANT IS LIBERATED

Father of Convicted Officer Dies of "Heart Attack"

London, Jan. 20 (AP)—Former Lt. Norman Baillie-Stewart, serving a five-years term for violating the official secrets act, was released from Maidstone jail today because of the death of his father, Col. C. D. Baillie-Wright.

The father died at Bristol yesterday. News of the death had at first been withheld from Baillie-Stewart.

Nearing the end of his imprisonment, Baillie-Stewart, a former lieutenant, was told in Maidstone jail, where he is ill of influenza, that his father died yesterday at Bristol of a "heart attack".

Throughout his son's sensational trial in 1932 retired Col. Baillie-Wright's faith never wavered but he collapsed several times after the cashiered army lieutenant was imprisoned.

Each time his wife—whose hair turned gray during the years she carried messages between her husband and her son—nursed him back to health.

BOMB WRECKED MADRID STREET AND SUBWAY WHERE CIVILIANS HUDDLED

Made by an English ex-officer a rebel airman in on of the streets now fighting with the international brigade in defence of Madrid, this photo shows a bomb crater made by where many had taken shelter, and an unknown number were killed. Note the tramlines twisted into the air by force of the explosion.

POPE'S STRENGTH BELIEVED EBBING

Condition Today is Reported to Have Become Worse

Vatican City, Jan. 20 (AP) — A semi-official Vatican source said today it was no longer possible to "disguise" the fact Pope Pius was sinking.

Continuous inroads, this source said, were being made on his reserve strength by attacks of pain and loss of sleep.

The Holy Father's condition was reported to be worst this morning after it was thought in the early hours he had passed another crisis in his illness.

Dr. Amisia Milani, who left the Vatican at 2.30 a.m. after attempting to soothe His Holiness to sleep with sedatives, returned with the dawn and remained in the Papal bedchamber through the early part of the day.

As the Pope's chief physician wearily entered his automobile and was whisked beyond the dim Vatican walls by his brief rest, the atmosphere of relief that swept through the Vatican was transmitted to the night-watchers around the guarded gates.

The crowd gathered quietly in the Piazza of St. Peter yesterday as reports spread through Rome of the sudden turn for the worse in the Holy Father's condition.

Extra detachments of police were sent by Premier Mussolini to keep the crowds out of the Vatican confines as they lingered through the dawn, raw night to hear of the slight rally.

The Pontiff, who is 79, was stricken Dec. 5 with partial paralysis complicated by the afflictions of age. He now is believed, because of severe pains in his right arm, to have angina pectoris.

PETERBORO YOUTH SENT TO PRISON

Companion in Crime Sent to Reformatory And Both Given Lashes

Peterboro, Ont., Jan. 20 (CP)—Penitentiary and Reformatory terms with ten strokes of the strap were ordered for two teen-age youths who pleaded guilty today before Judge Sheldon Smoke on joint charges of attempted armed robbery and assault.

Gordon Druce, 19, was given three years in Kingston Penitentiary and ten strokes of the strap. John Wilcox, 17, was given two years less one day definite and one year indefinite in Guelph Reformatory with ten strokes of the strap.

7-Year-Old Boy Saves Companion Until Help Arrives

Holding one end of his hockey stick while his chum, nine-year-old Eddie Clarke, grimly grasped the other after having broken through the ice of the Rosemore quarry yesterday afternoon while skating, little Billy Bennett, 7, Rosemore, found himself unable to drag his fellow playmate from the freezing water after he had bobbed and bobbed over the dangerous ice to his aid.

Sensing the predicament of his friends, Herbert Thompson, 17, managed to pick his way to their aid by means of a trailing fishing rod to former ice.

No after effects were suffered by Eddie as the result of his immersion, but today Keith was a class room hero.

RUSSIAN POLICE SEARCH JAP SHIP

Tokyo, Jan. 20 (AP)—Russian police made an eight-hour search of the Japanese steamer Siberia Maru at Vladivostok yesterday, the Japan (Japanese) News Agency reported today. The search provoked "great concern" in the capital, the agency said.

WANTS PENSIONS AT 65

Ottawa, Jan. 20 (CP)—Reduction of the qualifying age for old age pensions from 70 to 65 is sought in a motion entered on today's order paper, proceedings by Angus MacInnis (C.C.F., Vancouver South).

24-MAN CREW AND COMMANDER DEAD

Experimental Ship Founders in Baltic While Assisting 2 Other Ships

Berlin, Jan. 20 (AP)—The commander and 24-man crew of the German naval experimental ship Wedo were drowned today after the vessel foundered in a Baltic blizzard near the island of Fehmarn, off the coast of East Prussia.

The Wedo was attempting to assist two German boats in difficulty in the storm.

The Wedo, of 250 gross tons, was purchased by the government in 1927 as an auxiliary vessel. It was used as a tender in mining and torpedo inspection).

CAREER IN ARMY YIELDED BY DUKE

Gloucester Will Take on Public Duties to Aid King George

London, Jan. 20 (CP)—The Duke of Gloucester is leaving the army to take on additional public duties subsequent to his change of status following King Edward's abdication.

The Duke is now next to the King in the male line of the Royal Family, and is being called upon to perform many of the duties carried out by King George as Duke of York.

In the line of succession to the Throne, of course, the Duke is preceded by the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, but they are too young to perform any of the Royal Family's manifold duties.

On the eve of the coronation the Duke will entertain distinguished guests at dinner. This was to have been done by the Duke of York at Edward's Coronation.

The Duke, who was married a little more than a year ago to Lady Alice Scott, is moving shortly to York House, St. James's Palace, where the Duke of Windsor lived as Prince of Wales.

Royal Family Observes Anniversary of King's Death

Wreaths Placed on Coffin of King George Fifth at Windsor Castle

FORMALITIES LACKING

London, Jan. 20 (CP)—The Royal Family gathered quietly at Sandringham in Norfolk today to observe the first anniversary of the death of King George V. All Queen Mary's children, save the Duke of Windsor, were there.

No memorial service was held, either at Sandringham, where King George died, or at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, where his funeral was held, but it was believed special prayers would be said.

Wreaths from the Royal Family were placed on the coffin beneath the Albert Memorial Chapel at Windsor, and other wreaths were left in the chapel itself. It is understood Queen Mary decided on the wreaths.

Newspapers observed the anniversary with special pictures of the late king and editorials the tone of which was best summarized by the Morning Post under the heading: "A Great Inheritance."

"With his passing it seemed to his subjects that the sun had set while there was yet day," the Morning Post said. "Since then we have endured darkness and storm, but God's good hap nor ill has dimmed the memory of that noble monarch. The empire owe to his benignant reign. They have rather served us more and more, more vivid, the gratitude more profound."

State's Duty to Remove 'Cancers of Injustice' Roosevelt Is Pledged

More Enduring Structure Must be Built For Future

PRESIDENT'S OATH

Re-discovers "Ability to Improve Our Economic Order"

Washington, Jan. 20 (AP) Franklin D. Roosevelt renewed his presidential oath today and pledged his second administration to look out "cancers" of economic injustice.

Before a throng assembled about below the towering capitol dome, the United States President told a rain-drenched throng:

"I assume the solemn obligation of leading the American people forward along the road which they have chosen to follow. The basic purpose of my presidency is not whether we add more to the abundance of those who have much; it is whether we provide enough for those who have too little."

Hand Upon Dutch Bible.

Mr. Roosevelt turned to speak after placing his hand on an old family Dutch Bible and repeating the presidential oath as Chief Justice Chief Justice Hughes. Only minutes before, Vice President Garner was sworn in by Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, white-columned stand arranged for the simple but impressive inauguration ceremonials, spectators braved a driving rain to witness the historic event.

President Sworn In.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was sworn into office at 12:30 p.m. E.S.T. today for his second term as President of the United States.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt declared himself anew at the start of his second administration today to removal of "cancers of injustice" which cause wast in the midst of plenty.

In his inaugural address, delivered beneath a storm-darkened sky to thousands gathered in the Capitol Plaza, he pictured unconsulted poor families living "under the pall of darkness" and said:

"We are determined to make every American citizen the subject of his country's interest and concern."

Progress and recovery is gratifying, the president said, but the "new order of things" brought about since 1933 must be maintained.

More Enduring Structure.

Restating his philosophy in broad terms and leaving his specific programs for the future, the president called new machinery of social justice "to erect on the old foundations a more enduring structure for the use of future generations."

Moments before he made his address he had taken the presidential oath again from Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes. With Justices of the Supreme Court among his hearers, the president repeated the oath which he took on March 4, 1933.

Sworn Standing Erect.

Standing erect, his right hand on a family Bible, his left hand resting on the table before him, Mr. Roosevelt repeated the oath after Chief Justice Hughes.

Vice President Garner was sworn in by Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic leader.

City and District News

BRIGADE OUT TWICE IN LAST 24 HOURS

Clouds of smoke rolling heavily through a house at 318 Front street early last night resulted in an alarm being sent in to local fire agencies. Firemen rolled out a hose, a blaze, however, was attributed the smoke to an outside source. Ignition of partitions from an unknown source at the Canada Tire Company on Front Street was the cause for an alarm early today. The blaze was extinguished by city firemen before any great material damage was done.

DECEASED CAPTAIN WELL KNOWN HERE

Capt. Albert Edward Stinson, for many years commander of the S. S. Kingston of the Canada Steamship Lines who died on Sunday at the family residence in Toronto, was well known to local lake shippers and cabin boys alike in this and other ports. During his many years on the lakes he endeared himself to the sailing fraternity at all ports of call. For twenty-five years he had been in command of the Steamer Kingston and had commanded frequent calls at the local port.

DANISH HUMAN SEAL IN CITY AS TRANSIENT

A man who says his name is Kirber Hekinson, the Danish Human Seal, was found among the 18 transients, who sought shelter at the police station last night. Hekinson boasted to his transient-mates that he thrived on swimming in the icy waters, according to stories, related by other transients to the police authorities today. They added they he didn't practice his profession instead of swimming in highways and byways. Hekinan replied that it was not cold enough to do his act this year. The Danish Seal also boasted he thought nothing of cutting a hole in the ice and diving into the icy waters for his morning plunge. Intriguing and incredible though the Hekinson story, definition of swimming in ice holes. He left the police after giving a practical demonstration.

Visitor to California Glad to be Back

Unusual Rains and Frosty Weather Made Visit Uncomfortable

Back in Belleville after a two second visit to California, Mrs. Albert Bunton, 16 Albion Street, greeted with her first actual reports of the unseasonable weather now being experienced in the south of that State.

"It has been one of the worst years in memory for fruit growers and residents of California. Cold weather and unseasonable rains and frosts that have been some of the heaviest known, have caused millions of dollars loss to fruit growers, especially," stated Mrs. Bunton when questioned by the Daily Ontario Intelligencer.

"We had rain three days on end, once for the most part it was so cold that winter clothing is being worn by visitors, even those from Canada."

During her visit Mrs. Bunton stayed with friends in the Beverly Hills district, near Los Angeles.

BELLEVILLE GIRL ON COMMITTEE

Miss Stela Anderson, 286 1-2 Coleman Street, Belleville, has been elected to the committee in charge of the annual Ban Righ Hall formal dances at Queen's University. It is the custom at these dances for the co-eds to pay all the expenses that would ordinarily be incurred by their escorts.

POLICE BLOTTER

Two young lads scuffling resulted in a window being broken in Mc-Farlane's butcher shop on Bridge St. last night. After breaking the glass, however, the lads ran away leaving a nearby alleyway for an exit. Local police investigated and later apprehended the two boys. When they appeared before Chief Kidd this morning they readily admitted breaking the window, but added it was accidental. Restitution will be made at their expense and the lads were permitted their liberty, after being warned not to scuffle so vigorously in the future.

Two automobiles were reported stolen to the local police department last night. Petertboro police asked the local department to assist in locating an Oldsmobile sedan, licence plate number 3-C-560, that was stolen in that city early last evening. It is believed the car thieves used the vehicle to complete two subsequent holdups, one on the outskirts of Peterboro and the other in Millbrook. The other car was reported stolen from Cobourg and was a 1936 model green convertible coach bearing licence plates number 67-H-36.

UNIFORM DATE TO HOLD ELECTIONS IS ADVOCATED

Hastings County Council Endorses Province-Wide Scheme

COMMITTEES FORMED

Requests For Grants Are Referred to Ways And Means

Notices of motions regarding the presentation of various by-laws, the reading of numerous important communications pertaining to the business of the county and the presentation of the chairmen and personnel of the standing committees for the present year featured the morning session of the members of the Hastings County Council at their morning session today.

Communications

Heading the communications, which formed the initial part of the morning session was the request from Canadian National Railways authorities to the effect that the County consider an offer for the sale of 6,000 square feet of land on Highway No. 14 between Point Anne and Consecon Pond, Thurlow Lake, where the highway is being diverted.

Preliminary figures do not seem correct to me" stated Road Superintendent Thomas Mills, of the offer as I know the area is much different than stated in the offer. However I would suggest, that before a figure is submitted to the company authorities that the proper measurements be made and submitted to the proper authorities."

"The service has been excellent," declared Warden Gordon Bonter of Mayo, referring to a communication from the Ontario Provincial Service in which was outlined the 1936 seasonal activities of that organization.

For More Tourist Trade

"In the northern part of the county the tourist trade has greatly increased during the past two years, and I think the money spent by the county is well worthwhile. The tourist trade is something that has just had its surface scratched, and we would do well to induce more tourists to visit this county by the use of a satisfied customer is the best advertising we can get," declared Warden Bonter in a letter request from the Wentworth County Council to the effect that a uniform date, preferably the first Monday in December be set aside as a province-wide date for the election of Municipal officers in the various municipal members. Another resolution from the same body asking for the abolition of the fee for creasing legal punishment for those guilty of killing farm stock and produce was filed.

May Send Delegates

Invitations from the Ontario Agricultural Association, Ontario Roads Association, and the Ontario Rural Municipal Association to send delegates to their forthcoming conventions were referred to the Ways and Means Committee.

Requests for the annual grants were read from the Halidmand Institute for the Blind and the Women's Rescue Department of the Salvation Army.

The latter request stated that there were 444 cases of this work in the province during the past year averaging a case of 440 per head. Hastings County costs amounted to $550.00.

Members of the Council concurred in a resolution received from the Grey County Council in which that body asked co-operation of the County Councils of the province in securing repeal of legislation in which the province pays 75 per cent of the cost of insulin, and the county bodies the remainder. The proposal also asks that the Province supply free insulin for those unable to pay.

The annual banquet and "get-together" at which County Council members are the guests of the local Chamber of Commerce was postponed until the next session, owing to the change of time and the inability of the host organization to secure a suitable speaker, a communication from the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce stated.

Previous to the luncheon adjournment, notice of motion of several by-laws were given by the Chairmen of the respective committees.

FIRE CHIEF LYNCH HURT IN ACCIDENT

One Rib Fractured When Truck And Car Meet at Intersection

Fire Chief William Lynch was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital shortly after nine o'clock this morning as a result of injuries sustained when the fire truck he was driving collided with an automobile driven by James A. Walmsley of Callaghan Street at the intersection of Bridge and Front Streets. X-ray examination at the hospital disclosed one fractured rib later he was removed to his home.

Chief Lynch turned his vehicle sharply to the right in a belated effort to avoid a collision, and struck in the side by the front of the car.

The injured man was taken in a nearby barber shop and medical aid summoned. Dr. Cecil Wannamaker examined him and immediately ordered him to the hospital for x-ray examination. The Walmsley car was badly damaged in the collision, while the fire truck also suffered from the impact.

FEW DELINQUENTS IN THIS DISTRICT

No arrests for those delinquent in their payments of their 1937 motor vehicle licences have been necessary in Belleville and surrounding local and Motorcycle Police stated today.

"Although the regulations state the motor vehicle licences must be purchased on or before January 15 the motor vehicle operator no later than yesterday, we have not instructed our department to apprehend delinquents as yet, but will tomorrow. Observations have proved, however, that the vast majority of motorists in this city have adhered to the regulations and have already purchased their 1937 motor licences," Chief Kidd revealed today.

"I patrolled my entire detail yesterday afternoon and did not see a single motorist without a motor vehicle licences enroute. Some of the motorists did not have their licences in once places displayed as yet, but had purchased them and were returning home to do this at their most proper position. We have had instructions to be "track down" on all motor licence delinquents immediately, however," stated Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Irvine when questioning to the matter in conversation with the Ontario Intelligencer at noon today.

No prosecutions have been made locally for the use of 1936 licence plates as yet, but motorists, who have not as yet purchased their 1937 licences are cautioned to do so before future driving.

Warden Gray Well Suited For High Honor Bestowed

Eleven Years Municipal Experience Qualifies Him For Office

NO OPPOSITION

With eleven years of municipal experience behind Mr. Ackerly A. Gray, Reeve of Thurlow, who was elected yesterday to the Warden's chair of the County of Hastings at the inaugural session of the 1937 Hastings County Council held in Shire Hall, is peculiarly fitted for his new office and the responsibilities incumbent upon it. Eleven years ago Warden Gray was a member of the council of the Township of Thurlow. The following three years saw him occupying the same position, and so proficient did he become in the expediting of municipal questions and affairs that his constituents returned him as Deputy-Reeve of the Township for the next four years.

The confidence placed in him by the citizens of Thurlow was exemplified in the efficiency of the service given by Warden Gray with the result that during the next four years he occupied the Reeve chair of that township and the accompanying responsibility of membership in the Hastings County Council.

Member Road Committee

During his tenure of membership in the County body he has given valuable service as a member of the Roads Committee over a period of years, and for a time was a member of the Finance Committee for two years. He was also a member of the Agricultural Committee for one year.

His activities for the well being and advancement of his township and county were not confined to municipal affairs alone.

He is a member of the Board of the Belleville General Hospital and a director on the Belleville Fair Board. For a number of years he was an active member of the Board of Directors of the Thurlow Cheese Factory.

Born in Tyendinaga Township fifty-six years ago he removed from his native township to his present home on the second concession of Thurlow, where he has become one of the prominent farmers of that section and where he enjoys the confidence of a large circle of friends.

Allied in sympathies with the Conservative Party Warden Gray has been active in the workings of that party.

Conservative President

Last year he was appointed President of the East Hastings Conservative Association.

Radical in religious persuasion and a member of Christ Church, Belleville, Warden Gray has also been an active member of the Loyal Orange Order.

Assuming office ago, Warden Gray married Miss Stella Jeffers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gordon of Tyendinaga Township. Warden and Mrs. Gray have three children, a daughter, Mrs. Cecil Holway, residing in Belleville, and Ross and William Wesley at home.

WINTER SCHOOL

At the winter school held at Bridge Street Methodist Church, young people of the United Church in the Bay of Quinte Conference, Rev. R. E. Wemp in charge of the worship period in the morning, at the opening of the school. One hour's Bible study period is led by the following, Rev. Harold S. Neal of Campbellford, Rev. Harold Campbell, Rev. Harold Saunders and Rev. Robert Hall.

Recreation is in charge of Rev. S. L. Osborne and Rev. W. E. Sibley of West Huntingdon, manager of the missions' hall hour.

In the afternoon, after worship period, the fifty minutes, method courses in young people's work is taught by Rev. Roy Ketcheson and Rev. Harold Lackie.

The rest of the afternoon is spent in visiting places of interest and in recreation and winter sports. Yesterday the young people went skating.

Obituary

LATE MRS. ADAM COONEY

Rawdon, Jan. 20—The funeral of the late Mary Emily Gerow, relict of the late Adam Cooney, who died in Bethel United Church on Saturday afternoon, took place to a large number of relatives and friends.

Deceased had only been ill a few days, having suffered severely from pneumonia. Thursday, January 14th, at the home of her son Theodore on the sixth concession of Rawdon.

Rev. J. C. Beckel took charge of the service, basing his message on "Now we see through a glass darkly, but then face to face." The congregational hymns were "Nearer My God to Thee," "Abide With Me" and "Peace Perfect Peace," Mrs. Irene Tucker and Miss Elsie Capelle rendered a duet "I'm Looking Beyond".

Beautiful floral tributes covered the casket and were mute tribute to the esteem in which deceased was held. The bearers were Messrs. Harry Hoag, C. H. Heath, S. V. Heath, Charles Morton, Donald Stewart, and H. Lawrence. Interment was made in Shilling cemetery beside her husband who predeceased her 32 years ago.

Mrs. Cooney was born in Prince Edward County and lived there for 83rd year. On Christmas day 1871 she married the late Adam Cooney

Wesley A. Gray, New Warden Makes Brief Address at Opening

LITTLE BUSINESS

Accounts Passed And Nominating Committee Named

Wesley A. Gray, Reeve of the Township of Thurlow for the past three years and Deputy Reeve for that township for the three years preceding his township will head the Hastings County Council for the year 1937.

The New Warden was the unanimous choice of thirty members of the council at the inaugural meeting of that body held yesterday afternoon in Belleville City Hall.

Only one nominee was called following the arrival in the Council Chambers of the respective political wings of council after both had been in caucus for a brief period.

Every member of the council rose to his feet when County Clerk Eric Denyes called for a vote and Reeve Wesley Gray had been nominated by G. H. McKinnon, Reeve of Sidney, and seconded by James A. Mickle, Reeve of Madoc Township. Warden Gray's nomination was the only one given.

Escorted to Chair

Immediately following the official appointments of the new Warden, he was sworn in by His County Clerk, invested in the black robe and gold chain of office and escorted to the Chair by the clerk of the official.

In his inaugural address to council the new Warden launched an appeal to the wisdom of councillors and members of their respective bodies to "practice economy in all their expenditures."

"I feel that I am accepting a very responsible position in accepting the office of Warden of Hastings County," he said, "and I wish now to thank all the members of this council for their support."

It is my desire," he continued "to see all our dealings this year and to be such that there is laxity to all concerned and I ask for the honest support of each of you."

Hastings County is in the enviable position of being in a splendid financial state, with only slightly over $60,000.00 in debentures, and the decision of immediate past councils not to issue any more but to pay as you go has helped to keep it as such."

Tax Rate High

"Quite true," stated Warden Gray, "our tax rate is high, but all are studying how it can be reduced, and we hope that as time goes on that we will be able to bring about a substantial reduction."

"Whatever may be the committeemen and the council as a whole, I ask all to practice economy in your expenditures. Just as far as possible in keeping with good business and the welfare of the county."

Speaking for the support of the council during the forthcoming year Warden Gray stated, "there is very little for the working man, and we have had more on relief than we have had for years. The farmer too has suffered, and although prices are some things have been a little higher, this has been offset by the surrounding rise in price of feed."

"If you are a whole" concluded Warden Gray, "to do all that you can to keep down expenses and taxes will be high and figures are not in the position to pay them."

Committee Appointed

The first official act of the new Warden was the appointment of a nomination committee to bring in a slate of nominees for chairmen and vice-chairmen for the various committees of the council. Those appointed were, Harry Lairtin, Reeve of Tyendinaga, Dr. Lumb, Reeve of Hamford and Clerk Hagerman, Reeve of Wollaston.

Highlighting the brief order of business, which followed the inaugural proceedings was the presentation to council of an elaborate program of conservation of natural resources and reforestation of timber lands, which is being put into effect by the province of Ontario.

The plan which will be conducted on an extensive scale throughout the province calls for the conservation of not only standing timber but of water sources the remedies for drainage and drainage, reforestation of not only depleted timber lands but the start of the growth of virgin timber.

"The plan sounds very good to me," stated Reeve C. E. Hutcheson, "and I move that it be referred to the agricultural Committee with power to act."

"I feel that there are a lot of useful facts and information in this proposal," said J. L. Churcher, Reeve of Dungannon, "and I don't think this council should pass over this matter lightly." The motion that it be referred to the proper committee was passed unanimously.

A motion to the effect that the membership fee of County Treasurer James Haggerty to the Ontario Municipal Association and amounting to twenty-five dollars was referred to the ways and means committee.

Applications Received

Application for the position as corn-borer inspector for the county was also referred to the ways committee.

The following accounts were referred to the ways and means committee: Mothers' Allowance for December (50 per cent of cost), $2,500.00; Children's Aid Society, Toronto, $77.18; Children's Aid Society, Sault Ste. Marie, $21.00; Clerk, Registrar Office, $166.67; City of Belleville, work sewer, $75.00; Old Age Pensions Commission for December (10 per cent of cost) $1,500.00.

Six New Members

Six new faces were seen as the new council filed into the council chambers for their first meeting. These are, William Linn, Marmora Village, James Bell, Marmora Township, Charles Rush, Hungerford Township, Robert Bristol, of Madoc Village, Thomas Cranston of Stirling and Charles Rollins of the Township of Wollaston.

While no committees were appointed at this meeting, the request that the roads and bridges committee meet immediately followed the adjournment of the council meeting by Deputy Reeve James A. Moore, Reeve of Elzivir, suggested that this standing committee, who has devoted over twenty-five years to the furtherance of county roads was once more back in the harness, which he has filled with such efficiency over a long period of years.

POLITICIAN KIDNAPPED

David H. Clark, ABOVE, 38-year-old wealthy politician and former deputy attorney-general of Los Angeles, is alleged to have been kidnapped and held for heavy ransom. Clark, recently acquitted for the murder of two alleged political enemies, was kidnapped 12 days ago, but the news of his abduction leaked out. Mrs. Clark, wife of the missing man, received a ransom letter about seven days ago, requesting that $5,000 in old bills be ready and when the money is turned over to the kidnappers they will release Mr. Clark.

TRENTON and DISTRICT

Trenton, Jan. 20.—(Special)—The Trenton fire department extinguished a stubborn chimney blaze at the home of Mr. Hugh Warren, Crown street, yesterday. The alarm sounded at 11.45 and the brigade in full were at the scene in short order. Overheated stove pipes ignited the under dry timber around the brick chimney at the rear of the building and firemen were forced to tear off a large portion of clapboard to put out the smouldering timbers. A booted brigade made up of men and women was of great help to firemen. The upstairs was badly smoked while damage to the exterior amounts to approximately $100. Insurance covered the loss.

Thomas Cain Addresses Rotary

At the regular meeting of the Rotary Club on Monday night, Thomas Cain gave an interesting address on the history of the tin can and told of the many different ways it was utilized today. He said the salmon pack in Canada required 48,000,000 cans last year and fruits or vegetables can be sent to all parts of the world without the danger of spoiling. Ben Joyce introduced the speaker and Norman Rower extended a hearty vote of appreciation. During the evening A. E. Cuffe acted as songmaster and Leslie Hearn was at the piano.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Right!

The Liver should pour out two pounds of bowel like bile into your bowels daily. Calvert, if it is not flowing freely, you get constipated. Your food just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get sick headaches. Your skin may break out in blemishes. You feel sour, sunk, "all in." Your whole system is poisoned and you feel like the world were against you.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. Harmless vegetable laxatives that you buy at the drug store may only move the bowels. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is different. It's a doctor's prescription. It not only relieves constipation but starts bile flowing into the bowels. Then you feel like a million dollars! Pure, gentle, effective. Even children love the taste. Ask for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin today. Only 35c and 75c at all druggists. If necessary to convince you, we will send a free sample. Write Dr. W. B. W. R. MORTON, PUBLISHER

IN THE POLICE REPORT

A police department report is something like a report of the life in an outpost of the R.C.M.P. Both give a viewpoint of the life of the community.

The 1936 police report of Belleville refers to a section of life as all such reports do with which the most of the people are fortunately little acquainted, for most of them have no occasion or only a rare occasion to appear in court either as defendant or witness. This is one result of little serious crime.

Today while there are old offences as ever, which are as old as time, there are modern infractions of the law, particularly in relation to motorcars which brought a good number of cases to court and helped swell the total of court cases to 747.

One of the features of the modern department is bearing, it is believed, a direct relation to the number of offences, that is the patrol of the local police radio car. The public has grown to realize the importance of this and suspicious actions or untoward happenings are brought to the attention of the police and thence to the radio patrol with the result that such a tip-off given the police has been a real service. One result naturally is that those on evil intent sometimes feel it is taking too great a risk to commit an offence with the possibility of the radio patrol car arriving on the scene almost at any moment.

One of the best records of the city department is the fact of the absence of a fatal motor accident in about five and a half years. During that time seven accidents, even in the past year there were 42 persons who received slight injuries in 76 minor accidents, but no fatal accident occurred on the city roads last year or for many years back.

Some sign of diminution of the heavy flow of transients was noted, 3231 as against 3473 for the previous year. Of course this is only a slight change and might almost be disregarded as a sign of better conditions if there were not the other evidences of growing recovery which substantiate the belief that the reduced number of men using the highways for tramping is due to less unemployment. The class however which migrates as these men do, is likely to be the last finally taken into occupation for the full benefit of recovery takes a while to reach the outermost fringe of idle human beings. This flow, however, is unlikely to be entirely stopped with returned prosperity because some men have a liking for this irresponsible type of life.

While there are still applications on the street for help and frequent beggars at the doors of homes the total of these seems to be lessening somewhat.

FAIR BOARD SURVEYS

Belleville Fair Board looked forward the other day at the annual meeting as reference was made to the future needs. One of the healthy signs is the need for more livestock accommodation. This is a criticism the fair is not getting away from the primal purpose of such events, its agricultural foundation. In such exhibitions livestock has always been one of the foundations and Belleville fair is living up to its possibilities in this regard as proven by the increasing number of entries of livestock of the best kind. The judges have inspected this branch of the fair have had only words of praise for the quality of the stock attracted to the annual show. Accommodation increased almost yearly still finds itself inadequate—evidence of growth and development.

The exhibits of every other phase of farm life, county and city industries, all these make demands upon the board that they be "played up" to the best advantage. This in turn immediately throws a large share of the burden on the rural and urban population to support these branches of the fair.

Those who have failed to take every opportunity to attend the exhibits at the fair have thrown away golden opportunities to realize what this industry means to the countryside and to this city as the centre of this magnificent agricultural district.

An interesting question came to the fore at the annual meeting in the suggestion in favor of a manager for the Belleville Fair. Such is no new idea for fairs though locally this question has never been dealt with. It p.. mises to continue to appear on the horizon of the fair board's possibilities as the fair becomes larger and more and more a representation of the community life.

The soul without imagination is what an observatory would be without a telescope.—Henry Ward Beecher.

THE HOME FORUM

Discussing the events of the day, home gossip and personal news topics as revealed by the home newspaper—over the evening lamp—and comments Grave and Gay. — Supervised by The Lamplighter

NEW YEAR GREETINGS COME FROM DALLAS TEXAS to The Ontario Intelligencer and Belleville and Hastings County friends from Mrs. Wm. Wright (nee Mae Herity). The Christmas season was marred for Mrs. Wright, formerly of Belleville and Moira, through the fact that her husband suffered severe injuries in an accident and was confined to the hospital three weeks, with the prospect of not being able to return to business until February 1.

BILLIONS IN TRADE

And, speaking about Dallas we learn with some surprise that Dallas trade "Hits a New All-Time High" of $2,671,096,000. Dallis is a bustling city in the centre of a wonderful fruit and agricultural country, and is particularly interesting to most of us young old boys from familiarity with that near neck o' the woods when Injuns, Bad Men, including Billy the Kid, and other Dead Shots shed our blood with countless thrills when they stepped out from behind the covers of Beadle's Dime and Half-Dime Library. There are no Bad Men in Dallas now and only tame Indians, but even while the folks there are up and coming and do not try to hide their light under a bushel, hence the local press may be pardoned for featuring the expanse of Dallas trade. Here's how they figure it out:

Dallas debits to individual accounts reached a new all-time high during 1936, with a total of $2,671,096,000 (Billions) according to tabulations made by the Dallas Federal Reserve Bank. The debits which are checks written on bank accounts reflect the business done here. This is a gain of 6.6 per cent over the 1935 figure and a gain of 68.5 per cent over the depression's lowest total in 1932. The first week of 1937 showed a tremendous gain over the corresponding week of last year, both for the district and the city of Dallas. Bank clearing also showed heavy gains over last year.

All of which seems to go to show that in Uncle Sam's land the financial pulse is very mercurial and when things get bad they get very, very bad and when they get good again they get very, very good.

CITY MANAGER SUCCESS

Dallas also has good things to say of the City Manager Plan in operation there some years. A Dallas despatch dated January 10 says:

"For the first time the city manager plan was adopted here huge deficits were being accumulated. Departmental budgets were being overdrawn. This tendency was curbed as soon as the new system began to function. As a result the municipal government passed through the long depression and came out in good financial condition. Public service was not seriously curtailed. This is something for all persons to remember who hear demands for return to the older form of government.

FIVE QUINTS

From Dallas we jump over into Arkansas where we learn that the folks of Little Rock, having heard that Callander, Ontario, is not without its superstitions, sent the Dionne quintuplets probably one of the strangest and oddest gifts the Quints have ever or will receive. The gift which was mailed to Canada was made up of five small chips from the Pedie Rocks from which the city of Little Rock received its name. The chips were set into small, pure gold fasteners with a fine gold chain attached, making five attractive little lockets for the world's most famous babies. Little Rock folks have been told that superstitious folk visiting these rocks used to believe that the pebbles from the ground in front of the Quints home will mean twins, three, triplets, four, in the family and five, quintuplets. Another of this superstition it is believed the gift of the five small chips will be one of the most appreciated by the young Dionnes.

DALLAS WELCOMES SNOW

Sunday, January 10, Dallas was celebrating its second day of snow and sleet, and the newspapers featured camera studies of the fair maidens of that city enjoying the natives winter in various styles. First there was a pretty girl on the skis, appropriately costumed, while hard by two nymphs are playing in the snow clad in bathing suits (one piece), while still another picture depicts a bobsleighing party, clad in regulation apparel.

Newspapers have their troubles even in Texas as the Associated Press despatch from Sherman, Texas, reveals.

NEWSPAPER TROUBLE

A total city power failure Saturday and Sunday as Paris did not thwart members of the Paris News' staff in their efforts to get out a paper.

Headed by Editor W. N. Furey, twenty members of the editorial and mechanical forces chartered a bus and made their way precariously on ice-covered roads sixty-five miles to Sherman, where the newspaper was published from the office of the Sherman Democrat.

Furey brought his editors, reporters, compositors, operators, stereotypers and pressmen and went to work about 9 p.m. after special wire from the Associated Press had been set up.

The Paris News had missed its Sunday morning edition, Furey said, and he was determined that his readers should have a paper Monday morning.

JANUARY 20, 1907

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gilbert of the second concession of Thurlow, entertained recently in honor of Miss Graham of Shannonville. Among the guests was Mr. Meyers Gilbert of Belleville, whose songs and readings were much enjoyed.

At a large and enthusiastic gathering of the members of the Presbyterian Church at Foxboro the mortgage on the building was burned. It is only three years since the beautiful little edifice was erected, yet in that time almost the entire cost, $4800.00 has been paid. Much credit is due to Mr. P. C. VanAlten for the energetic way in which he has handled the finances of the church.

Prof. Denmark and Mrs. Denmark were agreeably surprised recently when the members of St. Andrew's Church choir invaded their home and presented them with a handsome clock. Prof. Denmark is organist and Prof. Denmark is the choirmaster at St. Andrew's Church.

A branch of the United Empire bank will be opened at Belleville shortly.

40 YEARS AGO

JANUARY 20, 1897

The Belleville hockey team went to Napanee last night to play their first scheduled league match with the team of that town. The Napanee team had an unbroken record of success for the local team to face. They had defeated Deseronto by a big score and also Odessa the previous week. It was with some misgiving that the local team left home last evening, but they bade the determination to do their best to win and the result was a close and exciting game crowned by victory, the score being Belleville 8; Napanee 7. The Belleville boys were not used to a small rink and at half time the score was 3 to 1 against them. In the second half they braced up and soon covered the score and had scored five more in the second the deciding goal. The following composed the teams Belleville—Mack, Jamieson, Glenco Hulme, J. Spafford, Harry McGuire, Ernie Lang, Harry Kelso, Russell Weller and Harry Twining. Napanee—J. Hall, W. H. Fenton, F. Rockwell, W. Rockwell, W. Richardson, Tyndall and Ward. Referee, Mr. Carlisle, Trenton. Lang and McGuire put up a strong game for young players. This was their first game away from home.

50 YEARS AGO

JANUARY 20, 1887

The steamer Hero has been hauled out at Kingston. Improvements will be made upon her to the extent of about $3000.00.

The following have been appointed by the city council to form the Board of Health: William Bland, S. A. Moore, W. H. Hunter, Richard Taylor, Asa Meagher, Joseph Fox, H. Yeomans, Dr. Tracy. Inspector, William Hall.

A portion of the smoke stack upon Bleight's factory was blown down last night.

The concert roads were drifted full again last night. They are hard to break as the snow has a hard crust.

One hundred and twenty-five students are in attendance at Albert College. The number of newcomers is large.

Lake and Jenkins baggage van brought forty trunks from the depot last night. It was a monstrous load and goes to show that the drummers are on the road again.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking an thinking in his private chair and I was laying on the floor washing Tiger. I have to do my homework, and I said, Say pop?

Always at your service my son hour of the day or nite, pop said.

Meaning what, I said, Do you know who Balboa was?

Balboa? He was an explorer, in fact he was one of the founders of the Explorers Club, pop said, and I said, Well what did he explore, I mean what did he discover?

Balboa? Let me see, I think he discovered to his sorrow that Columbus was rite about the Spanish people being ungrateful, pop said, and I said, Aw g. O. I mean what part of the world did he discover?

O, why didn't you say so? pop said. Now you've got me all confused. I cant think of the exact geografical name, he said, and I said, Well what does it say on edicover, I mean what part of the world?

Why, the new part, he discovered after a number of months miles of the New World, which seemed much newer to him, naturelly, than it does to us, pop said, and I said, Balboa discovered the Pacific Ocean and Ponce De Leon discovered Florida.

For Pete sake if you knew all the time what are you bothering me about? pop said, and I said, I was just trying to prove what's a use of doing all this studying when all I'm going to do is grow up and forgot it, so can I skip my arithmetic homework and read something I'll probobly remember, like Paul Peppy in China?

Now look here, it's one thing to have nothing to forget and another thing to forget a whole headful, pop said. In other words, as the poet said, 'Tis better to of larned and lost than never to of larned at all, he said, and I said, But I'll pop goth, jimminy.

You do your homework and do it all pop said.

Wich I did.

POTATOES SCARCE REPORTS BUYER

Denies The Rumour That Farmers Are Holding For "Higher Prices

With nearly cities and towns reporting an influx of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia potatoes which are being sold at a higher price than the domestic variety, Hastings and Prince Edward County farmers issued an emphatic denial this morning that the reason for this is because local farmers are "holding out" with their potato crops waiting for higher prices.

"The reason for the sharp upward trend of potato prices during the past two weeks", stated a prominent grower, "is because there is a definite shortage of this vegetable. I have scoured the country to the north, south, east and west of us and while I found that there were some to be had they were not of marketable value. Farmers all over the surrounding districts have not the spuds to sell and the stories going around that they are holding out are pure bunk."

"Are there many imported varieties coming to this immediate district", he was asked. "There may be, but I haven't seen them. If they are coming in here and selling at such exorbitant prices it is a foolish thing why don't go to Toronto, only a few miles away where they could dispose of their entire stocks without moving their trucks at a far higher price than they could get here. Personally I don't believe that this part of the country is being overrun with potatoes from the Maritimes."

Another grower stated, "The market in Toronto is steadily rising and surely that is a sign that potatoes are not being brought in. I know that for a fact for last week I was there, not in the market and was told to bring all the potatoes I could haul up there, and they would pay me a higher price than I could get for what I threw right here on the Belleville market. So all indications point to a further rise in the price, at least locally. Farmers have not got the stock to sell nor can they be procured at least in these parts."

BRIGHTON YOUTH GIVEN ONE YEAR

Kenneth Cummings Pleads Guilty to Two Charges of Forgery

Cobourg, Ont., Jan. 19 (CP)—Kenneth Cummings, Brighton youth, pleaded guilty in county court today to charges of forgery. Judge L. V. O. Connor imposed a term of one year in the reformatory on each charge, sentences to run concurrently. The charges were laid following the issue of a forged cheque for $43.50 on a Cobourg bank and another one for $27.50 on a Brighton bank, both on Dec. 24. Defense counsel pointed out that apparently the accused had gone to buy a Christmas box for the defendant's girl.

EYEWITNESSES TO CONFRONT FOWLER

Ex-convict Compelled to Grow Beard Before Being Viewed

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 19 (AP)—Eyewitnesses of the Charles-Mattson kidnaping will confront Indicted convict Leigh Hackell Fowler, 36, now that he has been compelled to grow a beard, it was learned today from an unimpeachable source.

This was disclosed by U. S. Federal Bureau of Investigation agents who finished questioning Fowler for a third time at Bellingham, Wash.

The meeting of Fowler and the witnesses before Walter Mattson's children and a child visitor saw the seizure—will take place. It was reported when he is taken from his solitary confinement in the Whatcom County jail within the next few days to the state penitentiary at Walla Walla, where he will serve from 25 years for a holdup Dec. 17, in Bellingham.

Although Fowler repeatedly has asked permission to shave, Sheriff W. T. Farmer has refused, saying Sheriff said he acted on instructions of federal officials.

The kidnapper of 10-year-old Charles had a dark beard.

One of the most widely discussed clues—an automobile stolen in Everett, Wash., and abandoned near Kennedy Charles' frozen body was found by—was found by authorities to an insurance company.

CHANGED HER SHOES FIVE TIMES A DAY

Suffered For 20 Years With Rheumatism

Try and picture the life this woman led for twenty years—changing her shoes several times a day in a vain endeavor to attain some relief from the excruciating pains that were constantly troubling her. Then imagine her joy when she found that Kruschen was driving away the rheumatism. This is what she writes:—

"I have been using Kruschen Salts for four years. For twenty years previously I had suffered with my feet, sometimes changing my shoes five times a day, and frequently sitting without any as the pain was so great. Now I can wear the same pair of shoes all day with comfort. I cannot speak too highly of Kruschen Salts. Only those who had been in constant pain with their feet for years can realize what it is to be free."—(Mrs.) E. A.

It is agenda or excess uric acid, lodging between the joints, which are frequently the cause of rheumatism. Kruschen Salts contain two ingredients—sodium and potassium—which are effective solvents of uric acid.

Ottawa Valley Power Company Would Negotiate

Toronto, Jan. 19 (C.P.)—Ottawa Valley Power Company Limited is prepared to negotiate a temporary contract with the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission for power, one cancelled in 1935, a statement issued by company counsel declares. The statement denies Attorney General Arthur W. Roebuck's claim it refused to discuss sale of 2000-600 worth of power for the commission's winter requirements.

Company counsel in denying the Attorney General's statement, declared the government official's letter of August 31, 1936, was the first intimation the power firm received "of a desire on the part of the commission to purchase power for their winter requirements."

The Attorney General January 5 stated the commission had offered to discuss purchase of additional power with the Ottawa Valley firm but this offer was turned down. This company still has a big contract with the Belleville market. So all indications point to a further rise in the price, at least locally. Farmers have not got the stock to sell nor can they be procured at least in these parts.

Always Willing Claim

Power contracts, the commission held with Quebec firms were cancelled by the legislation passed by the Legislature in 1935, as a result of the contract cancellation the Ottawa Valley Power Company action against the commission and the case is now before the Privy Council.

Power company counsel in answering the government statement containing the denial of Mr. Roebuck's assertion was issued on the power firm's instructions declared the company had always been prepared to consider adjustments in the 1935 contract. After cancellation legislation had been introduced at the Legislature, the company informed Premier Mitchell Hepburn April 9, 1936, that it was prepared to meet the government to discuss "how an adjustment could be made so Hydro and all the power companies can be worked out."

A communication was despatched to the premier October 24, 1935, counsel statement, asking for negotiating a definite basis for negotiation. The statement said December 3, 1935, the offer was rejected and the cancellation legislation was proclaimed. It maintained the Ontario Valley Company repeatedly asserted therefore that it is perfectly "a bait settlement to a good lawsuit."

Insurance Question Taken up by York Tp.

Toronto, Jan. 19 (CP)—East York, Toronto suburb, town council today contemplated adopting a resolution for township employees, following the Metropolitan Toronto decision ing that "it was poor business for the municipality to continue taking the risk."

Heaton said township employees should be protected against injury either by the Workmen's Compensation Board or other insurance. The township was obliged under provincial law to contribute to the Compensation Board fund next year, when it was placed in a different classification, he added.

NO PEDDLERS PERMITTED IN GREEN RIVER

How One Community Settled The House-to-House Peddling Nuisance

(Reprinted from "Sylvenar Review" Sylvenar, Ontario)

Attempts by retail merchants to outlaw door-to-door selling on the grounds that it was not legitimate competition, states Sylvenar Review, Toronto, have failed to stem much legal support, supposedly on the grounds that it was favoring to the great urban chain or cheap-rent group in the community. It remained for a group of merchants and peace-loving householders in a small rural community to pioneer an experiment in that direction that has been so successful as to be the beginning of a movement. This group, in Green River, Wyoming, succeeded in placing on the books of the city an ordinance, strictly supported by householders declaring any person to be a nuisance who comes upon property to sell or solicit orders for goods without an invitation. Such action is held by the ordinance to be a misdemeanor punishable by a fine ranging from $25 to $100.

Legal Battle

Since that time there has been waged a legal battle of wits by direct-selling organizations. The Green River ordinance was contested by the Fuller Brush Co., and ran the gamut of litigation from the local courts, through the supreme court of the state, and was finally upheld in the federal courts. The brush company then attempted to break the issue by having its representatives go from house to house in Green River, not to sell or solicit orders, but to have the householder sign a card permanently inviting the firm to call whenever it had a small brush was given.

The Wyoming committee immediately declared this to be a violation of the ordinance, and brought the case before trial judge ruled for the municipality. Again the judgment came in favor of the town. Then the judge in making the decision said that if the firm did not give the orders. The solicitation of the invitation, and the purpose in it, all, a step in carrying out the purpose to solicit orders."

A report of the ordinance has been quite effective. There have been only five actual court cases, but many peddlers have been warned by the police that have subsequently stopped activities.

While the one a number of other municipalities, backed by considerable decisions from U. S. courts, have followed Green River's lead, and there is indication that this practice may become widespread.

Others Interested

The success of this ordinance, with its broad effect on retailing, is attracting the attention of many groups in the U. S. and Canada of interest to many in this country. Realizing that this movement must point out that it is not difficult to get a petition signed by householders, that peddling comes under the head of "nuisance" and if it easily made evident, spelling for all smaller groups of transient peddlers, that will be unanimously enforced, and the type of "salesmanship" that they use contributes little to the well-being of the municipality.

With the confirmation which this ordinance has had in the highest courts in the U. S. it will appear that other communities getting power with groups of householders are in a position to ask local councils to move in a similar direction and to curb if not eliminate entirely this type of selling.

MADOC

Madoc—On Monday evening Madoc Young People of Trinity United Church presented a three act play entitled Comedy, reader and elocutionist. During the course of many other attractions the audience was not a large as usual but those who attended enjoyed the splendid Conservatory's numbers. The church orchestra, with Miss Robertson, pianist and Messrs A. Johnson and A. Bateman, violinists, opened the concert, with some very fine music selected. Miss Mr. Ferguson, president of the Y.P.U., was chairman and entertainer, who gave her readings from the humorous writings of Nellie McClung, as follows:

Mrs. Pat (Irish Lovely); "Knowledge is Power" from (The Second Chance); Sowing Seeds in Danny; Mrs. Timothy Dowd (The Second Chance); Banking in London from (All the Days of Christmas); Selections from (The Second Chance).

During the course Mrs. W. Rulin sang "Smilin' Thru". Mr. Wills, Salisbury accompanist, and Mr. Allen Johnson, violinist, gave a duet solos with Miss M. Robertson accompanist.

QUEENSBORO

Queensboro—Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Groves, Mr. and Mrs. James Groves, also Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Groves were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Reynolds at West Huntingdon.

Miss Hattie Holmes, Remington, is spending a few weeks with her aunt Mrs. Tom Lynn.

Mr. Allan McCoy of Wellington, was the guest of his mother, Mrs. M. Burris on Tuesday.

We thank you for these records

To our 70,000 Policyholders:

DURING 1936 you expressed your confidence in this Company by purchasing more Life Assurance than you did even in the record year of 1935. Furthermore, your co-operation has resulted in a notable increase in the number of Policyholders and the amount for which they are insured.

The Company's consistently satisfactory earning power, together with conservative valuation of assets and a substantial surplus, assure you of the maintenance of a liberal dividend scale.

As the Company prospers, so do the Policyholders who are the sole owners and who receive all profits. We look forward to a continuation of the mutually helpful relationships that have marked this Company's fifty-six years of service to the insuring public. COKE

MORE THAN 88% OF COKE IS HEAT-PRODUCING CARBON

Coke is not a new product, by simply heating the coal to It was manufactured in China some 2,000 years ago and is now a favored fuel in almost every civilized country in the world.

Coke is a natural, not an artificial fuel. It is made from coal

Only 82% of bituminous coal is fixed carbon, while coke has more than 88%.

That is why there is less waste in coke—why it produces such an intense heat so quickly and maintains it so well.

Coke is not a substitute for so-called hard fuel—but is a modern fuel to be judged on its own merits. Thousands prefer it to any other fuel—irrespective of cost!

Shrewd Buyers make this choice

NOT every buyer is a man.

In many a family, the wife keeps the budget and guards the finances.

And when this is true, in so many cases you'll find chosen is Hamco Coke. A woman is shrewd enough to seek true value for her money.

Hamco Coke cuts down the fuel bills without sacrificing one iota of quality. With a minimum of trouble, it provides a steady heat which warms every corner of the house on zero days.

Thousands have proved that "Coke will heat your home at a lower cost than other hard fuel."

Personals

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Masterson, 94 N. Front Street, will be sorry to hear that their two children were struck by a passing automobile recently. Donna, aged 3, received minor bruises and cuts, while Dorothy, aged 7, has a fractured leg. Both are recovering as well as can be expected, at home.

Mr. R. F. Haywood has returned to the city after spending the week-end in Woodstock.

The condition of Mr. E. T. Austin, manager of the local Waterworks Department, confined to the Isolation Hospital for several days past, shows distinct improvement according to word from his home today.

Mrs. Albert Bunton and young daughter, Alexis Street, have returned home after spending the last two months in California.

Members of the Staff of the Metropolitan Store entertained at a delightful dance held last evening in the Liberal Club rooms. Seventy-five couples including many from Trenton, Kingston and Napanee were guests of the staff and spent a most enjoyable evening. Tommy Mason's Orchestra provided a splendid dance program and the many prize dances added to the gaiety of the evening. The ladies' door prize was won by Miss Doris Sherbert, and the men's by Mr. F. P. Metchior. Mr. Gus Clause won the novel "Miss Metropolitan" dance and Miss Ruth Brough the "Mr. Mystery Man" dance. The ladies' birthday dance prize was captured by Miss Ellen Clause and the men's birthday dance by Mr. Ted Shumaker. The dancers were won by Miss Phyllis Davis, Miss Elizabeth Bailey, Miss Mary Smith and Mr. Clayton Wesley. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Child Craves Large Pets Or Toys

Lisa Says They Give Him Prestige in a World of "Giants"

By LISA GRENELLE

My seven-year-old nice loved my children's day because he was the biggest. Her own spaniel didn't "do anything for her," as they say, because it would not feed and be petting, he was too little.

Small children love big toys because they live in a giant world. Have you any idea how large that sofa, that chair and the high-boy over there look to a three-year-old? Is it any wonder they feel small? At every move, every hour of the day, odious comparison makes the child conscious of his inferiority and his weakness. It is humiliating and irritating, and it heaps him in from acquiring self-assurance and a proper sense of importance.

Real Compensation

Having the furniture — tables, chairs, desk and even cupboard — scaled down to one's size in one's own dimension (the nursery) helps a little, of course, but not much. One can't stay in the nursery forever. No, that is not the compensating enough.

But it's own something big, something enormous, over which one has complete power—ah, that is real compensation! It isn't so humiliating to live in a big world, ruled by giants, if one has a pet to scold, bathing or other, to bully—a teddy-bear, rocking horse, doll, tin soldier, or a ball bigger than mother's head but light enough to roll.

Thus, too, there's the position such a toy gives one among playmates. To own a big toy is indeed bear as big as oneself—that is distinction. Even to be able to describe the great size of the rocking horse. Those Horses gave one for Christmas helps.

Added Prestige

I know, a toy rocking horse up the whole room. Yes, but there is room for the horse in the flat, there! And that is all that is important, except the room—room to move, room mind having things a bit crowded. And after all, it is those who have to live there.

Yes, I know big toys like that are expensive. I've bought them, sometimes when I couldn't afford them. But if you have a big-hearted grandmother and cousins and aunts and everybody—you can't! Instead of giving Willie a lot of little things that wouldn't give him any added prestige among his playmates.

Shiny Nose May Be Cured by Diet, Care

By HELEN FOLLETT

There's no telling how much time, energy and complexion power are used to put the dull finish on features those who work over. And it is all very discouraging because the shine is so subdued easily.

The thing to do is to get down to bed rock; to realize that the trouble is caused by overactive glands. A diet containing too much fat, starchy or sweet food and not enough fruit and vegetables may causes the trouble. A hard-working man needs only a teaspoon of fat a day; girls who eat it receives get much more than that.

Make an astringent by combining one ounce of witch hazel, one-fourth ounce of powdered boric acid, one-half pint of camphor water. Put it on in the morning after shaving the face with cold water. The soap and warm water at bed time. Many cosmetics are necessary to keep the skin soft and smooth, remove them after half an hour, bathing freely of water. That's necessary when sebaceous glands act like geysers. Use a light powder. Don't friction the skin more than is necessary for the sake of cleansing.

Hair is constantly shedding. A shaft lives for a certain period, dies and fluffs away. By hygienic measures you may check or shorten this fall.

The scalp must be kept clean, and the proper soap must be used—one in which gentle oils and cleansing oil, and can be thoroughly rinsed away. Brushing is helpful. It sweeps away dust and debris, and acts as a massage agent to the hair roots and stimulates circulation.

Exposure to air and sunlight will help the growth, as does changing the parting now and then. Oily applications tend to keep the scalp in good condition and hair shiny and pliable. Massage is of value, too.

ZION MISSION BAND

Zion Mission Band was held at Maple Leaf on Saturday, January 16, under the leadership of Miss June Ray.

Glen Emerson, the president, presided. After a hymn the Roll Call was answered by a verse of Scripture, beginning with the letter "J". Floyd Ray, Roy Ray, Jr., read the minutes of the December meeting. During the business discussion it was decided to have a 5 cent social each child reciting one of the Ten Commandments. Gerald Thurman read the Scripture lesson. Watchtower was given by Jean Marshall, Albert Thurman, Lee Ray and Mary Emerson. This was followed by a duet by Jean and June Marshall and Roy. Allen Lott took the collection. After the closing hymn prayer was offered by Miss Treverton which brought the meeting to a close.

TABERNACLE W.M.S.

The regular meeting of Tabernacle W.M.S. was held on Thursday, Jan. 14th, with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. Gerow opened the meeting with a hymn, followed by prayer. Mrs. Taylor read the Scripture lesson from the 4th chapter of Mark, verses 26 to 41, and Mrs. Gerow led in prayer. The hymn was sung followed by the secretary's and treasurers report, Mrs. Thomasburg and Mrs. Corbett, secretary and Mrs. Corbam was appointed to look after the Baby Stewardship and Finance. Mrs. Cecil Reid read a paper entitled the Baby Band. Mrs. Naylor gave a very interesting talk on Home Mission. Mrs. Corbam sang "Look Away to the Hills" was sung by Mrs. Hogle. Prayer by Mrs. Ashley brought the meeting to a close.

NAMES and LETTERS

Any letter written for publication and received at this office will not be published unless the writer sends his or her name with the letter. If the writer desires, the name will not be published but may use a pseudonym or nom de plume instead and the letter may be published.

Another unsigned letter has just been received at this office and will not appear in print until the name of the person who composed it is known to the newspaper. Insistence upon this small formality is considered reasonable.

CHRIST CHURCH GUILD CONCLUDES SPLENDID YEAR

The annual meeting of the Christ Church Parish Guild was held in the Parish Hall yesterday afternoon with Mrs. Hickey, the president, presiding. After the reading of the minutes and treasurers report of the year, the president thanked all the officers and members for their co-operation in the past year. The rector, Rev. G. O. Wright, then acted as chairman during the election of the officers for the coming year, which are:

Honorary President—Mrs. G. O. Wright.

President—Mrs. F. E. Hickey.

1st Vice-President—Miss F. Fitzgerald.

2nd Vice-President—Mrs. R. A. Backus.

Secretary—Mrs. D. Sprung.

Treasurer—Mrs. Bill Cook.

Parish—Mrs. C. Bishop.

Press Secretary—Mrs. A. McGlashon.

The new officers then took over the meeting and the activities for the coming year were discussed. At the close of the meeting an enjoyable tea was served by the past officers.

Mrs. J. Latta Observes Her 80th Birthday

Plainfield, Jan. 20—One of the best known and a highly respected residents of Thurlow township is the person of Mrs. Mary Ann Hall, widow of the late Josiah Latta, today celebrated her eightieth birthday. Mrs. Latta was born in Belleville, on Jan. 20, 1857 and moved with her parents to Plainfield three years later. She married Mr. Latta on Oct. 26, 1874, at which time she moved to Latta where her husband was employed as a lumber in the mill. Forty-eight years ago they built their home just south of the bridge where Mrs. Latta has resided ever since. Her husband predeceased her twenty-five years ago. For several years after farming the farm with cold water. The soap and warm water at bed time. Many cosmetics are necessary to keep the skin soft and smooth, remove them after half an hour, bathing freely of water. That's necessary when sebaceous glands act like geysers. Use a light powder. Don't friction the skin more than is necessary for the sake of cleansing.

The report in Saturday's issue of the Ontario Intelligencer of the Zion Hill congregation contained an error and instead of reading $15 to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund should have read $50.

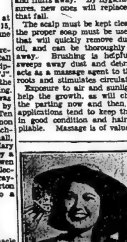
45TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY MARKED

On January 13th, the children and grandchildren gathered with friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Douglas, Thomasburg, to celebrate the forty-fifth wedding anniversary of their parents. Mr. and Mrs. Douglas, Fuller. To this happy union were born two sons and four daughters who were present: Johnnie of Ivanhoe; (Mabel) Mrs. Wm. McCallister, Toronto; (Irene) Mrs. Dave Thompson, Thomasburg; (Violet) Mrs. Burton Calvert, Sawdon; Della Mrs. Donald Sharpe, Hoard's Station; Charlie, living in Fuller.

Mr and Mrs. Douglas were taken by surprise as they were called to take chairs in the dining room. The following address was read by their eldest grandchild, Miss Mabel McAllister, Toronto.

Fuller, Ont. Jan. 13, 1937.



Dear Mother and Dad:

We, your children and grandchildren have come here this evening to celebrate an occasion that few of us reach in married life. Knowing that at any time we are welcome, but tonight we come in memory of your forty-fifth anniversary. The years have rolled on very swiftly till forty-five have passed. God has been good to spare you both so well in health and hoping you will have many more happy and prosperous years.

This gift we bring to you, Dad and Mother, as a token of our love. Long may you live and health enjoy for many years.

Signed on behalf of your children and grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas thanked the children and friends for so kindly remembering them. They were presented with a handsome Davenport. They also received oldies gifts from relatives. All joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows." The remainder of the evening was spent in a social way.

AT THE BELLE

"Lloyds of London"

Surprise follows dramatic surprise, romantic secrets are revealed and tangled lives set straight when the Country Doctor's 3,000 grown up "babies" come back to share their joys and tears with the man who brought them into the world in "Reunion," Twentieth Century-Fox's latest screen triumph coming to the Belle tomorrow and Friday, maintaining daily in an outstanding two-feature program.

"Reunion," which stars the world-famous Dionne Quins and features Jean Hersholt, Rochelle Hudson, Helen Vinson, Sara Sunnerville, Robert Kent, John Quinlan, Dorothy Peterson and many other players, boasts the years most important cast in the season's most unusual drama.

The Quins' Dr. Luke, played by Jean Hersholt, on the verge of retirement from the burdens he has carried for a generation, decides to call back from all over the globe the three thousand men and women whom he assisted into the world. From all over the country they come, the rich and the poor, the high-placed and the lowly, to take part in the reunion.

Also joining the party is attractive young Dr. Tony Lake, the son of the doctor who has called back to the little Canadian town from the post in Toronto's General Hospital (Continued on Page 8)

AT THE CAPITOL

"East Meets West"

You will never forget—the blazing romance of this dashing young Oriental prince—who, madly infatuated, lures away the bride of the English officer—in defiance of the Rajah of Rungay—played by George Arliss—all powerful ruler of the Orient.

The Arliss gift for charming and thrilling the midst of double-dealing intrigue is given full display in "East Meets West," now playing the Capitol theatre. Here again, is George Arliss in jeweled splendor and brocades, as colorful in costume as in character . . . delightfully difficult to center in a diplomatic tilt with words and wits.

The Rajah of Rungay is besieged on every front—on the east and the west. They are over-anxious to sign pour treaties of which the Rajah knows full well the value. He lets them come to his door—but before they can toil their heels on his door-steps while he talks of butterflies against the blue sky. Also while he tries to break up the romance between his handsome son, Prince Ramadjah and the beautiful Marguerite Carter, unhappy wife of an English official who is secretly engaged in running rum into the prohibition state of Rungay.

The story swings to a spectacular climax in which, by the light of a thousand torches Carter is doomed to be hanged—but as he regrets his brutalities to his wife, and she discovers that she still loves him . . .

Lucie Mannheim, Godfrey Tearle and Lumsden Hare are featured in support of George Arliss in "East Meets West."

Added Film

A novelty "Rhythm on the River" and a terry toon cartoon "Farmer Alfalfa and Bo Peep" also a Johnny Birke comedy "Sheik to Shriek" complete this splendid bill.

RAGING FLOOD UNDERMINE D BRIDGE, DROWNED ONE

Swollen to violent flood by unseasonal rains, the east fork of the White river at Seymour, Indiana, washed out this bridge as shown in this graphic picture. A U. S. forest supervisor was drowned when his automobile plunged from the road as he sought to avoid these crevices in the bridge. Throughout the United States citizens, farmers and river front residents are preparing to flee their homes as flood waters rise in the most dangerous flood threat in 27 years, during course of disastrous flood last year, has already taken top grade crops and main streets while such cities as Cincinnati, Ohio, and Evansville, Ind., were momentarily awaiting the flood waters.

Y'S MEN GUESTS KIWANIS CLUB

Arthur A. Bagley of New York is Special Speaker

Arthur A. Bagley, formerly connected with Physical Educaion in the Y.M.C.A., conducted radio programs for better health and now connected with an insurance company was the special speaker at the Kiwanis luncheon meeting held at the Queen's Hotel, where that club were hosts to the Y's Men of Belleville. Mr. Bagley is president, he was one of the largest turnouts under the regime of Eddie Logan, recently elected president of the Kiwanis Club and augurs well for his term of office.

The address of Mr. Bagley was reported fully in Tuesday's issue, he having spoken to the Kinsmen on Monday evening but both members enjoyed his witty, breezy remarks and were impressed by the comparisons drawn between a run down motor and the human body. The speaker impressed upon all the value of having the human body serviced at regular intervals to keep it in tune with the duties of the world. He stated the body should have regular food and sparingly, healthful exercise and at least seven and one half hours of sleep each night. In chemical compounds the body is only worth 97 cents but as a frame for the human mind the speaker declared it was worth an untold price. The speaker was introduced by Gordon Bray and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by Scott.

The Y's Men were welcomed by President Logan and Jack Wilbert suitably replied and introduced each of the members of the Kiwanis Club. The members are quite enthusiastic over the impending dance to be held on the Monday night preceding St. Valentine's Day and invitations will be issued in a few days. "Dick" Hennessey is organizing the music of the orchestra committee and every effort is being made to have one of the best dances in the history of the club. There will be more information on the social event in the near future.

LITTLE DAMAGE FROM HOLLINGER MINE FIRE

Timmins, Ont., Jan. 20 (CP)—Fire which broke out in the 600-foot level of Hollinger Gold Mine but did "didn't amount to anything" and "no investigation" was planned by the company, general manager Edmund Knox announced today.

Fire fighters fought the underground passage of the mine with dense black smoke and gases following removal of the miners working on the afternoon shift. The blaze occurred near the main shaft.

"Everything is in order today," said the manager. Very little damage was caused by the fire, he added.

THE DOUBLE-BARRED CROSS

International Symbol of the Crusade against Tuberculosis

As armies march across the land they carry their flags to show their rights or their wrongs as the case may be. Ever since Christians have marched they have carried flags and banners with the symbol of the cross, the emblem of the Captain of Our Salvation. Many of these flags blazoned forth in terse and forcibly simple language the right of a mighty God. Truly, it would seem that all Christian era the cross became a tremendous power. Many nations adopted this emblem upon their banner, many a battle was fought in the name of the cross, many a soldier went to his death with the Holy Land from the infidel.

Crosses of many kinds and great ornamentations have been used by innumerable nations, tribes, societies and organizations. The Red Cross Society has taken a religious symbol among the nations of the world and has used the cross. The swastika of Hitlerism is an ancient religious symbol of Germany. Then the habit of choosing emblems has been taken up by the anti-tuberculosis movement. It is only natural that a movement of this kind should use a religious symbol. It is only natural that as the war against tuberculosis has been likened to a crusade that the international emblem should be chosen which would typify this fact. The cross was given careful consideration for it was immediately seen that it would be internationally accepted and have a universal appeal. The double-barred cross was finally decided upon and was adopted international symbol such as the Red Cross.

It would seem that the tuberculosis movement has been fortunate in the choice of its emblem. The double-barred cross is a symbol that would have something akin to the significance of the Christian peace of the Red (Geneva) Cross, and the Red Cross. The double-barred cross is a symbol that is known throughout the Christian world, but those of the various sects, Catholic, Protestant, Greek, etc. They had also to avoid the Celtic, the Greek and the Latin cross. It is said that the world would be searched in vain for a cross that was seen that what they would be acceptable to all "sects and creeds" and so we have the patriarchal cross. The double-barred cross is two crusade accomplished, now a symbol of the fight that is being waged against tuberculosis. Just as the crusaders of old marched against the infidel, so the crusaders of today march against tuberculosis, a new crusade against the infidel that is ravaging the world the Holy Land of Health."

The Christmas Seal campaign is the annual drive of the National Sanitarium Association and the Provincial Committee for Consumptives have selected these days for the campaign under which they and other sanitorium and tuberculosis work is maintained in the Province have won such marked success.

The Christmas Seal campaign with the combined effort and the financial support of thousands of citizens throughout the country is the means by which the work of the National Sanitarium Association and the Provincial Committee for Consumptives in Toronto will be greatly appreciated.

ART JACKSON IS LEADING SCORER

Syracuse Star Graduates to Toronto Maple Leafs

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 20 (AP) —Art Jackson graduated from the Syracuse Stars last week as the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League but today he still held top scoring honors in the International-American Hockey League.

The player most likely to succeed Howie Morenz, league's most scorer, it appeared from the official statistics released today, was his team-mate, Jack Shill, who had 30 points to Jackson's 33.

Feature of the past week's individual scoring race climb of Philadelphia's Clint Smith and Eddie Convey of Syracuse into a tie for third place with 28 points apiece. They displaced Eddie Keating of Providence whose 27 points left him fourth on the list.

Bryan Hextall of Philadelphia has more goals than anyone in the league, 16, but he has been favored with only 19 assists. Jackson has 15 goals and 18 assists.

Jack Church of Syracuse, who needs no more in incurring the wrath of the referees boosted his penalty total during the past week to 38 minutes and appeared to have the league "bad-man" title clinched for the season.

Hi Y Club Elects Officers for Year

The High School membership group of the Y.M.C.A. met for supper in the Association building last evening with President Jack Dickens in the chair.

Hamish Wilson at the piano led the community singing. Rev. J. G. Walker of St. Andrew's Church, was introduced and presented a fellowship-filled talk on the topic "The Kingdom". The speaker rehearsed the various conceptions in the minds of men and women as they sought to bring in a World Kingdom of Ideal Peace.

The objectives of Communism, Nazism, Fascism and others where not accepted were forced at the point of the sword.

Rev. Walker was introduced by Jesus was one of peace, it was Jesus' aim and work based on Love, Purity, Justice, Peace and Noble Character.

The Christian Character growth was, Mr. Walker told his group, the main objective of the Young Men's Christian Association.

The speaker was thanked by the President and by the Secretary J. E. Sheen.

An attractive programme was outlined. The swoper will be held second week in February.

The election resulted as follows: President—Gordon Edwards.
Vice-President—Jack Dickens.
Chairman Intellectual and Religious Work—Wesley Semple.
Chairman Physical and Social Work—Clarence Largabeer.
Chairman of Membership—Howard Fry.
Chairman World Brotherhood—Douglas McBride.

Yacht Club Boys Defeat Marmora 7 to 3 At Madoc

Madoc, Jan. 20 (Special)—The Belleville entry in the Central Hastings League won its opening game here last night, Marmora at the Madoc Arena on Tuesday night by the score of 7-3. The games included very little real hockey and old-fashioned shinny was the order of the day. Both teams showed lack of condition and team play.

Numerous penalties were handed out for minor infractions. For Belleville Hinton, Ehler and "Hap" Day turned in good games while Shannon, Leonard and Kourl were the pick of the losers. "Windy" Ware of Stirling was the referee.

Line-ups:

Marmora—Goal, Callery; defence, Smith, B. Shannon; centre, Leonard; wing, Kourl, Shannon; subs, T. Shannon, Simmons, Kerr, Neal.

BENNY LYNCH IS FLYWEIGHT CHAMP

Scotch Battler Too Rugged For Small Montana in London

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The busy fists of Scotland's little slugger, Benny Lynch, have just about settled the world's Flyweight Championship muddle.

Thirteen thousand fans saw Lynch decisively outpoint San Francisco's transplanted Filipino, Small Montana, over the 15-round route last night to win the title that has shuttled for half a dozen fighters off and on since Pancho Villa died two years ago.

Lynch, British Champion and Commonwealth titleholder, scaled 111 pounds, six ounces for the Montana, who weighed in at 110 pounds, nine ounces.

Putting on a typical exhibition of slugger vs boxer, with Lynch in the former role, the two had the fans out of their seats throughout the fight.

Lynch had most on the better of the going in all but the last two heats, when Montana shifted to a heavy-handed body attack. But even, then, he was unable to make the rugged Scot give ground, for Lynch met in and clawed Montana up with a pair of hard right crosses.

The hardest blow of the fight came in the sixth, Lynch let go a right hand smash but Montana took it flush on the jaw and still kept fighting. Although it drove him hard into the ropes.

Fliers Coast to 7-3 Win Over Peterboro to Lead Group Without a Defeat

Three Goals in First And Four in Second Clinch Pastime

AIRMEN TOO FAST

Hold Edge in Condition And Have Smoother System

Unleashing an initial period attack that netted them three goals, the R.C.A.F. "Fliers" coasted through to a 7 to 3 victory over the Peterborough intermediates in the first intermediate O.H.A. group No. 2 game played in O.H.A. group No. 2 last evening before 1,500 rabid fans at the Belleville Arena. At the game progressed personal feelings developed and ran rather high with the two "Airmen" entering the Peten four to three in the middle stanzas with no goals being registered in the final frame. It was the second consecutive victory for the "Fliers" over the latter of the season for the visiting Petes.

From the outset the Partridge-Lalonde defence of the "Fliers" commanded the respect of the Lily Ick City squad, forcing them to shoot from well out. Behind this stonewall defence Lorrie Gibson, Fliers' goalkeeper displayed coolness, however, when the Petes did manage to break through the defence in the latter stages of the game, as he made a number of fine plays, Coach Carling-Kelly dropped the pick of his crop over the boards in the starting line in Lowrey at centre, flanked by Cowley and Ernie McKelvey. The former looking the best with his smooth snave manner through the centre-his zone. The "Fliers" showed more finish in their plays and were always unguarded with the puck, when on the offensive to always make their combination plays effective. Ernie McKelvey and Lecompte were the pick of the Flyingmen's aleiemen.

Could Not Hit Fliers

All evening the Petes' defence endeavored in vain to body-check the shifter fliers as they literally flew through upon the Petes' citadel to give Carne one of the busiest nights he has experienced in the current year. Archie Weir proved the best of the losers' rearguardsmen with Vittarelli, the fast skating Peterboro Italian along right wing, starring for the visitors on the offensive. As the game progressed, however, the ability Bill Calladine came into his own and was playing better hockey as the game advanced and Bill Creighton also played good hockey, with the "marvel-looped" Creighton giving the fans plenty of action as he endeavored to mix matters with the sturdy Fliers, who possessed not much finish and general hockey ability in the phases on the Petes. In fairness to the vanquished Lilick City team, however, Coach Buckland pointed out the game was only his club's second in the present season, while the fliers had the advantage of some 14 games thus far this season. "It will be a far different story the next time we meet," predicted Buckland.

The Play

The game opened with repeated thrusts into the home area by combination and individual play. Both teams had changed their forward lines once and four minutes of play had elapsed before the first direct shot on goal was registered, that being when "Shrimp" McDougall, former pro pugilist, rifled a long shot from outside the defence at Gibson without success. Seconds later, however, the clever-sized Lalonde raced the length of the ice to dribble with a well-placed shot ankle-high, picked the lower left-hand corner of the net to beat Clarke and opening the scoring in favor of the Fliers. Gibson was tested twice by Calladine and Vittarelli before Ernie McKelvey sped down the right alley, drew over the Peterboro defence, passed to Cowley, who duplicated Lalonde's shot from a difficult angle. The "Fliers" grabbed the rubber at the face-off and scored again, only reversing matters from the previous goal, Cowley giving the pass to Ernie McKelvey as this point and there was no score for the remainder of the period was pretty much Fliers.

Second Period

The second frame was but two minutes old, when Les Burton scored on the Petes' initial goal, on a combination play, Calladine, to Vittarelli to Burton, all assisting in the fliers' defence zone. Bill Calladine lifted the hopes of the Petes, as he checked Ken Bellfield the Fliers' net, but hoisted the puck away from him and circled around and into the net over the prostrate body of Gibson and the Petes were only trailing 3 to 2. Vittarelli drew an unnecessary penalty as he charged Cowley and was sent to the "cooler." During his absence the Fliers ran in three rapid goals. Ernie McKelvey and Lalonde to pass, Cowley scored from a pass from Eric Lecompte and Lecompte notched the red light after taking Ernie McKelvey's pass out as the latter moved for the goal and also applied the heavy power plays, that netted them three goals and another harder upon his return to the ice and gave Lalonde a chance to score to have the latter make sure of the last goal of the game. There was no scoring in the final period, much personal contact was seen during the last few minutes and feelings ran rather high prompting Referee Joe Smith to hand out all penalties. Although no serious outbreaks were in evidence the keen rivalry was unfortunate and acceptable to the fans, who roared their approval of the master of ceremonies when he entered into the fracas and exchanged elbows, fists and cross-checks.

The class of hockey displayed left the patrons of the game with the feeling that leaving the Arena high in their praises of the calibre of hockey being affected the local following in their group this season. The next appearance of the R.C.A.F. "Fliers" at the Belleville Arena will be on Friday night, when they meet the Belleville "Red-men" for the second time this season. The Tommies were also practicing faithfully for the past ten days and are out to wipe off the defeat handed them at the hands of the "Airmen" on Friday night.

LAJOIE, SPEAKER YOUNG ADDED TO ALL - TIME TEAM

Catcher, First Baseman And Third Baseman Yet to be Added

PLAQUES ERECTED

Wagner, Cobb, Ruth, Johnson and Mathewson Chosen on First Ballot

(By Sid Feder)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Jan. 20.—Addition of baseball's diamond department and middle of the infield for baseball's all-time hall of fame are complete today.

From the honor roll of the diamond's immortals, baseball writers of America have selected eight players whose names easily recall the most stirring performances the game has ever seen.

As they line up mythically under Manager Connie Mack's tutelage for the birthplace of the game in Cooperstown, N.Y., they are:

First baseman—Napoleon Lajoie. Shortstop—Honus Wagner.

Outfielder—Ty Cobb.

Outfielder—Babe Ruth.

Pitcher—Christy Mathewson.

Pitcher—Cy Young.

Pitcher—Walter Johnson.

Last Three Named

Lajoie, Speaker and Young join the others as the results of the latest poll of the Baseball Writers' Association, announced last night. The other five are the "Original Immortals", named in the first of the annual polls a year ago.

Lajoie, the speedy second baseman who compiled a .338 lifetime batting average for 15 years in the big-time, topped the poll with 168 votes of a possible 201. Speaker, often nominated as baseball's greatest outfielder, received 185 and Young, great iron-man right-hander of the '90's, had 181.

All three are still living. Lajoie at Daytona Beach, Fla., Speaker in Cleveland and Young on a farm near Peoli, Ohio.

Lajoie's major league career carried him from Philadelphia Phillies to the Athletics, to Cleveland and back to the Athletics before it ended in 1917. Brilliant both on defence and at the bat, Connie Mack's prediction compiled a lifetime batting average of .338 to go with his unusually high batting mark for that period in baseball history.

Career of Three Teams

Star of three world championship flags in the Boston Red Sox baseball, Speaker's diamond span stretched from 1907 to 1928, including seven seasons with the Red Sox and 11 years with the Indians. As the forecher Frenchman compiled a lifetime batting average of .345 to go with his unusually high batting mark for that period in baseball history.

High Scoring Games in N.H.L. As Leafs Swamp Bruins 6-2 Detroit Defeats Hawks 7-2

Canadiens Earn Tie With Rangers to Continue on Top Rung

DRILLON A STAR

Rookie Scores Three Goals, Two of Them Unassisted

(By The Canadian Press)

Overtime hockey bearing to stuff shoulder harness under a stiff shirt but if respect from the fans is proper dress continues to bring his team success, Manager Dean Smyth, may trot out his Toronto Maple Leafs in tails and toppers around playoff time.

The publicity-wise mogul attempted to prove his contention that National League hockey needed "refinement" and turned on for Leafs' contest with Bruins at Boston last night decked out in a cutaway coat, striped trousers and silk topper. Smyth's leaning to better table manners was lost on his charges and they won under wraps, 6-2.

Not to be outdone in the dash for rink-side splendor, Weston Adams, Bruins' President, had on a dress waering full dress. But his topper lacked the golden of Conn's and the same could be said of his players compared with Leafs. A crowd of 15,000 seemed to appreciate the "refinement" which ended on the ice in a gang-fight.

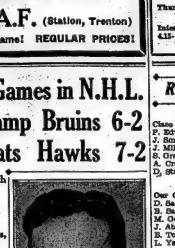
Manager Jack Adams

The decisive win was welcome in the Toronto dressing because it lifted Maple Leafs to within four points of the idle second-place Maroons in the Canadian section, with three games in hand. They also supplied a touch to the leading Canadiens, who were only able to earn a 1-1 tie with Rangers in overtime at New York.

Manager Jack Adams made no attempt to crash in on the League's best-dressed manager, compelling himself to be installed into his Detroit Red Wings, seemed to work. Everybody else seemed to be fattening their averages at Chicago Black Hawks' expense and Adams decided it was time Wings capitalized—they did, scoring their first win over the United States section tall-enders, 7-2.

While Smythe was installed before Boston's hockey minded in his monkey-suit he was confronted by ruffle his calm, so smoothly did Leafs perform. Syl Apps, Gordon Drillon continues to perform as he did against Bruins. Smythe predicts he will be out of the game for six weeks. The Maritimer clicked on the hat-trick, scoring three successive goals, two unassisted.

Gottselig, Kelly and Blair also scored.



Bill Kendall, recently obtained from Chicago by a trade for Pep Kelly, plus cash, made his debut in success early in the first period. Drillon followed with his three-marker spurgeon, two of them coming before the first period ended. Ray Getliffe scored both Boston goals in the third period but the efforts were checked by Bill Thoms and Red Horner.

Manager Lockhart with the Pittsburg Frenchmen from Montreal enlisted Rangers' first win after 10 games ahead of the third-place Bruins in the U.S. group but they came close to taking a flop. Alex Shibicky, veteran left-winger, gave the Habitants a head mid-way through the first session and it was not until the third period that Butch Keeling finally solved Wilf Cude's goal-tending methods to knot the count.

In the Toronto-Detroit tilt, Detroit, little Larry Aurie added to his already bright chances of finishing as the League's top scorer when he recorded four points. His two goals and two assists moved him three points from Marty Barry, his contenders and closest rival in the race. Barry gained a single point.

Not far behind the brilliant Aurie came Syd Howe with two timely pucks behind Mike Karakas and helped Aurie score one of his. Wally Kilrea, Herb Lewis and Mud Bruneteau were the other wing marksmen. Pete Palangio continued as one of the spark-plugs of Hawks' flimsy attack, scoring their first goal lone-handed. It took three of Detroit's combination to manipulate the other tally, Marty Burke scoring and Art Wiebe and Andy Blair gaining assists.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit's Larry Aurie opened a three-point margin in the scoring race, Marty Barry, for the National League scoring lead last night by tieing two goals and gaining two assists in Red Wings 7-2 victory over Chicago Black Hawks. It only got one assist but it kept him within striking distance with 29 points, one more than Canadiens' Babe Siebert. Gagnon who also picked up an assist.

The Leaders:

	G	A	Pts
Aurie, Detroit	17	12	29
Barry, Detroit	10	19	29
Gagnon, Canadiens	13	12	25
Schriner, Americans	9	13	22
Lewis, Detroit	12	9	21
Wiebe, Detroit	11	9	20
Jolat, Canadiens	11	7	18
Cowley, Boston	9	11	20

N. H. L STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Larry Aurie, Detroit, who fired two goas and gained two assists in N. Red Wings whipped Chicago, 7-2.

Syd Howe, Detroit, another leader of the bombardment who picked up two goals and an assist.

Gordon Drillon, Toronto, whose three goals set the Leaf pace in a 6-2 victory over Boston.

Butch Keeling, Rangers, whose third-period goal brought Rangers a 1-1 tie against Canadiens.

Wilf Cude, Canadiens, whose superb goa-tending bocked all Rangers' win the exception of Keeling.

At this point we would like to make a personal appeal to some sport fan. Last night "Ted" Kearns, Peterboro' baseball player, lost a wrist watch at the Arena. We will not go into details, but the watch was given to "Ted" as a birthday present and again we appeal to the person who found the time-piece to return it to the arena management. It is not the value of the watch, but the fact it is a gift, "PLEASE."

In-their two games played thus far this season the Belleville intermediates have scored a total of 14 goals as 18 scored against them. Tonight the Redmen entertain Trenton for a very important game as the two teams are tied. In the league games we find Bill Jackson and Speedy St. Louis each having scored three goals. Cy Barrigar, Harry Ingram and Carl Morgan have a brace each to their credit while Jimmie McGuire and Ross Hepple have clapped one home each. In the matter of assists, however, Cy Barrigar is leading the parade with three. "Chayt Jackson," "Honey" Tompkins and St. Louis each have a brace of assists while Burley McGuire, Buster Whitton, Morgan and Sweeney have one apiece. Jimmie Risher is the only player not to be broken in on the score sheet in some manner, but Jimmie's outstanding work on the defence this season has more than counteracted his tough luck on the offence. It is understood "Buster" Whitton will be back in the local lineup for Wednesday's game.

The playoff date for the Ontario Hockey Association has been announced yesterday by all groups. The E.O.A.A., winners in both the intermediate and junior series must be ready to open the Toronto and District winners set March 4th next. Barring accidents this should be ample time for the conclusion of their schedule terminates on Feb. 28th. Tonight, at the Armouries, the Belleville "Ty Intermediates" entertain Trenton in their final home game versus the sturdy Queen's University squad. At the senior Intercollegiate schedule does not open until Feb. 5th, doubtless Coach Bert Gardiner will have Queen's will be included on Intermediate lineup. What backing is needed for some years past in Belleville has been on the part of the fans. In "Red" Gordon, their playing-coach, the local boosters have a player of the type of hockey that can knock the game from all angles. Red has the confidence of his fellow-players, and his style of play displayed by Coach Gordon should make him a popular choice. Gordon, it might be believes in purely an offensive game. The Intermediate Queen's game tonight is gratis to the public, with a view in mind of securing a permanent spot on the popular indoor winter sport.

We almost forgot to mention it, instead of playing a double-header in the E.O.A.A. on Saturday the A.C. juniors will play their schedule junior game till the B.C.I. gymnasium tonight, thus saving time. The Deacon kids meet the Trenton Juniors in a regular league fixture.

Should the Peterboro intermediates were in town last night Manager Bobbie Thomson arranged to have the Belleville at Peterboro game put on there, which was postponed, played on Jan. 20th.

The Detroit Red Wings and the Toronto Maple Leafs surely went to town last night as the Wings blasted Chicago 7 to 2 and the Leafs downed Boston, 6 to 2 right in Beantown. While all of this was going on the Montreal Maroons and Canadiens split two points, playing to a one-all tie.

Jack Haig Gives Talk On Mining in Hastings

Tells Campbellford Rotary Club of Early Gold Rushes Here

MUCH TO BE DONE

Mining development in the County of Hastings, and the position this County occupies in the province in general was clearly sketched by Mr. Jack Haig of this city, formerly of Campbellford, in one of the most interesting addresses members of the Campbellford Rotary Club have been privileged to hear.

Mr. Haig was guest speaker at the regular luncheon meeting of the Club, held in the St. Lawrence Hotel, Campbellford, on Monday.

In pointing out that he did not qualify as an expert on the industry in his opening remarks, Mr. Haig reminded that only a qualified geologist would attempt the technicalities in the field. From a knowledge gained by intensive research and study of the matter, together with personal contact with highly interesting comparisons and devoted much of his life to the mining of this country from the early days of mining.

Canada today is the world's fourth largest producer of gold. She is also leading in the production of asbestos, nickel and cobalt, and she is third in the production of copper, zinc and silver and is fourth in gold and lead. Our total output has jumped from $27,000,000 in 1928 to approximately $140,000,000 in 1936," declared the speaker.

"The mining industry ranks second only to agriculture in importance in this country, and has been a prosperous industry without our government though one of the world's largest and most stable depressions."

Hastings County, labelled by the speaker as a "geologist's paradise," contained almost every geological formation found anywhere in Canada," continued Mr. Haig, including rocks of the Laurentian and many metallic minerals with the exception of iron. Professors of geology have found Hastings County a happy hunting ground for their researches, it was added."

Mining in the Early Days

Quoting from 'Mine Finders', a work written by Mr. Haig, the gold rush in Ontario in the year 1866, Mr. Haig declared that the Steenbardon Mine as it became known was the first mine to be found as part of curiosity seekers as well as prospector. In the book it is stated that four-and-a-half stage coaches left Belleville daily, bringing four thousand people to the then small village of Eldorado, then ill-provided to accommodate the crowd that came. It told also of the road houses which sprang up from the ground to close proximity to "quench the thirsts of the throng."

The mine was worked intermittently in after years and remains the property of the Crown, so he has been. There is no official record of production, but residents state that much gold was mined through, but the shallow shafts, which are all that remain of the mines soon became much gold as the owners received. Although the find never became a commercial success it provided the stimulus in prospecting in Eastern Ontario and soon mining operations were being carried on in such still well remembered mines as the famous Deloro, Faraday, Cardiff, Cresson, Madoc Creek, Belmont and Golden Fleece—all unprofitable efforts that form the cornerstone of the industry of great economic importance to the province, the speaker related.

"An interesting sideline to this quotation is that on the day Canada was celebrating her first Dominion Day a shipment was made from one of a new gold mine called the "Young Mine", the speaker continued.

Unsolved Problems Hindered Mining

In answer to the question of why Hastings County had apparently died so quickly in the early days, Mr. Haig explained that in the first place there were metallurgical problems of separating the gold ores. Its various combinations, which at that time were unsolved, but were today simple matters for the metallurgist. Then there were no steam or air pressure drills. The drilling was all done by hand. Another reason was the price of gold at the time, which was extremely low. Remunerative wages and the lure of others of appropriating gold for themselves when sporting in the mine also accounted for considerable expense in operating.

The next actual development in mining was during the war when the demand became felt. During this time six thousand tons were being operated near Madoc. So important was this mineral that it was given precedence in the manufacture over all other products. It was used extensively in the manufacture of explosives, glass and steel. Since the war, however, the properties have not been worked.

Near Madoc, there are two slate mines and a talc mine, the latter of which has been in operation for years and is one of the largest producers on the continent. A recent discovery is a lead mine which has been opened up near Millbridge. Mica has been discovered in the County, but not to any great extent. Two miles from Bancroft a mesbite quarry is now being worked, producing a quality product not excelled by the famous Italian marble and used extensively in the new Queen's Park Parliament Buildings.

Much Prospecting Being Done

"Many companies are prospecting in the County at the present time and although there is much to be done before such an area can be warrant further effort, add a report made by Jack Haig as an outstanding engineer is being looked forward to with considerable interest," said Mr. Haig.

"Although reports from large and well-known companies are as to the exact results obtained are not given prominence in news reports, the fact that they are continuing to spend large sums of money is indicative at least, that the properties are worth the development which is good. Such are the possibilities of this field were further enhanced by the promise that lower rail transportation were facts which also help," he said.

"It takes years of effort, discouragement and constructive encouragement and prove to maturity any industry. So far the pioneering stage still exists, but if it weren't for the pioneer and dreamer, I am afraid that the mineral resources would ever have been achieved in this world of ours," said the mining materials reviews," concluded Mr. Haig.

Chairman of the luncheon was Dr. E. A. Shaw and introduced the speaker.

Livestock

Toronto, Jan 20 (CP)—An easier tone was noted on the calf division of the Toronto Livestock Market yesterday, values declining 50c to $1 lower. Cattle trade was slow and unchanged. Sheep and lambs moved around previous levels. The hog market was quoted firmly at 50c higher. Cattle holdover from Tuesday was 400 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Department of Branch were: Cattle 1910; calves 1801; hogs 920; sheep and lambs 4200.

Good butcher steers brought $5.50 to $5.75. Good heifers sold from $5.40 to $5.60. Butcher cows were from $3.75 to $4. A few good bulls sold at $4.85 to $5 and choice bologna from $3.50 to $3.75. Feeder calves ranged from $5.50 to $7.50. Canners and cutters sold at $2.50 down.

There was a general top of $10.50 with a few sales up to $11. Heavyweights sold from $9.75 down. Indications pointed to a steady close on the day's market. Previous close for off truck beeons was $10.15 to $10.25.

Good ewe and wether lambs were priced at $10.50 with other grades from $8 to $10. Heavyweight $5.25 to $5.50 cwt. and some good light ewes $5-75.

Toronto, Jan. 20.—(CP)—Light offerings gave traders little chance to local price today on Montreal Livestock markets and rates held unchanged for the most part.

Receipts—Cattle 10; calves 49; hogs 1,000; sheep 1,000.

Choice heavy steers made $6.50 at mid-session, with a few choice bologna bulls $5 to $3.50.

Good calves sold at $7 to $9 while grassers were $3.50 to $4.

One lot of lambs averaging 63 pounds sold for $9.75, commoner grades sold around $7.25, sheep $2.50 to $3.

Bacon hogs, fed and watered, $11.50; selects, fed and watered $8, extra heavies and lights $7.50, sows $6 to $6.25.

Stratford $7.50; Chatham $8.

Dresdenwoight: Barrie $18.25; Orillia $18.25; Toronto $18.35; Hull $11.15; Peterborough $18.20; Stratford $18.25; Chatham $18.60.

Conclusion

The year 1937 will be an important one of this Porcupine producer addition. McIntyre and Hollinger on the East. The main shaft is being sunk to 1,000 ft. on 4,500 ft. while the Goldale mines in the west end of the property near Mcintyre is being sunk to 2,500 feet. The management hopes that at 2,000 feet and deeper the Pearl Lake (McIntyre) porphyry will be found thus increasing the grade of ore and resulting as well in an important increase in ore reserves.

For years Coniagarus have carried a tings of "hope deferred". But the work has now taken the mine down toward horizons where ore comparable to those of the neighbors should be found, and the year's development work, it is thought, will bring the long expected results.

Such fine results have been had on many preferred properties in Porcupine that one could feel that the hard, dusty and actually profitable work done at Coniagarus for several years will eventually bear rich fruit.

Although the company is in a very strong cash position with around $600,000 of cash or liquid assets, no dividends have as yet been paid, assets having been conserved for the big development job. Profits during 1936 to a day yield about $130,000 a month with a net profit of around 10c per-three months reported last year, before taxes and depreciation. No important increase is expected to be shown in the 1936 report for ore reserves are still being maintained at slightly more than 200,000 tons.

In the third quarter of last year, the last available figures, milheads were 97 to a ton and operating costs were $6.47. It will be readily seen that should the average grade of the ore increase diminishing costs would be an important increase in profits. For each instance the treatment of $2.00 a ton in millheads would mean additional earnings of $200,000 the equivalent of 13 cents per share. Last year's range for the stock was 29 cents to 60 and $2.75. Issued capital of 2,730,000 is listed on the Toronto exchange with Ventures alone owning 1,430,000 shares.

Colliery Comment

Yesterday's market reaction was of moderate proportions and had all the earmarks of being just the usual technical reaction that occurs in every now and then. After current profit-taking has run its course, as many believe the market will resume its upward trend.

Recent talk of a stock market boom reminds us that excessive speculation is not confined solely to stock markets. It can develop in commodities (with which Canada is largely concerned) or in real estate, as occurred when Florida property was running high and mighty.

Several U.S. investors and speculators who have made fortunes and who were anxious to protect part of these without having too large a portion of their capital tied up in 1936 were advised by tax lawyers to take a long position into January 1937. In this way the short stock could be covered and profits be liquidated in the current year. The short sale provided insurance and protected the profit through the closing weeks or months of 1936. Similar tactics are in question how such transactions will be treated under the New Deal, reserving the right to treat these cases on their individual merits. It is possible, however, that some sort sales against the but in 1936 will be considered legitimate losses and the profits for 1936 will be computed accordingly.

Traveller Says Belleville Citizens Rise Later Than Folk of Other Centres

MILK BOTTLES A CLUE

"Belleville," commented the commercial traveller whose daily rounds take him to the doors of homes of this and other cities, "is a city of late risers. They stay in bed here longer in the morning than any other city I visit. Proof? They don't take the milk bottles in from the front door step here until well on toward noon."

"I notice this not only on the better class residential streets but all through the wards, too. Although in the case of workingmen it generally would seem to be that the milk is in and ready for the breakfast table by nine o'clock at least.

"I keep an eye out for the milk bottles, because I have often hadn't been taken in I don't bother knocking at the door. Either they're not there, or else they're still on the breakfast yet. And there's no use trying to get service after that hour in the morning coffee.

Ottawa, Jan. 20—The opinion of the traveller is one of the earliest risers in this central district of Kingston is also of the early risers and stay-a-beds. Peterboro is just a half-and-half proposition. But Belleville tops them all when it comes to either staying in bed in the morning or simply staying in.

The smaller towns and villages, however, the rural touch is evidenced. Here the residents have got up before breakfast, but are up and waiting for it long before Belleville's milk bottles are rolled over for the second nap.

COLDER WEATHER GOOD FOR GARAGES

Thermometers on downtown store fronts came into prominence again this morning as winter entered the district late last night to play a second engagement of the season with grim and chilly earnestness. During the night the mercury registered at the city pump house was recorded as 4 above, while highest registration marked today was set at 19 above.

CONSERVATION PRIMER NEEDED FOR SCHOOLS

At a special meeting of agriculturists of Hastings, Victoris-Belleville, Northumberland, Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington Counties held in Marmora Town Hall on Monday, and attended by representatives of these counties, the matter of soil conservation and forestry subjects were dealt with during the day's discussion of four subjects.

Monday meeting was sponsored by officials of the Farmers' Advocate.

Among some of the recommendations that came from the meeting to the Provincial Government for action is one asking the establishment of a conservation committee within the civil service, made up of representatives of the Department of Forests, Agriculture, Game and Fisheries, and Education, and also of parks and highways. Further proposals are that a conservation primer be prepared at once for use in schools of the Province in order that children may grow up familiar with lessons during the winter and spring of this year.

Warden Clifford of Peterborough County acted as chairman of the meeting.

THREE COMEDIES ARE PRESENTED

Young People's Winter School Has Dramatic Evening

Last night was dramatic night at the Young People's Winter School, when three one act plays were presented.

The first one presented by the Y.P. of Redneresville and Albury, "My Turn Next", a comedy-farce, kept the audience in a state of laughter from beginning to end. Mr. Twitter, Bill Stevens, York, married a sweet young thing, who turns out to have had four husbands before and went on to marry a fifth mysteriously". However explanations reveal that the first three previous husband were the one and only "Ida Jethro" who had at different intervals assumed the various names Twitters, much relieved and is happy that hasn't married the wrong one after all.

Aunt Arminia Mossy" presented by Mssassaga Y.P. was a good humorous comedy. Aunt Jemima gave a splendid interpretation of a maiden lady somewhat undecided in her choice between her nieces in the disposal of her property. In spite of this, Aunt Jemima managed somehow to cloak herself in the personality of a grandmother of the nieces showed remarkable talent in smoothing over the different points and making the best of rather ○ ○ plot.

The last, although a small part added humour and colour to an otherwise good and entertained story.

The Y.P. of St. John's Church, Campbellford, presented the third play of the evening "A Bargain's a Bargain", which was very well received by the audience. The story was based on the love of three married couples living in the modern apartment house. Mrs. Smith (Ruth Palliser), was very realistic in her scheming and planning how to win her husband back to the duty she needed a new $1,000 fur coat. Mrs. Brown (Jean Hall), played her part well in assisting Mrs. Smith in her scheme, Mr. Smith (Don Holmes), played true to form and come across with the unexpected new that he had cleared up $3,000 on his rubber stocks, instead of losing as he had feared he might have her new coat. In the meantime Mrs. Brown (Betty Horne) man thinking the coat was a $125 and his wife had brought home on approval sold it to Mrs. Howe (Mano Blake) for $200. Mr. Howe (Ernie Archer) returned to Mr. Brown had put it over his wife and home he should take the coat back, which he is more than delighted to do. Complications are cleared up and Mrs. Smith gets her coat and everything turns out for the best.

Tense and Dramatic Moments in Parliament—Trial at the Bar—Sir John A. Macdonald's Masterly Stroke—Touching Chivalry—The Proud Cree Chief Warrior—The Fall of One of the Mighty—and Other Stirring Episodes in the Political Drama.

As newspaper reporter, private secretary and observer, I have been in close contact with our Canadian Parliament for over fifty years. Only a few men can say that. Of all the hours I have spent in the stately pile of buildings at Ottawa where together, they would make up at least five years of my life, and, when I think of that, my memory goes back to schoolboy in the little German village of New Hamburg, Waterloo County, who had no such dream. Nothing could have secured more improbable, or wild strange and unforeseen proving do human lives turn!

Parliament, as the supreme council of the nation, has a thousand proud hours for one with thrilling yet I have seen quite a number of tensely dramatic moments within the Commons chamber. The first was soon after I had entered the Press Gallery, which I did in 1880, when John B. Dunn was brought to the bar and there, in the face and in the full glare of his authority as Returning Officer in an election contest in County, New Brunswick. An event like that could not be forgotten. It was a dramatic picture of the feudal background of the proceedings.

In practically this way was Wemyss Hastings Jardine, the last of the British Parliament in 1786, charged with high crimes and misdemeanors in connection with the downfall of the Rajah Chait Singh and the confiscation of lands and treasure there-from. The Rajah's mother, the Begum of Oudh. There was a glorious however. John B. Dunn knew his fate in a few hours, whereas Warren Hastings had been impeached till seven years after his indictment. There was the Edmund Burke declaim the Canadian House with the fine periods of the Westminster Hall the form of proceeding was identical in both cases. Parliament is a great repository of the traditions, the origin of which goes back to Magna Charta in 1215. The Mr. John Dunn was not in the least overawed by the ancient ritual, and had no clerk or counsel to assist him. On the whole, the thing was rather tedious and boring except for the times in which questions were asked and answered to the fact of a man being tried at the bar of the House, with all the traditional trappings, was definitely dramatic. I think I am right in saying that it has happened but two or three times in the history of our federal parliament.

Justice, Not the Noose

Sir John Thompson, who to me was always more the judge than the politician, was Minister of Justice when I left the Press Gallery to engage for his part in the North West Rebellion of 1885. I feel, therefore, to defend the execution. There was a great deal of feeling among the French Canadians over the matter, for racial reasons, and the political implications were obvious. It was in his closing sentence that Sir John gave to Parliament what I shall always regard as one of its most dramatic moments.

For nearly two hours he had been tracing the movements of Riel in that dismal event, and this led up to his pinning on the leader of the half-breed rebels the responsibility for having brought Big Bear over from Montana to ravage the defenceless settlements of the plains. In cold judicial language he told of the atrocities of this savage horde, the killing of the nuns at Frog Lake, the scalping of D'Arcy the Farm Instructor, and the taking prisoners of the Mann family at Onion Lake. All this made a blood-curdling picture, such as had crimsoned the American frontier a century ago.

Step by step, incident by incident, the great jurist unfolded the black record of Riel. The story made a profound impression on the House and members leaned forward with their seats to catch every word. Then came his final words, which I think I can quote accurately from memory. In a lowered tone, while every other sound was hushed, he said: "And when such a man comes to me and asks for mercy, he shall have . . ." and he paused. What would he those last words? I can never forget how that pause gripped me. I was in the Press Gallery, and sat spellbound. Would he say "death" or "the hangman's noose"? Either would have been the logical ending. The completed sentence, however, was: "And when such a man comes to me and pleads for mercy, HE SHALL HAVE JUSTICE!" That there was no answer. He sat down amid a strange silence, and several moments had passed before a great burst of applause broke the stillness.

The Tribute of Tears

I recall an episode of the nineties, although of a totally different character from the one I have just recounted. It was on the occasion when the late Charles Rykert, a Tory stalwart of earlier years, was under impeachment for corrupt acts in connection with the selling of North West Lumber limits to an American named Sands. The evidence was almost wholly in the nature of letters Rykert had written to the lumber. In order to justify his fee, Rykert had magnified the difficulties in the way, and in these circumstances he had written to Sands about having to get in touch with "the boys." In this case "the boys" were Mr. Stewart Tupper, son of Sir Charles Tupper, and Mr. Hugh John Macdonald, only son of Sir John Prime Minister. It was implied that they would demand a considerable share of the booty for their part in putting through the deal.

Here was the stuff out of which big political scandals are fabricated, involving the integrity of the two great Conservative leaders. As the letters were being read the atmosphere in the House became very tense. Suddenly the bottom fell out of the whole thing in one of the finest displays of chivalry I have ever witnessed in the political arena.

Disdaining all advantages of the situation in his party, Sir John arose, when the last of the incriminating letters had been read, and said: "Mr. Speaker, if I have a duty which I cannot shirk, it is to defend the name of Hugh Macdonald since he was a boy. He is a gentleman, a brave soldier and a sincere, and entirely incapable of this implied dishonesty."

Hugh Macdonald slowly came to his feet. A hush came over the House. He tried to speak, but couldn't utter a word. Then we all saw that the tears were streaming down his face. And I am not ashamed to say they were also streaming down mine. Under the masks which the game of politics puts on the faces of loyal party men there are human hearts. Those hearts that throb to the impulses of the finest type. I need scarcely add that from that moment not a whisper of censure was directed against "the boys," but Rykert was expelled from the House.

The Disabled Warrior

When I began my work in the Press Gallery in 1880, Hon. Alexander Mackenzie was the Opposition Leader against Sir John A. Macdonald. Beginning His as a stonemason in Kinclaven, he rose to be Prime Minister of Canada. I propose to speak of a few of his political pixels in Aylmer in 1871. It was one of my initial assignments as reporter for the Leader-Free Press. MacKenzie was then a fine, stalwart figure. But in 1886 he was a broken down old man, the victim of creeping paralysis. He was terribly proud and dignified, he made his way painfully to the House each day. In later years, a similar disability came upon Sir Richard Cartwright, his associate and the relentless opponent of Sir John Macdonald.

One afternoon Mr. MacKenzie started to leave the chamber. He rose as the Speaker's chair, and then his legs refused to function. There he stood. The members who had the floor paused. All eyes were focussed on the old warrior. Two of his colleagues went to his assistance. But he brusquely shook them off. Finally Blake motioned one of them to his side, and evidently told him of feeling of the harrowing scene. This was done, and it had the effect of ending Mr. MacKenzie's struggle to shuffle his way out of the House. It was a very painful moment.

To the last McKenzie remained the stubborn, self-contained Scotchman he had always been. His disablement seemed to intensify his sensitiveness and independence. One afternoon I saw him in the corridor vainly struggling to get on his overcoat. His arms were above his head, and the sleeves kept, then came. A member passing down the seat to his assistance, and, after a deal of trouble, got the coat upon him. Did the former Prime Minister thank him? He did not. Instead, with a frown, he said:

"After this, will you please be good enough to mind your own business and give your help when it is asked for."

That was the last session. Yet it was a proud man as he had lived, with his head held high.

The Defiant Yankee

Not on the floor of the House, but in a committee room, I once saw in the authority of the Canadian Parliament defied in the most amazing manner. It was during that tragic session of 1891, which saw so many political reputations wrecked and so many official heads fall. Sir John Thompson conducted the inquisition. Mr. Young, president of the New England Paper Company, was giving evidence in connection with the Printing Bureau scandal. Suddenly he had asked him to disclose the transactions of his company with the head of the Bureau.

Mr. Young smiled, and said he could not do so from memory.

He was then asked to produce his books; and this brought about the stirring incident.

Mr. Young smiled again.

"Much as I should like to meet your wishes," he said, "I am afraid it must decline."

That was not the kind of thing the stern Minister of Justice liked. "Then you shall have to compel you to do so," he replied very menacingly.

"I know," was Mr. Young's rejoinder. "You have the power to throw me into your tower and keep me there until I capitulate; but unfortunately for you, and fortunately for me, I am the owner of that until I get an order from your Parliament. He took out his watch. "Your parliament does not meet until three. It is now eleven forty. A train leaves Ottawa at seventy fifteen, and I propose to be on it. If all goes well, I shall be across the border by two. Gentlemen, I wish you a good day."

Sir John metaphorically gnashed his teeth; but he didn't get the books, and Mr. Young didn't languish in the tower.

The Sleeping Fest

Some of the dramatic moments I have witnessed in Parliament were more comical rather than tragic. What might be merely incidental in an ordinary meeting becomes entirely different under the ancient rules which govern the conduct of the House.

At times members break loose from the precedent and behave like a lot of mischievous school boys. Nevertheless, they are strong in traditional dignity. Sir John Thompson exemplified that spirit in every word he spoke and every move he made. He never ceased to be the judge on the bench. That must be borne in mind when I say he was very much annoyed one sultry afternoon when Mr. Rouillard, the French-Canadian Clerk, began to leave the chamber. He took one step, and then began to dance. First one foot would bend, and then the other. Several times he saved himself by a skilful leg play, or by grasping a nearby desk. His face depicted agony.

Sir John stood silent and scowled at this dancing and writhing figure. The whole House gasped at the spectacle. Was the Clerk mad? Was he intoxicated? It looked like it, in which event the stern Minister of Justice would see to it that his head paid the penalty. If merciless, for the Clerk was a popular fellow, and poor Rouillard did not have to face the guillotine. The truth came to him. He broke into a grin. His feet were asleep!

A Friend of the Veterans

I recollect another incident that was full of human interest and appeal. It is the happening of the unexpected that always does that and it was the case in the House on this instance. Pat Purcell, having made his fifty speeches across the floor, was standing silent for a minute or two, to began to address the Speaker's chair. Resolving the Speaker's chair, he paused made two elaborate bows, and said:

"Mr. Speaker, I want something for the boys in the trenches."

Then, bowing again very solemnly, he resumed his seat.

This extraordinary scene gave enormous publicity to Purcell's bill, but I'm sorry to say it perished at the hands of the Senate. Another bill which it was referred by the Speaker.

The Talking Tornado

Dr. Weldon, who in the late eighties represented Albert County, New Brunswick, was a prodigious talker from Tuttersville. He brought to Parliament a noble and refined personality, but he was slowly dying of the despair of the Hansard men. He was the fastest talker I ever heard to report.

One day the great Edward Blake was thrashing the very incident on which I referred in my opening paragraphs, namely the Queen's County election, and was in one of his most eloquent moods. He scarified the successful candidate, Mr. George Baird. Blake was like that. He could wound, then turn in salt and complete the job with a deal of trivial. Now, Mr. Baird was a back bench member who never opened his lips. He was undoubtedly a parson; yet not provocatively so. That must be borne in mind in order to understand what followed with the swiftness of a flash of lightning.

Blake had no sooner taken his seat than Dr. Weldon sprang to his feet in the grip of passionate indignation. For the next five minutes a torrent of profanity poured from his lips—a veritable whirlwind of words although every syllable was clear as day. It was trenchant. He told the House that it was always a degrading spectacle when a giant stooped to torture a pygmy. In this instance an old Parliamentarian had used his high talents to flay a humble and unresisting fellow member, which was a prostitution of privilege.

Weldon's rebuke was a classic of invective, without parallel in the annals of the House of Commons. When he had finished, Blake tried to reply. For a moment or two he struggled with himself, and then said:

"Mr. Speaker, I have nothing to say."

But didn't he?

Payment in Kind

Edward Blake was not, however, the only member of the House who had a biting tongue. Sir Richard Cartwright, when he was in the mood just right, could also do a finished job of vituperation, and I have seen him got under the skin of Sir John Macdonald, and other members in general. Among my relics of those stormy and remote days I have a dozen choice specimens from Sir Richard's devastating vocabulary. Here is one, directed at occupants of the ministerial benches in particular:

"If I must associate with criminals, I should prefer those who are behind prison bars rather to those who sit in high places and pollute the atmosphere of Parliament."

As I have just said, the personal attacks rankled in the breast of the mighty dignified Sir John Thompson, whose contempt of Parliamentary etiquette forbade his going further than to say:

"I assure the honorable gentleman he is entirely misinformed," or something equally homeopathic. Nevertheless, smarting under the lash, he one day let it be known among the faithful that he was going, when the opportunity came, to pay Sir Richard in kind.

So it happened that late one night the member for South Oxford was in one of his bellicose moods. The time to hit back had come. Word to that effect was sent round, and quickly the government side began to fill up. A few minutes before 2 a.m. Sir John, Minister of Justice belched pure and unexpurgated vituperation such as Parliament had never before heard. It was overwhelming. But let us on considering contemporary history of official debates. Sir John was so deeply ashamed of his efforts, and so frankly penitent, that he won the consent of the House to have it expunged from the records.

The Averted Tragedy

When two quick-tempered men clash the sparks are apt to fly. Mr. Edward G. Cameron, of Goderich, sat in Parliament, he was Colonel Cameron, D.S.O., and was a physician. Providing you take him immediately you will avoid the danger of complications.

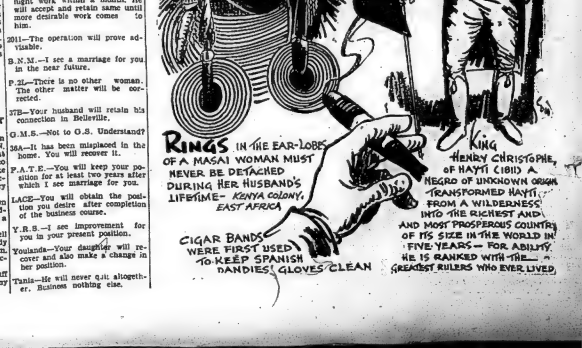
Champ Accumulates 3 Inch Ash on Cigar

New York, Jan. 20 (AP) — Sam ("Ashes") Slip confesses that he felt right started the cigar habit. Week off in a dense cloud of smoke by winning the championship for accumulating contest at an industry banquet.

Sam collected 3¼ inches of ash on the end of his cigar from a standing start in 30 minutes to defeat a field of more than fifty puffers.



Slip, a cigar manufacturer, he felt victim to the siren song of Lady Nicotine at the tender age of seven, explained as the secret of his success:

"I (puff puff) don't exhale (puff puff) with the cigar (puff) in my (puff) mouth (puff, puff, flop)."

DAILY SHORT STORY—

RELIEF CAT

By Joan Mallette

"You'd better put Myrtle down in the cellar Pa. The relief investigator will be here any minute now."

Pa picked up a large gray and white cat gently and set her down carefully outside the door leading to the cellar stairs. He gave her a little shove and shut the door swiftly in her offended face. Then he made his way back to his chair in the sunny window. The large neat kitchen served as both the dining and living room in the tiny cottage.

"I almost wish we'd have it out with the investigator about Myrtle," said Pa. "It's no sense worrying yourself sick for fear he'll find out about her. It's bad enough to be on relief without having to feel guilty all the time because of cheating about the cat."

He was sitting at the table darning socks. "Now don't go into all that again. We wouldn't be taking relief if we didn't need it. You know as well as I that if Jennie was alive or if our children or Lon was any good we wouldn't be needing to ask for help. But we have to, and there's no use fretting about it."

"I'm not; that's doing the fretting. You're just stoopid sick for fear they'll find out about Myrtle and make you give her up. I say we come right out and tell Mr. Barnes about her. I'm a child young man."

"It isn't a question of kindness. He's got to do his duty. You know the government can't afford to feed pets for everybody. It isn't as if we could explain and make them see Myrtle is one of the family. No, the only thing is to keep her hidden carefully when the investigator's here."

There was a rap at the door and Pa got up and admitted a young man who greeted him with a cheery "Good morning."

"How's everybody this morning?" asked Mr. Barnes with a friendly smile at Ma.

"Pretty well, thank you," said Ma.

"Spry as ever," said Pa.

"This rents due, I guess, isn't it?" asked the young man.

"Yep," said Pa. "It comes around pretty regular."

Mr. Barnes took out a requisition blank and began filling it out. Suddenly there was a creak and the cellar door sprang open about two inches.

Almost instantly a white paw at the bottom gave it a shove, and Myrtle nosed her way in.

Ma looked at Pa in consternation and he started up guiltily. Ma made an angry motion to him to keep still. The only thing was to hope that Myrtle would come in quietly and go into a corner before the investigator noticed her.

When Mr. Barnes gave Pa the rent requisition to sign, Pa was so upset that he started to put his name on the wrong line. Meanwhile Myrtle was deliberately advancing toward the visitor. She went right up to Mr. Barnes and sniffed the bottom of his trouser leg. Surely he must be blind if he did not see her. But Mr. Barnes paying no attention, took the package of cards on which he recorded the grocery order for the coming two weeks.

Perhaps Myrtle understood the word, or perhaps she had by now fully convinced herself of Mr. Barnes' character. At any rate, to the horror of Pa and Ma, she crouched and took a flying leap onto Mr. Barnes' lap. Mr. Barnes absently lifted his left hand and laid it on Myrtle's head and scratched her under the chin. Myrtle began a kneading motion with her front paws and turned on her purring engine full force.

"Do you want onions or carrots this time?" Mr. Barnes asked.

"Carrots!" said Ma, and "Onions!" said Pa simultaneously, and Pa added hastily, "Better make it carrots this time."

Mr. Barnes was ready to go; but Myrtle had settled herself comfortably on his lap with her paws curling beneath her bosom. "Well, kitty," he remarked pleasantly, "I guess you'll have to get up. What's her name?"

"Myrtle," Pa supplied nervously.

"She doesn't eat much," said Ma quickly. "It isn't as if we got anything extra for her. She just has a little of what we would eat ourselves. You won't make us give her up, will you?" pleaded Ma, with tears in her eyes.

"Oh, that's all right. A cat does not matter. Of course," said Mr. Barnes sternly, "we can't let people collect a dozen or so stray cats and feed them."

"Myrtle is not a stray cat," said Ma, with dignity.

"Certainly not," agreed Mr. Barnes hurriedly. "Any one could see that." He picked her up and set her gently on the floor.

"Well, good-by. Good-by, Myrtle. Myrtle and I are old friends, you know," he smilingly explained to Ma and Pa. "She's generally watching for me in the basement window when I come. She's been on relief quite a while herself. She used to live in the big white house across the street."

TARZAN'S QUEST (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

The giant airplane settled toward the madly tossing sea of green foliage. Straight into the teeth of the gale, the pilot nosed down. There was a crash of splintering wood, the ripping of fabric, as the ship sank into the swaying, slashing branches.

Above the storm and the crashing of the plane rose the screams and curses of the terrified passengers in the cabin. Then, with a final ripping, tearing jolt, the giant craft came to rest at a sharp angle, leaving the occupants hanging in their safety belts.

Princess Sborov screamed. "Oh, how horrible! I'm sure I'm already dead. I'm so miserable. My fine clothes are ruined. I'm simply selling sales! Oh, why doesn't someone do something for me? Annette Alexis!" "Oh, shut up!" her taut-nerved husband cried angrily; "you're lucky to be safe."

—Safe? The word struck Lady Greystoke as strange irony. Here they were trapped, in these circumstances. Here they were trapped in the trees. Below lay the mysterious jungle. Who knew what hideous forms of death, what hungry beasts or savage men swalled them beneath the leafy screen!

"WINGS OF LOVE"

(The Love Story of a Sky Pilot and Girl Who Planned on a Fifty-Fifty Financial System that Almost Wrecked Their Happiness)

By Janet Doran

She, slept, finally, but in fitful fashion, exclaiming aloud at the wide awake, several times, during the night. Excitement that was like a drug was holding her in thrall as she savored the possibilities the future offered.

It was almost morning, and she was drowsing, half awake, half asleep, when Sky began to mutter incoherently in his sleep. The sound brought her wide awake, and she lay listening, wondering worriedly what broke Sky's rest like this. Dreams, she believed, were caused by unsolaced conscious worries.

"... all right, Maddox," Sky said clearly, loudly, "it's your funeral! Only I'm warning you. She doesn't want to fly! She's got another game up her sleeve, and it hasn't anything to do with flying!" He was speaking so fast, so utterly unlike his waking tone, that Susanne had difficulty following him.

"You've got to teach everyone who asks you, Sky!" she asked him soberly, and Sky sent a startled look winging her way, before he looked down, deliberately crushing her eyes as he buttered his roll.

"Sure; everyone the office signs on."

"But you don't always want to take the job, Sky? Sometimes you'd like to turn them over to someone else!" Susanna persisted.

Sky stared at her intently, in very frank suspicion.

"Who's been bringing my job home for me?" he asked quietly.

"Nobody," Susanne admitted, more, and once she thought he spoke a name. It sounded like a girl's name. Like "Wade," only she didn't know there was such a girl's name. Then he smiled, and muttered, "crazy idiot . . . absolutely daffy!" And Susanne wondered, uncomfortably, if he meant her. If Sky could possibly think her crazy for wanting to work. To go on working, after their pact, their agreement to work together, in order to get ahead.

"He can't mean me," she scolded herself. "Why was only dreaming. Why, everyone has silly dreams at times!"

But at breakfast, curiosity won over better judgment, and Susanne tried probing Sky's mind for something to guage the dream conversation on.

"Sky, what's pretty, Sky?" Susanne asked him directly, and Sky leaped up, the slow crimson climbing high in his hair face, clear into his blond hair.

"What?" he rasped, in startled amazement. "Look here, Susanne, what's this all about? Why the third degree? What are you driving at?" He left his Dutch ancestry far behind, as the question popped out of him in excited celerity, and Susanne caught a certain emotional, as she watched him.

"Just that, Sky," she repeated, "is she? Because I don't think you should let her run you ragged, even if she is!"

Sky ran a shaking hand over his damp forehead, and blinked at her in shocked stupefaction.

"But good Lord, Susanne, aren't you mad or . . . I believe my saying? I tell you she drives me crazy, pace in the hair, I'll bail out yet! She talks all the time, and everything she says, is more cockeyed than the one she said before, and she does the craziest things!"

"And she's pretty, and rich, and spoiled." Susanne finished wisely, "and you can't do a thing about it, Sky. So why try? Wait till she gets over her brainstorm!"

Sky knew he was drowning, then. He stared at her glassily, and picked up his coffee cup, gulping the scalding liquid hastily.

"And you're not . . . mad!" he said uncertainly.

Susanne chuckled.

"Why should I be? Or hurt? You aren't in love with her, Sky. It's not possible! If she goes on as a monumental nose dive. Only be kind to her, Sky, I love you so, myself, I know . . . what . . . I will . . . be . . . for . . . her!" Susanne paused, her lashes lowered, her lean jaw was against her soft cheek, and he shut his eyes very tight, lest the sheer relief, ecstasy out and betray him utterly.

"Then," he said roughly, unevenly, "you're one girl in a million — in seven million! I might have known you'd stand by!"

His words, his tender, humble mien, kept coming back to Susanne all day, as she hurried through her job. And the slim little envelope on Meadowdale Club parchment, for her club membership fee, burned like a glowing, hot coal, in her purse. Made her feel all the more guilty, all the more confused, even though she knew, now, that there was no turning back.

"Sky," she prayed humbly, deep in her heart, "Sky, if only you'll understand!"

"Greetings," Dell Langley accosted her lightly, when she came to the big weekly dinner-dance at the club, and Til introduce you to the biggest sport, Dell Langley, Susanne!"

"Oh, but I can't." Susanne began desperately, but Dell laughed.

"Why?" he countered bluntly. "Don't you like home in a maze of paper-hangers, kennels, and children's toys, and Sky Nichols is one of his very best friends. You can't you sell the Baron of Manhattan a few thousand dollars' worth of real estate, catch a good dinner, a nice dance and a little fun, along with the deal?"

"Am I," Susanne asked him directly, "going to be another Mr. Langley? Or are you throwing the commissions at me, while I forget to duck?"

"Don't you know," Dell told her smiling lazily, "that you're such thing as a self-made woman, Mrs. Nichols? Look behind the big guns and you'll find a man loading, and firing the ammunition that blasts a new spot from the top of the top!"

Susanne did not answer him. She was staring at him in confusion, while the fog of his words crashed past her self-confident poise to an inner recognition, an innate honesty by which she measured everything.

CHAPTER 11
THE IDLE RICH PROVE AN OLD AXIOM

"And," Dell Langley continued his quiet, casual monologue easily, "if you're absolutely nothing fit to dance to the club, I'll have my gloves over my hat, say, hocus pocus-hagazoom, and have a nice little private shoppe, run by a decadent Russian noblewoman, comes out of the floor directory. Shall we look up?"

Susanne knew she shouldn't. With every ounce of her being, she knew she was treading perilously, icy straps waters. But something drove her on. A fire, flaming ambition, was licking greedily at her heart, and she had to go on, let it consume, destroy her.

The sight of that crisp, green check. The figures printed in black on the right hand end. And Dick Hale's booming, hearty voice saying, "we know this is not one of many of these, Mrs. Nichols. We know you're going to do big things for us! Go a long way . . ."

"I'll go!" Susanne's voice was a little thick, a little blurred with excitement, and she held tight to her slim little suede purse as if it were a life-saver of sorts. She kept gripping it in a strange hold, all the way uptown in the tiny, exclusive shoppe, run by a decadent Russian noblewoman, comes out of the floor directory. Shall we look up?

DEFENCES TO REPLACE 15 GERMAN VILLAGES

Hundreds in Rhineland Ordered from Homes; Fortifications to be Built

French Famed Maginot Line Will be Duplicated in Germany

STRENGTHEN DEFENCE

Heavy Guns Are Believed Mounted on Heligoland

Metz, France, Jan. 21 (CP-Havas)—Hundreds of residents of some fifteen German Rhineland villages between fifty and seventy-five miles from France's northeastern frontier have been ordered to abandon their homes, which will be destroyed to make room for fortifications, it was reliably reported here today.

The region in the valley of the Nahe and Glan rivers, tributaries of the Rhine, will make way for defences facing France's famed Maginot Line, it was said.

The population of these villages will receive lands in northern Germany in compensation.

Strengthening Defence

Manchester, Jan. 21 (CP-Havas)—The Manchester Guardian reported today that Germany is strengthening her defences in the North Sea islands.

"The work of defences of the German North Sea islands has been intensified since the beginning of December," the Guardian said. "Eight heavy guns have been mounted on Heligoland. Searchlights, aerodromes, arsenals and petrol depots are now complete; some of them are 160 feet under the surface."

Heligoland, a tiny island about 35 miles off the German coast, has a strategic naval base during the Great War.

Canadian Bonds Meet Good Demand

$30,000,000 7-Years 3½% Issue Oversubscribed, Almost Immediately

New York, Jan. 21—(AP)—Heavy demand greeted the offering of $30,000,000 of short term Canadian Government Bonds here today and was a "reasonably good" call for the December $50,000,000 of like short term bonds, investment circles said.

The popularity of the 7-year 3-4 per cent issue was attested by the fact it was oversubscribed shortly after the books opened.

The response to the 30-year 3 per cent. issue, somewhat less spirited, was described by traders as "satisfactory". The major portion of the issue was said to have moved out to dealers by 12 p.m. E.S.T.

Taken as a whole, financial quarters said the $50,000,000 offered by a banking group headed by Morgan, Stanley & Co. Inc., was well received.

FULL DEMOCRATIC LIBERTY OFFERED BY SPANISH GOV'T.

Foreign Minister Makes Declaration in Interview

GROWTH OF LIBERTY

283 to 0 French Senate Vote Banning Volunteers to Spain

London, Jan. 21—(CP Havas)—"Full democratic liberties, including religious freedom," will be re-established in Spain as quickly as possible if the government wins the civil war, Foreign Minister Julio Alvarez Del Vayo declared in an interview published by the Daily Herald today.

"The overwhelming majority of the Spanish people proved at the last general election they wish only to live in a regime of democracy which would certainly be very advanced in its economic and intellectual policy," he declared.

Attached to Liberties

"But they are deeply attached to the principles of liberty. The present political situation is the consequence of a state of war, and in wartime democratic liberties are always subject to more or less extensive restrictions. That is what the parties of a Liberal and even Catholic democracy have realized, so they fight on our side against the common enemy."

Paris, Jan. 21—(CP Havas)—The French Senate by a unanimous vote of 283 to 0 today approved the bill empowering the government to ban volunteer enlistments in Spain.

ANGLICAN CLERGY PASS ADDRESS OF LOYALTY

London, Jan. 21 (CP-Havas)—The Lower House of the Convocation of Canterbury today voted approval of an address of loyalty to King George VI which was accepted yesterday by the Upper House.

The clergy of the Lower Chamber postponed a vote on the address in 1924 after it became the time of the King's coronation, when it was presented yesterday. Many members were wished to study it more carefully to ascertain if it contained no unfavorable references to the Duke of Windsor. It was adopted today without change.

$82,300 ESTIMATE FOR COUNTY ROADS IN COMING YEAR

Amount Practically The Same as Required Last Year

APPLY DUST-LAYER

May Add 1-4 Mill To Rate to Add Extra Sections

An estimated expenditure for the upkeep and improvement of three hundred and twenty-eight miles of Hastings County roads amounting to $82,300, approximately the same total estimate as that of a year ago was recommended to the Hastings County Roads and Bridges Committee by the County Engineer and Council at the morning session held in Shire Hall today.

Several new sections have been added to the duties of the Road Committee such as the construction of twenty-one additional miles to Highway No. 14, making a total of 236 miles; increased cost for Workmen's Compensation and the provision of a dust layer on a total of twenty miles of roads, the Committee has in view to increase the tax rate as the same level, did not increase the estimate of the year ago.

Embodied in the report is the suggestion, that a quarter mill be added to the levy for dust-layer and an additional sixty miles of roads. Other extras could be provided for in view of the proposed changes in the cost of the Ontario Municipal and the Old Age Pensions, the report stated.

Following is the report of the Roads and Bridges Committee in its entirety:

Road Report

"Since the last report session, the accounts and payabeats of the roads and bridges expenditures for 1936 has been audited by the Auditors from the Accountant's office of the Department of Highways.

"This shows a net expenditure of $233.79 payable on 63 cents above the estimated levy.

"This is the last year for paying the 1-4 mill levy by the government on the Highway's expenditures of 1934 and will require a levy of 2 mills. We have 21 miles of roads added to the county system making a total of 328 miles. There will also be an increased cost for Workmen's Compensation and the sum of not sufficient levied last year and will be added to the contract work on which we did not pay compensation, and later will be put on the roads work done this year. Yet with all these extras we are only recommending the same expenditures as last year, as we do not with the present

THEFT OF HOUND DOG REPORTED TO POLICE

Fred Uen, 14 Station St., complained to local police authorities last night that some person had stolen his hound dog. Investigations proved that foot prints in the newly fallen snow showed a man's tracks alongside that of the missing dog's. Police followed the boot and paw prints in the snow as far as the C.P.R. railway tracks north of the city, where trail of the man and dog was lost owing to the melted snow. It is believed by this Uens and the police, that the guilty party went to the Uens home, procured the dog under the cover of darkness and led it away on a leash. Subsequent police investigations are pending, as a complete description of the canine was supplied the authorities.

JUDGES FOR CARNIVAL ARE APPOINTED

Judges for the forthcoming V.O.N. ice carnival at the Belleville Arena next month were named at a general meeting of the carnival committee, that met in the local police court rooms last night with Chief Reid as chairman. Fred Jobson, in charge of the program, submitted a tentative program for approval. The program included 23 different and varied items of entertainment and the committee will be presented on February 4th. The Judges for the V.O.N. carnival are to be Miss J. Mclndoe, superintendent General Hospital. Wing Commander Godfrey of the R.C.A.F. and His Worship, Mayor R. D. Ernst. Mr. Harold P. Kelsey was named as master-of-ceremonies, while Rotarian Bert Boyce will officiate behind the microphone as chief announcer for all events.

NO CHANGES IN PRICES ON MART

Vendors appeared in pairs on the local market today when they displayed meat cut into quarters, two different kinds of chicken and two heads of wood, cut into stove lengths, were offered for sale. No changes in prices were noted, however. The adverse weather conditions are attributed the cause for the small mid-week market.

STREETS ARE HEAVILY COATED WITH SAND

A thin film of water which coated icy streets in the city this morning following last night's heavy freeze-up and recurrent thaw of today were quickly checked by application of sand by department of public works. Early in the early hour in an attempt to relieve the

COL. W. R. RIERDON APPOINTED REGISTRAR

In the current issue of Canada Gazette listing the names of registrars of electors for the several electoral districts in Central Ontario, announcement is made that Col. W. R. Rierdon of this city has been appointed registrar for Hastings South. Other registrars named are Hastings-Peterborough, Charles Thompson, R. N., No. 2, Madoc; Durham-Geo. Gamsti, Port Hope; Northumberland, J. F. R. Douglas, Campbellford.

FEARS EXPRESSED FOR SAFETY OF MAN

Fears that Dural Fields, Deseronto resident who disappeared from that town one week ago and has not since been seen, may be a victim of drowning through the ice of the Napanee River, are expressed by friends who are still continuing their search. Fields left Deseronto with a supply of provisions to cross the Napanee River, where he has been employed by H. Young on the old McKendry homestead. He had been warned at the time that the ice was not in firm enough condition to cross.

S. A. OFFICERS ARE LEAVING BELLEVILLE

Captain and Mrs. Houlsander, who for the past five months have been in charge of the local Salvation Army Corps, left today for Hamilton, where they will remain for considerable time in the health of Mrs. Houstander.

They will be succeeded by Adjutant and Mrs. Alderwood of Hamilton, who are very high grade officers, of long standing in Salvation Army work. Coming with them into the city three daughters, who are also Salvationists.

Sunday all day will be their welcome service in the local citadel, to which all are invited.

USE FIERY CROSS TO SCARE FAMILY

C. Woodcock, Coe Hill, Reports Efforts Made to Intimidate Him

In what police believed to be an effort to discourage the continuation of residence in the community a cross was exploded and an unburned cross erected on the property of George Woodcock in the Coe Hill last night. The dynamite was exploded within a few feet of the Woodcock home, but no damage resulted while the oil-soaked wooden cross, erected on the lawn, was ignited.

Provincial Constable Dymond of Madoc, was sent to the scene of the outrage this morning and last night after Mr. James Meade, son-in-law, of Mr. Woodcock, had reported the matter to Constable Gardiner, at Belleville, of the demonstration. Constable Dymond stated to The Ontario Intelligencer today that the police investigations are soon today, that if true, doubtless the efforts of local persons to cause the removal of Mr. Woodcock out of the community. "I do not believe the persons responsible is tending any great damage to property or any injury in fact, added Constable Dymond, after making the investigations.

Provincial Constable stated, however, he believed the wooden cross, covered with saturated oil-soaked rags had been ignited in an effort to frighten the Woodcock family. The cross was lighted and tossed towards the house, but apparently exploded before it reached the house. Efforts could ignite the intended fiery cross," stated Constable Dymond. The wooden cross was some five feet in height and was carefully built. The police naturally aroused the entire community and it was when Mr. and Mrs. Woodcock and Mr. Meade came out of their home that the cross was discovered.

It was later learned that a similar attack had been made upon Mr. Woodcock when he resided near Arden in Addington County, some months ago, but the police, however, were not notified.

$82,300 ESTIMATE
by the company.
A premium of $1,100 was asked by the insurance company but this was held over until to-morrow following debate, and will be considered by the Board of Trade Means Committee.
We have many dangerous curves, hills and narrow bridges, which should be improved and the paving continued on the Madoc Road. The dust from the traffic on the heavy traveled roads is creating considerable concern to those living adjacent to these roads and if the finances of the County were such that these necessary improvements could be made, we would arrange the expenditures accordingly, but we are asking only for the same amount as last year, no provision is made for construction or paving work. The Superintendent has drafted a list of the duties, etc., of patrolmen, a copy of which is given to each patrolman and each Reeve. By careful study of these you will note that it requires a large expenditure on the roads, also roads and bridges.
Dust Layer For 30 Miles and
We are making provision for applying dust-layer on 30 miles of roads but there are 60 miles which should be done. This extra 40 miles could be done for an additional ¼ mill making a total of 2¼ mills. If the council thought it advisable on account of the proposed change in control of Mothers' Allowances and Old Age Pensions that some of this extra work should be done this year your committee would be guided by your suggestions and adjust the expenditures accordingly.
Your committee called for tenders on snow ploughing with trucks and have awarded contracts so as the main county roads will be kept open this winter with snow-ploughing equipment. Wages for this year will be as follows: Construction and crusher foreman, power grader and roller operator, $5c per hour; Maintenance foreman, 35c and labor, 30c; team on graders and scraper, 40c per hour; other teams, 35c per hour; steam power, 55c with fuel furnished; gas power, the owner to furnish fuel; trucks for hauling from pavement (rough yards) $1.00 per hour; other work, 40 cents per hour.
A schedule of estimated expenditures for the various classes of work on the basis of a 2¼ mill rate is attached and a copy is available for each member of the Council.
James Moore, Chairman.

MOTOR TRAFFIC SLOWED TO WALK BY SLEET STORM

Many Transports Park Vehicles Waiting For Roads to Dry

FEW ACCIDENTS

Cars in City Seen Skidding And Sliding on Sleet Covered Streets

Traffic was slowed down to the walking pace throughout the city and the Bay of Quinte area following last night's deluge of rain upon a snow-covered countryside. Motor traffic practically came to a halt after midnight last night upon the highways and country roads, progress being slowest where motorists ventured upon the open stretches. Large transports ventured upon their respective routes early this morning, but were later seen returning to Belleville where the drivers parked and near the noon hour today, when motor traffic on the highways slowly resumed normal activities.

"I had no serious accidents on my detail last night," stated Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Irvine today, as he checked in number of cars and trucks skidded off the highway and into the open ditches. No personal injuries were sustained, but I understand Traffic Officer Harmon Ketterson sent them by the treasurer. His report, I was informed by the treasurer should not be blamed for the slips he made."

Reeve Hubbell (Pardaby): "I think it was a lucky day for the Council to take when they issued those writs against us for non-payment of taxes. Had we not done so we would be one of the most discredited townships in the province. If we had waited six or twelve months in which to make some sort of adjustment, the township cannot borrow a cent, so what is the sense of putting more taxes on the people when some consideration Y feel like not doing a thing toward it."

At the request of members the motion was carried that a letter be written to the Department of Highways asking that the Provincial Police be instructed to take when they issued those writs against us for non-payment of taxes. Reeve Hubbell should be done is for council to cancel those writs and to instruct us to give twelve months in which to make some sort of adjustment. The township cannot borrow a cent, so what is the sense of putting more taxes on the people when some consideration Y feel like not doing a thing toward it."

At the request of members the motion was carried that a letter be written to the Department of Highways asking that the Provincial Police be instructed to take when they issued those writs against us for non-payment of taxes. Reeve Hubbell had elapsed and the county rates were not paid, the OPP was placed in the hands of the Sheriff for collection.

"No North Nor South"

"We do not want to be called the North and the South," declared Reeve Rollins. "We are all living county, but if you don't want us, we can paddle our own canoe. The northern municipalities have some consideration from this council. If we are not expected to do our part, I'll can't get any assistance I believe, as we've been doing our let things go. We are in the hole and we have to get out of it. The question is, How?"

Warden Gray: "The impression of the council is bounded by the fact that Wollaston did not want to pay because they did not want to. I have letters sent them regarding the writ."

Reeve Meyers: "Can't you raise debentures?"

Rollins: "No, Parsday tried that, but it failed."

Reeve Hubbell (Parsday): "Yes, I applied to the Municipal Board and was told to go home and collect our taxes."

Reeve Rollins: "Will this council back me for this money for a payment on the Marmora road?"

Reeve James Moore (Sinclair): "Where. If this council made a drastic mistake in passing the motion for the issuance of the writs, I'm convinced it did not do anything more satisfactory."

Reeve Gordon (Rimgerford): "I can't see what we can do about it. We'll get no more than we collect what they can. Give them three years to pay their hospital accounts."

Suggestion to Defer

Reeve Ketcheson: "I think the suggestion of the Town of Wollaston is a good one. Let the county look for the money elsewhere and give them three years in which to pay. The fault lies with the county administration. These men are willing to pay and this council should sympathetically consider them. Let them quit, other revres will follow and the debt will pay itself. Give them a chance."

Deputy Reeve Rush (Hungerford): "Six months is a short time. We are all hit and all can't pay. We don't want to see the county dividend. Give them three years, it isn't long."

At this point in order to effect a satisfactory compromise a motion was made to summon the County Solicitor who appeared after a few minute recess, and explained to the council what could be done which satisfaction to all, with the result that the aforementioned motion was passed.

The arrears involved total $11,-000.11.

The four townships are Wollaston, Faraday, Rawdon, Huntingdon & Bangor Wicklow and McClure.

Defers Execution of Writs Against Four Townships

County Council Reaches Compromise For Present on Arrears of Taxes and Hospital Accounts

Inability of Hastings County council to reach early in Wednesday afternoon's session a satisfactory decision regarding the extension of time of execution of writs issued against the townships for non-payment of indigent hospital accounts and the county rates, brought deadlock for a time, and necessitated the summoning of the County Solicitor Charles A. Payne to explain the legal aspects of this matter before a compromise was reached in a motion to the effect that execution of writs be deferred until the June session, and the Sheriff be notified to that effect.

Referring to those townships which were not in a position to meet these obligations and against which execution orders had been issued by Sheriff J. O'Flynn, Reeve Rollins of Wollaston stated that his township could pay $1,000 on their accounts, "and furthermore," he said, "I can say no more of paying them. I am going to do my best but am getting no co-operation here. I ask the members of the council who passed that motion last June what they intended to do about it. As the Reeve of Wollaston I want to know."

Reeve D. H. Ketcheson (Frankford): The reeves of the sued townships have done a disservice in letters sent them by the treasurer. No reeve has a right to refer to the treasurer should not be blamed for the steps he took."

Reeve Hubbell (Parsday): "I think it was a lucky day for the council to take when they issued those writs against us for non-payment of taxes. Had we not done so we would be one of the most discredited townships in the province. If we had waited six or twelve months in which to make some sort of adjustment, the township cannot borrow a cent, so what is the sense of putting more taxes on the people when some consideration Y feel like not doing a thing toward it."

CURRENT REVENUE SHOWS INCREASE

Annual Meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Held

An increase in current revenue and increased activity in every branch of church work was reported at the annual meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held last evening in the church auditorium. The gathering of the congregation was more than expected due to the unfavorable weather conditions and the meeting was one of the most successful held in the history of the congregation.

Arthur McGie presided as chairman of the meeting, while K. S. Wood, secretary, presided. Reports were submitted by the secretary of each branch of church work and showed some most encouraging data stating that revenue had been higher and there seemed to be more interest. Total receipts for congregation purposes and Trust Fund combined for the year 1936 year was $9,014 and for Missionary and Endowment purposes $1,986. This is a considerable increase over the previous year.

At the meeting of the officers A. R. Cameron, Robert Gourly, Percy Hanson, Albert Boynton and Alex Weir were named as managers for a three year term, while Bruce Dennis will serve for a one year term. R. J. S. Dewar, W. H. Middleton, H. B. Stevenson, Harry Haggerty and Arthur McGie were appointed members of the Building Fund Committee and Messrs. Middleton and R. M. Wilson were appointed auditors. Arthur Boynton acted as the meeting the Board of the congregation served delicious refreshments in the form of a banquet. The thanks of the congregation was expressed to Rev. W. J. Walker and Mrs. Walker for their kindly interest and help during the past year.

Would Limit Length Of Members' Speech

Toronto, Jan. 21—(CP)—Ontario legislature will be asked to place a limit on the length of speeches by members.

A. M. Acres, (Conn. Carleton) announced today he would move for an amendment to the rules of the Ontario House to provide:

(1) No member shall speak more than once during the Throne and Budget debates, or the Address in reply, except the Premier and leader of the Opposition, and the Cabinet Minister presenting the Budget.

(2) Cabinet ministers shall not speak more than one hour.

(3) Private members shall not speak more than forty minutes.

Influenza Serum Not Satisfactory Yet

Toronto, Jan. 21 (CP)— "There is no satisfactory influenza serum on the market today," Dr. Gordon Jackson, Medical Officer of Health told Toronto Board of Health today.

"I would not like to recommend serum treatment of any kind until we get much better results than we have got from those tried so far."

Dr. Jackson said the flu-epidemic has not hit Toronto yet. He defined the symptoms as aching in the shoulders, legs and knees, and a dryness of the throat.

W. E. MORTON, PUBLISHER

ONE YEAR AFTER

One year ago now Britain and the Empire with the world at large were mourning the passing of a monarch beloved, King George Fifth. Events of the past year have been so unexpected in so many spheres that the year since his death has moved with unbelievable rapidity.

The nation and empire feel with the royal family as the sad first anniversary passes by, while the separation is still so close, which bereft them of one whose name will endure as long as British history is being made.

King George Fifth lives in the hearts of half a million subjects who honor the greatness that was his. He builded well on the solid foundation of a people's love and devotion, through self-sacrifice. He will continue to be looked upon as an ideal modern king.

Some day there will be worthy memorials to the departed ruler, but the greatest memorial he built himself as man and as liege lord of one of every four human beings who walked this earth. His memory itself is a living memorial.

King George lived in an age of trouble. He was scarcely on the throne when economic troubles broke out, followed by the World War, the repercussions of which are today making life subject to pace of armaments and rumors of wars. Yet in the midst of burdensome troubles, the late king bound with closer ties a type of empire, known only in the modern world, scattered across the world, and with each of the Dominions on a parity with the Motherland, and used his gracious influence at home and abroad to lighten the darkness of international doubt.

What the years ahead will be, only the unfolding of time can tell. If unrest among the nations, struggling for greater strength and for whatever purpose who knows, continue, indeed the world cannot fail to look back upon the rule of King George Fifth as one of comparative peace, as contrasted with the constant nightmare of talk of war and troubles. How he was able to give a sense of repose in a restless world is something for Britishers to be proud of for then they can realize that were the principles which he supported given international opportunity, there would soon be understanding and there could be no war.

Indeed it is in this spirit today that the Empire looks upon the late King George Fifth.

BARNYARD'S BOSSY

The other day a group of men met to pay honor to the common milch cow and to give her some recognition. Feeding the nations on the best of foods, the cow goes about her work humbly and faithfully.

New York Herald Tribune referring to this gathering said on Monday of this week:

"It seems that snobbery has become so intrenched in the dairy barn that 325,000 out of 400,000 cows in the dairy herd improvement associations of the United States cannot make the social register of the pure-bred cattle associations. Chicago business men who operate dairy farms on the side are up in arms against this unAmerican exclusiveness and have risen to defend the plain cow, without her kidry, who nevertheless is a high producer of butter fats. Mr. J. Rockefeller Prentice is championing the barnyard bossy that is left out of pure-bred registers although she can produce at least four thousand pounds of milk annually. The newly formed American Dairy Cattle Club, of which Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Mr. Prentice's grandfather, is also one of the founders, is going to give such producers without long lineage the recognition that is due them.

"After all, what are these Holstein-Freisians and the royal family of the Channel Islands that keep shouldering and snubbing out high-producing grades? In any case, and whatever the admixture of old or new American or European stocks, are we not all descended in the last resort from Bos longifrons or Bos primigenius? It's not what you have, they say; it's what you can do about producing milk that counts; and we commoner stuff of the American Dairy Cattle Club can produce milk, what I mean."

Whatever makes the past or future predominate over the present exalts us in the scale of human beings—Johnson.

It is in knowledge as it is in plants; if you mean to use the plant, it is no matter for the roots; if you mean it to grow, it is safer to rest upon roots thanalipe.—Bacon.

Labor was the primal curse, but it was softened into mercy, and made the pledge of cheerful days, and nights without a groan.—Cowper.

SONG OF FAR PLACES

Some day, when leisure comes at last,
Before I'm old and gray,
I'll leave the worn trails of my past
And take a holiday:
I'll take a ship, then board a plane
For Araby and Nome,
For Carcassone and Avalon,
Salonika and Rome.

My little house is green and white,
My garden brave and gay
With russet leaves and blossoms bright,
I love it . . . , yet some day
I'll close the doors and turn the keys
And set out for Japan;
I'll sail upon the Seven Seas
To Soul and Ispahan.

The lotus lands men dream about,
Algiers, Siam, Ceylon,
Corfu and Trinidad, the route
Franm Shanghai to Nippon;
The Alps, the Andes, Portugal,
Blue lakes of Italy,
Some golden day I'll see them all—
Queensland, the Coral Sea!

This is my dream, but late last night
The snow fell thick and fast
And turned my garden ghostly white;
Hark to the raging blast!
My birch logs burn, my brasses shine—
Is some one calling me?
—Come in, come in, my dear Caroline,
You're just in time . . . for tea!

—Elizabeth Newport Hepburn.

FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT received an engraved invitation card, very ritzy, to attend the presidential inauguration ceremony at Washington Wednesday —R.S.V.P. President Franklin Delano Roosevelt answered that he was doubtful if he could get time to attend the ceremony on account of pressure of official duties but he would do his best to put in an appearance. No doubt by working a few hours overtime he was able to get his work sufficiently advanced for he was present at the inauguration of the president in person.

DOWN IN ARIZONA THEY USED TO STRING BAD MEN UP and remove the ground from under them preparatory to piling it on top of them. Down in Tombstone, Arizona, so named in the bad old days of bandits who robbed stage coaches and murdered miners for their pokes, one of the features of interest on the Main street of that burg was the "Lynching Limb", sturdy offshoot of a giant cottonwood tree which used to serve as the place of execution for those who refused to be good and were too careless with trigger fingers, many horse thieves and murderers having been lynched there by the Vigilantes, who had no sense of humor, apparently. Now the limb has been amputated because it interfered with the drivers of vegetable trucks who sometimes forgot to duck and took a sudden and violent excursion into the ozone. Shades of the hell-raisin' old Tombstone days, what a reversal of form when vegetables have the right of way over lynching bees.

MANY MUNICIPALITIES HAVE TAKEN NOTICE OF BELLEVILLE' progressive pronouncements in endorsing at the polls several progressive changes recommended by the City Council of 1936, and press comment on the same has been favorable. Belleville's stand on the City Manager Plan has awakened widespread interest both in the press and among taxpaying citizens of various municipalities and the plan is being closely studied with a view to adoption.

CINCINNATI, PROUD OF ITS REPUTATION as the "Best Governed City" since it adopted the Small Council City Manager form of municipal government announced in an Associated Press despatch of January 7 that "In the face of five years of depression it had reduced its gross general bonded debt by $14,000,000 since 1931, and had closed the year of 1936 with substantial balances in all operating funds." City Manager C. A. Dykstra announced that in 1937, for the first time in five years, there would be no cuts in basic city employees' salaries, and that in some instances there would be pay advances. The splendid financial showing made by Cincinnati was made in the face of a city bond issue for nearly four million dollars for large public works. A surplus of $350,000 remained to start the new year with, and "despite slight increase in 1936 operating costs Cincinnati still finds itself with the LOWEST TAX COST OF ANY CITY in its population group, and lower than most cities which are substantially smaller."

FIRST VICTIM OF SWOLLEN RIVERS AS FLOODS THREATEN PITTSBURG

This houseboat, upset by the swollen Ohio river near Pittsburg, Pa., is first victim of the new flood that threatens western Pennsylvania towns. As the three rivers—Ohio, Monongahela and Allegheny—combined to form, they also felt that the terrific damage done by last spring's floods might be duplicated. The only hope, observers said, was that hard, freezing weather might halt rise of the threatening rivers.

The President Mr. J. B. Thompson, Secretary F. R. Mallory and Treas. Gilbert Thompson were appointed official delegates to the Central Ontario Fair Association convention which is to be held later in the month at Belleville. The meeting was then adjourned.

St. Paul's Young People's Union

One of the largest gatherings of the year attended the very interesting meeting of St. Paul's Young People's Union, which was held in the church parlours on Monday evening and were delighted with one of the best programs ever presented. Through the efforts of Rev. W. J. Scott, Rev. T. R. Collins, United Church Missionary of Angola, West Africa was secured as the guest speaker for the evening. The entire evening was given over to this distinguished visitor who had in the messages from one of the farthest outposts of the church's activities.

The meeting opened with a brief song service of missionary hymns and the Scripture lesson was read by Miss Helen Jeffrey. Mrs. Robt. Christie led in prayer. The guest speaker was introduced by Rev. W. J. Scott. Rev. T. R. Collins has been associated with the mission work of the United Church in Angola, West Africa, for twelve years, having taken up his work there in 1926. He is now home on his second furlough trip and during this week is conducting the Mission classes at the Winter School of the Bay of Quinte Conference being held in Bridge St. United Church, Belleville. The story presented by the speaker with the aid of a large number of beautifully coloured slides was most interesting. It was within this area of the Africa can jungle that the foundation for mission work was laid by the great David Livingstone. Mr. Collins during his stay there has secured one of the finest collections of photographs portraying scenes of unsurpassed beauty. On returning to his homeland he had them made into lantern slides which have been placed in a most artistic manner in a Montreal artist, who is the mother of Mrs. Collins.

In his description of the work being done there, he spoke of the educational methods adopted which include various types of vocational training, schools and kindergarten. Many valuable native workers are added to the staffs of the various departments when there education is completed. The work, of course is not easy but marked progress is being made. This particular conference of the United Church of Canada should be very much interested in the Angola Mission field since it was well represented there. Two of Mr. Collin's former native workers, are natives of Bowmanville, Ontario, which is in the Bay of Quinte Conference. This was a splendid address and the gratitude of those present was expressed on their behalf to the speaker, by Mr. Harry Hicks and Miss Pearick. The meeting was brought to a close with the Mispah Benediction.

Carmel Women's Association

The January meeting of Carmel United Church Women's Association was held at the home of Mrs. E. J. Fryar under the direction of Mrs. Arthur Brown. The two portions of scripture selected for the lesson were read by the Vice Presidents of organization, Mrs. S. Holden and Mrs. Rita Wilson. During the business part of the meeting reports of the Treasurer and the various secretaries were presented. Mrs. Arthur Fryar offered a pleasing instrumental selection and the final number on the program was an interesting contest directed by Mrs. Brown. At the close of the meeting which ended with the Mispah Benediction, several of the ladies assisted in serving afternoon tea, and a social period was greatly enjoyed by all present. A hearty vote of thanks on behalf of the Association was tendered Mrs. Brown for her kind hospitality.

Carmel Y. P. U.

The regular weekly meeting of Carmel United Church Young People's Union was held in the church on Friday evening with a large number of members and friends in attendance. The meeting was under the direction of the Missionary Department, led by Miss Marion Carlisle, 2nd Vice President, and opened with the usual sacred song service followed by prayer by Rev. W. J. Scott. The Scripture lesson was read by Miss Helen Fryar. Mr. Wesley Brooks, secretary, then presented an account of the proceedings at the last regular meeting. A group of the senior boys offered a chorus number with Mrs. Arthur Fryar playing the accompaniment. Reading given by Mary Holden and Robt. Farrel in keeping with the program were then much enjoyed. The speaker of the evening was Mrs. Arthur Fryer who delivered an interesting address on the subject, of "Canadian Home Missions". The final number on the program was a contest directed by Mrs. Ashley Brooks, and the meeting closed with prayer. The attendance recording system revealed a good attendance.

St. Andrew's Young People's Union

St. Andrew's Young People's Guild held their first meeting under the direction of the newly appointed executive on Monday evening. The meeting was directed by the Devotional group led by Miss Lenora Ward, 2nd Vice President. Mr. Roy Joby acted as chairman and Mrs. F. F. Hall presided at the piano. Following the opening exercises which consisted of community singing and prayer by Mrs. Tompkins, Mrs. M. Ward read the scripture lesson, the next item being a sacred solo by Wm. Dermidy, accompanied by Mrs. F. V. Hulin. Betty Hulin gave an excellent reading. Miss Inez Eagle also offered a reading. The topic for the evening was given by Art Duncan. "Writings of Life". Thoughts based on the text in John 19-22 "What I have written, I have written". The final number on the program was a solo contest directed by Miss Ward.

Mild weather of the last few days has created a lull in hockey activities. The teams of the Central-Stanstings Rural Hockey League are now faced with a series of postponed games each which will have to be added on to the already full list of schedule and thus make the playoff games later. Mr. George Tulloch who is in charge of the league is doing all in his power to get the ice in condition for these games. The senior boys go into action for the first time on Thursday night in Norwood when they will have a team drawn from both Norwood and Warkwick.

Misses Margaret Anderson and Rose Spry spent the week end visiting friends and relatives in Toronto.

Mrs. (Dr.) Pedley and Mrs. Jas. Lagrow have returned home after spending a couple of days in Toronto.

A fair number were present in spite of the disagreeable weather. Mrs. Logie was present and gave the first of a series of talks on "Current Events," which will be a much appreciated. Mrs. Logie will be guest speaker for the next meeting at Mrs. Grant, convener. At the close of the evening dainty refreshments were served with Mrs. Bankey and Mrs. Stott at the tea table. A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Grant.

Mission Circle Holds Meeting

The Tabernacle Mission Circle met last evening at the home of Mrs. Wm. Dougherty, Geddes Street. Reports were received from the various sections of the circle for this year's work. Mrs. O. P. Lent, Activity President, conducted the installation of officers. The programme was in charge of Lou Dougherty, President, who conducted the devotional exercises. Before these a Watch Tower reading. The annual chapter of the Study Book, "Men and Women of the Bible," which dealt with the educational progress in the various Mission centres, was given by Rachel Fox. Mrs. Lent invited the Circle to her home for the February meeting. Lunch was served and a vote of thanks extended to the hostess for her hospitality.

Lure of Suet Brings Dickie Back to Cage

Mystery surrounding the appearance of an active canary observed by Front Street pedestrians flitting and hopping blithely from window sill to window sill of the upper apartment house this morning was solved by the report of Mr. corner, Mrs. P. J. Ryan, that the bird was a tame one, lasting a bit of freedom in the open after being accidentally liberated by her in the day.

Busy with house work, Mrs. Ryan paid little heed to Billie, four-year-old son, seriously engaged with his toys in the living room. Warning of play, Billie found other amusements. They centred on the activities within the canary cage in the low sand.

Returning to the room later Mrs. Ryan found cage door open and cage empty.

Spreading its wings in new found freedom, the tiny bird had descovered the opening in the window at the top and had fluttered to the open.

Later in the day tempting bits of suet placed on the sill of the open window proved the lure by which "Dickie" was returned to the vacant cage.

95TH BIRTHDAY IS CELEBRATED

Mrs. Melissa Farnsworth, Shannonville, Honored By Family

With a large number of friends and relatives present for the occasion, Mrs. Melissa Farnsworth, one of the well known residents of the Shannonville district observed her 95th birthday at the home of her sister, Mrs. N. Donstaer, on Saturday afternoon.

Born in Sidney Township, Mrs. Farnsworth has resided in this section all her life and for many years took up residence in Shannonville. She is the eldest of a family of eight, nine others. Eight things I've got to have them. Got to!"

Two sons, Harry Farnsworth of Stirling and Rev. Enos Farnsworth of this city, and a daughter, Mrs. John Wilson of Shannonville, were present at the anniversary dinner and grandchildren and six great-grandchildren are also living.

Albert College Guild Holds Annual Meeting

At the home of the president, Mrs. E. N. Baker, Queen Street, the annual meeting of Albert College Guild was held yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Baker presided. During the business period the annual reports of the secretary and treasurer were received and adopted.

Mrs. Denton, in giving the report of the nominating committee which recommended that the same officers be re-elected for 1937. The report carried unanimously. The executive is as follows:

President—Mrs. E. N. Baker.
Vice-Presidents—Mrs. Hubbs, Elisabeth Corbett.
Secretary—Mrs. Campbell.
Treasurer—Mrs. Fither.

A program on the topic of the Jewish nation with musical numbers by famous Jewish composers was most interesting. Mrs. Naylor gave a sketch of Jewish history until 70 A.D. and Mrs. Dafoe gave completed the topic by recounting the history of that nation to the present time. Omitting the circumstances surrounding the periods of persecution.

A piano duet by Mrs. Duff and Mrs. Stenson, and a vocal solo by Mrs. Bradley, were greatly enjoyed.

At the conclusion of the program a social hour followed. An afternoon tea was served with Mrs. Hunter presiding at the tea table.

SCARCITY OF BROILERS PREDICTED BY DEALERS

A plentiful see supply with a corresponding drop in prices at the present time due to the continued mild weather may result in a scarcity of broilers next spring and of roasting chickens in the Fall, it was intimated this morning by a local egg dealer.

"Prices for eggs are low. Feed on the other hand is high. The natural result is that farmers are selling off a lot of fowl rather than keep them at a loss. I know lots of them now who have chicken as an almost part of the menu," declared the dealer.

Then, in the Spring, there will be fewer hens to hatch, and fewer eggs to set. Also, it is quite possible that the early months will see a shortage. It goes around and around, and the circle is never quite complete. It's like the potato question. When the price was good one year, next year every farmer plants all the acreage of them he can get. Then, the market is so many they're a glut on the market.

BUILDER OF MAURETANIA DIES

Necastle-on-Tyne, Jan. 21—(AP)—Sir George Hunter, 81, shipbuilder, known as "the father of the ships of the Tyne," died today.

Among the many famous ships he built was the Cunard liner Mauretania, for many years the blue ribbon holder of the Atlantic.

GIBRALTAR REARS GUNPITS

Gibraltar, Jan. 21 (AP)—Fighting between Spanish Fascist attackers and defending Socialists in the Malaga sector was resumed today, a continuous roar of gunfire plainly audible at Gibraltar. Reinforcements for Insurgent General Gonzalo Queipo de Llano's forces were reported to have arrived at Algeciras from Ceuta, Spanish Morocco.

"WINGS OF LOVE"

(The Love Story of a Sky Pilot and Girl Who Planned on a Fifty-Fifty Financial System that Almost Wrecked Their Happiness)

By Janet Doran

"See you at seven?" Dell called, hanging his hat on a rack, and tossing the motor into vicious life. "Right, darling," he acknowledged.

Suzanne dressed thoughtfully, but in spite of her forced mental calm, her hands were icy and shaking and a patch of scarlet color flamed high on either ivory cheekbone. Excitement pressed her as completely, as if she had never been quiet, calm, and cool. Dinahmo Hotel's most sole exciting experience had been a hasty wedding and honeymoon, in the face of stiff economic odds.

"I've got to go through with this," she forced her mind to rigid control, "if I crack up on this first chance, opportunity may never come my way again!"

She turned, slowly, before the long little dresser mirror, and wished she had a full-length glass to get an entire effect in. She pinched the flawless line. Of exquisite effect she beautifully cut and made, gown achieved, and a sigh broke the tense stillness of the room.

This gown—this beautiful, exotic gown, dolce gold sequinned fringe to her, did not belong in a bargain-basement-furnished flat! This gown of sheer, soft, flattering white chiffon velvet was an aristocrat. And the setting was painfully ordinary, ordinary it hurt.

"But it won't be always!" Suzanne spoke passionately, starting ruthlessly at the crash-covered mirror. Eyes, hair, and ends of chairs, tables, rugs and furnishings became day-dreams to her. "I'll buy nice things! Right things! I've got to have them. Got to!"

The very ends on the surface of her mind throughout the evening had helped flatten over many thin spots. It returned to violent life, the ominous she stepped into the spacious, lovely apartment that was the Meadowdale Club, and crystallized into a definite menace as her amber eyes swept the room, and found, there, everything her heart had ever dreamed of in exquisite furnishings.

The wide, field-stone fireplace, with the apple-tree logs blazing cheerfully; the twin pot mahogany linen lounges, in Charles of London style; the graceful Colonial tea-tables, one with the cocktail shaker, one with the cocktail hour; and the prints of sporting events in quiet colors, lining the paneled walls.

Says Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced At Home

Prove It At Small Cost

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, as good advice for home treatment comes from Boston that before resorting to operations or injections, is to get a prescription known as Moone's Emerald Oil.

Simply get Moone's Drug Store on your druggist for an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil and apply night and morning on the swollen enlarged veins. Soon you should notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are no longer burdensome. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that it also helps atrophic swellings due to strain to disappear.

TRENTON and DISTRICT

Trenton, January 21—(Special)—All through the night a sleet storm prevailed over this district and in the early morning it turned to rain. Road surfaces were turned into skating rinks and highway workmen were called upon to sand and slippery roadways. Earlier in the evening travellers between Trenton and Belleville and points south, north and west found it difficult to navigate their autos and in some cases abandoned them until the storm lifted. A transport trailer stranded for several hours at here slackened traffic and a number of cars were forced to take the ditch to skip the obstruction.

Provincial and local police were busy investigating accidents reported. The storm drove all the skaters off the rink and ice-making for the second night in succession the local civil block was filled to capacity.

Flood Waters Appear ... Worst floods in this district were apparent early this morning when a pounding sleet storm turned into a heavy rain with the weather man on the warning. Dread storms took on the appearance of small lakes and streams, which soon ran into lesser rivers. Police were called to their respective beats and calls were reported from the lower and lower areas of the town.

Wage Rate in Wollaston For County Work Defeated After Long Discussion 16-12

Reeve Charles Rollins Leads Debate in Council

NORTH SUPPORTS

Rate Asked Was 25 Cents For Workmen and 40 Cents For Teams

Five cents may not be much in the end of the route, but as a debating machine it ranks near the top, for it started one of the longest debates in the history of the County Council, when that body went into their afternoon session yesterday at Shire Hall. Another lengthy verbal battle, two deputations and the summoning of Charles A. Payne, County Solicitor, to settle an important question took the members well into the early hours of the evening and provided by far the most interesting session of the Council to date.

The fun all began when Reeve Chas. Rollins of Wollaston made a motion, seconded by Reeve A. L. Churcher of Dungannon, to the effect that: "The wages of 30c per hour paid to men and 40c per hour paid to teams, be raised to 35c per hour for men and 45c per hour for teams on the work now in operation on the County road in Wollaston between Monaghan Crossing and Drums' Crossing."

Lengthy Argument

Back and forth flew the verbal brickbats as first a few took the affirmative and then another the negative. Councillors crossed forward as arguments pro and con were presented, and the debate took on like a miniature civil war as representatives of the neither the county aligned themselves in solid southern fronts. And indicative of the keenness of the verbal struggle was the result of the first vote taken when in one of the rare instances in the history of the Hastings County Council the vote was deadlocked at 14 all. Whereon Reeve Rollins made a move or less crisis in this his first meeting as Warden of the County, ordered a recount and the motion was defeated by a count of 16-12.

In prescribing the original motion Reeve Chas. Rollins stated that "I am not asking for charity, I have in my hand a writ issued against my township, but I am not afraid as we can pay it. I am not asking this raise in wages as a grant but as it is done, I will take it on myself to see that the judgment against Wollaston is paid."

"For some reason Wollaston men cannot be employed on County Road projects but if this situation is reversed it will not be my taxpayers a great deal."

A. L. Churcher (Dungannon): "I agree with Reeve Rollins as one who has had considerable assessment raised. I have a strong sympathy with the proposed raise and believe the working man in the present economic inequalities is entitled to it as everything he has to purchase costs more than the proposed raise in wages justifies."

Reeve Bridger (Tudor): "I agree. "Does this apply to Wollaston only?"

Reeve Rollins: "It means that there is a project in Wollaston, which is being fully paid for by the railroad and partly by the County."

Reeve Bridger: "I don't like to have prosperity with low wages. We will never get out of the depression until we raise the wages of the working man. Twenty-five cents an hour is not too much.

Reeve W. H. Sayers (Tweed): "We are opening a 'Relief Bill.' Don't forget there are other municipalities which are in the same position and which have been used by the county. We in our town have had the same trouble. Our men want 25 cents an hour but we have a certain appropriation to spend and we can't afford to stretch out the work."

Claims Conditions Deplorable

Reeve Rollins: "Things are deplorable in the Township of Wollaston and if something isn't done to provide work, over half of them will be on relief. I don't want charity, but someone has to do something for this township or the county will be up against it."

Reeve H. A. Riddell (Faraday): "I agree with Reeve Rollins and think that Wollaston men should get 25 cents an hour. But what about the Township of Faraday. We are between nine and ten thousand dollars in debt. Last year we had to pay a $2,000 levy and 1936 county rates and part of 1935, and this year we ended up with a writ issuance against us. In all we dropped about $4,000. We are getting nothing for our money and a lot of the grants we have received have been thrown back. I wish something could be done. This County will never get out of the debt we owe unless we get some co-operation from the county."

Reeve James Bryanson (Mayo): "I agree with Reeve Rollins. I don't think the men should waste time in keeping men down to 20c an hour. The men have made the life of this county, and if this county wants to do something for them, it will give him a decent living wage."

Reeve W. H. Sayers (Tweed): "I would like to see the working man get 25 cents an hour but it should be uniform, and furthermore it is not the county's fault. We, in Tweed, are in debt too, but we should not be penalized for the debts of other municipalities."

South Against Raise

Reeve Henry Larkin (Tyendinaga): "For many years men worked on the roads for 20 cents an hour and were satisfied. I think this proposed raise is all wrong. It is not fair. When the farmer has to go out and borrow money to pay his taxes he cannot afford to pay 25 cents an hour for his help. Then again I object to this idea that the men, who were being paid at the rate of 30 cents an hour owned and drove automobiles."

Reeve Rollins: "There are some men working on the Wollaston project but who own automobiles but they live five miles from away. Those who do not pay five cents a trip each way. I do not want to go over the foreman's head but if you want to change his men why it's alright with me."

Reeve Larkin: "I walked from 2 to 10 miles a day last winter in order to keep warm. I don't believe we should pay the man on the back and pay him 25 cents an hour and think you'll have to go out and borrow money to pay my taxes."

Reeve George Thompson (Rawdon): "I don't feel that this county is justified in making two scales of wages. The same conditions are evident in our township and our experience is that no matter what the rate of wages you make, the result is the same. By raising the wage scale we are encouraging the man to look to the government to provide jobs for him instead of going out and looking for himself."

Reeve Rollins: "Well as it is, our situation is desperate and unless something is done for these men the county will have to keep them."

Warden Gray pointed out, that if the scale was raised in Wollaston it would have to be raised all over the county. "The farmer is not making $2 a day," he said "and the taxes must come from somewhere."

Reeve Sayers: "Why not raise the time to ten hours a day. Wouldn't that be the same?"

Reeve Larkin: "No it would not. These men on relief do not want to work as much as those not on relief."

Road Superintendent in Favor

The matter was referred to Road Superintendent Fox as the point. "I have noticed any difference between men on relief and those who were not," he said. "This Wollaston project will cost $7,500.00. The material is paying $2,500; the Province $2,500 and the county the same amount, and the majority of this money is going to the men. If the wage scale is increased to 25 cents it means a levy of an extra mill, or $4,000.00, over last year. I want to see the men at work for when they are working they are not spending money and when they are when they are idle. I am in favor of the raise."

At this point Reeve Rollins introduced the motion which deadlocked the council at 14 all. The second ballot saw the motion defeated by 16-12.

Application of the grant for $190 for the Quinte Seed Fair which will be held in Belleville in March, by Mr. Joseph Wilson, Agricultural representative of Shilding, was commended upon favourably by the Warden and referred to the Ways and Means Committee.

With regard to unpaid hospital accounts it was stated, that members of the Hospital Board of Governors would wait upon the council today regarding these accounts.

Application from the House of Providence in Trenton for a yearly sum of $4.00 for the maintenance of a crippled man, a resident of Tweed was left in the hands of the Finance Committee for investigation.

The importance of the raising of a part of the road from the Madoc gravel road to Tweed was stressed by Reeve R. S. Woods of Hungerford Township.

"This is a bad stretch of road," he said. "There is always water on it and it is impossible to drain. The water rushes through a creek to a pond with no outlet with the result, that the road is often flooded to a depth of two and one half feet, making traffic impossible. The only way we can remedy this is to raise the road. There are plenty of materials on hand."

Reeve James A. Moore stated, that this creek travels for a distance of seven rods then disappears and comes out the other side of a hill. Mr. Woods is right regarding the condition of the road. There is no outlet and it should be rectified."

Road Superintendent S. Fox concurred with the former speakers. "This road has been giving trouble for years," he averred, "and I find that it would take about 1400 yards of fill and would cost approximately $1,000.00. This is an underground drain, which is incapable of handling the water."

The matter was referred to the Roads and Bridges Committee.

SHATTERS TRANS-CONTINENTAL AIR MARK AGAIN

Howard Hughes, sportsman pilot and oil well producer, on his way here alighting from his silver monoplane at Newark, N.J., airport after having shattered the transcontinental air mark from Los Angeles to Newark. Averaging 332 miles an hour, he established a new record of 7 hours, 28 minutes and 27 seconds for the distance. His mark was one hour, 56 minutes and 43 seconds better than his previous record established Jan. 4, 1936.

Submit Reports

Rawdon, Jan. 21—Mount Pleasant Women's Missionary Society convened at the home of Mrs. Allan Bailey on Wednesday afternoon with nineteen in attendance. The service opened with quiet music, an appropriate hymn and a New Year's hymn with Mrs. J. E Beckel offering prayer. Miss Isobel Turner read the Bible lesson and Mrs. Frank Smith gave a splendid devotional paper bringing out many lines of thought for this New Year of 1937.

Miss Vera McAdam contributed an appropriate vocal solo. The roll call was answered with a wide variety of helpful New Year messages. Mrs. Roy Thrasher reported 13 life, 2 annual, and 2 honorary members with average attendance of twelve. Mrs. Arthur Phillips reported $3.65 for December and $140.25 remitted to Mrs. Corsill. QUITS ARMY CAREER

With the press of public duties greatly increased since abdication of Edward VIII and succession, of George VI and consequent change in his own status in the line of succession to the throne, H.R.H., the Duke of Gloucester has felt compelled to resign his army career to devote more time to his royal duties. As will be noted in the picture in the 10th Hussars, the regiment which he served.

Belleville Cagers Score Double Win over Queens By Identical Scores 36-21

"Y" Intermediates Play at Armouries And Juniors at Collegiate

HELD SLIGHT EDGE

Both Local Teams Are Undefeated in Their Groups

Belleville cagers scored a dual victory over the Queens University hoopsters in two games or basketball played in the E.O.A.S.A. in Belleville last evening when the Belleville "Y" intermediates defeated the Queens intermediates 36 to 21 only to have the local junior E.O.B.A. entry, the Deacon A.C. club, duplicate the former score and defeat the Queens 36 to 21 also. Although both contests were keenly and strenuously contested the local cagers held a distinct advantage and well-earned the honors. It was the initial game and victory of the season for the junior A.C. lads, while the "Y" squad assumed a strong hold on first position in the intermediate loop, last night's victory being the first one to be played by the local intermediates. Both local basketball teams are leading their respective leagues by virtue of last night's dual victory.

Play at Armouries

The intermediate tilt was played at the Armouries and attracted numerous spectators who braved the winter indoor pastime or basketball. The Queens "students" opened up with the offensive and swept the local "Y" squad off their feet to score four points inside the initial minute of play. Belleville soon evened matters and play was rather even until the end of the first half when the local "quintette" broke loose on a scoring rampage, headed by Herb Burley and succeeded in a lead which they never relinquished. At the half-way mark the score stood 18 to 9 in favour of the Belleville "Y" who were playing inspired ball led by their playing-coach, Herb Burley. The defence set up by the locals was superb, while the clever floor play in this last stanza, when Queens scored 13 of their 21 points.

Burley Leads Scorers

Herb Burley led the scoring of the night with an even dozen points. Hornsle Newman, former Toronto senior intermediate basketball player now appearing in the Ivory's Queens intermediate, followed with eleven. Ernie Smith and Coach Gordon Lambert were next each as Cole counted five for the locals, Mcadam and Stephenson five other members of the team of the "tri-colour". Gordon was by far the best defensive player on the floor with Newman, the Queens ace, a close second. Belleville showed the fastest player while Cole and Wickerson played a fine game at the active ball in the centre with Smith and Edwards also going well for Belleville. Queens followed by Stephenson, McAdam and Newman.

The junior game was played at the Y.M.C.A. gym and was refereed by the Farley Faulkner-coached Deacon A.C. kids predominate from the first whistle. The local A.C. juniors scored first in their game and were never headed, despite the fact they were facing tremendous odds in weight, the "Wonder" outweighing the Deacons considerably. In both games the local cagers proved much the better all-over ball literally ran wild to score almost at a will. This win puts McLeodale in the junior finals, however.

Uses Two Teams

Coach Faulkner used two distinct teams in his game, the first team proving rather prolific throughout the junior game. The score at the half-time period in the junior tilt was Deacon A. C. 18, Queens juniors 4. As Coach Faulkner experimented in the second half, however, Queens scored 17 points while the locals bagged 18 scoring points. The game was by far the cleaner contested of the two. Jack Dickens, whose speed and shooting distinctly proved superb, led the scorers in the junior game as he sank six beautiful baskets for an even dozen points. "Hoi Dog" Mott with eight, McCabe with five and Elkins with six were the other more prolific scoring threats for the juniors, whose defence turned in stellar efforts. Harrington, Queens forward, starred for the "students" with a total of 12 points, four coming from free throws on foul shots, however. Mitchell and Brown were the only other members of the Queens team to improve although Simpson played a good brand of ball.

READY FOR BIG TIME

New York, Jan. 21.—(AP)—One and all the fight experts were agreed today that Gunnar Barlund is ready for the big time.

Barlund, the Finn, got a fight since his apprenticeship in the "preliminary youngsters" class in heavyweight hopefuls by soundly whipping Tom Besagne, the Texas cowboy specialist, over the 10 round route last night.

Barlund scaled 196 to his opponent's 182.

REDMEN HOPE TO EVEN SERIES

Meet "Fliers" For Second Time on Friday Night

With an increased amount of interest being shown in Canada's national pastime and capacity crowds jamming into the Belleville Arena for each performances the R.C.A.F. "Fliers" will journey to town again on Friday night for their return game with the Belleville Redmen. Two weeks ago on a snowy night the "airmen" trounced the Thomas-led intermediates 13 to 6, the Redmen relinquishing the "Fliers" handily in the last period.

The initial meeting of these two clubs saw the game played on soft ice slightly unfit for fast-moving hockey playing, but with a lightning-fast short ice awaiting them on Friday the Redmen vow revenge and feel certain they can reverse matters under ideal hockey conditions. The Redmen have had the benefit of three strenuous practices since their reverse at the hands of the "Fliers" and hope to even matters with the Lalonde-Partridge-Casey-Mooney aerial attack.

Manager Thomas feels his "kid line" of the Jackson brothers, Bill and Lorne, and Ken Mooney will be right fast on their feet and their quick passing should successfully cope with the speedy combination of the "Airmen". Then again "Bert" Whitton will be back in uniform and will team with St. Louis and McGuire. Whitton is a hard man to check and the Fliers will have their hands full watching the dashing Scotland Manager Thomas this morning.

Playing coach Carley-Kelly announced at noon he might shake up his forward lines somewhat tonight. "The last time we met the Belleville team we were lucky in scoring three goals in the second period and we still respect your red-clad sextette. Outside of the two penalties, when we scored the eight goals, Belleville played on an more than even terms. We are looking forward to a tough game and should have the best of chances as the competition is keen. Belleville has strengthened and more polished as the schedule advances," said Coach Carley-Kelly's version of the Redmen-Fliers game of Friday.

Sports Roundup

Lets not "let" Joe Louis "Don't" let anybody tell you that Vincenzo Gambetta is dead.

They both like to win too well. . . . Clark Gable, one of the finest actors playing that Ralph Guldahl is playing much too slowly . . . Clark Gable, alone, of Hollywood has declared war on Catcher Shanty Hogan and has issued shoot on sight orders that Hogan will either report to Boston Braves training camp with 225 pounds or pay his own training expenses until he gets down to 225.

Ralph Guldahl is no longer content to be golf's champion unless he can win by over playing his regular spot in the tournament. . . . Hockey season is in full swing. . . . Manager Steve O'Neil of the Cleveland Indians is short and more "Bad News" Hale from third to second. . . . Lyn Lary, of the Yankees, is the shortstop Cronin slot at short. . . . You might as well get used to the name Ellsworth William Andrew Foller . . . and Ellsworth is pretty right . . . the right spot. . . . The State of New Jersey has been silly on the pour subject. . . . The Fish and Game Commission has issued a map telling exactly where, when and how.

Uncle Harold "Bud" Foster became a star athlete and subsequently Wisconsin's basketball coach, his greatest claim to fame was that he was about the biggest guy ever born. Foster, at birth, weighed 13 3-4 pounds . . . Sam Rice, one of the few baseball guys who ever missed a putt, has taken some unmerciful criticism since he won the 1933 National Open. . . . But the worst crack of all came the other day when a golf scribe accused Sam of getting married so that he'd have somebody to watch him play in the tournaments.

SHAKEUP TO END SHAKEUPS MADE

Cleveland Indians Release Four Players And Take on Four

(By The Canadian Press)

President Al Sutphin of Cleveland Falcons says there will be no more shakeups, that his International-American Hockey League club will have to get along now with the material it has. But Sutphin announced a "shakeup to end shakeups" last night, releasing Ab Rigley, Mark Delmonte and Bill "Red" Andersen outright.

Coach Harry Holmes has some new talent to experiment with, for Falcons just acquired Fred Rogers, Tommy Cook and Dede Klein. The newcomers were in the thick of it last night when Falcons dropped a 3-2 decision to Ramblers in Philadelphia. The victory boosted Ramblers to a six-point lead in the Eastern section, Rochester and Danny Orr gave Ramblers an early edge, but Foyer and Rochelle tied it up. Then Bert Connolly came through with the winning goal in the third period.

Syracuse Stars still ride along six points ahead of Pittsburgh Hornets as the top of the Western division, with Duke Dukoski's clever scoring exploits last night. Stars beat Eagles 4-3 in New Haven after scoring in the fastening overtime collar club a goal lead.

Ike Shezinow's first period score gave Eagles confidence, but then Mike Miller, George Parsons and Basil Doran rallied in three Syracuse goals. Vezik Boyd got one for New Haven, but Doran came back with a Syracuse goal. Red Doran's effort for Eagles with less than two minutes left ended the scoring.

Hornets doubles team little to Pittsburgh's Hornets, playing their fourth game in five nights, they waded into Providence Reds for a 5-1 victory at the Smoky City last night to remain within hailing distance of Ramblers.

Percy Duguid put Reds one up in the first, but Hornets counted twice in the third period off Johnny Sherf and little Ken Doraty to win the game. Reds's goal was a soft one for Johnny sent the puck bunning 90 feet.

FRANKIE MARTIN BEATS ARMSTRONG

Winner Played to Mid-Section Weakness of Toronto Boy

Toronto, Jan. 21.—(CP)—Jackie Armstrong, his lanky opponent in the young poke-punch artist added one more loss to his record today but had reason to feel proud. The spider fought the finest fight of his career here last night before he bowed to the terrific body attack of Montreal's Frankie Martin.

Both fighters, Martin at 122 3-4 and Armstrong at 121 3-4 were in the bantamweight limit and the Montreal's Canadian title for the winner was not at stake.

Starting carefully, Martin gave Armstrong his lanky opponent in the first two rounds. After that he began to throw over one punch after another and started to pile up a decisive advantage in the sixth round. Armstrong claimed a foul in the sixth and was given a rest but the blow landed in fair territory.

MAROON GOALIE OUT FOR 2 GAMES

Connell Suffering From Cold And Has Two Cracked Ribs

(By The Canadian Press)

Add Alex Connell to the list of veterans who have found the going too tough for keen in the Montreal Senior League this season. Dead-pan Alex is out of the game for two weeks to recover from a cold and a couple of cracked ribs.

He will be missing tonight when Maroons take on Boston Bruins in Montreal. Bill Beveridge, Maroon's sub goalie, will take the 35-year old Ottawa veterans place in the Montreal nets.

Presumably Manager Tommy Gorman is counting Connell for the playoffs which Maroons seem likely to make. They are seven points behind Canadiens in the Canadian division standing but four up on Toronto Bill Leads and 11 ahead of New York Americans.

Maroons have forgotten their five-point margin over America, when they play New York Rangers, tied in New York tonight. After beating Boston 4-2 Thursday Leafs should be little difficulty knocking over the New Yorkers.

Montreal and Detroit Red Wings are the only idle teams today. Both Red Wingers, tied for Canadiens Thursday, get a chance to pull away from the Chicago Black Hawks, the American division, when they play the backward Black Hawks in Chicago.

REDMEN DEFEAT TRENTON INTS. IN FAST CONTEST

Local Aggregation Had Too Much Speed For Losers

SOLID DEFENCE

Goalie Watts Injured But Played a Real Game

Trenton, Jan. 21.—(Special)—Eddie Thomas' Belleville "Redmen" invaded Trenton last night and took the locals into camp. After sixty minutes of solid hockey the visitors emerged winners by the score of 8-to-1. The first few minutes of play were dull and each aggregation tested goal tenders from long range. The fireworks started with a change of scene. York's best defenceman, who has been a standout this season, was given a lay-off for two periods by referee Mooney. Burley and Morgan carried the puck in on Gould in the local goal and Burley's shot from close in was gobbled up by the Trenton netminder. Finish Winger Jackson smooth skating Belleville centre, scored after fifteen minutes of the second period of play, Ehler deuled the twine for the visitors twenty minutes later from close in.

Game Speeds Up

Both goalies thought they had fix the second stanza and at times the locals had four men back of the blue line. Belleville's offensive rushed from the Trenton end of the ice but were unable to penetrate the Watts. The goal-tender and Le-Gendre were the defensive players received a scalp wound over the right ear and was forced to retire from the game temporarily. After thirteen minutes and five seconds of the third period Bill Biddiss and O. Jackson sank his first score on a close in shot. Two minutes and seconds to go Davis took a pass from Johnson to tally the locals' only regular. Trenton fought the final canto with four men up. Before the conclusion Biddiss sounded the fans saw action for their money, Ehler scored one minute after the third period commenced. Morgan went to the cooler for charging and the locals with a man to their advantage failed to click. When Morgan returned to the ice he drained the disc home for fifth score. B. Jackson and Burley for Belleville were waved to the penalty box for carrying high sticks and Davis of Trenton served a two minute sentence for the same.

Strong Defence

Burley of the visitors spent the only other penalty of the game, 3:30 for tripping in the opening stanza. C. Jackson netted his second score of the night with 30 seconds minutes to go. Bentley and Ehler combined well in the Trenton defence and smashed most of the Trenton rushes. Ehler, Trenton's star starred and exercised a tricky clicking pass when advancing into local territory. Watts failed to stop the nets and was one of the main factors in Belleville's win. Lady luck also assisted him to offset the Trenton attack. Jackson, Biddiss, Miller and Baker appeared best for the homesters and missed a wide open shot on more than numerous occasions. Davis, Johnson and Johnson, Trenton's other trio, the old timers lacked the speed and clicking pass of the younger Belleville aggregation. Gordon sparkled in goal, when called upon to handle a breast shot but failed to handle Watts' long drive. York and Lemoire worked smooth on the Belleville defence and the throughout stone wall body checks to approaching Trenton forwards made the game suffering from influenza and in the initial period collapsed from exhaustion in the Trenton box. Immediately following revival he returned to the fray. He was relieved by Armstrong of Oshawa. Armstrong officiated well and handled each situation with silk gloves. The fans booed the referee when he failed to penalize Burley of Belleville for what appeared to be high sticking.

MISS CONNERTY GIVES RECITAL

Entertainment Presented Under Auspices of Marmora Tuxis Boys

Marmora—The Tuxis boys of St. Andrew's United Church held a dramatic recital in the United Church on Tuesday evening. Guest of the evening was Miss Mildred A. Connerty, reader and entertainer, who is a graduate of The Toronto School of Education of Toronto and Columbia University, Montreal. Other items on the program consisted of local musical talent. First on the program were selections by the Marmora Band. Numbers were announced by the president, Ewart W. Sleeche. Following were a "Duke's Calling" was sung by Mr. H. Linton, accompanied by Mrs. F. B. Wells at the piano. Selections from the Canadian Authoresses, Mrs. N. McCrimmon, "Sowing Seeds in Danny" were then given by Miss Connerty. Her two well applauded readings were "Little Jack Jacks" and "True Greatness."

Then a reading for "You" and "The Drunkard's Child" were given by a local soloist, Miss Flora Shannon. Mr. Linton and Miss Shannon gave another selection, which was followed by four vocal numbers by Miss Connerty, "Buying the ring," Mrs. McCrimmon's "Knowledge is Power," "Sowing and Reaping Seeds in Danny and "Ordeal" by Doug Welsh, delighted the audience. Mr. Vivian Leiaich, another local soloist, accompanied by Miss Flora Shannon sang "Trees" and "Understand I'll Be Waiting For You" and the Doctor's Case" were then sung by a local soloist, Miss Flora Shannon. PICTON

Picton—Reference by Mrs. Bell, Reg. N., dealing with the highlights of her trip to Vimy, England and Scotland last Summer, was the feature number on the R. & S. Club programme at their monthly meeting in the Legion Room on Thursday afternoon last. Life on shipboard, a visit to the battlefields of France, the unveiling of the monument at Vimy, journey to the cemeteries in France so beautifully kept at the expense of the British Government and the garden party at Buckingham Palace, were described in most interesting detail by the speaker. Mrs. Bell was also among those who were later guests of the French Government and told many thrilling points of interest. She later saw the sights of London, under the guidance of a social service worker, and then proceeded on a visit to the highland spots of Scotland. Her address was most thoroughly enjoyed by club members. A vocal solo by Audrey Clow, and a piano solo by Mary McMullen, were other numbers on the programme that were well received. Plans were made for a telephone bridge, and for a tea and food sale that the Club are sponsoring in the near future to raise money for the milkfund. The President Mrs. E. Ware was in the chair for the meeting.

Mr. Clarence King left for Montreal on Tuesday evening in the interests of the O.D.S.

Messrs. Alfred and George Grindrod went to Detroit, on Monday to attend the Dodge convention.

Mr. Harold Knapman was in Toronto early in the week.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"East Meets West"

Against a background of the rich and exotic Orient, the new Capitol production, "East Meets West," which stars the inimitable George Arliss, opened last night to an enthusiastic audience at the Capitol Theatre. It is a fast-paced melodramatic story of Eastern intrigue and Western diplomacy. Arliss, supreme master in the subtleties of witty conversation and verbal fencing, is seen in the role of a powerful Rajah, whose strength lies not so much in the fabulous wealth of his kingdom as it does in the craftiness with which he administers his financial affairs.

As Sultan of Rungay, a tropic outpost which is actually a buffer between Britain and another Eastern power, Arliss holds the key position in a race between these two countries for a strategic naval port. Matters become unexpectedly involved however, when the Sultan's Oxford-bred son falls desperately in love with an unhappily married white woman from the British colony, whose husband turns out to be the prime mover in a rum-smuggling business which causes death and destruction among the natives of Rungay.

The young Prince, urged on by the wiles of Dr. Shagu, emissary of the Eastern power, fosters lynch law in the hopes of ridding himself of the husband so that he can marry the wife. The clever Sultan, however, has other plans. He announces an immediate hanging following a full trial in order to save face, the British will pay a high price for the treaty they have been negotiating, only aiding in return the life of the smuggler.

Dr. Shagu, on the other hand, mistakes the strange turn of events as a strategic portent for his plans. He misinterprets, that he has played the wrong cards. For he fails in his attempt to back the prince and to discredit the Rajah in the eyes of his subjects. Instead in order to save himself from a ridiculous and anomalous situation he is forced to pay the same high price that has been extracted from the British.

Artiss, playing upon the weaknesses of the two opponents, emerges complete victor. He adds ten million dollars to his treasury, and retains the buffer between the rival powers. And when the husband is saved from the noose, both he and his wife realize that their way lies together, that a new and regenerated life will be theirs.

George Arliss plays his role with consummate skill. His epigrams are as sharp as sword-thrusts, while his acting has all the qualities subtly of touch which has made him the idol of millions.

On the Stage

At 8.45 Friday night only, another Auction Nite is held on our stage. This is different from the usual auctions because the auctioneer buys the articles from you for cash, instead of selling anything, and there are no lucky tickets and it is not a lottery. Just a lot of laffs. Come and enjoy the fun and also earn a few extra dollars the easy way. It is held Friday nights only at no increase in prices.

JUNIOR PETES SWAMP TWEED BY 13-8 SCORE

Peterboro Colts Lead From Face-off in Hectic Scoring Game

Tweed, Jan. ... —(Special)— Practically facing elimination in their Junior O.H.A. group, Tweed Junior Petes came to life and in the second period defeated Peterboro on the strength of three goals. They were obliged to take the shore end of a 13 to 8 score. The best line of the game was the fast, aggressive teams battle each other from the opening face-off.

Mouck, in goal for the locals, saw more rubber in the first twenty minutes than a goalie usually sees in twice that time. Five goals were run in by the visitors, all on close-in shots which gave Mouck no chance. Perfect combination on the visitors in the opening stanza accounted for all their scoring. Clark, Wright, Connelley getting one each and Mouck, Courtney and Connors the lone counter for the locals with Embury on the assists. Tweed's defence was solid while the visitors leading 5 to 1.

The second period saw the visitors took up the scoring from the first face-off, Courtney scoring the first goal for the locals and with Embury and Brunton serving penalties the visitors ran in three goals in succession to the fact that a game was in progress and for the last fifteen minutes ran the visitors right off their own their skates—including the goal-keeper and rapped in four goals, divided equally among Clark, Wright, Connelley and Embury. A total of eight goals was scored in this period. The game ended with the score 9 to 5 for Tweed Juniors. Penalties were almost as numerous as goals in this frame —Neale, Wright and Brady for the visitors and Tip' Tummon and Courneyes for the locals were banished by Referee Quinn.

The final frame was a repetition of the second. The visitors ran in four goals, with two and Neale and Kingdon one each were the goal-getters for the latter. Pint-sized "Shorty" Long ran wild in this frame and rattled the twine behind Harding for three goals for the locals. J. Tummon drew the only penalty in this frame as Courneyes returned to normal.

The line-ups:

Peterboro—Goal, Harding; defence, Clark, Webb; centre, Burr; wings, Wright Neale. Subs—Kingdon, G. Clark, Brady, Connelley.

Tweed—Goal Mouck, defence, Tip' Tummon, Embury; Centre, Courneyes; wings, Alexander, Kilbourn; rover, Bruton, J Tummon, Leonard, Long.

Referee—Jerry Quinn, Tweed.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Fourteen Carat Stuff

By Marjorie Hayes

When the first clock in the little jewelry shop struck twelve Walt Sachs laid down the watch he was repairing and slid off his high stool. When he shrugged into his overcoat he glanced over his shoulder to see if anyone were watching him, but the boss and Joe were busy with customers.

Cautiously he slid open the drawer under his work shelf and took out a tiny parcel wrapped in tissue paper. He and Joe usually lunched together, but today he did not want Joe around. No use letting anyone else in on this business, he thought as he dropped the parcel into his pocket and hurried out.

In a dark little restaurant, he ordered coffee and pie. Then he unrolled the tissue paper and drew out a ring with a solitaire diamond. What he had to do now was get rid of it.

An hour later that was accomplished to his satisfaction, and in the back room of an unbelievably dirty shop he waited while a shabby old Jew in a skull cap counted out a pile of crumpled bills and pushed them across the table towards him.

That evening he climbed the long three flights to his flat, a big grin on his face. Wait'll Pat dragged wearily but there was about him an air of pleased expectancy. At the sound of his key in the door his stout blond wife came running from the kitchen.

"Where's Trudy?" he asked. "I sent her on an errand by the store."

"That policeman of hers? He has not been around? I don't want to set eyes on him just now."

"He never comes so early. Did you get it, dear? What have you in the box?"

"Here I will show you. Quick, before Trudy comes!" And laying it on the table, he carefully lifted off the cover and drew out a white satin wedding dress and a long, tulle veil.

Anna bent over it, her hands clasped in delight. "Wunderbar! She will look like a nangel in it."

A moment later light feet came running up the stairs and the door knob turned. Walt hastily pushed back the box and a young girl stepped in.

"Hello, Dad!" she cried. "What's the big idea, locking the door?"

"To make sure you didn't get by without my seeing you. Come and see what I brought you," he urged, and led her over to the couch where Anna still hovered.

"Oh!" breathed Trudy, her pale cheeks flaming. Then with a return to her usual light tones, "What do you expect me to do with that?"

"Your mother and me, we know how you feel about that policeman feller, but now you said you wouldn't marry him nor nobody else till you got a job and could buy yourself the right things. So we got to thinking. Joe is scarce and we wanted you should get married while you was young—"

With a gesture of a magician he pulled a crumpled roll of bills from his pocket and pressed it into her hand.

"Why, Dad!" Why Mother!" she cried. "It's fifty dollars! You shouldn't give me all that!"

The girl flew to him first one and then the other before she gathered up the box. "Just she sit back go at good once—that ring and you. It pays to get fourteen carat stuff every time, you bet!"

kitchen.

"Child! I speak to Sergeant Mooney? Oh, hello, Bill! You coming around tonight? I have the swellest news for you!"

Walt sank down beside his wife on the couch and mopped his wrow. "Whew!" he breathed. Then he slipped an arm around her and taking her plump left hand in his he straightened the third finger with its plain gold band.

"It looks empty, your finger, without the other ring," he whispered. "You will not regret giving it up?"

Anna shook her head. "Why should I need an engagement ring after all these years? While I have you I do not need that."

"Well," declared Walt, as he kissed her, "when I was young I was not such a fool to pick two good ones—that ring and you. It pays to get fourteen carat stuff every time, you bet!"

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair and ma was painting crooked things straight and strate things crooked saying. Here it is Wiltymn, and at least had a dozen people must still be wondering why I didn't take the trouble to send them either a Chrismas card or a New Year card when they took the trouble to send one. I cant very well say to them that I forgot, coz that's not.

You can very well say nothing, pop said, and ma said, that's right for said than done I dont want people to get the idea that I'm a person that their memory's they've slipped my memory, she said.

Well, I give me an idea that mite lead to fame and fortune, pop said. Why not send people little notes of excuse in return for their little verses of good wishes? For instantsh something that you've forgotten to remember sends you a Chrismas card saying, Pop, the obscured kind of reasons, I send best wishes strictly this season's. Well, after a decent lapa of time you reply with a pretty hand colored card saying, Your little card, wich was more than kind, made me regret you slipped my mind. By gulleg I believe I've got something there, pop said.

I thawt of calling them all up on the 'fone and asking them if they received my card, without axually revealing the fact by saying that I really sent them one, and then they mite think it went astray in the hiwad and bussel of Chrismas mail, ma said, and pop said, Or supposing they mite even send you a New Year greeting such as, That New Year has come, and when it's gone, I hope you'll still be hanging on. Well, you result your little list and find out you haven't sent them a Chrismas or a New Year greeting, so you dispatch him a pritty excuse card, such as, Thank you for the wish es and the snow clad view, I'm sorry it wasn't from me to you. If I knew a manufacturer of gift cards I'd invite him to lunch, pop said.

O well, people get so many cards they prolerly wont miss the missing of yours, I think I'll follow my usual proceedure and not do anything about it, pa said.

And she looked to do the crossword puzzle with a satisfied expression.

American Flamp Popular

Once upon a time it was necessary for a traveler to have mastered "pidgin English" in order to make himself understood in far parts of the world without an interpreter. Today, it is said, the tourist possessing a good American "vocabulary" will get on just as well if not better. Such terms as "grand," "swell," "lovely," "okay," and the like are well understood by all who come in contact with Americans whether it be in Sweden, Japan, Brazil or Timbuktu.—Philadelphia Magazine.

WOMAN KILLED ON TRACK

Greenfield, Oct. 14, Jan. 20.—(CP)—Struck by a Canadian National Railways passenger train as she was walking on the railway track, Mrs. Duncan John MacDonald was killed today, about 1-2 mile east of the station here.

Dr. D. J. Dolan of Alexandria, chief coroner for Glengarry county, said an inquest will be held. Greenfield is 90 miles east of Ottawa.

New York, Jan. 20 (CP)—Thousands of expensive German cameras, valued at from $250 to $500 have been dumped on the New York market as bargain values during the last eight months, it was learned tonight. Refugees, camera dealers made known today. Unable to leave Germany with more than 10 marks, or some $4 in current, whole families of emigrants have purchased cameras and carried them out of Germany as personal possessions to be sold here.

ROEBUCK OUTLINES A TEN YEAR PLAN FOR ONT. HYDRO

Says in That Time Ontario Will be Independent of Purchased Power

$3,118,117 SURPLUS

Claims Average Reduction of $2.50 in Price to Municipalities

Toronto, Jan. 21 (CP)—Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Ontario Minister of Highways and Hydro Commissioner, will introduce in the legislature by day two bills to supplement the one brought in by his fellow-Commissioner, Attorney General Arthur W. Roebuck, to relieve the Hydro-Electric Commission of any obligation in connection with court judgments. Introduction of the bills follows the court actions brought against Hydro as a result of 1935 legislation cancelling Quebec power contracts.

A ten-year plan to make Ontario Hydro Electric System purchased power was outlined to the legislature yesterday by Mr. Roebuck in moving second reading of his bill. He spoke three hours and will continue today.

Hydro's problems, said Mr. Roebuck, is not in finding power sources but in obtaining the markets which lends itself to the cheapest development.

"The Niagara system is surrounded with undeveloped power, he said. "You will hear it clearly some day why we limited our purchase contracts to a term of years.

Possible St. Lawrence development was touched on by Mr. Roebuck. He said: "Do not forget Ontario's share of the undeveloped horsepower on the St. Lawrence is 1,200,000 horsepower. It is not possible of immediate development but its interest in the far future."

Means Cheaper Power.

Many thousands of horsepower can still be developed at Niagara Falls without seriously affecting scenic beauty Mr. Roebuck said. Other possible power developments outlined were:

Ogoki River diversion to furnish flow for another 130,000 horsepower at Queenston.

Little Long Lac diversion to supply water for 30,000 horsepower at Dower Falls.

Arrangements with the federal government for diversion of additional water from the Welland Canal to Dower Falls.

Madawaska development to supply 88,000 horsepower.

Provision for limited control of all the non-alienated potential water power resources of the Trent Valley, Survey and preliminary development of 10,000 horsepower on the Montreal River.

Mr. Roebuck claimed a 1936 Hydro surplus of approximately $3,118,117 and contrasted it with a 1935 deficit of $2,960,922.54. Though there has been an average reduction of $2.50 a horsepower in the price of power to municipal systems, he forecast a 1937 Hydro surplus of $3,000,000, should the year be a good one.

No Power Shortage.

Mr. Roebuck said there was no danger of a power shortage in Ontario. He accused Hon. Earl Rowe, Leader Ontario Conservative forces, and other Conservatives of an "insincere and unpatriotic attempt to frighten home-owners and industrialists of the Niagara system with the bogey of power shortage."

"Not only is there no power shortage this year, but we have passed the winter's peak with 130,000 horsepower in reserve and nearly 5 per cent. Roebuck.

Mr. Rowe stood ready to restore the contracts with Quebec companies, said Mr. Roebuck. He quoted the Conservative leader as saying he would "repudiate the repudiation", and Ontario Conservative Party press, leader, and other party members protested that what Mr. Rowe said was he would "repudiate the repudiation".

Savings Given.

Mr. Roebuck estimated 1937 savings to various municipalities because of the nullification of the contracts and subsequent reductions in rates as follows: Toronto, $2,382,000; Hamilton, $483,000; London, $265,000; St. Thomas - $56,000; Kitchener, $148,000.

Growth in primary power peak demand to 1,008,830 horsepower in 1936, a new record, was offset by a reduction in the secondary power load. Less secondary power was sold during the year.

From 1932 to 1935 inclusive, said Mr. Roebuck, Niagara system municipalities received power at an average cost of $27.63 a horsepower, though it cost the provincial commission an average of $12.85. The reduction of $2.50 a horsepower made recently to the municipalities was over and above the recovery of this $8.23 loss in the Commission's former way of doing business.

94-YEAR OLD LADY ENJOYS VISIT TO CITY

The rigors of winter contain no fears for ninety-four year old Mrs. Bowen of Frankford. Yesterday when Bowen Jr., Kitchener citizened the family automobile to attend the Hamilton County Council now in session in this city he remembered a promise to Mrs. Bowen that he would bring her to the city for a day to visit friends. "Sure, we'll go", declared the hale and hearty old lady. "Why mother", interjected her daughter, Miss Mabel Bowen, who is in her 72nd year, "you can't travel in weather like this".

"Tush, my girl, go get your coat on, I am as young as you are. Better hurry up if you are going with me."

And with a big smile of appreciation and anticipation, Mrs. Bowen drove to the city, where she enjoyed a day's visit with Miss Clive Johnson of West Belleville.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Jan. 21—(CP)—Slightly higher all round trading in industrial list turned quiet and dragsy in the early afternoon, dropping most of the early gains. Nos. Gains of showing for Distillers-Seagrams, Imperial Oil, Walkers Common and Smelters.

Brewing Corporation issues were strong and in demand, reached a new high for more than a year at 20 and Canada Malting was in demand at a slightly higher price. Motion Gas reached a new high and Dominion Stores, utilities like gains were more numerous than loses. Canadian Car, Consolidated Mining Smelting, Steel of Canada and National Steel Car were higher.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 21—(CP)—The early burst of strength in the mining section of the Toronto Stock Exchange today was followed by a period of profit taking and the early afternoon found a somewhat regred appearance, with net losses quite pronited in the golds and base metals. The ills continued strong.

O'Brien, from a morning top of 10 1-2, was down to 10 1-4 to show a net loss of 20 cents. Paymaster dropped back from its new high of 1.38 to 1.36, off about 3 cents net. Senior golds, Lake Shore, Hollinger and Pamour were steady and Macassa, Preston, Little Long Lac, Pickle Crow and Perron were showing substantial gains.

Foothills reached 2.95 and Sherritt Gordon 3.10 and Consolidated Mining-Edmonton were well ahead on the day.

WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 21—(AP)—While buying vigor of the preceding session appeared to have evaporated to some extent...selected stocks continued to push forward in today's market.

Automotive and steel issues were inclined to lag behind in these efforts in the General Motors strike met limited success, but Wall Street still leaned toward the belief a settlement is in the offing.

In the curb market, which at times market in. Nickel and Dome Mines recorded small gains, while Hudson Bay, Canadian Pacific held even. On the curb, Lake Shore pushed a small fraction higher. Dominion Government 4s yielded slightly. Canadian dollars were unchanged at 99.93 3-4 cents.

80,000 HOMELESS IN OHIO RIVER FLOOD CENTRES

Cincinnati Fears Flood Greatest in All History; Portsmouth Dikes Yield

Ohio R. 70.2 Inches or 18.2 Feet Above Flood Level at Cincinnati

STREETS IN WATER

Eleven Lives Lost And Millions of Dollars Damage Reported

Chicago, Jan. 22—(AP)—Relentless rivers of the Ohio Valley swelling toward the highest crests in their history, swept man and his puny barriers before them today.

Flood waters along thousands of miles of riverbrow in 10 states claimed at least 11 lives, more than 80,000 homeless and caused property damage that mounted into the millions.

The grim prospect of a major catastrophe hung over cities and towns along the banks of the yellow Ohio, with 19,000 homes in the Portsmouth area and 10,000 in the Cincinnati district.

Added to the homeless, the injured and the ill were the unemployed, thousands of them forced from water-logged factories.

Pittsburg's Problem

Pittsburg's Problem

The United States flood panorama stretched from Pittsburgh, where waters added more to the industrious district, the "golden triangle", to northeastern Arkansas and southeastern Missouri, ravaged by heavy rain, swirling backwaters and the thawing of mountains.

Cincinnati, Jan. 22—(AP)— At noon, EST, the Ohio River stood at 70.2 feet, 18.2 above flood level, and within nine-tenths of a foot of its highest stage, 71.1 recorded in the 1884 flood. Meteorologist Weightman, of the Weather Bureau, held to his prediction of a crest of between 71 and 72 feet.

Portsmouth Dikes Yield

Portsmouth, O., Jan. 22—(AP)— A tide of debris-filled waters spilled over Portsmouth's flood wall for the first time in 34 years today and wrecked nine-tenths of the city's milk race.

Waters in the business section, carrying boats, tree limbs, cans and portions of small buildings which had fallen before the pressure of the flood, rose rapidly.

Topping all the six-foot flood wall protecting the south side of the city, by the torrid Ohio River current followed the crest of the stream for over a half-mile stretch in the west and north sections bordering the Scioto River.

All Roads Cut Off

All main roads leading into Portsmouth had been cut off by flood waters. Interurban cars spilled over Portsmouth's flood wall;

GEORGE ENGLISH ON THEFT CHARGE

Remanded in Custody And Will be Examined by Experts

"I was starving to death and stole the money to get something to eat," explained a transient squatter, who gave his name as Percy English, when he was drawn as Tyendinaga Township, when he appeared in Magistrate H. J. Bedford-Jones' police court today charged with the theft of a quantity of comb honey, the property of Mr. J. Cook, Tyendinaga. English was remanded in the custody of the county jail. His Worship reserving judgment in the case for one week, during which time English will undergo a mental examination by Dr. Doyle, Provincial mental officer.

The honey, that English was charged with stealing was left in the bee hives by Mr. Cook, the complainant in the case, for the winter nourishment of his bees. "You did not mind stealing the honey and saving the bees the trouble to flash, did you?" asked Crown Attorney Donnan, who prosecuted. "Your Worship I am informed that this man will not sew, wash his face unless the county jail will do these things for him and force him to do so. I believe this to be a case for Dr. Doyle's attention," concluded the prosecution.

His Worship postponed sentence until the accused had been examined by a mental expert.

Appointments Made To Special Committees

Will Be Formally Submitted To Council Monday For Approval

At the first committee meeting of City Council held last evening, appointments to the various boards and commissions of the various bodies in the city were completed.

Under recommendations passed at the meeting which will be formally submitted at the regular council meeting on Monday evening next the following appointments were named as members of the Special Committee to investigate the accident and damage claims during the coming year:

Chairman of the Executive—T. Y. Wills.

Chairman of Public Works—Clarence Clapp.

Chairman of Waterworks—H. Armstrong.

Chairman of Fire—J. W. Barlow.

With the City Engineer and City Solicitor.

The following appointments were also recommended:

Hospital Management—Ald. Wills and Ald. Ostling.

Children's Aid Society—Ald. Barlow and Ald. Harvey.

Agricultural Association—Mayor Ansell.

Victorian Order of Nurses—Ald. Harvey.

It was also recommended that the sum of $2.60 be spent upon painting the cell room of the local police station and also renewing the walls of the interior of the station.

Under another recommendation, authority would be given to paint the cells, corridor and entrance from the office of the City Engineer, the work to be done by relief labor at a cost for material of $17.86.

St. Paul, Jan. 22 (CP)—Clyde L. Seelf drove his trust auto s e corner, but he did not stop.

The attendant pelted a hver. The truck was not fired.

Seelf opened the truck door and stepped out. At the city hospital, physicians said Seelf suffered only cut and concussion.

Poor Season for Owner Of Snowplow Here

Although completely equipped with modern five ton truck and special plow to handle even a record breaking snow storm or blizzard, as yet Frank Sparks of this city, who was the successful tenderer for the contract from city officials this year, has had little work to do. Only one light snow fall has necessitated the appearance of the plow on city streets so far this season. Last night's light fall was easily removed with the aid of a broom this morning. Under terms of the contract, Mr. Sparks is paid at the rate of $5.25 per working hour, not enough so far, it is reported to pay the cost of equipping the machine.

Obituary

D. A. RADCLIFFE

Kirkham, Que.

The Rev. C.E.S. Radcliffe, rector of Deseronto, in the Diocese of Ontario passed through Belleville today to assist at the funeral of his late brother, Mr. D. A. Radcliffe, formerly manager of the Bank of Montreal, Eglinton, N. Toronto. His late residence will take place Sunday at 2.30 p.m. from the Church of the Holy Trinity, Toronto, interment to St. John's York Mills. Mr. Radcliffe has been prominent in Masonic circles and Church affairs, holding a Lay Reader's License. He has a wide circle of friends and leaves his wife and a daughter, Miss Atherton and a son, Mr. Alton Radcliffe and two brothers, Very Rev. Dr. Radcliffe of Ridgway, Pennsylvania, U.S.A., and the Rev. C.E.S. Radcliffe, rector of Deseronto, to mourn his loss.

LATE THOMAS DERUSHIE

(Lakefield)

Point Anne—On Saturday evening, January 16, Mr. Thomas Derushie while walking to his home in Lakefield from Peterboro, was struck while in a car driven by Mr. Frank Kilborn, superintendent of the Canadian Asphalton Co., at Lakefield. Mr. Derushie was fatally injured about the head and also internal injuries and passed away at the Nicholls Hospital, Peterboro, on Sunday morning. A wife and four children, Iva, 13, Thomas 12, Gerald 8, and Carl 5 are left to mourn his loss also his aged father Mr. Eli Derushie, one sister, Mary, Mrs. Lorne Philip and two brothers, James all of Lakefield and Stewart of Ardoch.

The funeral took place on Tuesday from his home to Hillcrest Cemetery, Lakefield, with Rev. W. J. Creighton conducting the service. The deceased was a member of employee of the Canada Cement Plant at Point Anne.

WILLIAM HENRY MILLS

A lifelong resident of Belleville passed away this Friday morning, Jan. 22nd., in the person of William Henry Mills, late residence 31 Bleecker Street, he had been in failing health for some time.

The late Mr. Mills was born in this city and was one of his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. David Mills. He was well known to the older residents of Belleville and throughout his long life-time he was the most highly esteemed by all who knew him. He was a cabinet maker by trade and was an expert workman. For many years he was at various periods employed in the furniture manufacturing establishments of Thompson Company and the Tickell & Sons Company. For some years he has been employed by Mr. Jas. Bird. He was a member of the Church of England and was a member of Christ Church Parish. Old friends here will regret to learn of his passing.

Surviving him are his widow; one daughter, Mrs. Charles Bedgley, Belleville; one step daughter, Miss Frances Reid at home, and one brother, Mr. Frank Mills, Belleville.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HOLDS FESTIVAL

Officers Installed by Thomas Vyles of London

A brilliant descriptive address in which he outlined the activities, rules and regulations of the International Association of Firemen was given by Thomas Vyles, 12th Vice President of that organization, of London, Ont., to the members of the Belleville Fire Department at an installation ceremony of the officers of the newly formed local branch of the above international organization held in No. 3 Firehall last night.

Officers of the branch elected at the first meeting held a few days ago and who were also duly installed last night are—President, Deputy Fire Chief Gerald Fenton; Vice-Pres. Joseph Adams; Secretary, W. Snell; Treasurer Jas. MacDonald; Auditors, Messrs. Frank Orr, Jack Thompson, C. Grosser; Guide, Jack Thompson; Inner Guard, Gerald O'Brien.

Following the ceremony a luncheon was served to the guest of honor and the members of the branch by the local ladies. Jack Thompson delighted his hearers, while a humorous recitation by "Fire Chief Carmel" Frank Post, entitled, "Where does the fire go when it's out?" nearly brought down the house.

Prior to the ceremonies Mr. Vyles was a guest at a dinner tendered him by members of the Branch Executive. He has now left Belleville today where he will officiate at an installation ceremony of another new branch of the organization recently formed in that city.

POLICE COURT

Charged with the theft of a large quantity of coal iron from the premises of Mrs. John and Peter Brant, two local youths were arrested by Provincials Constables Ryan and Fraser, yesterday and appeared in local police court, had before Magistrate Butler today, charged with theft.

At the request of the Prosecution the cases were enlarged for one week, the accused brothers being held in custody.

According to information revealed by Provincial Police, the two brothers are charged with the theft of the iron doors and frames, from the brick yard owned and operated by D. W. Rollins, Belleville. The value of the doors and frames was set at $36.00, the iron stolen was allegedly sold as scrap iron. The iron doors and frames were for the purpose of use in the kilns of Rollins.

John Ousterhout, Madoc, appeared for sentence, the evidence in a case of theft laid against the accused having been presented in last week's court. Ousterhout, at that time, was charged with the theft of a quantity of tobacco and a tire pump from Alex. Macdonald's at Madoc.

In his findings Magistrate Butler held that in the matter of the theft of the tobacco the evidence was quite conflicting and he dismissed the case. "Although the evidence is rather doubtful in the case accused guilty on the theft of the tire pump, however," said His Worship, before Magistrate Butler could mete out sentence, Crown Attorney R. G. Donnan, K.C., interrupted the court.

"I have a charge of perjury here against Ousterhout. I have reasons to believe he committed perjury last week when giving evidence in the matter of the case of the theft of the tobacco. Perhaps it would be well not to pass sentence on the tire charge at this time," suggested Mr. Donnan. His Worship agreed and the matter pertaining to the perjury was enlarged until next week, Ousterhout being admitted to bail.

Two business men, were charged with operating or exposing for operation slot machines. Both pleaded guilty. Sam Pappas and Mike Harris both paying $50 dollars and costs. It was established in court that the offenders had permitted the slot machines on their premises to be operated about 2.15 a.m. on the morning of Monday, Jan. 18th last.

"The bylaw reads that all slot machines are to be closed and not exposed for operation from midnight Saturday night until 7.00 a.m. the following Monday morning," read Crown Attorney Donnan from the city bylaw. "Nobody tell me anything about it," pleaded Harris in trying to establish ignorance to the law. Both parties paid the fine and costs, amounting to $14.25 in all.

A domestic case, held in camera, and one lone inebriate, who failed the city's coffers to the extent of $16.25 after pleading guilty to a charge of drunkenness, constituted the other cases heard today.

Los Angeles Buys Heavy Underwear for Outdoor Laborers

In view of reports of cold weather and frost given by residents of that city who have lately returned after sojourning in the once sunny climes of California this season, it is interesting to note that Los Angeles city council yesterday passed an appropriation for the sum of $2,000 to furnish outdoor laborers of the city with heavy flannel underwear, heavy socks—and other garments capable of withstanding the rigors of a California winter.

GOL. G. O. FALLIS SPEAKS ON VIMY

Young People of Winter School Hear Appeal for Dedication of Selves

Col. the Rev. G. O. Fallis, C. B. E., of Trinity United Church, Toronto, addressed Christian Endeavor age last July, and took part at the ceremony of unveiling the memorial performed by King Edward VIII in the presence of Canadian pilgrims, the representatives of Britain, and the British Dominions and France and Belgium, Speaks to the young people at the United Church Winter School in Bridge Street United Church on Tuesday evening, his address being illustrated with pictures taken on that memorable Sunday. His subject was in reality the lesson of "Calvary and Vimy." He said that the soldiers who went overseas and fought for the ideals that during the World War did not die in vain. They leave, he said, a challenge to the people of today to fight for peace with the same bravery and courage as they did to fight for peace on only, not with weapons of war but with weapons of peace, namely the Christian way of life of the Christian. His appeal was a call to dedication to the cause of world peace.

Largest of Schools

The school has an attendance of one hundred and five including those taking the various study courses in Bible study, missions, and in the Sunday school teachers' work. Rev. S. R. Collins of Angola, Africa, a returned missionary has had charge of the study periods.

Drama night Tuesday brought one of the largest of the talent drawing the schools, the school rooms of the church being crowded. A party of forty young people from Shannonville, attended this event, having been asked by a bus to bring them to Belleville.

"Fun Night"

Tonight the school will close with what is known to the students as "Fun Night." Stunts by groups of young people and the staff will put on various stunts, games, songs, short plays, etc., will be the order of the evening, a scheme of wholesome humorous recreation. The evening will be brought to a close with a period of worship.

This afternoon a vote of appreciation was extended to the board of bridge Street United Church for their continued co-operation with the work of the Winter School. A further vote of appreciation was passed to Rev. Dr. Semple of Bridge Street United Church for his unfailing kindness and interest in welcoming the members of the school to the church.

The staff of the school remember with kindness the hospitality of the homes which received the members of the school this week.

School Elects for 1938

The Bay of Quinte Winter School will be held next winter in Belleville at Bridge Street Church, it was decided yesterday. "We feel that this is the proper place to be, and that the school has continued to grow in importance since coming to this city," said one of the officers. Bridge Street Church holds out the welcome hand to the large group of young people yearly.

Below is given the address of Col. Fallis, the officers were elected for the ensuing year.

Two Wolves are Shot Just North of Napanee

Shannonville wolves which terrorized sheep folds of farmers of the Shannonville district for some years ago, caused much loss and destruction of the animals nightly, have believed to have migrated northward where their presence is now reported in the section just north of Napanee.

Last week one of the large animals was shot in Richmond Township, while yesterday a second wolf was brought into the town of Napanee by Norman Storings who shot the animal in the 9th Concession of Camden Township, just north of the town. The pelt was turned over for the $15 bounty paid by the treasurer.

Two additional packs of the animals are reported, but they are wary and gun shy, according to hunters.

Jan. Weather of 1878 Resembles the Present

The fact that the changing seasons only repeat during the years is amply demonstrated by a clipping presented by a local resident today, taken from the files of Harper's Weekly, and dated January 12, 1878.

In the weekly at that time the unknown writer remarks: "A most remarkable winter". is the daily comment nowadays; for, although we may reasonably expect cold weather and snow almost any hour now, while we write the weather seems almost as mild and balmy as during a November Indian Summer. Holiday shopping is progressing under the most favorable auspices, but Winter wraps seem rather burdensome.

"A year ago our citizens were rejoicing in the Sledding of the cherry sleigh bells. As we write the growing grass is green; flowers are blooming and even the birds appear puzzled for it is reported in some certain sections that the little birds on Monday night pay a strictly unofficial and private visit to the Royal Military College at Kingston, for the purpose of delivering a lecture to the cadets of the College, the advice will be on the "Oliver Cromwell."

Gov. General To Speak At R.M.C. on Monday

— His Excellency, the Governor-General of Canada, Lord Tweedsmuir, will on Monday night, pay a strictly unofficial and private visit to the Royal Military College at Kingston, for the purpose of delivering a lecture to the cadets of the College, the advice will be on the "Oliver Cromwell."

County Council to Co-operate With Hospital Board with Respect to Indigent Accounts

Losses From Bad Debts Growing Each Year Says Chairman

ADOPT REPORT

Road Mill Rate Increased to 2½ Mills For Coming Year

An appeal from the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital who waited upon the Hastings County Council yesterday afternoon, at Shire Hall, for co-operation in the collection of indigent hospitalization accounts covering a period of three years and amounting to $8,281.79 elicited a lively discussion on the part of Council members and, on motion of the Hospital Board before the matter was tabled and referred to the ways and means committee which went in session shortly after lunching.

With only another day at their disposal members of the Council expedited unfinished business and minor discussion and in late afternoon were laid to a committee of the whole on ways and means in order to facilitate matters today when they adjourn until the June session.

"Our losses from bad debts are growing steadily from year to year," stated Chairman Ackerman of the Hospital Board in his appeal for co-operation in collecting these accounts." Bequests of sources which have been made us have been placed in a special building fund and cannot be touched by us for the matter of upkeep. For years we have considered the services to be an extra wing and as this will cost $100,000 we can't afford to lose money."

Members Air Views

A spirited discussion followed the appeal with several members of the council airing their views and experiences with indigent patients.

"The Council should stand," Reeve Bronson of Marysburg, "has already had the general feeling that the hospital is using it as a collection agency."

That is exactly what it is, and that is what the Hospitals Act suggests," Reeve Ashley, member of the Board, "and if there was some co-operation between the Council and the hospital we might get somewhere."

The definition of an indigent hospital patient was considered for some time before Chairman Ackerman said, "We are not here to put the Council on the defensive but to work with trouble and we hope you will deal favorably with us. We will work your actions before we act."

The adoption of the report of the Board of Management of the House of Refuge and Industrial Farm, the Sanatorium, the Home for Incurables, the Jail Surgeon, and a further discussion of the report of the Road and Bridge Committee, which resulted in a motion to the effect that 2½ mills would be asked, during the June session, preceded the committee of the whole on ways and means which broke into session shortly after 4 o'clock.

Report Presented

In presenting his report, Reeve O. B. Redford, Chairman of the Board of Management of the House of Refuge and Industrial Farm stated that the expenditure totalled $20,000 on the Home during the past year.

"We complied with the wishes of the Inspector," he said, "and we installed a refrigeration plant at a cost of $1,000 which has given splendid service. In presenting this report I recommend that any necessary repairs be made."

Following is the report of the Committee:

Deaths, 19; Commitments for the year 1936, 19; Discharges for the year, 17; Total number of cases on the roll on Dec. 31, 50; Total number of women on roll on Dec. 31st, 33.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Ottawa, Jan. 21 (CP)—Canada has 32 Honorary Lieutenant Colonels, Defence Minister Ian Mackenzie told Jean Francois Pelland (Lib. Temiscouata) in the House of Commons yesterday. Included in this number is one who is carried supernumerary to establishment.

The total number of replacements in the militia is 114, of which 109 are non-permanent, and five permanent. Lieutenant Colonels total 85, of which six are supernumerary.

Vancouver, Jan. 21 (CP)—Officials of the Dominion Department of Indian Affairs here have taken measures to combat a measles epidemic among Indian school children on the Nitinat Lake, Mr. Moses Joe, young son of Chief Joe of the Seshelt Indians on Nitinat Lake, died Tuesday of the disease.

St. Paul, Jan. 21 (CP)—Arieta Gaston, 7 years old, swallowed a lump more than a piece of candy, paramedical Lois Erdman, said.

She swallowed the candy at school. It lodged in her windpipe. Teachers summoned her father and an ambulance. But the ambulance sped toward a hospital it struck a bump, Arleta sat up. "It's down!" she exploited.

Sterling, Ill., Jan. 21 (CP) — City Attorney Walter E. Sievers has proof the parking ordinance he drafted three months ago is effective. He has just paid his third fine for violating The City Sleep Health Office as the City Clerk and the Mayor's Secretary have each paid theirs. The police paid to discover the soundness of the law.

Los Angeles, Jan. 21 (CP)—Old man winter—a seldom seen and decidedly unwelcome guest in the city of widely advertised sunshine—has not been officially recognized.

The city council appropriated $2,000 to furnish outdoor laborers with red flannel underwear, woolen socks and other garments capable of withstanding the rigors of a Southern California winter.

REDISTRIBUTION BEFORE HOUSE

Motion "Talked Out" But Will Come up Again

Ottawa, Jan. 22 (CP)—Several Liberal members of the House of Commons last night completed their part in the ridding of a "every-mander" prior to the last general election which made in the largest Liberal majority in history.

Led by H. E. Brunelle (Lib. Champlain) a group of private members demanded a review of the electoral redistribution carried out under the former Conservative Government. The Brunelle motion was "talked out" but will come up again.

A. A. Heaps (C.O.F.-Winnipeg) was prepared to support an investigation before a Parliamentary committee if he had for its object the working out of a new system of redistributing seats which, would be based on equity and justice. He could see no point in an attempt to correct isolated grievances arising out of the last change.

SOCIAL CREDIT MOTIONS LOST

Proposal of Debt Free Money Smothered Under Heavy Voting

Ottawa, Jan. 22 (CP)—Opposed by two Cabinet Ministers and the leader of the Opposition two reported with varying degrees of reservation by several Liberal and C.C.F. members, aspirations of the Social Credit group to have their doctrines adopted by the Dominion Government have met with defeat for the moment at least.

Motions which the early yesterday's session was devoted to the recognition of John Hargrave, Social Credit member for Lethbridge and leader of the Federal group. He urged the immediate issue of Social Credit money to increase purchasing power. His resolution was smothered under an avalanche of nays.

A second resolution, moved by Victor Quesnel (C.C.F.-Lapin), for a scientific scheme to "finance consumption" met with short shrift. No members spoke except the mover and the motion was declared lost on a call of ayes and nays.

A third private members' resolution, moved by H. E. Brunelle (Lib. Champlain), called for a bona fide committee to study alleged inequalities under the redistribution of 1933. It was brought down late in the evening and was still being debated when the House adjourned.

TWEED

Tweed—A very pleasant time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. J. Leal on Friday evening, when Mr. and Mrs. Leal entertained the members of her Sunday School class. The evening was spent in playing games, singing and contests. Gladys Shewring was the winner of the first contest and was tied with Luella Leal for first place in the second contest. Miss Laura Thompson assisted the hostess in serving dainty refreshments. The girls showed their appreciation of their teacher's kindness by singing "For she's a jolly good fellow" and thanking her for her kindness.

Mr. Earle Thompson who has been with his brother Elmer in Dundas for the past week returned to his home in Tweed on Monday.

Earle who is convalescing from his recent appendix operation is feeling much better and hopes to be able to return to his work next week.

There was a mad scramble to secure radio licences for 1936-37 in Tweed on Wednesday as the word was passed around that officials from the Department of Marine, Ottawa, were in town to check police owners who had neglected to go through the formality of exchanging a two-dollar bill for a bit of official paper licensing them to operate a radio set. Several unfortunate citizens were required to pay a small additional charge on following the police necessary document to the inspector when he called. There is no immediate penalty in force with radio reception owing to

FASCIST BLOC FORCING SHOWDOWN OVER SPANISH WAR

Europe faced the certainty of a direct struggle between communism and fascism in Spanish soil with only buffer the two great democratic nations, Britain and France, following announcement by Gen. Hermann Goering, German air minister and Hitler's chief aide, that "as any cost" Gen. Francisco Franco's Fascist revolt must succeed in Spain. Gen. Goering, after discussion with Premier Benito Mussolini in Rome, declared in no uncertain terms that Germany and Italy would not countenance a communistic government in Spain. The German spokesman treated with contempt Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's reply in the British House of Commons, warning just as bluntly that Britain would not allow domination of Spain by one or two Communist dictator, so far is silent, though Germany charged that Russia has already violated Spanish independence. Gen. Franco (centre) his Fascist backers, Mussolini (lower left) and the chief figures opposing their aims are shown here. KALEIDOSCOPIC EFFECTS

The international outlook true to its seeming chameleonlike spot-changing phase which has been so marked in international news for the past year, and day by day a new kaleidoscopic effect is put upon the front page of the newspapers as upon a screen. A couple of weeks ago, it was the new Anglo-Italian accord, then the Germanic-French Rapprochement with the possibility of an enduring pact to settle all difficulties, now it is the discarding of the four-power unit of Italy, Germany, France and Great Britain by Italy, according to reports. The other day Hitler's newspaper said that Germany had heard sufficient of Eden's speeches and that such talk of his was redundant. Yesterday came the report that France backs Britain in the Eden statement that foreign powers must not have a place in the direction of Spanish national life.

Is the scene changing as much as these reports which change from day would indicate? Hardly. Underneath is the same old discontent, with the same building up of alliances. So from the daily stories it would appear almost impossible to come to realize just what twenty-four hour period brings the most important news.

Commentators on the international outlook hold diverse views of course, most recent expressions seeming to look for continuance of the present situation of international unrest with the possibility of war much lessened.

CHURCH GIVINGS GROW

How vital the church is in the life of the community, nation and world is indicated very clearly in the increase of givings to the churches in the past couple of years after the full shock of the depression. This has been the reply of that notable portion of the community life everywhere to the forces of a chaotic and destructive character.

The churches naturally felt the depression, particularly those churches, the greater portion of whose membership depended upon continuance of regular labor and of wages. In some cities as high as fifty per cent of this class was to be found among church members, many of whom lost jobs and the resultant stress and strain on these workers and their families and the churches they were associated with can easily be understood. In Belleville, no congregation was hit so hard as such congregations in larger cities, but still the withdrawal of a certain amount of financial support was evident, and with withdrawal of support, a proportion of attendance fell off.

But with great effort many individuals held on, as churches did. They took financial survey and managed to carry on, and as a result to improve the strain lessened appreciably. This improvement in the individual and in church finances has been increasing and this year according to annual reports givings to churches have increased with the result of a happier tone to the church life which naturally is buoyant and optimistic and does not move in an atmosphere of gloom.

There is general realization that the church plays the most important part in the life of this day, yielding to no other factor. While pleasure does take a heavy toll of money, yet many men and women stint themselves to carry a share of the church's burden. They deny themselves pleasure for this. While pleasure and self-gratification cause outlays far beyond what is given to the church, yet the church's influence abides and like the leaven gives more value than worldly pleasure can give. If equal sums were given to church and pleasures, the church could extend her influence many times. Such is the production of good fruit.

Our national and municipal life owes a supreme debt to the influence of the church and the modest or larger givings of those who support it. In the midst of a world of change it still endures, providing a proven itself a bulwark and comfort in recent times of stress.

It is surely a healthy sign that donations for religious purposes are growing. The depression itself has taught the church a lesson as well as business to keep its financial house in order. It has pressed the claim of the brother's keeper and the individual's value, society's value and its high object and calling. Those who give for religious purposes do much, though not all, for there are many labors in church that require self-sacrifice. But these two reap a harvest of which the churches and their members may be proud—in the influence on the national life.

The soul without imagination is what an observatory would be without a telescope.—Henry Ward Beecher.

ALL SET NOW FOR THE KINSMEN'S KID KAR DERBY, scheduled for next Dominion Day but already being prepared for by that energetic organization of "young fellers", the Kinsmen's Club of Belleville. The first annual event of this kind to be staged in Canada was put on by Belleville Kinsmen last fall and was at first considered little more than a joke by many until its full significance flashed upon them in the event itself which, despite a cold raw day (Thanksgiving Day) drew an amazingly large crowd of people, besides interesting one hundred odd kiddies to the extent of building their own cars and racing them. In addition the event was Front Page news all over Canada, with reverberations in the United States where the idea originated, and it is expected that Belleville's Kinsmen's Kid Kar Derby will be imitated this season in various parts of Canada. The fact that the Kinsmen are taking hold of the Derby this early shows that they are leaving nothing to chance and will produce a sporting event worth while from every angle. Here's the Derby Committee, a bunch of live wires capable of putting over with a bang most any worthy civic enterprise: Business Manager, Capt. D. Sills; Derby Chairman, Clem Colling; Speedway Supt., W. A. Down; Publicity Director, O. A. Lloyd; Derby Secretary, W. M. Hurst; Derby Treasurer, R. L. Pearsall.

LOWER PRICES WILL INCREASE CONSUMPTION, INCREASED CONSUMPTION WILL MEAN INCREASED PRODUCTION, hence more employment —such is the text of a guest editorial in current Liberty magazine written by B. A. Keightley, President of the Association of Canadian Advertisers. What happens when prices are reduced and production is stepped up is shown by the writer in the automobile industry which in 1912 produced 350,000 automobiles in the United States at an average price of $2,000. By 1926, with an average price of $500, sales increased to four million cars. "QUICKEST OF ALL OUR HEAVY-INDUSTRIES TO RESPOND TO RECOVERY the automobile industry has never varied from the plan of giving more for the money . . . . Electric lamps now deliver twice the light at half the cost. In countless instances this policy of more for the money has seen the rich man's luxuries become the poor man's necessities. Better values, higher qualities, greater durability, steady improvement of goods, with prices tending always downward—these point the way to a more abundant life for all," says Mr. Keightley. "THE QUICKEST WAY TO LOWER PRICES IS THROUGH INCREASED VOLUME. THE SHORTEST ROUTE TO INCREASED VOLUME IS BY INTELLIGENT ADVERTISING. It is beyond dispute that advertising is a vital force in business and a great economic leveler. Because it did tell you you'd probably like to buy it and because it told you where and how to get it. Really, Willyum, I must say that after all that's no excuse for a callous lack of interest on your part. Really, Willyum, I must say that after all spend 20 good minnits at a certain entertainment couple in a certain department store to choose an unexpected present for a friend is the least I can expect in return. I've been of appreciation, the merest spark of interest, she said.

Yes, gods and dizzy pinwheels, if you think me to know what it is, go ahead and spill the beans, pop said, and ma said, do you think you dont catch me that easily, you think you're a sly one but you dont see me falling into your trap, hee hee. You can try to guess if you want, but it is ok-doke by me, Bonkiest, and miss Bernice Hall, has nothing to do with smoking, I'll give you four nuts for a hint. But you're only wasting your time guessing, she said.

Horse feathers, blame I'm not guessing. I'm not even reeding my paper, much as I'd like to, pop said, and ma said, Now Willyum you've just let that one remain. I'll tell you it's a little wooden tub of imported shaving cream and spoil your whole serprise.

JAPAN'S CABINET THREATENED BY FASCIST AR MY PRESSURE

Pressure from the powerful army element is threatened to topple the government of Prime Minister Koki Hirota of Japan, successor to HIRY and establish a Fascist dictatorship over the island empire and Manchukuo, which would intensify Japan militaristic policy and place the entire nation under direct control of the army general staff. Hirota faced the Imperial Diet, shown in session in the historic Assembly Hall in Tokio, with riding danger that his cabinet will be forced to resign or to dissolve parliament to make way for army domination. Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita (Top, Left) followed the premier in defending the recent German-Japan alliance against communism, and declared the nation will seek to strengthen her friendly relations with Britain. Count Juichi Terauchi (CIRCLED) is Japan's war minister.

ALCIDE BENOIT HELD FOR TRIAL

Pleads Innocence When Charged With Murder

Monroe, Mich., Jan. 21—(AP)—Alcide (Frenchy) Benoit, 36, pleaded innocent by his counsel today on a charge of shooting to death State Policeman Richard F. Hammond. He was held for trial in circuit court.

Benoit, a native of Sudbury, Ont., came to court handcuffed to a State Trooper. He waived examination and Municipal Judge John P. Visscher 3d. once ordered him held for trial.

The court room, jammed with spectators, was hushed for several minutes as Benoit talked with the judge. Benoit's plea surprised some police officers, who announced last night he killed Hammond and shielded his body so a rural mailboy...

Benoit was captured last night by a State policeman.

John A. Smith, companion of Benoit, was arraigned on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. He waived examination and was bound over in circuit court under $10,000 bond for appearance Saturday.

1936 Production Butter and Cheese

Over 260 million pounds of creamery butter—260,323,677 pounds to be exact—were produced in Canada during 1936. Compared with the production in 1935, the 1936 output represents an increase approximately of 8,000,000 pounds or 12 per cent., according to Dominion Dept. of Agriculture. All the provinces except British Columbia registered increases.

The production of cheese in Canada in 1936 amounted to 117,796,341 pounds, an approximate increase of 19,000,000 pounds or 17.8 per cent. Of the four Provinces for which production data are available, namely Quebec, Ontario, Alberta, and British Columbia the last-named province alone showed a decrease. By provinces the production in 1935 and 1936 was as follows: Quebec, 39,898,643 pounds (increase 26.7 per cent); Ontario, 87,799,353 pounds (increase 16.3); Alberta, 1,440,009 pounds (increase 9.5 per cent); and British Columbia, 433,586 pounds (decrease 42.4)—a total for the four provinces of 118,341,340 pounds. By adding the output of the other provinces the grand total of 117,796,341 is reached, as follows: Prince Edward Island, 272,927 pounds; New Brunswick, 979,126 pounds; Manitoba, 1,274,552 pounds; and Saskatchewan, 501,038 pounds.

SALE OF TEA BUSINESS TO HELP CHARITIES

London, Jan. 22—(CP Cable)—Purchase of the business of the Canadian and United States businesses of the late Sir Thomas Lipton, bequeathed to the famous racehorse's tea and rubber plantations in Ceylon, would well be by mean a windfall of more than $3,-500,000 for charities in Glasgow, where Lipton was born.

The merchant's will provided that proceeds of the business be used for various charities in his native city. It was thought these infirmaries would benefit greatly, together with many other institutions. A meeting of the trustees will be held in the next week.

The sale of the Toronto and New York interests to Lipton, Limited, was announced yesterday after it had been approved by the High Court of Justice in London.

GANDHI DISOWNS 'MAHATMA' TITLE

Title Bestowed "Stinks in My Nostril" Leader Declares

Bombay, Jan. 21—(AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi, aged leader of India's Nationalist movement, today publicly disowned the title of "Mahatma," maintaining he had no right to the honor.

While touring the state of Travancore, Gandhi asserted the title often had embarrassed him so great "it now stinks in my nostrils."

Declaring he had no religion to give, the Nationalist leader added: "My humble role is that of a scavenger, both literally and spiritually."

The title of Mahatma means high-minded or great-souled.

WEST HUNTINGDON

West Huntingdon—St. Andrew's congregation held their annual congregational meeting in the church on Monday evening, Jan. 18. Rev. J. A. Kuffend conducted the worship period. Following this reports were received from all the various departments of the work. These reports all showed the work of this church progressing favorably. HOW ALL-BRAN SAFELY RELIEVES
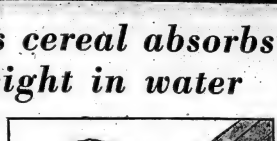
CONSTIPATION

This delicious cereal absorbs twice its weight in water



WITHIN the body, ALL-BRAN really absorbs more than twice its weight in water. Here is how ALL-BRAN works:

In the first place, common constipation is usually due to meals low in "bulk." Intestinal muscles lack the materials needed for their regular exercise. They get flabby.

Some "bulk" is found in fruits and vegetables. But Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has a great deal more. This cereal absorbs water. It passes through the system—with the fiber largely unchanged—gently sponging the intestinal walls as it goes along. It eliminates the listlessness, the "blues," the headaches that often follow constipation.

ALL-BRAN also provides vitamin B to tone up the intestines, and iron for the blood. Isn't this natural food much better than the unnatural and sometimes harmful action of pills and drugs?

Eat two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily. Chronic cases, with each meal. Serve as a cereal, or cook in recipes. Sold by all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

This simple test shows how ALL-BRAN functions: fill a glass 4/5 full of ALL-BRAN. Pour water up to the brim of the glass. Soak 15 minutes, and drain off excess water. You get the water-softened mass. It's much like a soft sponge. In fact, laboratory tests show that ALL-BRAN absorbs at least twice its weight in water.

Within the body, this water-softened "bulk" gently "sponges" out the system. ALL-BRAN also provides vitamin B to tone up the intestinal tract, and iron for the blood.

Serve Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity

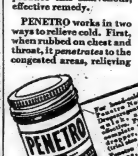
POOR YOUNGSTER!



Her Mother Forgot to get PENETRO!

Don't be careless about your child's cold. Treat it at once. A simple cold may develop into dangerous illness.

A safe, effective home remedy for colds is PENETRO—made with a mutton-suet base, like our grandmothers used. But new medical science has combined modern medicaments of proven worth with this base to produce this marvellous, effective remedy.

PENETRO works in two ways to relieve cold. First, when rubbed on chest and throat, it penetrates to the congested areas, relieving the inflammation and easing the pain; and, second, it releases volatile aromatic vapours which soothe and heal the irritated nasal passages.

Never be without this great family remedy. It is useful, too, in the treatment of muscular aches and pains, neuralgia, lumbago, etc. Pure white, it does not discolor fabrics. At any druggists, 25c.

HYDRO FORESEEN

Ablibi.

Mr. Roebuck listed 1936 surpluses of five systems:

Niagara $3,118,177.13; Eastern Ontario $290,971.43; Georgian Bay $62,266.12; Thunder Bay $146,-107.07; Manitoba $737,876.80.

"And I am glad to say for the first time since the opening of the Ontario Hydro-Electric the Northern properties this year will show a surplus," said Mr. Roebuck.

In the Eastern Ontario system, $132,320 was paid in bills to the municipalities but gross revenue increased $139,940 to $2,322,197.80, a new peak.

Belleville's Reduction

Reduction in power bills of Eastern Ontario municipalities were: Belleville $30,000; Cornwall, Chase $2,000; Cobourg $9,500; Lindsay $8,500; Picton $2,000; Smiths Falls $600; Perth $4,400; Peterborough $11,500; Port Hope $8,600; Smith's Falls $6,000; Trenton $6,700; Wilby $2,600.

Kingston, which operates on a contract basis, reduced rates to consumers, $34,000.

In addition to rate reductions, refunds totalling $130,000 were given customers on the Eastern system.

An agreement, now being completed with the Dominion Government will, said Mr. Roebuck, reduce charges for water at power sites on the Trent Waterway to $75,000 from $90,000.

On the Eastern system, the Commission has completed contracts at the Mississippi and Madawaska Rivers with a view to development on the latter. Plants at Galetta and Calabogie have an installed capacity of 6,500 horsepower. They were purchased for $1,900,000 and when developed and underlayed capacity on the Madawaska to 85,-000 horsepower.

The Commission is facing the necessity for further development of Chippawa Niagara, he said.

Added water will be available, he continued, from the Ogoki River diversion, giving a total capacity of 38,000 horsepower.

"Cost of the Ogoki River diversion is estimated at $3,000,000, and cost of the proposed extension at Chippawa Falls and Alexander Landing is estimated at $3,500,000," he said.

Manitoulin System, founded in 1932, had a surplus of $715 on 176 customers, Mr. Roebuck said.

Abitibi Power showed a surplus of $70,987.81 in 1936, he said, without provision for sinking fund. Figures for November showed Abitibi had reached the stage where it would provide for capital charges and sinking fund.

Combined balance of all the Northern Ontario districts in 1936 was only $41,333.54 short of distributing all expenditures, including final charges and providing for a sinking fund. In this province, Mr. Roebuck, the northern properties will meet all charges and have a balance.

GOOD EYESIGHT IS ESSENTIAL TO GOOD WORK
No one will deny that the man who is most efficient is most likely to succeed. To what end his efforts will lead, him may depend to some extent upon circumstances over which he has no control, such as luck, chance or what not, but the man who so thoroughly cultivates his faculties as to give them very best, seldom, if ever, fails. He is sure to succeed in some measure.
Good eyesight is essential to good work. Unless a man can see clearly he cannot possibly do work of the highest quality. Of course, he will eventually realize his deficiency and get glasses to make his sight good, but perhaps not before his reputation has suffered or he has suffered considerably.

Ernest John Weeks Barrett

A native of Belleville and district, Ernest John Weeks, 73, was interred in Belleville Cemetery on Saturday afternoon following services from his home on Louis street. Rev. Canon Bigg officiated. Mr. Barrett died in Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday. He was born in Belleville, the only son of John and Anne Weeks of that place. He was married and moved to Canada and settled in this locality. He was a member of the Anglican Church. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Weeks and one daughter, both of Trenton; Rev. F. J. Smith of St. George's church, conducted the funeral service.

Police Mag Saved

Several years ago a police dog from a valley child in the Trent river system, rescued one of the animals from the ice floes near Trenton. Last week-end the dog's master was called out on the ice and when the break-up came fell among the floes and was carried far down the river. Barks from the lodged animal attracted pedestrians on the bridge. A long plank was passed from the bank and after much considerable difficulty the drenched animal was rescued by the police department secretary, after he had lay the dog left the scene and his patient recovered.

Court

R. Parks of Carrollton, pleaded guilty to a charge of having no brakes on his machine, when he appeared in police court on Monday morning. He was fined $10 and $2.25 costs. In default means ten days in jail. Parks also failed to produced his operators permit. Magistrate Butler assessed him $4.25 and enlarged the case until January 28th, when Parks is to appear with a 1937 driver's license. Default on the latter means seven days in county jail.

Thomas W. MacDougall, paid $7.25 for driving a motor vehicle without 1937 markers and $4.25 for failing to produce a 1937 operator's permit. MacDougall is a farmer on the Front Stirling.

Nelson Reid pleaded guilty to driving a motor vehicle without 1937 markers and failing to produce a permit. Fine in each case assessed $7.25.

Charlie Robb of Sloco, pleaded guilty to a charge of obtaining food and lodging from a Dundas street rooming house on November 21, 1936, to the amount of $5.00 and departing without paying same. The Magistrate imposed a one month suspended sentence on condition restitution is made within the thirty days. Failing to pay the bill Robb will spend one month in Belleville jail.

Russell Sedore of Tweed, must make restitution of $11.75 to a Dundas street rooming house within three months or spend three months in common jail. Sedore offered a plea of guilty to a charge of obtaining board and lodging to the amount of $11.75 and departing without settling for same. Sedore appeared before the Magistrate on December 8th., 1936, information revealed.

Frederick Hall also of Tweed, appearing on a similar charge as Sedore, on December 7, pleaded guilty and was given one month to three months in jail. Hall however, made his hasty exit on July 31st. 1936, the Crown said. A penalty of three months in jail was imposed if Trudeau does not pay.

Two more charges of reckless driving against Ernest Clarke, was granted a one week enlargement. The two charges of breaking the Highway Traffic Act.

Kenneth Bell paid $7.25 for speeding and Moe Cramer of Kingston settled his case of speeding for $7.25.

Burton Macmillan of Stirling, pleaded guilty to operating motor 1937 markers on his car and operating the vehicle without an operator's license for the current year. On the former charge Macmillan was fined $2.25, and ten days default, while a penalty of $12.25 or seven days in jail was imposed on the latter. Donald Cain was fined the sum of $7.25 for speeding and failing to produce now licenses.

Cellar Team Night In N.H.L. As Amerks Swamp Leafs 6-3 And Hawks Shutout Rangers

Boston Bruins' Help When Marcoux Beaten By 2-1

4 GOALS IN THIRD

Americans Simply Fly Against Leafs in New York

(By A. E. Fulford)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Those American ave in again! Pushed smartly behind the eight ball by hockeyistic experts, the erratic New Yorker's have moved out with another three to four-point staple Leaf playoff hopes. From now they may as well be counted in as a member of the family with possibilities for a shot at Lord Stanley's ring.

The latest show of strength from Red Dutton's team came last night when they whipped Leafs 6-3 in New York, soaring four pads in a thrilling six-goal third period. They drove to within three points of Leafs' last Tuesday Smythe's men have the advantage of having played two games less than Amerks.

It was a cellar team night in both sections of the National League. While Amerks were whipping Toronto before only 8,000 in New York, Black Hawks shut out New York Rangers 3-0 in Chicago before only 5,000. It was the second time recently that Hawks won a home game before a large turnout of fans. They don't seem to be able to go anywhere when the rink is jammed.

Hawks' seventh victory of a disastrous season left them still nine points behind Rangers and Boston Bruins who clawed into a tie with Rangers for second place in the American Division by trimming Maroons 2-1 in Boston last night before another crowd of 5,000.

Sweeney Schriner and Art Chapman swung back into form in the game against Leafs. The American sharpshooters each got two goals and three assists, bringing Schriner up to second place in the scoring lists, two points behind Larry Aurie of Detroit. Chapman's colleague told Harvey Jackson of Toronto for fifth spot.

Break in Third

The break of the game came in the third period with the score tied 3-3. Dick Kerr was penalized for tripping and Chapman and Schriner rapped in goals, while he was off. Toronto forged ahead once then but their wild thrusts got them only one goal, through Joe Primeau, while Schriner and Carr tallied for the New Yorkers.

Chapman had given Amerks a lead in the first period and when Schriner made it two-nil in the second Allan Shields put the New Yorkers ahead. Sweeney Schriner's goal in the second minute of the final period put the game for the American rush is a win.

In the second period Harvey Jackson beat Lorne Chabot on a penalty shot but the officials ruled he had carried the puck out of the circle before shooting and it was not allowed.

Glenn Brydson, prominent lately in the little scoring Hawks have done, scored the only goal as Hawks against Rangers in the opening period, taking a pass from Pete Palangio to beat Dave Kerr. Rookie Harold Jackson got the second goal, his first in the Majors, late in the third period on a double-pass play with Wilf Starchuk and Johnny Gottselig.

Red Beattie was the hero of the Boston win over Maroons, He bagged goals in the first and second period to give Bruins a lead, that a third period rush by Tommy Gorman's team couldn't overcome. Dit Clapham scored Tiny Thompson's shutout by beating the Boston netminder with a close-in shot in the final period.

New York, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Brooklyn Dodgers apparently have seen by the papers that their ace pitcher, Van Mungo, insists on a pay increase this year. The club announced today the big right-hander's 1937 contract will call for a salary higher than he received a year ago.

Whether the terms have been boosted to meet the $1,500 or $2,500 increase Mungo has been reported as seeking is not known. The Dodgers said only that "many players received increases" in the club's mailed contracts, that Mungo was one of them.

The temperamental fireballer was supposed to have received $12,500 in 1936. The rumors are he wants at least $14,000 — maybe $15,000.

Contracts for the veteran Heinie Manush and the 1936 American Association slugger, Jack Wilmot, also arrived in the Daffy Dodgers' office safe.

If you don't think Trader Horns-by came out on top again in that three-for-three deal with the Indians, the record books should change your mind. And if they don't, listen to Hornsby's latest: "The Browns will surprise you with their finish in the first division."

Hornsby got Joe Vosmik, who has shown plenty of class in his seven years in the big time, and the records show he has a poor season every third year, which may explain that 1936 performance. Also he was head and shoulders over Mel Harder in fielding. In Billy Knickerbocker, Hornsby gets a 30-year-old veteran, compared to Sigafoing Ivy Lary at 31. And if the Ralph can't lay his hand and arm on his defensive work, then he's been slipping lately.

Sports Roundup

New York, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Dan Kenoyden Bible has written a book of football miracles in his day, but never one to equal this in the history of sports in Texas . . . He told the University of Texas regents he preferred Bible's coaching to a football team for less than five years. They gave Bible, then a 19-year contract, and then he made them wait for an answer. . . .

Add shrewd moves: Billy Jurges, Cubs shortstop, to Red Sox outfield. . . . Billy decided speedily to buy a home over there . . . Only trouble was he couldn't very well commute between Brooklyn and Chicago in the summer. . . . So he went to "Buzzy" Grimes, the new Brooklyn manager, and made him an offer to rent the house in summer . . . "Buzzy", who naturally isn't very sure of settling down for good in Brooklyn, accepted . . . There's never much room out on that well known limb, what with us sports guys popping off all the time, and now it's crowded more than ever. . . . This time hockey managers are out there. . . . They've all, with one exception, picked the Detroit Red Wings to win the Stanley Cup this year.

Leo Diegel says his friendship with the Duke of Windsor was responsible for the British letting the golf pros use the front door at Wembley says he walked up to the front door at St. Andrews and was stopped . . . Then, says Leo, he protested violently, and so did the prince. . . . Finally he was allowed to go in. . . . The Press took up the incident and it did much to break down the discrimination.

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

When the Belleville intermediates stepped into Trenton and downed the homesters 6 to 1 on Wednesday night the result of that game cast a definite reflection on tonight's Redmen-Fliers game at the Arena. Sure enough the Aviators soundly trounced the local intermediate squad two days ago, but the locals have been practicing faithfully ever since in hopes of wiping off that second period blotch, when the "Fliers" scored eight goals. Even the Carling-Kelly-coached R.C.A.F. team failed much respect for the Belleville team. That it not been for that second period slump, when we scored most of our goals and when the red shirts were short-handed, there would have been a far different tale to tell," pointed out Coach Kelly today.

As the group standing ready tonight, the Fliers have won two and lost one, while the Themenites have won two and lost one. Now here's the situation for tonight: If the Red Redmen topple over the Fliers, the Belleville team will hold the league the group standing with three victories and only one defeat against two wins and two defeats and a defeat if they lose tonight. Of course the O.H.A. officials will decide on the Peter will win over Trenton in the Lifteck City thing and thereby having only one loss again them. It begins to look as though the latter will soon spend the Fliers' before they are able to stand on the ice. Here's hope it will fall upon the shoulders of the Redmen to win the Belle trick tonight. Who knows?

After taking in the recent Peterboro-Flier game the Belleville correspondent is free to secret in the following sport note penned by him. He says: "Why didn't Joe Primeau let it get out of hand. Wouldn't have taken much to start the fireworks. But then again Referee Smith plenty. We take a back seat to nobody when it comes to going after crooked or incompetent officials, but Referee Smith could be blamed for anything except letting them get away with murder. He started failing to check 'em. He permitted a rough, tough, hard-hitting style everything going, and it doggone near put a stop of control. He missed some, but who doesn't? We will go on record as saying that we'd like a referee in the next five Fliers-Petes' games this season will keep his eyes open and his whistle from cropping up regularly— and don't we mean more than one flat right between 'em yet!"

In their two games of O.H.A. hockey this week the Fliers have scored 15 goals, the against nine scored against them. Bill Carling, Fliers' star defence marksman in the matter of goals has been allowing only one lead in the two games, an average of about five per game.

Yesterday's senior interscholastic hockey game, between the Belleville Collegiate and Albert College, postponed, the Arena management saving the ice for tonight. This evening Frank Cunningham's O.A.D. charges are scheduled for a play of Quinte group school game in Napanee, while four games of interscholastic basketball are being played at the Collegiate this afternoon.

"Cap" Bolsom, local veteran carrier has gone to Bobcaygeon for the annual beagling. Although there is an absence of curling in Belleville the veteran "Cap" always manages to get across to a few of the "spiels" and enjoy "sweeping 'em down." Incidently there have been rumors about regarding the possible return of the curling rink to Belleville. It seems the local Lawn Bowling Club and the curling rink officers are seriously considering the erection of a curling rink on the ground with their lawn bowling club, which won't be a bad idea, as it would bring the club into an all-year-around organization. Of course if the project ever reaches the stage of rumour ever reaches the stage of realization, it will not be until the members here are financially prepared to meet the venture.

As Walter Winchell would say— "PLEASE!!!

BRIG. TOMKINSON, DIES IN LONDON

Manager of King's Racing And Breeding Stables Since 1932

London, Jan. 22—(AP)—Brigadier H. A. Tomkinson, manager of the king's racing and breeding stables since 1932, died here yesterday.

During the reign of King George V, who died a year ago Wednesday, Brigadier Tomkinson had an annual bet with City Philip Unlocke, the late king's sailing master.

The wager—of a half crown (approximately 62 cents)—was that the royal horses would win more races than the royal yacht Britannia.

MAROONED ON GREAT LAKES ISLAND TO HERD MOOSE

Engaged in conservation work and moose herding for the national park and province, 115 men and women are marooned on bleak Isle Royale, in Lake Superior, separated from the Canadian mainland by 14 miles of shifting ice floes and from the Michigan mainland by 53 miles of stormy water. The islanders' work, gathering and burning fuel, which provides a fire hazard, can be done safely only in winter. And the herding of the moose is done in winter because during this season the moose congregate quietly in herds and are easily corralled. The only contacts the island has with the outside world are the short-wave radio and hourly the aeroplane. One of the photos in the shows boys unloading wood before the door of the camp hospital. The other is of Mrs. George Blair (left) and Mrs. Harry Nichols, the only two women on the island.

FOXBORO

Foxboro—A very large and enthusiastic gathering was held in the United Church, Foxboro, last week when the men at the Annual Congregational meeting gave an Oyster Supper. The meeting was presided over by Rev. T. Horton who welcomed the large number out, and very encouraging reports were given by the Secretaries of the various departments of work.

One of the most successful entertainments in connection with the Young People's work was presented on Friday evening in the form of an Amateur Night. Young People's Societies from Canniffton, Marsh Hill, Holloway, Wallbridge, Carmel were well represented and each provided a program of fifteen minutes. Rev. Mr. Horton welcomed the gathering to the Public School which was packed to overflowing and introduced the Master of Ceremonies, Mr. Revell, Smith of Belleville. Mr. Smith kept the large audience convulsed with laughter from beginning to end, with his remarkable sense of humor and brought applause from the crowd, as he made the program a more interesting one. Mrs. F. Wallbridge, President of the Young People's Society at Foxboro, presented the prizes to the successful contestants. The fortunate one being Miss Mary Carter of Holloway for her singing and the quartette from Marsh Hill for their musical number. She also on behalf of the Young People's Society presented Mr. Revell with a gift in appreciation of his splendid service.

Lunch of sandwiches, cake, tarts and coffee was served. Proceeds $60.00.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parks of Hay Bay were guests on Sunday evening of Plainfield and Miss Jean Sills of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Sills.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parks of Hay Bay were guests on Sunday evening of their uncle, the late Mr. John Fox.

Mr. Gibson Hodgen of Belleville was a dinner hour guest on Wednesday of Mr. W. Hodgen's.

Mr. Dave Lewis of Belleville visited at Mr. H. Stewart's on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Finkle and Barbara had dinner on Friday at Mr. Frank Finkle's, Chatterton.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sills of Zion were supper on Saturday at Mr. J. G. Sills.

Miss Hazel Curry of Wooler is staying for a time with Mrs. L. Bongard.

Mr. Harry Scott entertained his brother over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Finkle and Barbara had supper on Friday at Mr. W. Hodgen's.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Sills attended the funeral of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Hamilton on Monday.

Sacramental Services were observed in the Union Church on Sunday evening, when Rev. Horton delivered an instructive address.

League was well attended Monday evening and was opened with bible reading by Mrs. Wesley Sills with Mr. and prayer by Rev. Horton. Scripture lesson was read in unison. Hymn 230 was sung and Mrs. Wesley Sills responded to with a verse of Scripture starting with the letter "M." Minutes were read and some items of business discussed, and it was decided to increase the League offerings by one-fifth making a sum of $31.20 for Missionary purposes. Lesson was read by Mr. Carmen Dafoe and the topic given by Mr. Roger Hollinger at Sermon was excellent thoughts on Temperance and other evils of the day. Hymn 36 was sung and the meeting closed by the Benediction.

WOMEN WHO SUFFER

WOMEN who suffer from functional disturbances often pay a heavy penalty in wearing this gag of suffering and silly pride. Painful periods are nature's warning that something is wrong and needs immediate attention. Cramps are as well as women in middle-life are often relieved by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Mrs. Ethel Hall, 1 Bridge St., Brookfield (east), Nova Scotia, described tonic. Read what Mrs. John Roth, Route 4, Exeter, Ont., said: "I lost weight, suffered from headaches and my nerves were in terrible shape. I felt so tired I could hardly do my housework. I was almost discouraged when I started Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and in a few weeks I was feeling fine again." New size, tabs. 50c. Buy now!

Marmora and District

Marmora—The annual meeting of the Marmora Public Library Board took place in the Library on Wednesday evening, with president Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth in the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were very read by Miss M. Savage, Secretary and the business regarding distribution of books to teachers of Township schools in 1936 was discussed. FOXBORO

Foxboro—A very large and enthusiastic gathering was held in the United Church, Foxboro, last week when the men at the Annual Congregational meeting gave an Oyster Supper. The meeting was presided over by Rev. T. Horton who welcomed the large number out, and very encouraging reports were given by the Secretaries of the various departments of work.

One of the most successful entertainments in connection with the Young People's work was presented on Friday evening in the form of an Amateur Night. Young People's Societies from Canniffton, Marsh Hill, Holloway, Wallbridge, Carmel were well represented and each provided a program of fifteen minutes. Rev. Mr. Horton welcomed the gathering to the Public School which was packed to overflowing and introduced the Master of Ceremonies, Mr. Revell, Smith of Belleville. Mr. Smith kept the large audience convulsed with laughter from beginning to end, with his remarkable sense of humor and brought applause from the crowd, as he made the program a more interesting one. Mrs. F. Wallbridge, President of the Young People's Society at Foxboro, presented the prizes to the successful contestants. The fortunate one being Miss Mary Carter of Holloway for her singing and the quartette from Marsh Hill for their musical number. She also on behalf of the Young People's Society presented Mr. Revell with a gift in appreciation of his splendid service.

Lunch of sandwiches, cake, tarts and coffee was served. Proceeds $60.00.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Minutes were read and some items of business discussed, and it was decided to increase the League offerings by one-fifth making a sum of $31.20 for Missionary purposes. Lesson was read by Mr. Carmen Dafoe and the topic given by Mr. Roger Hollinger at Sermon was excellent thoughts on Temperance and other evils of the day. Hymn 36 was sung and the meeting closed by the Benediction.

WOMEN WHO SUFFER

WOMEN who suffer from functional disturbances often pay a heavy penalty in wearing this gag of suffering and silly pride. Painful periods are nature's warning that something is wrong and needs immediate attention. Cramps are as well as women in middle-life are often relieved by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Mrs. Ethel Hall, 1 Bridge St., Brookfield (east), Nova Scotia, described tonic. Read what Mrs. John Roth, Route 4, Exeter, Ont., said: "I lost weight, suffered from headaches and my nerves were in terrible shape. I felt so tired I could hardly do my housework. I was almost discouraged when I started Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and in a few weeks I was feeling fine again." New size, tabs. 50c. Buy now!

CAUSE OF FIRE SUBJECT OF SUIT

Civil Engineer States His Belief Collapse of Wall Responsible

Chicago, Jan. 22—(AP)—Testifying in the $2,000,000 damage suit of the Hiram Walker and Sons Distillery, D. B. Rush of Chicago, a civil engineer, said the Federal Court yesterday he believed a wall collapsed and caused the fire which destroyed warehouse No. 3 of the Distillery at Peoria, Ill., July 22, 1935.

Twelve defendant insurance companies, defendants in the suit, contended they are not liable on the ground the fire was caused by collapse of a wall. Counsel for the distillery attributed the blaze to an explosion.

Rush, who inspected the warehouse site after the fire, was called by the defence. He said in his opinion destruction of the building was caused by "movement of Posts, causing the structure to lean in a westerly direction."

The resultant pressure, he said, caused the brick wall to collapse and that ignited the contents or the whisky tanks.

HYDRO FOLLOWS

Lost on Division

"Whitney say, aside the courts escape where the Attorney General permitted, action," said Roebuck. "Does it lie in the mouths of those who profess to be his followers today to talk about setting aside the court."

HYDRO to have Mr. Roebuck ruled out of order failed on a 58 to 13 division. Mr. Henry and his followers protested he was discussing a matter now in the courts. Mr. Roebuck said he was discussing Hydro and Speaker Herman Ellpal upheld him. Conservatives protested the ruling and lost on division.

Mr. Roebuck continued the court had passed on the justice of the 1929 legislation outlawing the Gordon power contracts. They had ruled against Ontario on constitutional grounds, "a technical procedure."

The Legislature was being asked to re-affirm and make possible of performance what it decreed in 1933, he said.

Mr. Roebuck charged the Conservative opposition with being tied in an interlocking way to financial interests trying to strangle the people of the province."

Oh a Speaker's ruling Mr. Roebuck had to withdraw the statement so far as it pertained to any member of the Legislature.

Four New Bills

Two Hydro bills, introduced in the Ontario Legislature yesterday, supplemented one introduced previously to nullify effect of judgments against the commission in connection with power contracts declared invalid by the Legislature.

First of two bills outlined an act to amend the Privy Council Appeals Act. Provided:

1 Provisions of the Appeals Act with respect to posting bonds for appeals shall not apply to any appeal heretofore or hereafter taken by His Majesty to the Privy Council of the Province, by any minister for the Province, or by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

2 Any moneys already paid in by Hydro for such appeal shall be returned on production of a certified copy of this Act, to the secretariat of the Supreme Court.

3 Payment out of court of such moneys shall be a condition precedent to any appeal.

Second of the two bills was entitled an act to declare the meaning of subsection 4 of section 8 of the Power Commission Act. It provided:

1 Meaning and effect of the section is and always has been that without the consent of the Attorney General no action of any kind whatsoever shall be brought against the Hydro Commission.

2 No action shall be brought against any member of the Commission for anything done or omitted by him in exercise of his office, without consent of the Attorney-General.

CINCINNATI

when an earthen dike on the Scioto, an Ohio River tributary, showed alarming seepage.

Ohio National Guardsmen brought 1,000 men to the dike where refugees found shelter in schoolhouses, private homes, garages and outbuildings. The State Highway Patrol kept in contact with them by portable radios.

In the heart of the flooded section, huge levees were reinforced with sandbags. Company pumps throbbed with the struggle to keep water from valuable property.

The Wheeling Steel Company's sheet, tin mills, rig fabricating plo yees either were marooned in the plants or were unable to reach it from their homes.

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 22.—(AP)— River-mounting waters threatened a major flood catastrophe in the Ohio Valley today.

Upwards of 50,000 already had been driven from their homes by 15,000 in Cincinnati district, and hundreds of homes of cities and hamlets bordering the swollen river from Pittsburgh to Cairo, Ill.

Damage was mounting into uncalculated millions. There were at least two deaths in the Cincinnati area.

Portsmouth was the hardest. Water pouring over its 60 foot flood wall for the first time since 1913, from the Ohio and Scioto rivers, broke in earthen dikes along the Scioto River rounded rapidly in the business district.

Thirteen thousand persons had evacuated their homes.

The city prepared for a week's flood siege. Its high water mark at least 15,000 men and women out of west Virginia.

LONDON LIFE CO. SHOWS GROWTH

London, January 22.—The London Life annual report, which probably awaited with interest, was presented yesterday at the shareholders' and policyholders' by the President, J. Edgar Jeffery, K.C. It was the Company's 32nd annual meeting and the account of the year's work revealed outstanding results in every department.

Howard E. Wood, Vice-President and Managing Director, analyzed the statement in considerable length and summed up by saying: "The results of the year on all branches of the business operated in a manner that the operations of the Company are highly profitable. That the policyholders' interests are fully safeguarded and the investments justified in viewing the future with assurance that the Company's progress and prosperity will continue, caution to all whose interests are involved in its welfare."

The total amount of insurance in force increased by $30,611,152 reaching the substantial figure of $541,417,397 net. The new insurance purchased from the London Life during 1936 was $95,982,927, exclusive of increases and re-insurance, which was increase of approximately 19 per cent for the year.

The Company's assets for the year increased by $5,540,430 that at the end of 1936 and now amounting to $106,010,197. Recognizing the necessity of increased vigilance concerning the security of all holdings during a period of gradually declining interest rates, the policy of vital importance in the administration of institutions of trustee nature, the London Life has continued its rigid pruning of investments and holdings out of investment and policy reserves. Substantial additions were made to the general investment reserves to take care of possible losses and depreciation. The reserve was increased by approximately half a million dollars and a gain of $1,012,557, while the total of all surplus funds to which are added the contingency segments, excluding dividend funds, is $13,717,417.

Other assets of the Company are invested in widely diversified securities. High-grade bonds and debentures, chiefly Government and Municipal, form better up 39 per cent of the total. The mortgage investments are 29 per cent. Policy loans and liens are 6 per cent while stocks, real estate, including the Company's head office and its collaneous items, make up the balance of 7 per cent. Cash on hand and interest earned on the invested assets was $3,229,000.

The London Life which was founded in 1874 commemorates this year the Diamond Jubilee of the establishing of its Industrial branch.

Col. W.N. Ponton, K.C. Enters 83rd Year, Still Active in Law

Col. W. N. Ponton K C. is today receiving salutations and congratulations upon attaining the 83rd anniversary of his birth. Col. Ponton is enjoying good health and today was quite active in his office while conducting his business and personal affairs. Col. Ponton was born on Jan. 22nd 1855 and well known in the valley of the Don and also in this community, but continent-wide. He is still interested and active in Masonic circles but of late years devotes much of his private attention to his practice being the pioneer profession, law, and only yesterday had the distinction of having his client brought before the Bench on Osgoode Hall, where he was officially in attendance. We feel the and hope to be in harness for many years to come." commented the Ponton to the Ontario-Intelligencer, as this newspaper added its congratulations to the Colonel at noon.

TWO AIRPLANES BELIEVED LOST

Wild Storms Continue Round Northern Europe

London, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Two airplanes were missing over water today and the search was thoroughout most of northern Europe.

A newspaper plane, carrying a pilot and wireless operator, was feared lost over the English Channel with a cargo of London newspapers for delivery in Paris.

Two persons aboard a civil plane were unreported on a flight across the Irish Sea from Liverpool to Belfast. The plane made a round half day overdue on a flight which normally can be completed in several hours.

A third plane, also carrying newspapers, engine trouble over the English Channel and was forced to dump its half-ton freight into the sea in order to fight its way back to Lympne airport.

High winds, which battered coastal towns, were the cause of a private Stralsund from entering Plymouth harbor. A lifeboat was launched from Cawsen to reach the British trawler Strathberie which wirelessed for help in the North Sea.

Rumors carried on gale-force winds battered Scandinavian countries relentlessly after five days of continuous wild storms in the Thames river, whipped by winds and rain, overflowed its banks at Windsor Castle and Eton College.

DAILY SHORT STORY

The Fourth Time

By Edward P. Ehrich

When the prison gate clanged shut behind little Tony Scalzi he walked into Casino and found the cigar store.

He waited in the store for 18 minutes and was just starting to swear in soft, pal Italian profanity when Maria came in. The old man behind the counter watched them with their arms around each other and then without speaking step through the doorway into the one-splashed street.

Tony wasn't a bad kid. He was the chauffeur for the mob. He drove his cab for them, but that wasn't the reason he'd been picked up three times. That happened simply because of a habit he could not break. Carrying a gun, to Tony, was as necessary as carrying a compact was to Maria. He'd always loved and adored and would probably marry.

"When you reform and start runnin' around with decent people," Maria had said.

For two weeks he didn't look up the born, and when he did he told them and they understood all right.

"I just get out, Louie. You know how it is? Nervous. I need a rest a little while. And my pocket. They watch me very close now, and the next time—she's the fourth. The Boss he can't do much, the next time."

And he left his gun home and worked hard. But it was bound to happen.

Tony came in at the late shift at dawn and at ten his landlady was knocking at the door. Maria was on the wire. Would he drive her up to the Bronx that afternoon? Her aunt was sick. Please, Tony.

Another hour and another knock, Louis, this time.

"Can you, Tony?"

"Before you even speak, Louis, I say no. I am still too nervous, I tell you."

Louis had said, "Okay, Tony. But you're kickin' five hundred bucks outta bed. Guaranteed—win, lose, or draw."

"You're kiddin', Louis. On the

Ahead of him another driver had swerved to pass a laundry wagon, horse drawn, plodding near the curb. Bearing down on the cab from the opposite direction came a private car, fast. The cab driver swung to his right—but too soon. His cab careened along the side of a laundry wagon and skidded on, into the horse. The animal reared and went down, a tangle of harness and jagged, splintered shafts, one leg crumpling under him.

Tony managed to stop his cab a long-side the wreck and Maria was pounding him on the back. "Tony—Tony! Do something! Do something!"

A small crowd gathered and Tony looked through it wildly for a cop. Do something! He could do something. He could put the animal out of its pain, but—Mama mia! How could he explain what he was doing with a gun?

"Tony—Tony! I can't stand it! Do something—"

And suddenly, as the horse screamed again, Tony couldn't stand it, either. His eyes missed the figure of the cop pushing through the crowd, his revolver out of its holster, because Tony was looking along the stubby barrel of his own gun. The report was so loud that for a second he was startled. But as he slid his gun quickly into his pocket he looked up and saw the cop's gun smoking in his hand, and he understood. The horse was quiet, now. Get out of here and get out quick. If there are two bullet holes in that horse the cop'll get wise. And the cop was bending over, making sure of death.

Tony threw out his clutch and ground the gear into first just as the cop straightened up and looked around. He yelled at Tony, and suddenly the little Italian's gun was burning a hole in his hand. He stopped on the brake as the cop came over. It was all over, and Santa Maria! Was one lucky! Capturing Tony Scalzi, carrying a gun, and for the fourth time... It wouldn't make any difference that it was an accident; that he, Tony, tripped himself through an act of mercy. Or that he couldn't do the last job for Louie. Now with Maria wise to the gun. The red face of the officer was close to the windshield.

"Listen, bum," the cop said. "What's the idea?"

Tony shook his head. In his mirror he could see the white face of Maria back in the corner of the cab. Well, she was free to marry a respectable kind, now.

"You guys," the cop was saying. "Always pullin' up an' blockin' traffic. Are you gonna scram outta here—or d'you want a ticket?"

"WINGS OF LOVE"

(The Love Story of a Sky-Pirate and Girl Who Planned on a Fifty-Fifty Financial System that Almost Wrecked Their Happiness)

By Janet Doran

"I'll dare to buy something for the apartment, now," she planned in sleepy happiness, forgetting the wonder, for the first time, about Sky; on his night journey through the chasm of unknown, the stars and some deep chains, and perhaps a demon rage.

She was up 10 minutes earlier, despite the fact that she hadn't gone to sleep until well after one the night before. She took time to hang her new wave gown away on a ribboned hanger, far in the back of the closet, and to put the new silver slippers away in their box, on a high shelf.

Coffee, and toasted rolls composed the hasty breakfast that always sufficed, when Sky was not there, to necessitate a heartier fare, and Susanne was off to work a half hour earlier, in the hope that she'd have time to open a few windows for the things she planned to buy for their living room. Things that would take away some of that shabby, harsh contrast that struck her, when she entered her living room, after hours spent in the luxurious, exquisite surroundings of the Meadowvale Country Club.

She found a Chinese rug, taupe-beige, with matching chairs, in a soft, drab blue mohair, the[se] thing, but the price tag frightened her. Such piece of the set cost more than she had planned to spend on the entire ensemble!

But a hasty tour of the shops during her lunch-hour, and she came back determined to buy the set regardless of its price. It was the only thing that suited her. And it was the rug that was a perfect mate for the set that could be saved for a slight option payment.

Susanne was afraid to face Sky, after ordering the things delivered for that evening, early. Never before had she dared do anything without first talking it over with him. It was part of their Dutch-treat pact.

Sky was delayed, and Susanne had the new set arranged, and in proper place, and was well along with dinner, when his key turned in the door.

She took to greet him, a rapture of happiness over his safe return blotting out the fear of his disapproval over the newly bought furnishings.

"Darling," she whispered against his cool face, and noticed his lips. "I'm so glad you're home again!"

"Missed me a little, huh?" Sky laughed grimly. He warmed himself gaily ahead of him, through the door, and into the room.

"Words," Susanne confessed.

"What's this?" his eyes fastened on the luxurious new divan, the deep, rich chairs, and he whistled softly. "Cosh—as a rich relation thing? How come, Suzie?"

Susanne breathed him into the bath-room.

"Watch," she ordered firmly, "and tell. Then we talk!"

"Now," Sky said finally, when they had finished eating, and she had hurried, stumbling and breathless, and often incoherent over her explanation, "let's hear the worst. How much did they cost, Susanne?"

Her heart sank somewhat over the proud achievement from her somber eyes, and fear crowded close to the surface, as she looked worriedly at his sober, anxious face, knowing the thing was to[o] dear.

"Not . . . not nearly what they're worth," she began falsely, and then she started at the rash, sharp rasp of the match he lighted his cigarette with. "You're no idea what a bargain they were, Sky."

"How much, Susanne?" he insisted quietly, and Susanne knew she could not evade him any longer.

"They—the," she began to name the price of each piece of the set, crazying silently, deep in her heart, that he wouldn't add the total, or guess that it was less than a third the total, "sixty-two dollars, Sky. They're worth ninety, easily!"

Sky tried, with all the struggle sort of defeated weariness, as he took out his wallet and carefully counted the contents.

"No luck," he said soberly, "not even enough to pay half my share, Suzie. But we'll do it in Installments. Here's ten and the boys'll wait. I can't have my girl feeling sor our nest single handed!"

Susanne drew a long, careful little breath that escaped being a sigh simply because it was so soft. He hadn't guessed! He hadn't counted that a set like that cost $220.00!

And let me in on things in the future, Old girl. Don't go buying any more new doo-dads for this bungar without remembering I'm co-pilot."

"Sky," Susanne began hastily, "there's a rug . . . it goes with the set . . ." she faltered before the set look she had come to recognize when it masked his face in grim, stubborn lines.

"No," he said firmly, "this buyout is slick, just as is. We can't go trying too high until we get some-thing ahead, Susanne!"

Susanne said nothing. But the vision of Amy Prentiss coming into the room, Amy, seeing that old frayed, worn, cheap rug, was stronger than Sky's ultimatum.

"I'll sell some more real estate," she planned quietly, "he can't complain if I earn the money myself. It's mine to spend as I wish!"

Unconsciously, she had come to a new resolution, and it ca[me] in due course along this strange road of financial independence, economic equality that they had set forth on blindly, unaware of the pitfalls, the steep grades, sharp turns, and detours it would offer.

CHAPTER 12

POLITICS AND PRUNES

Amy Prentiss offered to take Susanne to her own pet shop to look for a sports suit, when they met for luncheon next day.

"I've got to buy some outdoor pay clothes," Susanne confided, "and everything I see that's fit to wear is so far out of reach my pocket-book would have to be India rubber, to approach it." She discovered a return of appetite, when the waiter brought the clear broth, and fish cakes, and wondered, absently, why she had never tried a really decent place to lunch before.

"Let me show you my shopping haunts," Amy laughed, "at least they're priced within reason."

When the checks came, Susanne paid hers, vigorously denying Amy treat [in]sistence, and the bond between them was strengthened.

"This is the first time," Amy confessed [so]rrowfully, "I ever had a Dutch-treat luncheon with anyone, and I must say it has its charms."

"Of course it has," Susanne agreed, I'm even married on the principle. My husband has a good job, but not good enough to support a wife in the [m]anner he took me by, with budgeting and scrimping. My job was the same, until I got a chance to sell real estate. So I know the value of Dutch-treat, social relations."

"And," Amy said shrewdly, "it bars the gold-diggers and chiselers. Here's my place. The woman was once a great beauty, and richer than Croesus but her husband . . . ex-husband, that is . . . gambled it in the dark, and lost it all, but she keeps this shop."

Susanne hadn't meant to buy a thing but the suit, but when she and Amy finally left, she had two bottles of perfume, a pair of English sport shoes, a silk and taffeta[-]linen dress, and a bolero pull-ons, besides the lavender wool suit. Altogether, it had taken all of the money left over from the Cake Forsaken commission, that she had intended hoarding.

"But," she told herself firmly, "it's an investment, I can't very well go with that crowd, and dress like a poor relation! And once I get caught up on clothes, and things, I can save."

They played two rounds of golf, using Amy's clubs, and Susanne made such a good showing, she decided to follow her friend's advice and buy a set of matched clubs.

"But, I'll have to do a lot of extra selling, or else spend some of my time in golf," Susanne told Amy.

"Aunt Harriet is going to buy that place." Amy surprised her by saying, "when my aunt finds fault with anything as much as she did with that Westchester place, I can tell she's going to send the price down with shrewd Yankee ertillery, clan."

"If she does . . ." Susanne said hopefully.

"I'll stop her," Amy laughed, hoking out neatly, and starting back to the clubhouse. "and literally, that's my advice. The more opposition Aunt Harriet meets with the more triumphant she feels after she's grabbed off the prize."

Black as Pete, at last before closing time, Dick Hale stopped Susanne, with a wave of his driver.

"You've made some amazing progress the past few weeks, Mrs. Nichols," he began, "and it occurred to us that perhaps you'd like a permanent selling job."

"Oh, no," Susanne protested hastily "no thank you, Mr. Hale. I'm not nearly successful enough, sure enough of myself, yet, to dare risk going on straight commission. I . . . I'd much rather keep on as I am."

He stared at her curiously, and fingered a cigarette in baffled

CANADIAN DEPARTMENT STORES LIMITED

"Aren't you holding tight to a small, part-time salary, and passing up some pretty fat commissions, that way?" he argued, finally.

"Not when I'm sure of the commissions," Susanne insisted, "I've got a home to run, and I need the security of that regular weekly paycheck to keep me going. This . . . this may be just a flash in the pan, seasonal pick-up, and things may slither down to very few and far between sales. I . . . wouldn't have started the whole thing, unless I'd been sure of my regular job too, Mr. Hale."

"Your affair, Mrs. Nichols. You're the boss. But your sales sheet for the past month was better than Johnny Goodman's ever was, and it topped Larkin's by quite a margin. Larkin would quit his job cold the minute I suggested putting him on part-time office routine!"

"I'm not—Larkin," Susanne said quietly, "and I'd rather work my way for a while, Mr. Hale. Thank you, just the same."

"Thank you for moving some of our worst white elephants, Mrs. Nichols," Dick Hale retorted smilingly, "We've put a block of diamonds—city property in your files today, and let's see how you get along outside the Social Register!"

Susanne glanced through the new file before leaving, and with the properties fixed in her mind, started home. She was going to stop at the furniture shop and make a deposit to hold the rug.

Aaron Kirstein, the furniture dealer was visibly apologetic. He was so sorry. Nichols about holding the rug, he had not known there would be a demand for it, a cash demand for it. Because she was buying the divan from him, however, he had held it, to give her a chance to take up her option.

"I'll take it," Susanne decided quickly. She had to. What else was there to do? The rug simply belonged with her set. And the other buyer was offering cash. She had to meet that offer.

"But I know Sky will be furious," she added to herself. Then, while Mr. Kirstein was zealously planning an immediate delivery of the rug to her apartment, Suzanne saw the block directly across the street, and it clicked in her mind.

That was the new block listed in her development business files. The business block Mr. Hale had suggested she try her selling on. "To see how you get along outside the Social Register," he had said.

Susanne studied the block thoughtfully. Observed the adjoining properties, flanking either side of it.

"You'll never regret it, Mrs. Nichols. It's a beautiful set," he said happily.

"No," Susanne agreed. And then: "Who owns the block across the street, Mr. Kirstein? The one with the cleaning establishment in the basement and first floor?"

"John Kruger," Kirstein explained, "he's going to lose his tenant, too. He thinks he can jump the rent on Otto Fleischer, because he runs a dry cleaning plant, and Otto's crying blue murder. Poor fellow. He's been chased out of every place he's rented for years, because everyone's afraid of fire and explosions."

Susanne smiled her thanks and crossed the street to Fleischer's establishment.

"Mr?" the little cleaner was shrill in his indignation, "I should spend thousands of dollars to buy a little two-by-four block? I should be so crazy! Ya!"

"It's cheaper than changing addresses every few months," Susanne argued, "and the way the banks finance it, the payments would be much less than rent. If you could give a substantial down payment."

"You're crazy," Otto assured her, and added, "how much down, maybe?"

"I haven't the exact figures. I'll bring them over tomorrow." She flashed him a warm smile, "but it would be doing John Kruger in. I'm trying to rent next to you."

"Krueer!" Fleischer's opaque eyes glittered. "Maybe it would drive him crazy, hah? I bet you he'd wish he hadn't tried to rob me with that bandit rent! I bet I'd show him . . . I . . . maybe I you come back tomorrow, hah?"

"If John Kruger doesn't stop me," Susanne said softly; playing her trump card recklessly, "you know if he heard you were even considering the purchase of that property, he'd buy it to stop you. A dry cleaning plant next door would naturally cut his rents badly."

"So!" Otto Fleischer rolled excitedly, "So he would stop me, hah! So he was Kaiser, maybe he buys the whole town, so I can't do business. My little business won't hurt his big business. Well . . . he drew a deep, gasping breath, and let it out slowly, "I'm not so poor as I look! I work hard, and always I save my money! How we see who is big boss, maybe."

Susanne waited, knowing gigantic revolutions of thought were exploding through his excited brain.

"Tomorrow, he told Susanne grimly, "I come to your office, and you draw me this paper. You tell how much I pay down."

HALT FEVERISH ARMING, BLUM ASKS HITLER

Premier Blum's Request Will Be Made Sunday; Peace Plea for Europe

Conciliatory Attitude, And Publication of Defence Budgets Asked

'UNITED FRONT' PLAN

Hitler May Reply in German Reichstag Saturday Next

Paris, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Premier Blum will ask Chancellor Hitler to halt Germany's "feverish" armament program as the first condition for economic assistance from France, authoritative sources said today.

The Socialist Premier will make his request tomorrow in a speech at Lyon when he will disclose pending plans for a France-German political and economic agreement.

Flanked by 16 cabinet ministers, Blum will lay down five stipulations for stabilizing the troubled European situation, informed sources predicted, may be answered by Hitler at the German Reichstag session six days later.

Proposals Expected

The proposals Blum is expected to include:

1. Cessation of the German rearmament program.

2. Adoption of a "conciliatory attitude" on Europe's principal problem as the price of church economic help.

3. Immediate publication of national defence budgets.

4. Publicity for arms programs followed by limitation and eventual reduction.

Address to All Nations

Blum's speech directed to all European nations will deal principally with a French request that Germany accept the Paris Government in restoring confidence of the continent, with a promise of a benevolent French attitude in economic matters, it was said.

The request for foreign policy declaration will be a public harangue organized by the popular front government in honor of the re-election of Andre Feirier as a member of the Chamber of Deputies.

Cabinet With Premier

The cabinet will accompany the Premier, together with delegates from all parties in the popular front.

Ministerial Council sessions have been called for Monday and Tuesday to discuss Premier Blum's speech with French and German diplomats representing hopes for increased economic co-operation.

The discussions are expected to be climaxed with direct conversations between French officials and Reichsbank Director Hjalmar Schacht early next month.

GANGRENE IN LIMBS FEARED

Pope Pius, However, Continues to Give Audiences to Delegates

Vatican City, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI was reported today by persons close to him to be threatened with the imminent danger of gangrene in his paralyzed left leg.

Dr. Amilcare Milani was said to be most worried by the development, which was attributed to the almost complete cessation of blood circulation in the Pontiff's leg.

Meanwhile the papal court were said to have expressed their alarm at the poor state of the Holy Father's heart action.

Despite his condition, the Pope insisted on being transferred to his portable divan for an audience with Cardinal Pacelli, Papal Secretary of State.

TEACHERS OF OLD PRAISED BY SECRETARY

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 23.—(CP)—More than fifty years' service to the province of the Guelph Separate School Board has been ended with the resignation of Frank Nunan, dean of the Guelph educational staff.

While loath to compare present methods of education with those of a half-century ago, Mr. Nunan declared today that "teachers of 50 years ago had a keen appreciation of the trend shown in the work of their pupils. Students in the highest class were allowed to follow the bent of their minds in those days." He felt this showed a more complete development of the students' individual capacities.

Formerly Trustees Elected at Meeting of Ratepayers

Toronto, Jan. 23 (CP)—Statute passed in 1936 requiring the election by ballot at regular municipal elections of school trustees in rural school sections where there are more than 200 electors will be repealed at the present session of the Ontario Legislature, it was learned today.

The statute operative for the first time at election held recently has brought protests from county councils. It was the first move in a plan to set up township school boards, long a controversial subject. Until the statute amending the Public School Act was passed in 1936 all rural school trustees were elected at meetings of the ratepayers by open ballot or by entries in a poll book, if a poll were demanded.

LAST OF QUADS HAS SLIM CHANCE

Every Known Medical Science Brought Into Play

Montreal, Jan. 23 (CP) — Marie Rita, last of the Rondeau tots who survived a five-way accoucheur at living quadruplets little more than 24 hours, still was given a slim chance for life today by doctors who brought all medical science's latest bag into use to keep her breathing.

Marie Rita, whose two brothers and one girl sister died within a hospital here, was in "not bad" condition, hospital staff members said today as she entered her third day of life.

They reported unchanged the condition of Donat A. Beaudry, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ulric Beaudry, their farmhouse birthplace at St. Thomas, of miles away. Donat had been given life's chance to survive injuries given him by his mother in a slow plow collided on the ice-crusted highway Thursday night.

Mrs. Beaudry, the mother still was the only nourishment being fed to Marie Rita, now at alone in a glass incubator after death separated in quick succession Friday morning the four prematurely-born children of Mrs. Arcade Rondeau.

Included in the list dead is of Joseph Gaston Andre, Joseph Alcide Alfred, and Marie Lise was the last to die. One by one yesterday morning they were carried from the incubator to the hospital morgue, where to which the accident had injured them was not known.

Pataraingale, Rumania, Jan. 23 (AP)—Seventy-three babies were born to Smaranda Radu, 37-year-old peasant woman. The mother and babies—three boys and one girl—were reported "all doing well."

41;500 Refugees From Cincinnati Shiver in Sub-Freezing Temperatures of Blizzard

Water 20 Ft. Above Flood Stage

Only Two Days of Food in Portsmouth, Ohio, Says Report From Suffering Upstream City

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Freezing weather, hunger and dwindling supplies of drinking water intensified the suffering of United States flood refugees today as the Red Cross launched a campaign for $2,000,000 to aid an estimated 270,000 homeless—or needy.

But the cold brought hope of surcease to the ravaged valley of the swollen Ohio river, most destructive of the swollen streams in the 13 states of the flood belt.

As the Pittsburgh confluence of the Ohio, Allegheny and Monongahela rivers their stage became about stationary and fears of a major flood disaster here were allayed. The Ohio crept up only fractionally after midnight at hard-hit Cincinnati and its crest was believed near.

Waters Rise Downriver

Downriver communities, however, were in the yellowed stream coursed toward the Mississippi River with its burden of unwonted winter ruin.

At least 190,000 were homeless and 17 dead in Indiana, Ohio and West Virginia—designated by the Red Cross as critical areas—and Kentucky, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Arkansas and Mississippi.

Cincinnati's estimated 41,500 refugees shivered in sub-freezing temperatures of a blizzard. Fifteen inches fell Friday, and more than 20 feet above flood stage and at the crest predicted by meteorologist W. C. Devereaux. He added it would "exceed all records" downstream to the Mississippi.

Flood Runs Short

Officials of the Cincinnati planning and electric light plants said these might survive a crest as high as 74 feet but citizens were advised to prepare for a possible drinking water shortage.

At Portsmouth, upstream Portsmouth, Ohio, had only enough food for two days. One was shot off in flooded parts of the city to forestall explosion, threats, police said. Fifteen feet, early today, or

TWO BOATHOUSES NEAR BAY BURNED

Three Boats, Tools, Tackle Property of Fred Isard, Destroyed

Fire of unknown origin sweeping through the wooden framework of the two boathouses situated between the buildings of the Carthage Machine Company and Allen's Coal Sheds, south of the C.P.R. tracks at the end of James Street, resulted in the total loss of the buildings and their contents shortly after eleven o'clock last night.

Three boats, a launch, a skiff, tools, clothing and fishing tackle were destroyed by the blaze which made rapid headway among the dry timbers of the buildings.

The boathouses were covered with tin, which plowed early and threw off an intense heat making salvage of the contents practically impossible. A few oars were saved from the flames. The boathouses were the property of Detective Fred Isard of the Belleville Police Force.

Fire Chief Thomas and James Peat said midnight but the rapidity with which the buildings burned and the intense heat prevented firemen from extinguishing the blaze before it got beyond control.

Painting of Mohawk Church Presented to Rev. A. L. Geen

Belleville Clergyman Often in Charge of Parish—Rev. H. Pringle, Rector is Painter—Priceless Altar, Communion Service and Other Treasures in All Saints' Church

Among the many gifts received by Rev. A. L. Geen (Sho-je-wa-nah) at Christmas was an oil painting of Christ Church (Mohawk). The subject of the picture was enough to make it interesting to Mr. Geen but the artistic work of the giver, Ocho-chi-ahoh, (Rev. H. Pringle) the present rector, it was more highly valued.

During the last sixty years Mr. Geen has been several times in charge of the parish. He frequently assists Mr. Pringle at Holy Communion service using the Queen Anne communion service which is situated on a high hill on the bank of Bay of Quinte (Canada) and can be seen from the highway. The present church (Christ Church) was built in 1843, as the old one, which was built near the cairn, and was made of logs, was too small for the congregation. This first church was built in 1784, the year of the landing.

It is significant of the religious nature of the Mohawks that they built the church before they built their homes. The wood work of the old church was used in the present one. The old log church were sold walnut, and were purchased by the congregation and removed in the time of Mr. Stanton. When the church was built in 1843 there was no village of Tyendinaga, but no chance! It was a square building.

On May 12, 1906, at 5.30 in the afternoon, the church was struck by lightning. At this time the church had a tall steeple, surmounted by the tower. The church was rebuilt in its present form in 1907, by Rev. Canon Cody, and Bishop Mills, April 28, 1907.

The first Mohawk rector was the Reverend Sallern Givins, 1830-1841. Reverend Givins was also a priest occasionally ministered to the people. After Mr. Givins left, Rev. Mr. Hill-Tout, Rev. Mr. Hall, Rev. Mr. Then the Rev. Thomas Stanton, 1896-1900. Rev. Mr. Bell, Rev. Mr. Baker, 1878-1880. Then Mr. Anderson, Rev. Mr. Hallam, after him came Rev. A. Grassett Smith, 1896-1901. Rev. A. J. Creegan was appointed in 1927. Rev. H. A. H. Pringle was appointed June 1927. Mr. Pringle is a Mohawk Church is walnut, and was in the Tyen.-Christ Church, 1784, as was tor).

also the Bishop's chair now in All Saints'. The altar at Christ Church was made by the Reliance Co. and put in the church after the fire.

The Queen Anne communion silver was given to the church of the Mohawks while they were still in Canada. 1713.

The altar cross is olive wood, inlaid with mother of pearl, and was brought by Mrs. Johnson, daughter of Dr. Cronkhiekeh, from Jerusalem. She carried it with her, being afraid something might happen to it, when she left Canada. The altar desk is also of olive wood. The desk is inscribed in Hebrew and was given by Bishop Gobat, from Jerusalem.

The prayer desk arms was given by King George III, but unfortunately was burned in the fire. Rev. Mr. Pringle wrote to the King, telling of his would replace it, and in a few months he came the one now hanging over the west door.

The font was put in when the church was re-built, and is the gift of the Guild in memory of Archdeacon Pringle's wife. The reading desk is in memory of his wife. The litany desk is in memory of Mrs. Pringle's mother, Mrs. Bo-we-nah, in cherished memory of his wife and his son, Lieut. Edgar, who fell in the Great War, and the African war, King George III gave the Creed, Ten Commandments and the Lord's Prayer, which hang over the gifts. On the memorial tablet the late Samuel Corby were the gifts. On the memorial tablet they are framed, and near the other memorial tablets.

ing; "they managed to obtain in this manner the vital mineral elements they needed for the protection and care of their teeth.

"Don't believe that you have to go home and eat nothing but raw foods, however. You need potatoes and meat and bread and butter, but you need also whole fruits and vegetables which have not had all the mineral boiled out of them. You need a little raw food too, vegetables and fruits. But there's nothing sillier than to see some one go on a completely raw diet in order to obtain what they think they need."

Eighty per cent of tooth decay is caused before the age of twenty years. There is only one kind of food that causes decay through an acid condition which develops when teeth are not carefully cleaned. This is the carbohydrate group, declared Dr. Thompson.

Dr. Thompson, who expects to leave Ottawa in a few months on a day during his three and one half day stay here in February, comes to Belleville and the Province of Ontario upon the invitation of Dr. Percy J. A. Faulkner, Ontario Minister of Health. He has travelled over the greater part of Canada on his mission of spreading the truth about dental hygiene to Canadians. Following his visit in Belleville he will spend one day in Trenton.

Dentists to Give Services For Two Days

The Canadian Dental Hygiene Council assisted Ontario at the request of the board of directors of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons and the public dental health committee of the Ontario Dental Association. Each of these three organizations will give liberally financial support. The services of the field secretary of the Canadian Dental Hygiene Council are also made available for this work.

Capable, trained speakers, who are authorities on preventive dentistry and allied subjects will be provided, and an endeavour will be made to bring this message in the province, in simple words, what dentists who have long been working on the subject of preventive dentistry have advised.

Diseased teeth, mouths and decayed teeth are frequently the cause of poor health and much suffering, and often death has been traced to carelessness and neglect of the teeth and mouth. It is not expected that preventive measures will take care of all the diseased teeth, but an endeavour is being made to bring home to the people the occurrence of diseased teeth in children and younger people.

The object of the campaign is to teach better health habits of the people through increased knowledge of diet, hygiene and the development of healthy teeth, with especial reference to the teeth. Good health and sound, correctly articulated teeth are important qualifications for the attainment of any sphere for the

DR. THOMPSON SPEAKS

Held Under Sponsorship of Hon. Dr. Faulkner And Dept. of Health

Preliminary to an intensive educational campaign on dental hygiene which will be carried on in Belleville and surrounding municipalities in this city during the week of February 15th, between the 14th and 20th by Dr. Harry S. Thompson, Field Secretary of the Canadian Dental Hygiene Council, under the auspices of the Ontario Dental Association, a meeting was held last night composed of local citizens and dentists, which formed an advisory committee to act in an initial meeting held in the Y.M. C.A. last evening at which Dr. Thompson was the guest speaker.

Acting upon the accepted theory that the health of the teeth, general health of residents of this city and district will show decided improvement if certain rules of dental hygiene are carried out. The same council elected to carry on the work throughout Canada.

The committee formed at last evening's meeting are as follows:

Hon. Chairman: Mayor N. D. Lynch.

Chairman: Dr. G. S. Cronk, Medical Officer of Health for the city.

Secretary: Miss Bessie Soular of the Victorian Order of Nurses, local branch.

Canada Leads in Health Campaign

Covering the complete field of dental hygiene in an address which was interspersed with numerous anecdotes of humor culled from his long years experience in the dental field of educational campaigning, Dr. Thompson was given an introduction by Mayor R. D. Arthur, chairman of the evening in which he stated that the body could be described is no other way than by the development of the fundamental laws of health. Rapidly the Dominion of Canada is the only country in the world," outlined Dr. Thompson.

Dental hygiene was one subject upon which many years of educational effort can be expended, he declared, owing to the prevalent misinformation on the matter in general. "Diseased teeth for example are not necessarily ones which have cavities. But on the other hand many diseases, including heart lesions, nephritis, nervous disorders, eye and ear trouble, dozens of other ailments can be traced to teeth that are diseased. People go to the dentist only when teeth hurt; they never think of going to him just for a quiet chat and examination."

"People don't even consider the tooth a part of the body. But when a tooth is decayed, or is decaying, it is well to remember that a pathological process is taking part in the body. If we were perfectly healthy there would be no such thing as a decayed tooth."

Teeth of Anglo Saxon Race Free From Decay

Thirty-seven per cent of the Anglo Saxons have decayed teeth, it was revealed by the findings of Dr. Pickerel who spent a life time in study in dental hygiene, continued Dr. Thompson.

Central European races were only thirty-five per cent affected while in the New Zealand Maori tribes, only one per cent were found to be suffering from tooth decay.

What is the answer raw fruits, and foods? Dr. Pickerel thought so. Then he went on to say that we could go where fresh fruit was never seen. He lived with the Esquimaux for three months. There he found tooth decay in the ratio of only three per cent. How they ate raw meats, unspoiled by cook-

Awarded Trophy

Fenwick A. Cramer of Westbrook, cheese maker of the Glanvale cheese factory, No. 64, had the best record of any maker in Prince-Lennox County for 1936, according to figures just released by J. L. Irwin, Dominion Dairy Produce Grader of the local office.

He thus becomes the winner of the Whig-Standard challenge trophy which has been competed for by county makers for several years past and which time steady improvement has been shown in the grade of Mr. Cramer made 1,442 points on cheese, all of which were first grade. His average score was 97.01. His score thus compares very favorably with the high record of other cheese in Eastern Ontario, being topped only by Melrose, Moorefield, Northumberland, Prescott, and Beaubien Hastings County and Black River and Royal Creek in Prince Edward County.

Is Our Standing Of Living Rising?

Babson Says Budgeting Best Way to Lift Individual Standards

By ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Park, Mass., Jan. 23, 1937—Everybody realizes that business is much better today than it was in the "Bank Holiday" of March, 1933. Actually it is now above normal in volume and it is not far from the 1929 top. Yet I find a persistent feeling among all classes that American living standards have dropped to a permanently lower level. Various reasons are behind this gloomy belief that there can never again be "two cars in every garage." Hence, I have prepared a special study to determine just where the living standard of the average man in America is today compared with past years.

Sharp Rally in Standards

First, I am glad to report that living standards definitely have not gone on a permanently lower basis. They have rallied sharply from the depression low. In comparison with past periods, they are now at the highest level in history excepting only the years from mid-1924 to mid-1930. As a matter of fact, the percentage gain in our living standards from the depression pit has been greater than the advance in business activity. On the other hand, business is only 12 per cent under the September, 1929 top, while living standards are still almost 20 per cent below. Business is actually back to the figures of late 1929, but living standards have not yet pushed above the levels of early 1930.

Why should business be closer to the 1929 peak than living standards if the latter have rallied more vigorously than business? The principal reason is the constantly rising population curve. The total gain in our population since 1929 has been about eight million. Right here I should define living standards. Stated simply, our standard of living means the total number of goods produced in excess of bare living requirements divided by the total number of people. Hence, because we have had a big increase in our population, total industrial output must break through the 1929 highs before living standards can again reach their old-time peaks.

Ten Million Back to Work

Now, why have living standards come back sharper from the lowest levels than business activity? The principal reason is that temporarily wages and payrolls have come ahead faster than prices. In certain industries wage rates are today still pitifully low; but in many others they are at an all-time high. Furthermore, not only are those employed receiving better pay and getting in more hours, but ten million jobless have gone back to work since 1933. The nation's weekly pay envelope has fattened along with this tremendous gain in business activity and industrial output. Even so, there are still millions out of work in the country today who must be supported by the earnings of those gainfully employed. Naturally, this worries the average man who does not believe that our living standards can improve under such conditions.

Now, what is the future trend of our scale of living? Does my chart give hope of our ever breaking through the 1929 gilded peaks or is 1929 to be the zenith for all time? My chart is definitely bullish. It shows a strong rising trend and it forecasts that living standards will follow industrial output into a greater era of prosperity than we have ever known. In recent years, great strides have been made in industrial efficiency. Leading authorities state that in a few industries each worker can produce fifty per cent more today than he could in the last boom. The increase in efficiency for all industries averages about twenty per cent.

What Labor-Saving Machinery Does

This progress is significant. Temporarily, it may seem bearish to those who see the machines putting men out of work. After the period of readjustment is over, however, it will become apparent to everyone that it is a great forward step. In the long run it will mean one or a combination of three things: (1) Prices of goods will be somewhat less. (2) Wages will be one-fifth higher. (3) Each worker will have one-sixth more time to himself. This has been the experience of the motor and other industries over the past quarter-century where wages have been steadily boosted higher, prices constantly pushed lower, and hours gradually cut shorter.

There is, however, one dark spot in the outlook for American living standards,—that is waste. Billions of dollars are squandered every year in the United States. I estimate that accidents, fires, worthless products, useless competition, failures, strikes, crime and the like eat up $25,000,000,000 annually. To this terrific destruction must now be added the new item of government extravagance. Living standards are advanced through improvement in production methods which give us more wealth and increasing our annual "goods income". Bureaucracy, boondoggling, shovelling dirt from one pile to another—these do not create wealth or produce goods. They destroy our wealth and dissipate our income in terms of goods.

Inflation Another Threat

Our federal expenditures this past year represented ten per cent of our national income. Ten years ago they constituted less than five per cent. This constantly rising cost of government is a perpetual reminder that money inflation lurks in the offing. The major result of inflation would be a sharp curtailment of living costs. The "goods income" of wage and salary workers would automatically be ripped to shreds. Total living costs are today only twenty per cent above the 1933 low but they are definitely on the way up. Trade competition from countries with low-paid labor is also a menace to our own existence scale.

Thus far I have been speaking of living standards in terms of the nation as a whole. Germany or Italy and other regimented nations the national outlook is the outlook for the individual. The United States and Canada, however, are among the few nations in the world where the individual can better his national living standard. America is still the land of opportunity. The best way to lift your own future living standards above average is to manage your present income wisely. Personal budgeting is one method. Methodical management, wise and thrifty saving will bring better living standards than blowing your weekly wage or monthly salary on useless frills. Remember the ol dadage: "Income $1, expenses 95 cents, result happiness; but income $1, expenses $1.06, result misery!"

Business today, as registered by the Babson chart, is 1 per cent above normal and 13 per cent above a year ago.

Any Day A Fish Day

A Message from the PREMIER OF NOVA SCOTIA

How often we hear the remark, "Health is the first consideration!" We seem unanimously to agree that this precept should guide us in all the ordinary affairs of life. Yet in most important particular—selection of our diet—do we consistently observe that rule?

Take, for example, the matter of sea-foods.

It has been proven conclusively that these foods, properly prepared, have unusual health-giving power. Palatable and easily digested, they help the human body to resist disease and they promote the growth of children. They possess a great deal more protein than either chicken or beef and provide the best balanced flesh foods available, at no cost—they are relatively inexpensive.

Nevertheless it is said that the average Canadian family is content with perhaps one meal of fish per week. Such indifference displays this apparent blindness to the intrinsic value of fish food. For this condition we heartily welcome the present press campaign to encourage the consumption of fish throughout the enjoyment of the every possible way. Fishing is a hazardous calling. Our Canadian fishermen imperil their lives day after day in order to bring table a constant supply of wholesome and delicious sea-foods. Their hardy and courageous men form a highly important asset to our population. For their sake, for your own sake, for the sake of your family, patronize their products. Serve more sea fish and remember that every day may be fish day.

MARMORA

Marmora—The Men's Club of St. Paul's Church observed ladies' night at their regular meeting held in the parish hall on Wednesday evening. Due to the inclemency of the weather and to other meetings being held on the same evening, the attendance of ladies in general was not as large as had been hoped for. All the ladies present, however, sing all were unanimous in expressing their enjoyment of the evening's program. W. J. Colcrift, President of the Club, was in the chair. Robert Scott, Secretary, read the minutes of the last regular meeting and business was then taken over by Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell. There being little business, the pleasant supply of wholesome and delicious sea-foods. The hardy and courageous men form a highly important asset to our population. For their sake, for your own sake, for the sake of your family, patronize their products. Serve more sea fish and remember that every day may be fish day.

The Agricultural Situation And Outlook for 1937

In a booklet published jointly by the Federal Department of Agriculture and the Department of Trade and Commerce is summarized the basic influences on the Agricultural Outlook for 1937. These may be classified briefly as follows:—

Domestic Demand Situation

Favourable Features

1. Industrial production increased 9% in 1936 compared with 1935.
2. The index of manufacturing in Canada increased by 10% in 1936.
3. Retail sales increased by 4% in 1936.
4. Tourist trade continues to increase from year to year.
5. The spread between farm prices and general price level was narrowed materially during 1936.
6. Prices of farm products continue to rise.

Unfavourable Features

1. Unemployment relief continues to be a major problem.
2. The construction industry has been slow in showing signs of recovery.
3. Moderate price increases for living necessities and certain operating requirements are expected in 1937; these may however be more than offset by more rapidly rising prices of farm products.

International Trade Conditions

Favourable Features

1. World trade increased during first nine months of 1936.
2. Trade of Canada's two chief customer countries, the United Kingdom and the United States, has been increasing.
3. Stocks of primary products in importing countries have been reduced.
4. Trade agreement policies are bringing encouraging results.
5. Progress has been made toward more assured stability of exchange rates.

Unfavourable Features

1. Trade restrictions are still impeding the flow of world trade.
2. Political, financial, military and social problems average Canadian family is content with perhaps one meal of fish per week. Such indifference displays this apparent blindness to the intrinsic value of fish food. For this condition we heartily welcome the present press campaign to encourage the consumption of fish throughout the enjoyment of the every possible way. Fishing is a hazardous calling.
